¶ A Pꝛologue oꝛ pꝛeface made by the moſt reuerende father in God, Thomas Archbyſhop of Cantoꝛbury, Metropolytan and Pꝛymate of Englande.

FOR twoe ſondꝛye ſoꝛtes of people, it ſemeth muche neceſſary that ſome thing be ſayd in the entry of this booke, by the waye of a pꝛeface oꝛ pꝛologue, whereby hereafter it may be both the better accepted of thē whiche hytherto could not well beare it: and alſo the better vſed of thē, which heretofoꝛe haue myſuſed it. Foꝛ truly ſome there are that be to ſlowe, and nede the ſpurre: ſome other ſeme to quycke, and nede moꝛe of the bꝛydell. Some loſe theyꝛ game by ſhoꝛte ſhoting, ſome by ouerſhoting. Some walke to muche on the left hand, ſome to muche on the right. In the foꝛmer ſoꝛte be all they that refuſe to reade, oꝛ to heare read yͤ ſcripture in theyꝛ vulgare tonges, muche woꝛſe they that alſo let oꝛ diſcourage the other frō the reading oꝛ hearing therof. In the latter ſoꝛt be they, which by theyꝛ inoꝛdynate reading, vndiſcrete ſpeakyng, contencious diſputing, oꝛ otherwiſe, by theyꝛ licencious lyuing, ſlaunder and hynder the woꝛde of God, moſte of all other, whereof they would ſeme to be greateſt furtherers. Theſe two ſoꝛtes albeit they be moſte far vnlyke the one to yͤ other, yet they both deſerue in effecte lyke repꝛoche. Neyther can I well tell whether of them I may iudge the moꝛe offender, him that doeth obſtinately refuſe ſo godly ⁊ goodly knowledge: oꝛ him that ſo vngodly, ⁊ ſo vngoodly doeth abuſe theſame. And as touching the foꝛmer, I would maruaile muche that any [illegible] ſhould be ſo mad, as to refuſe in darkenes, lyght: in honger, foode: in colde, fyꝛe: foꝛ the woꝛde of God is lyght. * Lucerna pedibus meis, uerbum tuum. Foode, ‡ Non in ſolo pane uiuit homo, ſed in omni uerbo dei. Fyꝛe *, Ignem ueni mittere in terram, & quid uolo, niſi ut ardeat? I would maruaile (I ſay at this) ſaue that I cōſyder, howe muche cuſtome and vſage may doe. So that yf there were a people as ſome wꝛyte, de Cymeriis, which neuer ſawe the Sunne, by reaſon that they be ſytuated far towarde the Noꝛth pole, and be encloſed ⁊ ouerſhadowed with hye mountaynes: it is credyble and lyke ynough, that yf by the power and wyll of God, the mountaines ſhould ſynke downe ⁊ geue place, that the lyght of the Sunne might haue entraunce to them: at the fyꝛſt, ſome of them would be offēded therwith. And the olde pꝛouerbe affirmeth, that after tyllage of coꝛne was fyꝛſt founde: many delyted moꝛe to fede of maſte and acoꝛnes, wherwith they had been accuſtomed, then to eate bꝛead made of good coꝛne. Suche is the nature of cuſtome, that it cauſeth vs to beare all thinges well and eaſely, wherwith we haue been accuſtomed, and to be offended with al thinges there vnto contrary. And therfoꝛe, I can wel thinke them woꝛthy pardon, which at the comming abꝛode of ſcripture, doubted and dꝛew backe. But ſuche as will perſyſt ſtyll in theyꝛ wylfulneſſe, I muſt nedes iudge not only foliſhe, froward and obſtynate: but alſo peuiſhe, peruerſe and indurate. And yet, if the matter ſhould be tryed by cuſtome, we myght alſo allege cuſtome foꝛ the reading of the ſcripture in the vulgare tonge, and pꝛeſcribe the moꝛe aunciente cuſtome. Foꝛ it is not muche aboue one hūdꝛeth yeare ago, ſence ſcripture hath not been accuſtomed to be read in the vulgare tonge within this realme, and many hundꝛed yeares befoꝛe that, it was tranſlated and read in the Saxones tonge, which at yͤ time was our mother tonge: wherof there remaine yet dyuerſe copyes founde lately in olde abbeys, of ſuche antique maners of wꝛytyng and ſpeakyng, that fewe men nowe been able to reade and vnderſtand them. And when this language waxed olde and oute of common vſage, bycauſe folke ſhould not lacke the frute of reading, it was again trāſlated into the newer language. Wherof yet alſo many copyes remaine and be dayly founde. But nowe to let paſſe cuſtome, and to wey, as wyſe men euer ſhould, the thing in his owne nature: Let vs here diſcuſſe, what it auayleth ſcripture to be had and read of the lay and vulgare people. And to this queſtion I entend heare to ſay nothing: but that was ſpoken and wꝛytten by the noble doctoure and moſte moꝛall diuyne ſayncte John Chriſoſtome, in his thyꝛd ſermon de Lazaro: albeit, I wyll be ſomethyng ſhoꝛter, and gather the matter into fewer wordes ⁊ leſſe roume thē he doth there, becauſe I would not be tedious. He exhorteth there his audyence, that euery man ſhould reade by himſelfe at home in the meane dayes ⁊ time, betwene ſermon and ſermon: to the entent they myght both more profoundly fyxe in theyr myndes ⁊ memoryes that he had ſayde before vpon ſuche textes, whereupon he had alreadye preached, and alſo that they myght haue theyr myndes the more readye and better prepared to receyue and perceyue that, whiche he ſhould ſay from thence forth in his ſermons, vpon ſuche textes, as he had not yet declared and preached vpon: therfore ſayeth he there: My cōmen vſage is to geue you warning before, what matter I intend after to entreate vpon, that you your ſelues in the meane dayes may take the booke in hande, reade, wey, and perceyue the ſumme and effecte of the matter: and marke what hath been declared, and what remayneth yet to be declared: ſo that therby your mynde may be the more furnyſhed, to heare the reſt, that ſhall bee ſayde. And that I exhorte you (ſayeth he) and euer haue, and will exhorte you, that you (not onely here in the churche) geue eare to that, that is ſayd by the preacher: but that alſo, when ye be at home in your houſes, ye apply your ſelues from tyme to time to the reading of holy ſcriptures: whiche thyng alſo I neuer lynne to beate into the eares of thē that be my famylyers, and with whom I haue pryuate acquayntaunce and conuerſacion. Let no man make excuſe and ſaye (ſayth he:) I am buſyed about matters of the cōmon wealth, I beare this office or that, I am a craftes man, I muſt applye myne occupacion, I haue a wyfe, my children muſt be fed, my houſeholde muſt I prouyde for. Briefly, I am a man of the worlde, it is not for me to reade the ſcriptures, that belongeth to thē that haue bydden the world fare wel: which lyue in ſolytaryneſſe and contemplacion, ⁊ haue been brought vp, ⁊ continually noſylled in learning and religion. To this anſwearing: what ſayeſt thou man (ſayth he,) is it not for the to ſtudy and to reade the ſcripture, becauſe thou art encombred and dyſtract with cures and buſines? So muche the more it is behoueful fore the to haue defence of ſcriptures: howe muche thou art the more dyſtreſſed in worldly daungers. They that been free and farre from trouble and entremedlyng of worldlye thinges, lyue in ſauegarde and tranquilitie, and in the calme, or within a ſure hauen. Thou art in the myddeſt of the ſea of worldly wyckedneſſe, and therfore thou nedeſt the more of goſtly ſuccoure and conforte: they ſyt farre from the ſtrokes of battayle, and farre out of gunne ſhote, and therfore they be but ſeldome wounded: thou that ſtandeſt in the fore frount of the hoſte, and nyeſt to thyne enemyes, muſt nedes take nowe and then many ſtrokes, and be greuouſly wounded: And therefore thou haſte more nede to haue thy remedies ⁊ medecynes at hande. Thy wyfe prouoketh the to anger, thy chylde geueth the occaſion to take ſorowe ⁊ penſyueneſſe, thyne enemyes lye in wayte for the, thy frend (as thou takeſt hym) ſometime enuyeth the: thy neyghbour myſreporteth the, or pycketh quarels agaynſt the, thy mate or partener vndermyneth the, thy Lord, iudge, or iuſtice thretneth the, pouertie is paynfull vnto the, the loſſe of thy deare ⁊ welbeloued cauſeth the to mourne. Proſperitie exalteth the, aduerſitie bryngeth the lowe. Brieflye, ſo dyuerſe and ſo manyfolde occaſions of cares, trybulacions ⁊ temptacions beſet the ⁊ beſege the round aboute. Where canſt thou haue armour or fortreſſe againſt thine aſſautes? Where canſt thou haue ſalues for thy ſores, but of holy ſcripture? Thy fleſh muſt nedes be prone, and ſubiect to fleſhly luſtes, which dayly walkeſt ⁊ art conuerſaūt amonge wemen, ſeeſt theyr bewtyes ſet forth to the eye, heareſt theyr nyſe ⁊ wanton woordes, ſmelleſt theyr balme, ciuet and muſke, with many other lyke prouocacions and ſtirringes, except thou haſte in a redineſſe wherewith to ſuppreſſe and auoyde them, whiche cannot els where be had, but onelye out of the holye ſcriptures. Let vs reade and ſeke all remedyes that we can, and al ſhalbe litle ynough. Howe ſhall we then doe, yf we ſuffre and take daylye woundes, and when we haue done, wyll ſyt ſtyll and ſerche for no medicynes? Doeſt thou not marke, and conſyder howe the ſmyth, maſon, or carpenter, or any other handye crafteſman, what nede ſoeuer he be in, what other ſhyfte ſoeuer he make, he wyll not ſell, or laye to pledge the toles of his occupacion, for then howe ſhould he worke his feate or get his lyuing therby? Of lyke mynde and affeccion ought we to bee towardes holye ſcripture: foꝛ as mallettes, hammers, ſawes, cheſylles, axes, ⁊ hatchettes be the tooles of theyꝛ occupacion: So be the bookes of the Pꝛophetes, ⁊ Apoſtles and al holy wꝛytte inſpired by the holy goſt, the inſtrumentes of our ſaluació. Wherefoꝛe let vs not ſtycke to bye and pꝛouyde vs the Byble, that is to ſay the bookes of holye ſcripture. And let vs thynke that to bee a better Juell in our houſe, then eyther gold oꝛ ſyluer. Foꝛ lyke as theues been lothe to aſſaute an houſe, where they know to be good armoure ⁊ artillary: ſo, where ſo euer theſe holy and goſtly bookes been occupyed, there neyther the deuyll, noꝛ none of his Angels dare come neare. And they that occuppe them been in muche ſauegarde, and haue greate conſolacyon, and been the readyer vnto all goodneſſe, the ſlower to all euyll: ⁊ if they haue done any thing amyſſe, anone euen by the ſight of the bookes, theyꝛ conſcyences been admoniſhed, ⁊ they waxen ſoꝛy and aſhamed of the facte. Peraduenture they wyll ſay vnto me: howe ⁊ if we vnderſtande not that we reade, that is conteyned in the bookes? What then? Suppoſe thou vnderſtand not the depe ⁊ pꝛofounde myſteries of ſcriptures, yet can it not be, but that muche frute and holyneſſe muſt come and growe vnto the by the readyng: foꝛ it cannot be that thou ſhouldeſt be ignoraunte in all thynges alyke. Foꝛ the holy goſt hath ſo oꝛdered and attempered the ſcriptures, that in them aſwell publycanes, fyſhers, and ſhepcheardes maye fynde theyꝛ edificacion, as greate doctours theyꝛ erudicion: foꝛ thoſe bookes were not made to vayne gloꝛy, lyke as were the wꝛytinges of the gentile phyloſophers and rethoꝛicians, to the intente the makers ſhoulde be had in admiracion foꝛ theyꝛ hye ſtyles and obſcure maner of wꝛytyng, whereof nothing can be vnderſtande without a maſter oꝛ an expoſytoure. But the Apoſtels ⁊ pꝛophetes wꝛote theyꝛ bookes ſo, that theyꝛ ſpecyall intent and purpoſe might be vnderſtande and perceyued of euery reader, which was nothyng but the edifycacion ⁊ amendement of the lyfe of them, that readeth oꝛ heareth it. Who is it, that redyng oꝛ hearing read in the goſpell: Bleſſed are they that been meke, Bleſſed are they that been mercyfull, Bleſſed are they that been of cleane hert: and ſuche other lyke places, can perceiue nothing except he haue a maſter to teache hym what it meaneth? Lykewyſe, the ſygnes and myꝛacles with all other hiſtoꝛies of the doynges of Chꝛiſte oꝛ his Apoſtles, who is there, of ſo ſymple wyt and capacitie, but he may be able to perceyue ⁊ vnderſtand them? Theſe be but excuſes and clokes foꝛ the rayne, ⁊ keueringes of theyꝛ owne ydel ſlouthfulnes: I cannot vnderſtand it. What maruayle? Howe ſhouldeſt thou vnderſtande, if thou wylt not reade, noꝛ looke vpon it? take the bookes into thyne handes, reade the whole ſtoꝛy, and that thou vnderſtādeſt, kepe it well in memoꝛy: that thou vnderſtandeſt not, reade it agayne, and agayne: yf thou can neyther ſo come by it, counſayle with ſome other that is better learned. Goe to thy curate and Pꝛeacher, ſhewe thy ſelfe to be deſyꝛous to knowe and learne. And I doubte not but God ſeeyng thy dilygence and readyneſſe (yf no manne els teache thee) wyll hymſelfe vouchſafe with his holy ſpꝛyte to illumynate thee, and to open vnto thee that whiche was locked from thee. Remember the Eunuchus of Candace quene of Ethiopia, whiche albeit he was a manne of a wylde and barbarous countrye, and one occupyed with woꝛldly cures and buſyneſſes, yet ryding in his charete, he was readyng the ſcrypture. Nowe conſyder, yf this manne paſſyng in his ioꝛney, was ſo dylygent as to reade the ſcripture, what thynkeſt thou of lyke was he wont to doe ſyttyng at home? Agayne, he that letted not to reade, albeit he dyd not vnderſtande, what dyd he then, troweſt thou, after that when he had learned and had gotten vnderſtandyng? Foꝛ that thou mayſt well knowe that he vnderſtode not what he read: herken what Philyp there ſayth vnto hym. Vnderſtandeſt thou what thou readeſt? And he nothyng aſhamed to confeſſe his ignoꝛaunce, anſwereth: Howe ſhoulde I vnderſtande hauyng no bodye to ſhewe me the waye? Loe, when he lacked one to ſhewe hym the waye, and to expound to hym the ſcriptures, yet dyd he reade: and therefoꝛe God the rather pꝛouyded foꝛ hym a guyde of the waye, that taught hym to vnderſtand it. God perceyued his wyllyng and toward mynde: and therefoꝛe he ſente hym a teacher by and by. Therefoꝛe lette no manne bee neglygente aboute his owne health and ſaluacion: though thou haue not Phylyppe alwayes when thou wouldeſt, the holy goſte, whiche then moued and ſtyrred vp Philyppe, will be ready and not fayle thee, yf thou do thy dilygence accordynglye. All theſe thynges been wrytten vnto vs for oure edifycacion and amendement, whiche be borne towardes the latter ende of the worlde. The reading of ſcryptures is a greate and ſtronge bulwarke or fortreſſe agaynſt ſynne: the ignoraunce of theſame is the greater ruyne and deſtruccion of them that wyll not knowe it. That is the thyng that bryngeth in hereſye, that is it, that cauſeth all corrupte and peruerſe lyuyng: that is it, that bryngeth all thynges out of good order. Hytherto all that I haue ſayde, I haue taken and gathered out of the foreſayde ſermon of this holy Doctoure ſayncte John Chriſoſtome. Now yf I ſhould in lyke maner bring furth, what the ſelfe ſame Doctoure ſpeaketh in other places, and what other Doctours & wryters ſaye, concernyng theſame purpoſe, I myght ſeme to you to wryte another Byble, rather then to make a preface to the Byble. Wherefore in fewe woordes to comprehende the largeneſſe and vtilytie of the ſcrypture, howe it conteyneth frutefull inſtruccion and erudicion for euery man: yf any thyng be neceſſarye to be learned, of the holy ſcripture we may learne it. Yf falſhed ſhall be reproued, thereof we may gather wherewithall. Yf any thyng be to be corrected and amended, yf there nede any exhortacion or conſolació, of the ſcripture we maye well learne. In the ſcriptures be the fatte paſtures of the ſoule, therin is no venymouſe meate, no vnholſome thyng, they be the verye dayntye and pure fedyng. He that is ignoraunte, ſhall fynde there what he ſhoulde learne. He that is a peruerſe ſynner, ſhall there fynde his damnacion, to make hym to tremble for feare. He that laboureth to ſerue God, ſhall fynde there his glorye, and the promyſſyons of eternall lyfe, exhortyng hym more dilygentlye to laboure. Herein maye prynces learne howe to gouerne theyr ſubiectes: Subiectes, obedience, loue and drede to theyr prynces. Houſebandes, howe they ſhoulde behaue them vnto theyr wyues: howe to educate theyr chyldren and ſeruauntes. And contrarye the wyues, chyldren, and ſeruauntes, may knowe theyr dutye, to theyr houſebandes, parentes, and maſters. Here may all maner of perſons, menne, wemen, younge, olde, learned, vnlearned, ryche, poore, prieſtes, laymen, lordes, ladyes, offycers, tenauntes, and meane menne, virgyns, wyues, wydowes, lawiers, marchauntes, artifycers, houſebandmen, and all maner of perſones of what eſtate or condicion ſo euer they be, may in this booke learne all thynges what they ought to beleue, what they ought to doe, and what they ſhoulde not doe, aſwell concernyng almyghtye God, as alſo concernyng themſelues and al other. Briefely, to the readyng of the ſcrypture none canne be enemyes, but that eyther be ſo ſycke, that they loue not to heare of any medicyne: orels that be ſo ignoraunte, that they knowe not ſcripture to be the moſte healthfull medicyne. Therefore as touchyng this former parte, I wyll here conclude: and take it as a concluſyon ſufficientlye determyned and approued, that it is conueniente and good, the ſcrypture to be read of all ſortes and kyndes of people, and in the vulgare tonge, without further allegacions or probacions for theſame: which ſhall not nede, ſynce that this one place of John Chriſoſtome is ynough and ſuffycyente to perſwade all them that be not frowardly and peruerſly ſette in theyr owne wylfull opinion, ſpecyallye nowe that the kynges hyghneſſe beeyng ſupreme head nexte vnder Chriſte, of this churche of Englande, hath approued with hys royall aſſente the ſettyng forth hereof, which onely to all true and obedyent ſubiectes ought to be a ſuffycient reaſon, for the allowance of theſame, wythout farther delaye, reclamacion, or reſyſtaunce, although there were no preface nor other reaſon herein expreſſed. Therefore nowe to come to the ſeconde and latter parte of my purpoſe: there is nothyng ſo good in this worlde but it may be abuſed, and turned from frutefull and wholſome, to hurtfull and noyſome. What is there aboue, better then the ſunne, the moone, the ſtarres: yet was there that tooke occaſyon by the greate beawtye and vertue of them, to diſhonoure God, and to defyle themſelues with ydolatry, geuyng the honoure of the lyuyng God and creatoure of all thynges, to ſuche thynges as he had created. What is there here beneth, better than fyre, water, meates, drynkes, metalles of golde, ſyluer, yron and ſtiele: yet we ſee daylye great harme, and muche myſchefe, done

The concluſion.

The kynges hyghneſſe hath alowed yͤ ſcrypture as neceſſarye for vs.

There is nothyng but it may be abuſed.

by euery one of theſe, aſwell for lacke of wyſedome and prouydence of them that ſuffer euyll, as by the malyce of them that worketh the euyll. Thus to them that bee euyll of themſelues, euery thyng ſetteth forwarde and increaſeth theyr euyll, be it of his owne nature a thyng neuer ſo good: lyke as contrarywyſe, to them that ſtudyeth and endeuoreth themſelues to goodneſſe, euerye thyng preuayleth them, and profyteth vnto good: bee it of hys owne nature a thyng neuer ſo bad. As Sayncte Paul ſayde. His qui diligunt deum, omnia cooperantur in bonum: euen as out of moſte venymouſe wormes is made tryacle, the moſte ſouerayngne medicyne for the preſeruacion of mannes health in tyme of daunger. Wherefore I woulde aduyſe you all, that come to the readyng or hearyng of this booke, whiche is the woorde of GOD, the moſte preciouſe Iuell, and moſte holye relyque that remayneth vpon earth, that ye bryng with you the feare of GOD, and that ye doe it with all due reuerence, and vſe your knowledge thereof, not to vayne glory, and friuolouſe dyſputacion: but to the honoure of GOD, encreaſe of vertue, and edificacion bothe of youre ſelues and other. And to the entente that my woordes maye be the more regarded, I wyll vſe in this parte the authorytye of Sayncte Gregory Nazianzene, lyke as in the other I dyd of Sayncte John Chriſoſtome. It appeareth that in hys tyme there were ſome (as I feare me there been alſo nowe at theſe dayes a greate numbre) whiche were ydell bablers, and talkers of the ſcripture oute of ceaſon and all good order, and without any increaſe of vertue, or example of good lyuyng: to them he wryteth all his fyrſte booke, de theologia. Whereof I ſhall briefely gather the whole effecte, and recyte it here vnto you. There been ſome (ſayeth he) whoſe not onely eares and tounges, but alſo theyr fyſtes been whetted and ready bent all to contencion and vnprofytable diſputacion: whome I woulde wyſhe as they been vehemente and earneſt to reaſon the matter with tounge: ſo they were alſo ready and practyue to doe good dedes. But for aſmuche as they ſubuertyng the order of all godlyneſſe, haue reſpecte onely to thys thyng, howe they maye bynde and loce ſubtyle queſtyons, ſo that nowe euery markette place, euery alehouſe and tauerne, euery feaſthouſe: briefely, euery company of menne, euery aſſemblie of women is fylled with ſuche talke: Sence the matter is ſo (ſayeth he) and that oure fayth and holy relygyon of Chriſte begynneth to waxe nothyng els, but as it were a ſophiſtrye or a talkyng crafte, I can no leſſe doe, but ſaye ſome thyng there vnto. It is not fytte (ſayeth he) for euery man to dyſpute the hygh queſtions of dyuinitie, neyther is it to be done at all tymes, neyther in euery audience muſt we diſcuſſe euery doubte: but we muſt knowe whan, to whome, and howe farre we ought to enter into ſuche matters. Fyrſte, it is not for euery manne: but it is for ſuche as be of exacte and exquyſite iudgementes, and ſuche as haue ſpente theyr tyme before in ſtudye and contemplacion, and ſuche as before haue clenſed themſelues aſwell in ſoule, as body: or at the leſte, endeuored themſelues to be made cleane. For it is daungerous (ſayeth he) for the vncleane to touche that thyng, that is moſte cleane: lyke as the ſoore eye taketh harme by lookyng vpon the Sunne. Secondarelye, not at all tymes, but whan we be repoſed, and at reſt from all outwarde dregges and trouble, and when that our heades been not encombred with other worldlye and wanderyng ymagynacions: as yf a manne ſhould myngle balme and dyrte together. For he that ſhall iudge and determyne ſuche matters and doubtes of ſcryptures, muſt take his tyme, when he may apply his wyttes thereunto, that he maye thereby the better ſee, and dyſcerne what is trueth. Thyrdly, where, and in what audyence. There and amonge thoſe that been ſtudyous to learne: and not amonge ſuche as haue pleaſure to tryfle with ſuche matters, as wyth other thynges of paſtyme: whiche repute for theyr chefe delycates, the diſputacion of hygh queſtions, to ſhewe theyr wyttes, learnyng and eloquence in reaſoning of hygh matters. Fourthly, it is to be conſydered howe farre to wade in ſuche matters of difficultie. No further (ſayth he) but as euery mans owne capacitie wil ſerue hym: ⁊ againe no further then the weaknes or intelligence of the other audience may beare. For lyke as to greate noyſe hurteth the eare, to muche meate

hurteth the mannes body, to heauy burthens hurte the bearers of them, to muche rayne doeth more hurte then good to the ground, breefely, in all thynges to muche is noyous: euen ſo weake wyttes and weake conſciences maye ſone be oppreſſed with ouer harde queſtions: I ſaye not this to diſſuade men from the knowledge of God, and readyng or ſtudying of the ſcripture. For I ſaye, that it is as neceſſarye for the lyfe of mans ſoule, as for the body to breathe. And yf it were poſſyble ſo to lyue, I would thynke it good for a man to ſpende all his lyfe in that, and to doe none other thyng. I commende the lawe whiche byddeth to medytate and ſtudye the ſcriptures alwayes both nyght and daye: and ſermons and preachynges to be made both mornyng, noone, and euentyde. And God to be lauded and bleſſed in al tymes, to bedwarde, from bed, in our iourneyes, and all our other workes. I forbyd not to reade, but I forbyd to reaſon. Neyther forbyd I to reaſon ſo farre as is good and godlye. But I alowe not that is done out of ſeaſon, and out of meaſure and good order. A manne may eate to muche of hony be it neuer ſo ſwete, and there is tyme for euerye thyng, and that thyng that is good is not good, yf it be vngodly done. Euen as a floure in wynter is out of ſeaſon, and as a womans apparell becommeth not a manne: neyther contraryly, the mannes the woman, neyther is weping conuenient at a brydale, neyther laughyng at a buryall. Nowe yf we can obſerue and kepe that is comely and tymely, in all other thinges: ſhall not we then the rather do theſame in the holy ſcriptures? Let vs not runne forth as it were wylde horſes, that can ſuffre neyther brydle in theyr mouthes; nor ſytter on theyr backes. Let vs kepe vs in our boundes, and neyther let vs go to farre on the one ſyde, leſte we retourne into Egypte: neither to farre ouer the other, leſte we be caryed away to Babylon. Lette vs not ſyng the ſonge of our Lorde in a ſtraunge lande: that is to ſay, let vs not diſpute the woorde of God at all aduentures, aſwel where it is not to be reaſoned, as where it is: and aſwell in the eares of them that be not fytte therfore, as of them that be. Yf we can in no wyſe forbeare, but that we muſt nedes diſpute, let vs forbeare thus muche at the leſte, to do it out of time, and place conueniente. And lette vs entreate of thoſe thynges whiche be holy, holyly: and vpon thoſe thynges that be myſticall, myſtically: and not to vtter the deuyne miſteryes in the eares vnworthy to heare them, but let vs knowe what is comely as well in our ſylence and talkyng, as in our garmentes wearyng, in our fedyng, in our geſture, in our goinges, and all our other behauyng. This contencion and debate aboute ſcriptures and doubtes therof (ſpecyally when ſuche as pretende to be the fauourers and ſtudentes therof, cannot agre within themſelues) doth moſt hurte to our ſelues, and to the fortheryng of the cauſe and quarels that we would haue forthered, aboue all other thynges. And we in this (ſayeth he) be not vnlyke to them that beeyng mad ſette theyr owne houſes on fyre, and that ſlay theyr owne chyldren, or beate theyr owne parentes. I maruayle muche (ſayeth he) to recounte whereof commeth all this deſyre of vayne glorye, whereof commeth all this tongeitche, that we haue ſo muche delyte to talke and clatter. And wherin is our communicacio͂? Not in the commendacions of vertuous and good dedes of hoſpytalytye, of loue betwene chryſtian brother and brother, of loue betwene manne and wyfe, of vyrgynitie and chaſtitye, and of almeſſe toward the poore. Not in Pſalmes and godlye ſonges, not in lamentyng for our ſynnes, not in repreſſyng the affeccions of the bodye, not in prayers to God. We talke of ſcripture, but in the meane tyme we ſubdue not oure fleſhe by faſtyng, wakyng, and weppyng: we make not this lyfe a meditacion of death, we doe not ſtryue to be Lordes ouer our appetytes and affeccions. We go not aboute to pul downe oure proude and hygh myndes, to abate oure fumyſhe and rancorous ſtomackes, to reſtraine our luſtes and bodely delectacions, our vndiſcrete ſorowes, our laſciuious myrth, our inordynate loking, our vnſaciable hearing of vanities, our ſpeaking without meaſure, our inconueniente thoughtes, and breifelye to refourme our lyfe and maners: but all our holyneſſe conſyſteth in talking. And we pardon eche other fro͂ al good lyuing, ſo that we may ſtycke faſt togyther in argumentacion, as though there were no moe wayes to heauen but this alone, the way of ſpeculacion and knowledge, (as they take it) but in verye dede, it is rather the

waye of ſuperfluous contencion and ſophiſticacion. Hytherto haue I recyted the mynde of Gregorye Nazianzene: in that booke which I ſpake of before. The ſame author ſayth alſo in an other place, that the learnyng of a Chriſten man ought to begyn of the feare of God, to ende in matters of hye ſpeculacion: and not contrarylye to begyn with ſpeculacion, ⁊ to ende in feare. For ſpeculacion (ſayeth he) either hye connyng and knowledge, if it be not ſtayed with the brydell of feare to offende God, is daungerous, and ynough to tumble a manne headlyng downe the hyll. Therfore ſayth he: the feare of God muſt be the firſt begynnyng, and as it were an A. B. C. or an introduccion to all them that ſhall entre into the verye true ⁊ moſte frutefull knowledge of holye ſcriptures. Where as is the feare of God, there is (ſayeth he) the kepyng of the commaundementes: and where as is the kepyng of the commaundementes, there is the clenſyng of the fleſhe: which fleſhe is a cloude before the ſoules eye, ⁊ ſuffereth it not purely to ſee the beame of yͤ heauenly light. Where as is the clenſyng of the fleſhe, there is the illumynacion of the holy goſte, the ende of all our deſyres, and the very lyght whereby the veritie of ſcriptures is ſene and perceyued. This is the mynde and almoſte the wordes of Gregorye Nazianzene, doctoure of the Greke churche, of whome Sayncte Jerome ſayth: that vnto his time, the Latyn churche had no wryter hable to be compared, ⁊ to make an euen match with hym. Therefore to conclude this latter parte, euery man that commeth to the readyng of this holy booke, ought to bryng with hym fyrſte and formoſte this feare of almightye God: and then next a fyrme and a ſtable purpoſe to refourme his owne ſelfe accordyng there vnto, and ſo to continue, procede and proſpere, from tyme to tyme ſhewyng himſelfe to bee a ſobre and frutefull hearer and learner: which if he do, he ſhal proue at the length wel hable to teache, though not with his mouth, yet with his lyuyng and good example, whiche is ſure the moſte lyuelye, and effecteous fourme and maner of teachyng. He that otherwyſe intermedleth with this booke, let hym be aſſured, that once he ſhall make accompt therfore: when he ſhall haue ſayde to him as it is wrytten in the Prophete Dauid.

Peccatori dicit deus. &c. Unto the vngodly ſayth God: why doeſt thou preach my lawes, and takeſt my teſtamēt in thy mouth? Where as thou hateſt to be refourmed, and haſte caſt my wordes behynde thee. When thou ſaweſt a thefe, thou conſentedſt vnto hym, ⁊ haſte been partaker with aduouterers. Thou haſte let thy mouth ſpeake wickedneſſe, and with thy tonge thou haſte ſet forth diſceyte. Thou ſatteſt and ſpakeſt agaynſte thy brother, and haſte ſclaundred thy owne mothers ſonne. These thinges haſte thou done and I held my tonge, and thou thoughteſt (wyckedlye) that I am euen ſuche a one as thy ſelfe. But I wyll reproue thee, and ſette before thee the thinges that thou haſte done. O conſydre this ye that forget God, leſte I plucke you away, and there be none to delyuer you.

Whoſo offreth me thankes and prayſe, he honoureth me: and to him that ordreth his conuerſacion ryght: wyll I ſhewe the ſaluacion of God.

Fyrſt the holy wrytynges of the Byble teache vs, that there is one God, almyghtye, that hath neyther begynning, nor endyng: whiche of his owne goodneſſe dyd create all thynges: of whome all thynges procede, and without whome there is nothyng: whiche is ryghteous and mercyfull, and whiche worketh all thynges in all after his wyll: of whome it may not be demaunded wherefore he doeth this or that.

Whiche Adam by the enuy of the deuyll diſobeyīg the commaundemente of his maker, dyd fyrſte ſynne, and brought ſynne into this worlde, ſuche and ſo greate, that we whiche be ſpronge of hym after the fleſhe, are ſubdued vnto ſynne, deathe, and damnacion, brought vnder the yoke and tyrannye of the deuyll.

¶ And further that Chriſte Jeſus his ſonne was promyſed of God the father, to be a ſauiour to this Adam, Abraham, Iſaac, Jacob, Dauid, and the other fathers: whiche ſhould delyuer them from theyr ſynnes and tyranny of the deuyll, that with a quycke and lyuyng fayth would beleue this promeſſe, and truſt to this Jeſus Chriſte, hoping to haue this delyueraunce of and by hym. And truly this promeſſe, is very oft rehearſed in the bookes of the olde teſtament, yea, and the olde teſtament is this promeſſe: as it is called the newe, whiche teacheth that this promeſſe is fulfylled.

¶ And that in the meane ſeaſon whyle the fathers looked for ſaluacion and delyueraunce promyſed, becauſe mannes nature is ſuche that he not onely cannot, but alſo wyll not confeſſe hymſelfe to bee a ſynner, and ſpeciallye ſuche a ſynner that hathe nede of the ſauyng health promyſed, the lawe was geuen, where through menne myght know ſynne, and that they are ſynners: when they ſee that they dooe none of the thynges that the lawe commaundeth, with ſo gladde and wyllyng a mynde as God requyreth: but rather agaynſt theyr wylles, without affeccion, and as though they were conſtrayned with the feare of that hel whiche the lawe threateneth, ſaying: Curſed be he that maynteyneth not all the woordes of this lawe to kepe them. And that this lawe was geuen, to the intente that ſynne and the malyce of mennes hertes beyng therby the better knowen, men ſhould the more feruentlye thyrſte the commyng of Chriſte, whiche ſhould redeme them from theyr ſinnes. As it was fygured vnto the Jewes by many ceremonies, hoſtes, and ſacryfices: whiche were ordeyned of God, not to the intente to take awaye ſynnes, but to ſhew and declare that they ſhould be put away by fayth in the ſaluacion promyſed thorowe Chriſte: and whiche nowe are put awaye by the comming of that Chriſt, which is the very hoſte of the father, yͭ taketh awaye all ſynne.

Laſt of all/ by the bookes of the newe Teſtamente, we are taught, that Chriſte whiche was promyſed and ſhadowed in the olde Teſtament, is ſente of the father, at ſuche time as he had determyned with himſelfe, at ſuche time (I ſaye) as all wickednes floriſhed. And yͭ he was ſent, not for any mans good workes (for they al were ſinners) but to the intent that he would truly ſhewe the aboundaunte ryches of grace, whiche he had promyſed.

ſynne)and to make vs the ſonnes of God,ſyth he hath geuen vs the true peace ⁊ tranquylytie of conſcience,that we no longer do feare the paynes of hell: whiche feare is put away by the faypth,confidence,and aſſurance,that the father geueth vs, drawyng vs vnto his ſonne. For that faypth is the gyfte of God, wherby we beleue that Chriſte is come into this worlde to ſaue ſinners: whiche is of ſo greate pyth that they whiche haue it, deſyre to perfourme al the dutyes of loue to al men, after the example of Chriſte. For faypth once receyued, God geueth his holy goſt, wherwith he tokeneth and marketh all that beleue: whiche is the pledge ⁊ earneſt that we ſhall ſuerly poſſeſſe euerlaſting lyfe, and that geueth wytneſſe vnto our ſpryte, and graffeth this faythe in vs, that we be the ſonnes of God: powryng therewith that loue into our heartes, whiche Paul deſcribeth and ſetteth out to the * Corinthians. 1. Cor. 13. By that faypth and confydence in Chriſte whiche by loue is myghtye in operacion, and that ſheweth it ſelfe thorowe the workes of loue, ſtearyng menne therto, by that (I ſay) we are iuſtifyed: that is, by that faith Chriſtes father (which is become oures alſo thorowe that Chriſte our brother) counteth vs for righteous, and for his ſonnes: imputyng not our ſynnes vnto vs, thorow his grace. To conclude, he came to thintente that we beeyng clenſed from our ſynnes, and ſanctifyed vnto God the father: that is, halowed vnto the vſe of the father, to exercyſe good workes, renying and forſaking the workes of the fleſhe, ſhould freely ſerue him in rightouſnes ⁊ holynes all our lyfe long: thorow good workes whiche God hath ordeyned to thintent that we ſhould walke in thē, declaryng our ſelues thereby to be ſurly called vnto this grace: which workes whoſoeuer hath not, declareth that he hath not faypth in Chriſte. Unto whome we muſt come, and folowe hym wyth a chearfull hearte, that he may inſtructe ⁊ teache vs: for he is our maſter, meke and humble of hearte: he is our example, of whom we muſt learne the rule of good lyuing further, he is our prieſt, hye byſhop, and only mediator: whiche nowe ſitteth on the right hande of God the father, is our aduocate, ⁊ prayeth euer for vs: which will vndoubtedly obtayne whatſoeuer we deſyre, eyther of him, or of his father in his name: yf we beleue yͭ he will do it when we requyre it: For ſo hath he promyſed. Let vs therfore not doute (although we ſometime ſinne) with a confidence to come vnto hym, and with a lyuing and vndoubting faypth, that we ſhall obtayne mercy. For therfore came he, to thintente to ſaue ſynners: neyther requyreth he any thyng more of vs, then to come vnto hym without feare.

¶ This is that Chriſt Ieſus, whiche after he hath kylled the manne of ſynne with the breath of his mouth, ſhall ſytte in his maieſtie and iudge all men, geuyng vnto euery one the workes of his body, accordyng to that he hath done, whether it bee good or bad. And that ſhall ſaye vnto them that ſhall be on his ryght hande. Come ye bleſſed chyldren of my father, inheret ye the kyngdome prepared for you from the begynnyng of the worlde. And vnto them that ſhalbe on his lefte hande. Departe from me ye curſed, into euerlaſting fyre: whiche is prepared for the deuyll and his Angels. Then ſhall the ende come, and he ſhall delyuer vp the kyngdome to God the father.

¶ To the intente that we ſhoulde knowe this, by the goodneſſe of God workyng by his holy ſpryte, are the holy wrytinges of the Byble geuen vs: That we ſhould knowe (I ſay) and beleue that there is one God, and Ieſus Chriſte whome he hath ſente: and that in beleuyng we ſhoulde haue euerlaſtyng lyfe thorowe his name.

¶ Another foundacion then this can no manne laye. And Saincte Paul deſyreth that he bee holden accurſed whiche preacheth any other faypth and ſaluacion, then only by Ieſus Chriſte: yea, although it were an Angell of heauen. For of him, and thorowe him, and for him are all thinges: to whom with the father and the holy goſt, be honoure and glory for euermore. Amen.

A But the ſerpente was ſubtiller then euerye beaſte of the felde, whych yͤ LORD GOD made. And he ſayd vnto the woman: yea, hath yͤ LORD GOD ſayde: ye ſhall not eate of euery tree of yͤ gardē? And yͤ woman ſayd vnto yͤ ſerpent: we eate of the frute of the tree of yͤ garden, but as for the frute of yͤ tree which is in yͤ myddes of the gardē, GOD hath ſayd: ye ſhall not eate of it, neyther ſhal ye touche it, leeſt happlye ye dye. And 1.Cor.11.d. *the ſerpent ſayde vnto the woman: ye ſhall not dye the death, but GOD doeth knowe, that the ſame daye that ye eate thereof, youre eyes ſhal be opened, and ye ſhall be euen as Goddes, knowynge good and euyll. And ſo the Eccle.25.d. *woman (ſeing yͭ yͤ ſame tree was good to eate, and luſty to the eyes, and that the ſame tree was pleaſaunte to get wyſdome) toke of yͤ frut therof, ⁊ dyd eate, ⁊ gaue vnto her huſband beinge wᵗ her, whych dyd eate alſo. And the eyes of thē both were opened, ⁊ they knewe yͭ they were naked: and they ſowed fygge leaues together, and made them ſelues aprons.

B And they hearde the voice of yͤ LORD GOD walkynge in the garden in yͤ coole of the daye. And Adam and his wyfe hyd them ſelues from the preſence of yͤ LORDE GOD amonge the trees of the garden. And the LORDE GOD called Adam and ſayde vnto hym: where arte thou? whyche ſayd: I herde thy voice in the garden, and was afrayed, bycauſe I was naked, and hyd my ſelf. And he ſayde: Who tolde the, that thou waſt naked? haſt thou not eaten of the ſame tree, concernynge the whyche I commaunded the, that thou ſhouldeſt not eate of it? And Adam ſayde: The woman whom thou gaueſt to be wyth me, ſhe gaue me of the tree, and I dyd eate.

And the LORD GOD ſayd vnto yͤ wo-C man: why haſt thou done this? And the woman ſayd, yonder ſerpēt begiled me, and I dyd eate. And the LORDE GOD ſayd vnto yͤ ſerpent: bycauſe thou haſt doone this, thu art curſed aboue al catell, ⁊ aboue euery beaſt of yͤ feld. Upon thy bellye ſhalt thou goo, ⁊ duſte ſhalte thou eate all yͤ dayes of thy lyfe, I wyll alſo put enimitie bytwene the and the woman, bitwene thy ſeed and her ſeed. Moſ.1 *The ſame ſhall treade downe thy heed, ⁊ thou ſhalt treade vpō hys heele.

But vnto yͤ woman he ſayd: In multiplyinge, wyll I multiplie thy ſorowe, and thy conceiuyng: In ſorowe ſhalt thou brynge forth chyldren, and thy luſt ſhall pertaine to thy huſband, and he ſhall haue the rule of the.

Unto Adam he ſayde, becauſe thou haſt herkened vnto yͤ voice of thy wife, ⁊ haſte eaten of yͤ tree (concernyng the which I cōmaunded the, ſaying: Thou ſhalt not eate of it) curſed is the groūd for thy ſake. In ſorowe ſhalt thou eate of it al yͤ dayes of thy lyfe. Thorne alſo and thyſtle ſhal it cauſe to growe vnto the, and thou ſhalte eate the hearbe of the felde. In yͤ ſweate of thy face ſhalte thou eate breade, tyl thou be turned agayne into yͤ grounde, for out of it waſt thu takē, in as much as thu *arte duſt, Iob.34 ⁊ into duſt ſhalt thou be turned agayn.

D And Adam called hys wyues name Heua, becauſe ſhe was yͤ mother of all lyuinge. Unto the ſame Adam alſo and to hys wyfe dyd the LORD GOD make lethren garmentes, and clothed them. And yͤ LORD GOD ſayde: Behold, yonder man hath bene euen as one of vs, that he myght knowe good and euell.

And nowe leſte happly he put forth hys hand and take alſo of the tree of lyfe, and eate, and lyue for euer. And the LORD GOD ſente them furth from the garden of Eden, to dreſſe the grounde that he was takē out of. And ſo he droue out man, and at the eaſt ſyde of the garden of Eden, he ſet Cherubins, and yͤ glyſteryng flame of a ſhakyng ſwearde, to kepe the waye of the tree of lyfe.

The iiij. Chapter.

¶ Cain doth not only kyll hys ryghteous brother Abel, but alſo dyſpayreth, and is curſed. The generaciō of Hanoch, Mathuſael, Tubal, Lamech, Seth, and Enos.

A Adam knewe Heua hys wyfe: Who conceauynge, bare Cain, ſayinge: I haue gotten a man of the LORDE, And proceding furth, brought furth hys brother Habel, ⁊ Habel was a keper of ſhepe. But Cain was a tyller of the grounde. And in proceſſe of dayes it cam to paſſe that Cain brought of the frute of the groūd an oblacion vnto the LORDE. Habel alſo brought of yͤ fyrſtlynges of hys ſhepe, and of the fat therof. And the LORD Iob.34. had reſpecte vnto *Habel, ⁊ to hys oblacion. But vnto Cain ⁊ to hys offeryng he had no reſpect. For the whiche cauſe Cain was exceadynge wroth, and hys contenaunce abated. And the LORDE ſayde vnto Cain: Why art thou wroth, and why is thy contenaũce abated? yf thou do wel, ſhal there not be a promocion? And yf thou doſt not well, lyeth not thy ſynne in the doores? Unto the alſo pertaineth yͤ luſt therof, ⁊ thu ſhalt haue dominion ouer it, and Cain ſpake vnto Habel hys brother, ♣(let vs go furth)

B And it fortuned* when they were in the felde, Cain roſe vp agaynſte Habel his brother, ⁊ ſlue hym. And the LORD ſayde vnto Cain: Where is Habel thy brother? Whyche ſayd: J wote not. Am J my brothers keper? ⁊ he ſayde: what haſt thou done? The voice of thy brothers bloude cryeth vnto me out of the grounde. And nowe art thou curſed frõ yͤ erth, whiche hath opened her mouth, to receaue thy brothers bloud frõ thy hande. yf thou tyll yͤ groũd, ſhe ſhal not proceade to yelde vnto yͤ her ſtrength.

Fugitiue ⁊ a vagabound ſhalt thou be in the earth. And Cain ſayde vnto yͤ LORDE: My *iniquitie is more, then that it maye be forgeuen. Behold, thou haſte caſte me out thys daye from the vpper face of the earthe, and from thy face ſhall J be hyd: Fugitiue alſo and a vagaboũde ſhall J be in the earth. And it ſhall come to paſſe: euery one yͭ fyndeth me, ſhall ſlaye me. And the LORDE ſayde vnto hym: ♣(it ſhall not be ſo) yee, but who ſoeuer ſlayeth Cain, it ſhal be auenged ſeuen folde.

And yͤ LORD ſet a marke vpõ Cain: C leeſt any man fyndynge hym, ſhuld kyll hym. And Cain went out from the preſence of the LORDE, and dwelte in the lande of Node eſtwarde frõ Edẽ. Cain alſo knewe his wyfe which cõceaued ⁊ bare Henoch: ⁊ buyldyng a citie he called the name of the ſame citie after the name of hys ſõne Henoch. Unto yͤ ſame Henoch was borne Jrad. Jrad begat Mehuiael, ⁊ Mehuiael begat Methuſael. Methuſael begat Lamech. And Lamech toke vnto hym two wyues: The name of yͤ one was Ada, ⁊ the name of the other was Zilla. And Ada begat Jabel, which was yͤ father of ſuche as dwell in yͤ tentes, ⁊ of ſuche as haue catel. Hys brothers nam was Thubal, whych was yͤ father of ſuche as handle harpe ⁊ organe. And Zilla alſo begat Thubalcain, which wrought cunningly euery crafte of braſſe and of yron. The ſyſter of Thubalcain, was Naenia

D And Lamech ſayde vnto hys wyues Ada ⁊ Zilla: Heare my voice ye wyues of Lamech, herkẽ vnto my ſpeche: J haue ſlayne a mã to yͤ woũdyng of my ſelfe, ⁊ a yõge man to myne owne puniſhement. yf Cain ſhalbe auẽged ſeuẽfolde, truely Lamech ſeuentye tymes ⁊ ſeuen tymes. Adã knewe his wyfe agayne, ⁊ ſhe bare a ſõne ⁊ called his name Seth For GOD (ſayd ſhe) hath appointed me another ſede in ſteade of Habel, whome Cain ſlewe. And vnto yͤ ſame Seth alſo there was borne a ſonne, ⁊ he called his name Enos. Then began they to make inuocacion in the name of the LORDE.

A THys is the booke of the generacions of Adam. Jn the daye that GOD created man, in the lykneſſe of GOD made he him. Male and female createth he thẽ, and bleſſed them, ⁊ called theyr name Adam in the daye of theyr creacion.

And Adã lyued an hundreth ⁊ thyrty yeres, ⁊ begat a ſonne in hys owne lyknes after hys image ⁊ called hys name Seth. All the dayes of Adam (after he had begotten* Seth) were eyght hundreth yeres, ⁊ he begat ſõnes ⁊ doughters. And al yͤ dayes yͭ Adã lyued were nyne hundreth ⁊ thyrty yeres, ⁊ he died. Seth lyued an hundred ⁊ fyue yeres, ⁊ begat Enos. And Seth lyued (after he begat Enos) eyght hũdreth yeres ⁊ ſeuẽ yeres, ⁊ begat ſonnes ⁊ doughters. And all the dayes of Seth were nyne hundreth and xij. yeres. And he dyed.

Enos lyued nyntye yeres and begat Kenan, and Enos lyued (after he begate Kenan, eyght hundreth, and fyftene yeres, and begate ſonnes ⁊ doughters. And all the dayes of Enos were nyne hundreth and fyue yeres. And he dyed.

B Kenan lyued ſeuentye yeres, and begat Mahelaleel. And Kenã lyued (after he begat Mahelaleel) eyght hundreth yeres ⁊ fortye yeres, ⁊ begat ſonnes and doughters. And all yͤ dayes of Kenan were nyne hundreth yeres and ten yeres, ⁊ he dyed. Mahelaleel lyued ſyxtye jeres ⁊ fiue yeres ⁊ begat Jared.

And agayne, Mahelaleel (lyued after he begat Jared) eyghte hundꝛeth and thyꝛtye yeres, ⁊ begat ſonnes ⁊ doughters. And all the dayes of Mahelaleel were eyghte hundꝛeth nynety ⁊ fyue yeres. And he dyed. Jared lyued an hundꝛeth and ſyxtye ⁊ two yeres, and he begat Hanoch. And Jared lyued (after he begat Hanoch) eyght hundꝛeth yeres, and begate ſōnes ⁊ doughters. And all yͤ dayes of Jared were nyne hundꝛeth and ſyxtye ⁊ two yeres. And he dyed.

C Hanoch lyued ſyxtie and fyue yeres, and begat Mathuſalah. And Hanoch *walked wyth GOD after he begat Mathuſalah, thꝛe hundꝛeth yeres and begat ſonnes and doughters. And all yͤ dayes of Hanoch were thꝛe hundꝛeth ſyxtye and fyue yeres. And Hanoch *walked wyth GOD, ⁊ he was *nomoꝛe ſene, foꝛ GOD toke hym awaye. Mathuſalah alſo lyued an hundꝛeth yeres eyghtye and ſeuen yeres, ⁊ begat Lamech. And againe Mathuſalah lyued (after he begat Lamech,) ſeuen hundꝛeth yeres, ⁊ eyghtye and two yeres, ⁊ begat ſonnes and daughters. And all yͤ dayes of Mathuſalah were nyne hundꝛed yeres, ⁊ ſyxtye ⁊ nyne yeres. And he dyed. Lamech lyued an hundꝛeth yeres and eyghtye and two yeres, and begate a ſonne, ⁊ called hys name Noah, ſaying. Thys ſame ſhal confoꝛte vs as concernyng our woꝛke and ſoꝛowe of our handes, from of the earth, whyche GOD curſed. And Lamech lyued (after he begat Noah) fyue hundꝛeth yeares and nyntye and fyue yeres, and begat ſonnes and doughters. And all yͤ dayes of Lamech were ſeuen hundꝛeth yeres ⁊ ſeuentye ⁊ ſeuen yeres. And he dyed.

And Noah came (and hys ſõnes ⁊ hys wyfe, and hys ſõnes wyues wyth him) vnto the Arke, becauſe of the waters of the floude. Of cleane catell, and of vncleane catell, and of flyinge foules, and of euery ſuche as crepeth vpon yͤ earth, there came two ⁊ two vnto Noah into the Arke, male and the female, as GOD had commaunded Noah. It fortuned alſo after ſeuen dayes, and the waters of the floude were vpon the earth.

In the ſyxe hundreth yere of Noahs lyfe in the ſecond moneth, the ſeuentẽth daye of the moneth. In the ſame daye were al the fountaynes of the great depe brokẽ vp, and yͤ wyndowes of Heuẽ C were opened. And the rayne was vpon the earth fortye dayes ⁊ forty nyghtes. In yͤ ſelfe ſame daye entred Noah, Sẽ, Ham, ⁊ Japhet, the ſonnes of Noah, ⁊ Noahs wyfe, ⁊ yͤ thre wyues of his ſonnes, wyth them into yͤ Arke: They, and euery beaſt after hys kynde, ⁊ all catel after theyr kinde: yee and euery worme that krepeth vpon the earth after hys kynde, and euery byrde after hys kynd, and euery flyinge and fethered foule. And they came vnto Noah into the Arke, two and two, of all fleſhe wherin is the breth of lyfe. And they entrynge in, came male and female of all fleſhe, as GOD had commaunded hym. And GOD ſhut hym in rounde aboute. And the *floude came forty dayes vpon the earth, Sapic.10.d. and the waters were increaſed, and bare vp the Arke, whych was lyfte vp aboue the earth. And Noah onely remayned alyue, and they that were wyth hym in the Arke. But the waters preuayled vpon yͤ earthe an hundreth and fyftye dayes.

The viij. Chapter.

¶ After the ſendynge out of the Rauen and the Doue, Noah goeth forth of the Arke, and offereth ſacrifice. The naturall corrupcion of mans harte.

AND GOD remẽbred Noah, ⁊ A euery beaſte, and all the catell that was wyth him in yͤ Arke. And GOD made a wynde to paſſe vpon the earth, and the waters ceaſſed. The fountaynes alſo of the depe, and the wyndowes of Heauen were ſtopped, and the rayne from Heauen was reſtrayned. And the waters from the earth were returned, goynge and commynge agayne. And after yͤ ende of the hundreth and fyftyeth daye, the waters were abated.

And in the ſeuenth moneth: in the ſeuentēth daye of the Moneth, the Arke reſted vpon yͤ mountaynes of Armenia. And the waters truly were goyng and decreaſyng vntyll yͤ tenth moneth: For in the tenth moneth & in the fyrſte daye of the ſame moneth, were the toppes of the mountaynes ſene. And after yͤ ende of the fortyeth daye, it happened that Noah opened the wyndowe of yͤ Arke whych he had made. And he ſent furth a rauen, whych went out goynge furth and returnyng agayne, vntyl yͤ waters were dried vp vpō yͤ earth. And agayne B he ſent furth a doue from hym, that he myght ſe yf the waters were abated from the vpperface of the ground. And the doue founde no reſt for a ſole of her fote, and ſhe returned vnto hym agayn into the Arke: for the waters were in the vpper face of the whole earth. And he when he had put furth hys hand, toke her: & pulled her in to hī into yͤ Arke.

And he abode yet other ſeuen dayes, and proceadynge further, he ſēte furth the doue out of the Arke. And the doue came to hym in the euen tyde, and lo, in her mouthe was an Olyue leafe that ſhe had plucte: wherby Noah dyd knowe that he waters were abated vpon yͤ earthe. And he abode yet other ſeuen dayes, and ſente furthe the doue, which proceaded not to returne vnto hym any more.

C And it came to paſſe in the ſyxe hundreth and one yere, in yͤ fyrſte moneth, and in the fyrſte daye of the Moneth, the waters were dryed vp from the earth. And Noah remoued the coueryng of the Arke, and loked, and beholde, the vpper face of yͤ grounde was dryed vp. And in the ſeconde moneth, in the ſeuen and twenty day of the moneth, was the earth dryed.

And GOD ſpack vnto Noah ſaying: Go furth of the Arke, thou & thy wyfe, thy ſonnes, and thy ſōnes wyues with the. And brynge furthe wyth the, euery beaſt that is wyth the: of all fleſh (both foule and catell, and euery worme that crepeth vpō the earthe) that they maye gendre in the earthe, and brynge furthe fruite, and* encreaſe vpon earthe. And ſo Noah came furthe, and hys ſonnes, hys wyfe, and hys ſonnes wyues with hym. D Euery beaſte alſo and euery worme, euerye foule, and what ſo euer crepeth vpon the earth (after theyr kyndes) went out of the Arke.

And Noah buylded an alter vnto yͤ LORD, & toke of euerye* cleane beaſte, and of euerye cleane foule, and offered ſacrifices in the altare. And the LORD ſmelled a ſwete (or quiet) ſauour. And the LORDE ſayde in his hert: I wil not proceade to curſe the grounde any more for mannes ſake, for the * imaginacion of mannes herte is euell euē from his youth. Neyther wyl I adde to ſmyte any more euery thynge liuinge, as I haue done, yet therfore ſhal not ſowing tyme and harueſt, cold and heate, Sommer and wynter, daye and night ceaſſe, all the dayes of the earth.

The ix. Chapter.

¶ God bleſſed Noah and hys ſonnes. He forbyddeth to eate the bloude of beaſtes, and to ſhed mans bloude. The lawe of the ſwearde. He maketh a couenaunt that he wyl deſtroye the worlde nomore by water, and geueth the raynbowe for a token and cōfirmacion of the ſame. Noah is droncken. Ham vncouereth hym, and getteth his curſe.

AND GOD* bleſſed Noah & his ſonnes. And ſayde vnto them: Bringe ye furth frute, & multiplie, & repleneſhe yͤ earth. The feare of you and the drede of you ſhalbe vpon euery beaſt of yͤ earth, and vpon euery foule of the ayre, in all ſuche as the earth bryngeth furth, and in all the fyſhes of the ſee.

In to your hande are they delyuered. Euery thynge that moueth it ſelfe, and that lyueth ſhal be meat for you: Euen as the grene hearbe haue I geuen you al thynges. But *fleſhe in the lyfe therof, and in the bloude therof ſhal ye not eate. Elles your bloude of your lyues wyl I require. From the hand of euery beaſte wyl I require it, and from the hande of man: From the hande of mās brother wyll I require the lyfe of man. Who ſo * ſhedeth mannes bloude, by man ſhall hys bloude beſhedde: For in the image of GOD dyd GOD make man. But bryng you furth frute and multiplie: Gendre in the earthe, and encreaſe therein.

B GOD ſpake alſo vnto Noah and to hys ſōnes wyth him, ſayinge: Beholde, I ſet vp my* couenaunt wyth you, and wyth your ſede after you, & wyth euery lyuynge creature that is wyth you, both in foule and in catell, and in euery beaſt of the earthe whyche is with you, of al that go out of ẏ Arke, accordynge vnto euery lyuynge thinge of ẏ earthe. But my couenaunte wyl I make wyth you, that from* henceforth euery fleſh, be not rooted oute wyth the waters of a floude, neyther ſhall there be a floude to deſtroye the earthe any more.

And GOD ſayde: Thys is the token of the couenaunt whych I geue betwene me and you, and euery lyuyng creature that is wyth you into perpetuall generacions. I haue ſet my bowe in ẏ cloud, ⁊ it ſhalbe for a tokē betwene me and ẏ earthe. And it ſhall come to paſſe that when I brynge a cloude vpon the earthe, the bowe alſo ſhall be ſene in ẏ C ſame cloude. And I wyll thyncke vpon my couenaunte whiche is betwene me and you, ⁊ euery liuyng creature in all fleſh, and it ſhall nomore come to paſſe, that* waters make a floud to deſtroye all fleſhe. But the bowe ſhalbe in ẏ ſame cloude, and I wyll loke vpō it, that I maye thyncke vpon the euerlaſtyng couenaunte betwene GOD, and euerye lyuynge creature in al fleſhe that is vpon earthe. And GOD ſayd vnto Noah: This is the token of the couenaunt whyche I haue made betwene me and all fleſhe that is vpon earth.

The ſonnes of Noah going furth of ẏ arke, were: Sē, Ham, ⁊ Iaphet. And Ham truly is ẏ father of Canaan. Theſe the thre ſons of Noah, and of them was the whole earth ouerſpred. Noah alſo begāne to be an huſ band man, and planted a vineyarde. And he drynkyng of the wyne, was droncken, and vncouered wythyn hys tente.

And Ham ẏ father of Canaan ſeyng D the nakednes of hys father, tolde hys two bretheren without. And Sem and Iaphet, they two, takinge a garmente, layde it vpon theyr ſhulders and cummynge backwarde, couered the naked preuities of theyr father: namely, theyr faces beynge turned awaye, leſt they ſhulde ſe theyr fathers preuities.

And Noah awoke from hys wyne, ⁊ knew what hys yonger ſonne had done vnto hym. And he ſayde: Curſed be Canaan, a ſeruāunte of ſeruauntes ſhall he be vnto hys brethren. He ſayd moreouer: Bleſſed be ẏ LORD GOD of Sē, and Canaan ſhalbe his ſeruaunt. GOD ſhall enlarge Iaphet, and he ſhall dwel in the tentes of Sem, ⁊ Canaan ſhalbe theyr ſeruaunte. Noah lyued after the floude thre hundreth and fyftye yeres. And all the dayes of Noah were nyne hundred and fyfty yeres. And he dyed.

The x. Chapter.

¶The genealogie of Iaphet, Sem, and Ham.

THeſe are the generacions of ẏ ſōnes of Noah, Sem, Ham, and Iaphet: And vnto them were children borne after the floud. The chyldrē of* Iaphet: Gomer, 1.Para.1.a. and Magog, and Madai, and Iauan, and Thubal, Meſech, and Thiras. The chyldren of Gomer: Aſcenas, and Riphat, and Thogarma. The chyldren of Iauan: Eliſa and Tharſis, Chithim, ⁊ Dodanim. Of theſe were the Iles of the Gentiles deuided in theyr landes, euery man after hys tonge, and after hys kynred in theyr nacions.

The chyldren of Ham: Chus, ⁊ Mizrim, and Phut, and Canaan. And the chyldren of Chus: Seba and Heuila, ⁊ Sabtha, and Regma, and Sabthecha. The chyldren of Regma: Scheba and B Dedan. Chus alſo begatte * Nimrod. 1.Para.1.d. The ſame began to be myghtye in the earthe. For he was a myghtye hunter before the LORD. Wherfore it is ſayde: Euen as Nimrod the myghtie hunter before the LORDE. The begynnyng of hys kyngdom was* Babel, Gene.11.b. and Erech, and Acad, and Chalne, in the lande of Sinear. Out of that lande came Aſſur, and buylded * Niniue, Ionas.1.b. and the ſtretes of the citie, and Calah. Reſſen alſo betwene Niniue and Calah, and it is a greate citie.

Mizraim begat Ludim, and Enamim, and Leabim, and Naphthuhim, Partruſim, alſo and Caſluhim, out of whome came Philiſtim ⁊ Capthorim. Canaan begatte Zidon hys fyrſt borne ſonne and Heth, and Ieſubi, and Amori and Girgoſi, Hiui and Arki, and C Sini, and Aruadi, and Zemari, and Hamathi: And afterwarde were the kynreds of the Cananites ſpred abrode. The border of the Cananites was from Zidon, as thou commeſt to Gerar vntyll Gaſa, and as thou goeſt vnto Sodoma, and Gomorra, and Adama, and Zeboim, euen vnto Laſa. Theſe are the children of Ham, in theyr kynredes, in theyr tonges, countres and in theyr nacions.

Vnto Sem alſo the father of all the chyldren of Eber,(and elder brother of Japhet)there were borne. The childrẽ of Sem: Elam and Aſſur, Arphachſad and Lut and Aram. The chyldren of D Aram: Vz and Hul, Gether and Mas. 1.Para.1.d *Arphachſad begat Salach, and Salach begat Eber. Vnto Eber alſo were borne two ſonnes: The name of the one was Peleg, for in hys dayes was the earth deuided. And his brothers name was Jaketan. Jaketan begate Almodad & Saleph, Hazarmauet & Jarah, and Hadorã, and Vſal and Dikela Obal alſo and Abimael, and Seba, ãd Ophir, & Heuila, and Jobab. All theſe were ẏ chyldren of Jaketã. And theyre dwellynge was from Meſa, as thou goeſt vnto Sephar a mounte of the Eaſte. Theſe are the chyldren of Sem after theyr kynredes and tõges in theyr landes and nacions. And ſo theſe are the kynredes of the chyldren of Noah, after theyr generacions in theyr peoples, and of theſe were the nacions deuided in the earth after the floude.

The xi. Chapter.

¶The buyldynge of the towre of Babel. The cõfuſion of tũges. The generaciõ of Sẽ the ſõne of Noah vntyl Abram, which goeth with Lot vnto Haran.

A ALL the whole earthe was of one language & lyke ſpeche. And it happened when they went furthe from ẏ Eaſte, they founde a playne in the land of Sinear, and there they abode. And they ſayde euery one to his neyghboure: Come, let vs prepare brycks, and burn thẽ in the fyre. And they had brycke for ſtone, and ſlime had they in ſteade of morter. And they ſayde: Go to, let vs buyld vs a citie & a tower, whoſe toppe maye reach vnto Heauen: & let vs make vs a name, leeſt happely we be ſcatred abrode into the vpper face of ẏ whole erth. But the LORDE came downe, to ſe the Citie and tower whych the chyldren of men buylded.

And the LORDE ſayde: Beholde, the B people is one, and they haue al one language, & thys they begin to do, neyther wil it be reſtayned from them, what ſo euer they haue imagined to do. Come on, let vs go downe, & confounde theyr language: that euery one perceaue not his neighbours ſpeche. And ſo ẏ LORDE ſcatred thẽ from that place into ẏ vpper face of all the earthe. And they lefte of to builde the citie. And therfore is the name of it called *Babel, becauſe Gen the LORDE dyd there confounde the language of all the earth. And from thence dyd the LORDE ſcater them abrode vpon the face of al the earth.

Theſe are the generacions of Sem: Sem was an hundreth yere olde, & begat Arphachſad two yere after ẏ floude. And Sem lyued(after he begat Arphachſad)fyue hundreth yeres, an dbegat ſonnes and doughters.

Arphachſad lyued fyue and thyrtye yeres, &begat Salah. And Arphachſad lyued(after he begat Salah) four hundreth and thre yeres, and begat ſonnes and doughters.

Salah lyued thyrtye yeres, & begat C Eber. And Salah lyued (after he begate Eber)foure hundred and thre yeres, & begat ſonnes and doughters. Eber lyued foure and thyrtie yeres, & begat Peleg. And Eber lyued(after he begate Peleg) foure hundreth and. thyrtye yeres, and begate ſonnes & doughters.

Peleg lyued thyrtye yeres & begat Regu. And Peleg(lyued after he begat Regu)two hundreth and nyne yeres, & begat ſonnes & doughters. Regu liued two and thyrtye yeres, and begat Serug. And Regu lyued (after he begate Serug) two hundreth and ſeuẽ yeres, and begate ſonnes and doughters.

Serug lyued thyrtye yeres, & begat Nahor. And Serug lyued(after he begate Nahor)two hundreth yeres, & begat ſonnes & doughters. And Nahor liued nyne and twentye yeres, & begat Tharah. And Nahor lyued(after he begat Tharah)an hundreth and nyntene D yeres, & begat ſonnes & doughters.

Tharah lyued ſeuentie yeres, and begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran. Theſe are the generacions of Terah: Terah 1.Para.1 begate Abram, Nahor, & Haran. Harã Ioha.24 begat Lot. And Haran dyed in the preſence of Tharah hys father, in the lande of hys natiuitie, euen in Vr of ẏ Caldees. Abram & Nahor toke thẽ wiues: The name of Abrams wyfe was Sarai, and ẏ name of Nahors wyfe was Milca, ẏ doughter of Haran: ẏ father of Milca, and ẏ father of Jeſca. But Hebr.1 Sarai was baren, and had no chylde.

And Tharah toke Abram* hys ſonne,
. a. and Lot the ſonne of Haran, his ſōnes d. ſonne, and Sarai hys doughter in lawe, hys ſonne Abrās wyfe: And they departed together from Ur of the Caldees, yͭ they myght go into the lande of Canaan, ⁊ they came vnto Haran, and dwelte there. And yͤ dayes of Tharah wore two hundreth and fyue yeres, ⁊ Tharah dyed in Haran.

The xij. Chapter.

¶Abram is bleſſed of God, and goeth wyth Lot vnto the lande of Canaan, whyche God promiſed to geue vnto hym and hys ſede. Abram goeth into Egypte, and cauſeth Sarai hys wyfe to call her ſelf his ſyſter, for whom Pharao is plaged.

A AND the LORDE ſayde vnto Abram:* Gette the out of thy 7.a. countre, and out of thy naciō, u,c and from thy fathers houſe vnto a lande that I wyll ſhewe yͤ. And I wyll make of the a greate people, 18.c. and wyll * bleſſe the, and make thy name 2.c. great, that thou mayſt be euē a bleſſynge.
3.d. I will alſo bleſſe them that bleſſe the, and curſe them that curſe the,
and in the ſhall all kynredes of the earthe be bleſſed.

B And ſo Abram departed, euen as the LORD ſpake vnto hym, and Lot went wyth hym. And Abram was ſeuentye and fyue yeres olde, when he departed out of Haran. And Abram toke Sarai hys wyfe and Lot his brothers ſonne, 14.c. ⁊ all theyre * ſubſtaunce that they had 4.c, in poſſeſſion, ⁊ the ſoules that they had begotten in Haran. And they departed, yͭ thei mighty come into yͤ lāde of Canaan:
And in to the lande of Canaan they came. Abram paſſed thorowe the lande vnto the place of Sichem, and vnto the playne of More: And the Cananite was then in the lande. And yͤ LORDE appearynge vnto Abram, ſaide: Unto thy * ſede wyll I geue thys lande. ne.13.d. And there buylded he an altare vnto yͤ d. & 17 LORDE, euen where he had appered vnto u.34.b hym. And remouynge thence vnto a C mountayne that was eſt warde from Bethel, he pytched hys tent, hauynge Bethel on the weſt ſyde, and Ay on the eaſt. And he buyldynge an altare vnto yͤ LORD, dyd cal on yͤ name of yͤ LORD.
And Abram wēt furth goynge ⁊ departynge towarde yͤ ſouth. But there was a derth in that land, and therfore went Abram downe into Egypte, that he myghte ſogeourne there, for there was a ſore dearth in the lande. And it happened whē he was come nere to entre in ĩto Egypt, he ſayde vnto Sarai his wife: Beholde, I knowe yͭ thou art a fayer woman to loke vpon. Therfore ſhall it come to paſſe, that when the Egypciās ſe the, they ſhal ſaye: She is hys wyfe.
And they ſhall kyl me, but they ſhal ſaue the alyue. Saye (I pray the) that* Ge.20.a.d. thou art my ſyſter, that I maye fare well for thy ſake, and yͭ my ſoule maye lyue thorowe thy occaſion.

D And ſo it happened, when Abrā was come into Egypt, the Egyptians behelde the womā, for ſhe was verye fayre.
The Princes alſo of Pharao ſawe her and cōmended her before Pharao, and yͤ woman was takē into Pharaos houſe.
And he truly intreated Abram well for her ſake, and he had ſhepe and oxē and he aſſes, men ſeruauntes, and mayde ſeruauntes, ſhe aſhes, and camelles.
And the LORDE ſmote Pharao, ⁊ hys houſe wyth greate plages, becauſe of Sarai Abrams wyfe. And Pharao calling Abram, ſayd: Why haſte thou done thys vnto me? Why dydeſt thou not tell me, that ſhe was thy wyfe?

Nowe therfore beholde, there is thy wyfe, take her, and goo thy waye: And Pharao gaue the men commaundemēte, concernynge hym: and they conuayed hym furthe, and hys wyfe, and all that he hadde.

The xiij. Chapter.

¶Abram and Lot departe out of Egypte. And Abram deuided his lande and catel with Lot his brothers ſonne. Here agayne is promiſed to Abram the lande of Canaan.

AND ſo Abram gat hym vp which was a plenteous countre of water euery where, before the LORDE deſtroyed Sodoma & Gomorra, euen as the garden of the LORDE, like yͤ lande of Egypt as thou cummeſt vnto Zoar.

C Then Lot choſe all the plaine countre of Jordan, and toke his iourney frõ the eaſte. And ſo departed the one brother from the other. Abram dwelled in the lande of Canaan: and Lot abode in the cities of the plaine, and tented vntyl zec.16.f. Sodome. But * the men of Sodome were wycked & excedynge ſynners before the LORDE.

And the LORDE ſayde vnto Abram, after yͭ Lot was departed frome hym:

hys tente, came & dwelled in yͤ okegroue of Mamre, namely in Hebrõ, & buylded there an alter vnto the LORDE.

The xiiij. Chapter.

¶ Lot is takẽ pryſoner. The victorie of Abrã of the Sodomites. Lot is deliuered by Abram, Melchizedech offereth gyftes vnto Abram. Abram payeth tythes vnto Melchizedech. Abram holdeth nothinge

The xv. Chapter.

¶The lande of Canaan is yet againe promiſed to Abram. God promiſeth him ſede. He beleueth and is iuſtifieth. The prophecie of the bondage wherin the chyldren of Iſrael ſhulde be vnder Pharao, and of theyre delyueraunce from the ſame.

A AFter theſe thynges were done, the worde of the LORDE came vnto Abram in a viſion, ſayinge: Feare not Abrā, I am thy ſayde vnto hym: * Euen ſo ſhall thy ſede be. And Abram * beleued the LORD Rom.3. and that counted he to hym for ryghteouſneſſe. Iaco.2.d And agayne he ſayde vnto hī: Gala.3.

I am the LORDE that broughte yͤ out of Ur of the Chaldees, to geue the thys lāde, & yͭ thou myghteſt poſſeſſe it.

And he ſayde: LORDE GOD, whereby ſhal I knowe that I ſhal poſſeſſe it?
He anſwered vnto hym: Take an heyfer of thre yere olde, and a ſhe goate of thre yere olde, and a thre yeare olde Rāme, a turtyll doue alſo and a yonge pygeon.
He toke therfore all theſe vnto hym, and deuided them in the myddes, and layde euery peceone agaynſte another.
C But theſe foules deuided he not.
And when the byrdes fell on the carcaſes, Abram droue them awaye. And when the ſunne was downe, there fel a ſlomber vpon Abram. And lo a darcke and greate feare fell vpon hym.

And he ſayde vnto Abram: knowe fourthe generacion they ſhall come hyther agayne, for the wyckedneſſe of the D Amorites is not yet full. And it came to paſſe that when the ſonne wente downe, there was a darcke cloude: beholde, there was a ſmokyng furneſſe, and a fyre brande goynge betwene the ſayde peces.

In that ſame daye, the LORDE made a couenaunte with Abram ſayinge: vnto thy * ſede haue I geuen thys lande, Gen.24.d. from the ryuer of Egypt euen vnto the great ryuer the ryuer of Euphrates, the Kenites, the Keniſites, and the Kidmonites, the Hethites, and the Pheresites, and the gyauntes, the Amorites alſo, and the Cananites, the Gergoſites, and the Iebuſites.

The xvi. Chapter.

¶Sarai geueth Abram leaue to take Agar her mayde to wyfe. Agar deſpiſed her mayſters, for wyche ſhe was euell entreted of Sarai, and therfore runneth awaye. The angel metinge her, commaundeth her to turne agayne, & doth promiſe her ſede, And nameth her fyrſt chylde Iſmael.

A SArai Abrams wyfe, bare hathe conceaued, I am deſpyſed in her eyes, the LORDE iudge betwene yͤ and me. But Abram ſayde to Sarai: beholde, thy mayde is in thy hande, do wͭ her as it pleaſeth the.

And when Sarai fared foule wyth B her, ſhe fled from the face of her. And the angel of the LORDE founde her beſyde a fountayne of water in the wyldernesse: euen by the well that is in the waye to Sur. And he ſayde: Agar Sarais mayde, whence comeſt thou, and whither wilte thu go? She ſayde: I flee from the face of my maſtreſſe Sarai.
And the angel of the LORDE ſayde vnto her: returne to thy maſtreſſe agayne and ſubmit thy ſelfe vnder her handes.

And agayne the angell of the LORD C ſayde vnto her: In encreaſynge I wyl encreaſe thy ſede, ⁊ it ſhall not be nombred for multitude. And the LORDES angel ſayde vnto her, ſe, thou arte with of Sara

Gene.12.c. and.26.b. of Sara hys wyfe: ſhe is my* ſyſter. And Abimelech kynge of Gerar ſent and fet Sara awaye.

But GOD came to Abimelech in a dreame in the nyght ⁊ ſayde vnto hym: Se thou ſhalte dye for the womans ſake which thou haſt takẽ awaye, for ſhe is a mãs wyfe. But Abimelech had not yet come nye her, ⁊ he ſaide: LORD wilt thou ſlaye ryghteous people: ſayde not he vnto me, ſhe is my ſyſter: yee ⁊ ſayde not ſhe herſelf, he is my brother: with a pure hert and innocent handes haue I B done thys. And GOD ſayde vnto hym by a dreame, I wot it wel that thou dydeſt it in the purenes of thy hert, I kept the alſo that thou ſhuldeſt not ſynne agaynſte me, ⁊ therfor ſuffred I yͤ not to touche her. But ⁊ yf thou delyuer her not agayne, be ſure yͭ thou ſhalt dye the death both thou, and al that thou haſt. Therfore Abimelech ryſynge vp by tymes in the mornyng called all hys ſeruauntes, and tolde all theſe ſayinges in theyr eares, ⁊ the men were ſore afrayde. And Abimelech called Abraham ãd C ſayd vnto hym: what haſt thou done vnto vs, ⁊ what haue I offended the yͭ thu haſt brought on me ⁊ on my kyngdome ſo great a ſynne: thou haſte done dedes vnto me yͭ ought not to be done. And Abimelech ſayd vnto Abrahã: What ſaweſt thou yͭ thou haſt done this thinge:

Abraham anſwered: For I ſayde: ſurely the feare of GOD is not in thys place, ⁊ they ſhall ſleye me for my wyues ſake: yet in very dede ſhe is my ſyſter, for ſhe is a doughter of my father, though ſhe be not yͤ doughter of my mother: ⁊ ſhe became my wyfe. And after GOD cauſed me to wandre out of my fathers houſe, I ſayde vnto her: This kyndeneſſe ſhalt thou ſhewe vnto me in all places where we come, yͭ thou ſaye D of me, he is my brother. Then toke Abimelech ſhepe and oxen, men ſeruaũtes and wemenſeruauntes, and gaue them vnto Abraham, and delyuered him Sara hys wyfe agayne. And Abimelech ſayd: beholde, my lande lyeth befor the, dwell where it pleaſeth the beſt. But vnto Sara he ſayd: Se, I haue geuen thy brother a thouſande peces of ſyluer, beholde: it ſhall be a couerynge of thyne eyes, vnto all that are wyth the and thus wyth all was ſhe reproued.

And ſo Abraham prayde vnto GOD, and GOD healed Abimelech, and hys wyfe, and hys maydens, and they bare chyldren. For the LORDE had cloſed to all the matrices of the houſe of Abimelech: becauſe of Abrahams wyfe.

And ſhe ſyttynge downe on the other ſyde, lyfte vp her voice ⁊ wepte.

C And GOD hearde the voice of yͤ chylde. And the Angel of GOD called Agar out of heauen, and ſayd vnto her: what ayleth the Agar? Feare not, for GOD hath hearde yͤ voice of yͤ chylde where he lyeth. Aryſe and lyfte vp the lad, and take hym in thy hande, for I wyl make of hym a greate people. And GOD opened her eyes: ⁊ ſhe ſaw a well of water. And ſhe went and fylled yͤ bottel wyth water, and gaue the boye drynke. And GOD was wyth the lad, and he grewe and dwelte in the wylderneſſe, and became an archer. And he dwelt in yͤ wyldernes of Paran. And hys mother gat hym a wyfe out of the lande of Egypte.

3 And it chaunced the ſame ſeaſon that Abimelech and Phichol his chefe captayne ſpake vnto Abraham ſayinge: *GOD is with the in all that thou doeſt. And now therfore ſweare vnto me euẽ here by GOD, that thou wylt not hurte me nor my chyldren, nor my chyldrens chyldren. But yͭ thou ſhalt deale wyth me, and the countrey where thou haſte bene a ſtraunger, accordynge vnto the kyndneſſe that I haue ſhewed yͤ. And Abraham ſayde: I wyll ſweare.

Gene.26.f.

D And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a wel of water, whiche Abimelechs ſeruauntes had violentlie takẽ awaye. And Abimelech ſayde: I wote not who hath done thys thynge. Alſo thu toldeſt me not: neyther hearde I of it, but thys daye. And Abraham toke ſhepe and oxen, and gaue thẽ vnto Abimelech. And they made both of them a bond together. And Abraham ſet ſeuen ewe lambes by thẽ ſelues. And Abimelech ſayd vnto Abraham: what meane theſe ſeuẽ ewe lambes which thu haſte ſet by thẽ ſelues? He anſwered: For theſe ſeuen lambes ſhalt thou take of my hande, yͭ they may be a wytneſſe vnto me, that I haue dygged thys well. Wherfore the place is called Berſaba, becauſe that there they ſweare both of them. Thus mad they a bond together at Berſaba. And Abimelech and Phichol his chefe captayne roſe vp, ⁊ turned agayn vnto the land of the Philiſtines. And Abraham planted a wood in Berſaba, ⁊ called there on the name of the LORDE yͤ euerlaſtynge GOD: and ſo gouerned in the Philiſtines lande a longe ſeaſon.

thynges, that one tolde Abraham ſayinge: Beholde, Milca, ſhe hath alſo borne chyldrē vnto thy brother Nahor: Us hys eldeſt ſōne, and Bus hys brother, & Kemuel the father of the Syrians, & Ceſed, and Haſo, and Pildas, and Jedlaph, and Bethuel. And Bethuel begat Rebecca. Theſe viij. dyd Milca beare Nahor Abrahams brother. And hys concubine called Rhuma: ſhe bare alſo Thebah, and Gaham, Thahas, and Maacha.

The xxiij. Chapter.

¶ Sara dyed and is buryed in the feld that Abraham bought of Ephron the Hethite.

SAra was an hundred & xxvj. A yere olde (ſo longe lyued ſhe) and Sara dyed in Kyriat Arba.
The ſame is Hebron in yͤ lande of Canaan. And Abraham came to mourne Sara, and to wepe for her.

And Abraham ſtode vp from yͤ ſyght of hys coarſe, and talked wyth the ſonnes of Heth ſaying: I am a ſtraunger & a foriner amonge you, geue me a poſſeſſion to bury in wyth you, yͤ I maye bury my coarſe out of my ſyght. And yͤ chyldren of Heth anſwered Abraham, ſayinge vnto hym: Heare vs lorde, thou art a Prince of GOD amonge vs.
In the cheſeſt of our ſepulchres burye thy deade: None of vs alſo ſhall forbyd the his ſepulchre: but thou maiſt burye thy deade therein: Abraham ſtoode vp and bowed hym ſelfe before the people of the lande of the chyldren of Heth.
And he commened wyth hem ſayinge: yf it be your mynde that I ſhall bury B my dead out of my ſyght, heare me, and ſpeake for me to Ephron the ſonne of Zoar: that he maye geue me the dubble caue whyche he hath, and that is in the ende of hys felde: but for as muche money as it is worth, ſhall he geue it me in the preſence of you, for a poſſeſſion to burye in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the chyldren of Heth.

And Ephron the Hethite aunſwered Abraham in yͤ audience of the chyldren of Heth, & of all that went in at yͤ gates of hys Citie, ſayinge: Not ſo my lorde, heare me. The felde geue I the, and the caue that therin is geue I the alſo: and euen in the preſence of the ſonnes of my people geue I it the, burye thy deade.
And Abraham bowed hym ſelf before the people of the lande and ſpake vnto Ephron in the audience of the people C of the countrey, ſaying: I praye yͤ heare me yf it pleaſe yͤ: I wyll geue ſyluer for the felde, take it, & I wyl burye my deade there. Ephron anſwered Abraham ſaying vnto hym: My lorde herken vnto me. The lande is worth foure hundred ſycles of ſyluer: what is yͤ betwixt the and me: burye therfore thy deade.
And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron, and weyed hym yͤ ſyluer which he had ſayde, in the audience of the ſonnes of Heth. Euen foure hũdred ſyluer ſycles of currant money amonge marchauntes. And the felde of Ephron wyth the double caue which was before Mamre: euen the felde and yͤ caue that was therein, and all the trees that were in yͤ felde, and that were in all the borders round aboute, was made ſure vnto Abraham for a poſſeſſion, in the ſyghte of D the chyldren of Heth, before al yͤ wente in at the gates of the citie. After thys dyd Abraham burye Sara his wyfe in the double caue of the felde that lyeth before Mamre. The ſame is Hebron in the land of Canaan. And ſo both the felde and the caue that is therein, was made vnto Abraham a ſure poſſeſſion to burye in, of the ſonnes of Heth.

The xxiiij. Chapter.

¶ Abraham maketh his ſeruaũte to ſweare, and ſendeth hym to ſeke a wyfe for Iſaac hys ſonne. The ſeruaunte was faythful and brought Rebecca, whiche Iſaac toke to hys wyfe.

A ABraham was olde ⁊ ſtryken in dayes, and yͤ LORDE had bleſſed hym in al thynges. And Abraham ſayde vnto hys eldeſt ſeruaunt of hys houſe whiche hadde the rule ouer all that he had. Put thy hande vnder my thyghe, and I wyll make the ſweare by yͤ LORDE GOD of Heauen, and GOD of the earth, that thou ſhalt not take a wyfe vnto my ſonne, of the doughters of Canaan, amõg whiche I dwell. But thou ſhalte go vnto my countrey, and to my natiue lande, and take a wyfe vnto my ſonne Iſaac. But the ſeruaunte ſayde vnto hym: peraduenture the womã wil not agre to come wͭ me vnto thys lande, ſhall I brenge thy ſonne agayne vnto the lande whiche thou cãmeſt out of: To whom Abraham anſwered: bewar yͤ thu bring not my ſõne thither agayn.

The LORD GOD of Heauen, whych toke me from my fathers houſe, ⁊ from yͤ lande where I was borne: And whiche ſpake vnto me, ⁊ that ſweare vnto Gene.15.d. me ſaying: vnto thy * ſede wyll I geue thys lande, he ſhall ſende hys Angell before the, and thou ſhalte take a wyfe vnto my ſonne from thence. Neuertheleſſe yf the woman wyl not agre to folowe the, than ſhalte thou be wythout B daunger of thys my oth. Only brynge not my ſonne thyther agayne. And the ſeruaunt put hys hand vnder the thigh of Abraham hys maſter, and ſware to hym, as concernynge that matter. And the ſeruaunte toke ten Camelles, of the camelles of hys maſter, and departed, and had of all maner of goodes of hys maſter wyth him, and ſtode vp ⁊ wente to Meſopotamia, vnto the citie of Nahor. And made hys Camelles to lye downe wythoute the citie by a welles ſyde of water, at euen: aboute the tyme that wemen come out to drawe water. And he ſayde: LORDE GOD of my maſter Abraham, ſende me good ſped this daie, and ſhewe mercie vnto my maſter Abraham. Lo, I ſtande here by yͤ well of water, and the doughters of the mẽ of thys citie come out to drawe water: Nowe the dameſell to whom I ſaye, ſtoupe downe thy pytcher I praye the, that I maye dryncke. yf ſhe ſaye alſo: Drynke, and I wyll geue thy camelles drynke: the ſame is ſhe that thou haſte ordeined for thy ſeruaunte Iſaac: yea, and thereby ſhal I knowe yͤ thou haſte ſhewed mercy on my maſter. And it came to paſſe yer he had left ſpeakyng: beholde, Rebecca came out, the doughter of Bethuel, ſonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abrahams brother, and her pytcher vpon her ſhoulder: The dameſell was very fayre to loke vpon, and yet a mayde and vnknowen of man. And ſhe went downe to the well, and fylled her pytcher, and came vp. And the ſeruaunte runnyng vnto her, ſayde: let me ſup a lytle water of thy pytcher. And ſhe ſayde: drynke my lorde.

C And ſhe haſted, ⁊ let downe her pytcher vpon her arme, ⁊ gaue him drinke. And when ſhe had gyuen hym drynke, ſhe ſayde: I wyll drawe water for thy camels alſo, vntyll they haue dronken ynoughe. And ſhe poured out her pytcher into the trough haſtely, and ran agayne vnto yͤ wel to fet water, ⁊ drewe for al his camels. And yͤ mã wõdred at her: But held his peace to wite whyther yͤ LORD had mad his iourney proſperous or not: And it fortuned, as yͤ camels had lefte drynkyng, the man toke a goldẽ earinge of halfe a ſycle weyght, and two bracellettes for her handes, of tenne ſycles weyght of golde, and ſayd: whoſe doughter art thou: tel me I pray the, is there roume in thy fathers houſe for vs to lodge in: She anſwered hym:

I am the doughter of Bethuel the ſon of Milca, whyche ſhe bare vnto Nahor, and ſayde moreouer vnto hym: we haue lytter and prouondre ynoughe, and alſo roume to ledge in.

D And the man bowed hym ſelf, & worſhipped yͤ LORD, & ſayde: bleſſed be the LORD GOD of my maſter Abrahã, whiche ceaſſeth not to deale mercifullye & trulye with my maſter, & hath brought me yͤ way to my maſters brothers houſe. And the damſell ran and told thẽ, of her mothers houſe theſe thynges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And he ran out vnto the man, euẽ to the wel, for aſſoone as he had ſene the earynges, and the bracelettes in hys ſyſters handes (and herde the wordes of Rebecca hys ſyſter, ſaying: thus ſayd yͤ man vnto me) he wente oute vnto the man. And loo: he ſtoode wyth yͤ camels by the well ſyde. And he ſayde: come in thou bleſſed of the LORDE. Wherfore ſtandeſt thou withoute? I haue dreſſed the houſe, & made roume for yͤ camels. And then the man came into the houſe: and he vnbrydled the camels, & (Labã) brought lytter and prouondre for yͤ camels, and water to waſhe hys feet, and the mennes feet yͭ were with him, & ſet meate before him to eate. But he ſayd: I wyl not eate, vntyl I haue ſayde myne errande. And he ſayde: ſaye on. And he ſayde: I am Abrahams ſeruaunte, & GOD hath bleſſed my mayſter oute of meaſure, that he is become great, and hath gyuen hym ſhepe, and oxen, ſyluer and golde, men ſeruauntes, and mayde ſeruauntes, camelles, and aſſes.

And * Sara my maſters wyfe bare hym a ſonne, when ſhe was olde, & vnto him hath he gyuen al that he hath. And my maſter made me ſweare, ſayinge: thou ſhalte not take a wyfe to my ſonne amonge the doughters of the Cananites in whoſe lande I dwell.

But thou ſhalte goo vnto my fathers houſe, and to my kynred, & take a wyfe vnto my ſonne. And I ſayde vnto my maſter: peraduenture the wyfe wil not folowe me: And he anſwered me: The E LORDE, before whome I walke, wyll ſende hys Angel wyth the, and proſper thy iourneye, & thou ſhalte take a wyfe for my ſonne of my kynrede and of my fathers houſe. Then ſhalte thou be giltleſſe of my curſe, when thou commeſt to my kynrede. And yf they gyue the not one, thou ſhalt be gyltleſſe of my curſe.

And ſo I came thys daye vnto yͤ wel, & ſayd: O LORDE yͤ GOD of my maſter Abraham, yf it be ſo nowe yͭ thou makeſt my iourney whych I goo, proſperous: beholde, I ſtande by thys well of water, & when a virgin commeth forth to drawe water, & I ſaye to her: geue me (I pray yͤ) a lytle water of thy pytcher to dryncke, & ſhe ſay to me: drincke thou, & I wyl alſo drawe for thy camelles: yͭ ſame is yͤ wyfe, whome yͤ LORDE hathe prepared for my maſters ſonne.

And before I had made an ende of ſpeakyng in myne herte: beholde, Rebecca come forth, & her pitcher on her ſhouldre, & ſhe went downe vnto the well, & drewe water. And I ſayde vnto her: gyue me dryncke I praye the. And ſhe made haſte, & toke downe her pytcher from of her, and ſayde: dryncke, & I wyll gyue thy Camelles drinke alſo.

And I dranke, and ſhe gaue the F camels drinke alſo. And I aſked her, ſaying: whoſe doughter art thou? She anſwered: yͤ doughter of Bethuel Nahors ſonne, * whome Milca bare vnto hym. And I put the earynge vpon her face, & the bracelettes vpõ her handes. And I bowed my ſelfe, & worſhypped the LORDE, & bleſſed the LORD GOD of my maſter Abraham, whyche had brought me the ryght waye to take my maſters brothers doughter vnto hys ſonne. Nowe alſo, yf ye wyl deale mercyfully and truly wyth my maſter, tell me: and yf not, tell me alſo that I maye tourne me to yͤ ryght hand, or to yͤ left.

Gene. 23. b. and. 24. a.

Then anſwered Laban & Bethuel, ſaying: Thys ſaying is proceded euen out of the LORDE: we can not therfore ſaye vnto the, eyghter good, or badde: Beholde, Rebecca is before yͤ, take her & goo, yͭ ſhe may be thy maſters ſonnes wyfe, euẽ as GOD hath ſayd: And whẽ Abrahams ſeruaunt hearde theyr wordes, he worſhipped yͤ LORDE flat vpon the earth. And the ſeruaunt toke forthe iewels of ſyluer and iewels of golde, & rayment & gaue them to Rebecca. And vnto her brother, and to her mother, he gaue gyftes, and they dyd eate & drynke, both he & the men yͭ were wyth hym, and taryed all nyght. And when they roſe vp in yͤ mornyng: He ſayde lette me departe vnto my maſter. Her brother, and her mother anſwered:let yͤ dameſel abyde with vs a whyle, ⁊ it be but euen ten dayes, ⁊ then ſhal ſhe goo. He ſayde vnto thẽ, hyndre me not: behold, yͤ LORDE G hath proſpered my iourney. Sende me awaye therfore, yͭ I maye go vnto my maſter. And they ſayde, we wyl call yͤ dameſell, and enquire at her mouth.

And they called forth Rebecca, ⁊ ſayde vnto her: wylte thu goo wyth this mã: And ſhe anſwered: I wyll goo.

So they let Rebecca theyr ſyſter go and her nurſe, And Abrahams ſeruaũte, and hys men. And they bleſſed Rebecca, and ſayde vnto her: thou art our ſyſter, growe into thouſand thouſandes * and thy ſeede poſſeſſe the gate of Gene.22.c. theyr enemies. And Rebecca aroſe, and her damſels, and ſet them vp vpon the camelles, and wente theyr way after the man. And the ſeruaũt toke Rebecca, and went hys waye:

And Iſaac was comminge from the waye of the wel of yͤ *lyuynge ⁊ ſeinge Gene.16.d. me, for he dwelt in the ſouth countrey, and Iſaac was gone out to pray in the feld at the euentide. And he lyft vp hys eyes and ſaw the camels cũmyng. And Rebecca lyfte vp her eyes, and whẽ ſhe ſaw Iſaac, ſhe lyghted of yͤ camel, and ſayde vnto the ſeruaunt: what man is thys that cõmeth walkyng agaynſt vs in the felde: And the ſeruaunt ſaid, it is my maſter. Therfore ſhe toke her cloke ⁊ put it about her. And yͤ ſeruaunt told Iſaac all thynges yͭ he had done. And Iſaac brought her into his mother Sarais tẽte, and toke Rebecca, ⁊ ſhe becam hys wyfe, ⁊ he loued her, ⁊ ſo Iſaac receaued cõforte after his mother.

The xxv. Chapter.

¶ Abraham taketh Ketura to hys wyfe, and he

A ABraham proceded further and toke him a wyfe called Ketura, whyche bare hym Simram, and Iakſan, and Medan and Midian, and Ieſbak, and Suah. Iakſan begat Seba, ⁊ Dedan.
And yͤ ſonnes of Dedan were Aſſurim, Latuſim, and Leumim. And the ſonnes of Midian, Epha, and Epher, Hanoch, and Abida and Elda. All theſe were the chyldren of Ketura. And Abraham gaue all hys goods vnto Iſaac. But vnto the ſonnes of the concubines whyche Abrahã had, he gaue gyftes, ⁊ ſent thẽ of Iſaac Abrahams ſonne: Abraham begat Iſaac. And Iſaac was fortye yere olde when he toke Rebecca to wyfe, the doughter of Bethuel the Syrian of Meſopotamia, and ſyſter to Laban the Syrien. And Iſaac made interceſſion vnto the LORDE for hys wyfe, becauſe ſhe was baren: and the LORDE was intreated of him, and Rebecca his wyfe conceaued, and the chyldren ſtroue together within her. Therfore ſhe ſayd: yf it ſhuld go ſo to paſſe, what helpeth it that I am with chyld: wherfore ſhe wente to aſke the LORDE. And the LORDE ſayde vnto her: there are two perfecte man, ⁊ dwelled in yͤ tētes. Jſaac loued Eſau, becauſe he dyd eate of his venyſon, but Rebecca loued Jacob.

Jacob ſod pottage, and Eſau came from the felde and was faynty, ⁊ Eſau ſayde to Jacob: fede me J praye the wͭ

And Eſau regarded not his birtrighte.

The xxvi. Chapter.

¶ The iorney of Jſaac towarde Abimelech. The promiſe made vnto Jſaac and hys ſede. Jſaac is rebuked of Abimelech for callyng his wyfe his ſyſter. The chydyng of the ſhepherdes for the welles. Jſaac is comforted. The attonement betwene Abimelech and Jſaac.

A AND there came a derth in the whyche was bewtyfull to the eye.

And it happened after he had bene B there longe tyme, that Abimelech kynge of yͤ Philiſtians loked out at a wyndowe, ⁊ ſawe Jſaac ſportinge wͭ Rebecca his wyfe. And Abimelech called Jſaac, and ſayd, ſhe is of a ſurety thy wyfe, ⁊ why ſaydſt thou ſhe is my ſyſter? Tho whome Jſaac anſwered: J thought yͭ bleſſed hym, and the man waxed myghtye, and went forthe and grewe, tyll he was exceadynge great, for he had poſſeſſion of ſhepe, of oxē, ⁊ a myghty houſholde, and therefore yͤ Philiſtians had enuy at him: for the Philiſtines ſtopped and fylled vp wͭ earth al yͤ wels which his fathers ſeruauntes dygged in hys and abode in the valley of Gerar, and D dwelt there. And Jſaac returning, digged agayne the welles of water which they dygged in the dayes of Abraham hys father, whiche the Philiſtians had ſtopped after yͤ deathe of Abrahā, and gaue them yͤ ſame names which his father gaue thē. Jſaacs ſeruaūtes dygged in yͤ valley, ⁊ found a wel of liuinge water. And yͤ heardmen of Gerar dyd ſtryue with Jſaacs herdmen, ſaying: yͤ water is oures. Then called he the wel *Eſek, becauſe they ſtroue wyth hym.

And they dygged another well, and E ſtroue for that alſo. And he called the name of it Sitena. And then he departed thence, and dygged another wel, for the whych they ſtroue not: therfore called he it Rehoboth, ſayinge: the LORD hath nowe made vs rowme, yͭ we maye encreaſe vpon the earth. And he went vp thence, to Berſaba. And the LORDE appered vnto hym the ſame nyght and ſayde: J am the GOD of Abraham thy wyll bleſſe yͤ and multiplie thy ſede for my ſeruaũt Abrahãs ſake. And he builded an aulter there, ⁊ called vpon yͤ name of the LORDE, ⁊ pytched hys tente.

And there Jſaacs ſeruauntes dygged a well. Then came Abimelech to hym from Gerar: and Ahuſath hys frende, and Phichol his chefe captayne. And Jſaac ſayde vnto them: wherfore come diſobedient vnto Jſaac and Rebecca.

The xxvij. Chapter.

¶Jacob ſtealeth the bleſſynge from Eſau by hys mothers councell. Jſaac is ſad. Eſau is comforted. The hatred of Eſau towarde Jacob.

A AND it came to paſſe that when Jſaac wexed olde, ⁊ hys eyes were dymme (ſo that he coulde fele me, and J ſhal ſeme vnto hym as though J wẽt about to begyle hym, ⁊ ſo ſhal he bring a curſe vpõ me, ⁊ not a bleſſyng: ⁊ hys mother ſayd vnto hym: vpõ me be thy curſe my ſõne, only heare my voice, and go ⁊ fetch me thẽ.

And Jacob went ⁊ fet them, ⁊ brought thẽ to his mother. And his mother mad meate ſuche as ſhe knewe his father loued.
And Rebecca fet goodly raymẽt of C her eldeſt ſõne Eſau, whiche was in the houſe wͭ her, ⁊ put them vpõ Jacob her yonge ſonne, and ſhe put the ſkynnes of gotes vpõ his handes ⁊ vpon yͤ ſmooth of hys necke. And ſhe put yͤ meate and breade whyche ſhe had prepared in the hande of her ſonne Jacob. When he came to his father, he ſayde, my father.
And he anſwered: here am J, who art thou my ſõne: And Jacob ſaid vnto his father: J am Eſau thy eldeſt ſonne, J haue done accordynge as thou baddeſt me: vp ⁊ ſyt ⁊ eate of my venyſon, yͭ thy ſoule maye bleſſe me. And Jſaac ſayde vnto hys ſonne: howe commeth it that thou haſte founde it ſo quickly my ſonne: He anſwered: The LORD thy GOD brought it to my hande: Then ſayde Jſaac vnto Jacob, come nere ⁊ let me fele the my ſonne whether thou be my ſõne Eſau or not. Then went Iacob to Iſaac his father, and he felte and ſayde: yͤ voice is Iacobs voice, but the handes are the handes of Eſau. And he knewe hī not, becauſe hys handes were rough as hys brother Eſaus handes: and ſo he bleſſed hym.

And he aſked hym: art thou my ſonne D Eſau? And he ſayde, yͭ I am. Then ſayde he, bryng me and let me eate of my ſonnes venyſō, that my ſoule maye bleſſe the. And he brought hym and he ate. And he brought hym wyne alſo, ⁊ he dranke. And hys father Iſaac ſayde vnto hym: come nere, ⁊ kyſſe me my ſōne. And he went vnto hī ⁊ kiſſed him And he ſmelled the ſauoure of his raymēt Eccle.3.b. and *bleſſed hym, and ſayde: See, Hebre.11.d. the ſmell of my ſonne is as the ſmell of a felde, whyche the LORDE hath bleſſed. GOD geue the of the dewe of be thy ſeruauntes, and nacions bowe vnto the. Be lorde ouer thy brethren, ⁊ thy mothers chyldren ſtoupe vnto the.

Curſed be he that curſed the, ⁊ bleſſed be he that bleſſeth the.

E It happened that aſſone as Iſaac had made an ende of bleſſinge, and Iacob was ſcace gone out frome the preſence of Iſaac his father, then came Eſau hys brother from hys huntynge, ⁊ had made alſo meate, ⁊ broughte it vnto hys father, ⁊ ſayde vnto hys father: let my father aryſe ⁊ eate of hys ſonnes venyſon, that thy ſoule maye bleſſe me.
Then his father Iſaac ſayd vnto him: who art thou? he anſwered: I am thy eldeſt ſonne Eſau, ⁊ Iſaac was greatly aſtoyned out of meſure, and ſayde: whyche is he, and where is he then yͭ hath hunted venyſon: and broughte it me? ⁊ I haue eathen of all before thou cammeſt, ⁊ haue bleſſed him, and he ſhal be bleſſed. When Eſau heard yͤ wordes of his father, he cried out greatly ⁊ bytterly, aboue meaſure, ⁊ ſayde vnto hys father: bleſſe me alſo my father. Who anſwered, thy brother came wͭ ſubtilte ⁊ hath taken awaye thy bleſſyng. And F he ſayde agayne: He maye well be called Iacob, for he hath vndermyned me now ij. tymes: fyrſt he toke awaye my byrthryght, and ſe now hath he taken awaye my bleſſyng alſo. And he ſayde, haſt thou kept neuer a bleſſyng for me?
Iſaac anſwered and ſayde vnto Eſau: beholde, I haue made hym thy lorde, ⁊ all hys mothers chyldren haue I made his ſeruauntes. Moreouer with corne and wyne haue I ſtablyſhed him what cā I do vnto the nowe my ſonne?
And Eſau ſayde vnto hys father: haſt thu but that one bleſſynge my father? bleſſe me alſo my father: ſo lyfted vp Eſau hys voice and* wept. Then Iſaac Heb,12.f. hys father anſwered ⁊ ſayde vnto him beholde, thy dwellynge place ſhalbe yͤ fatneſſe of the earthe, and of the dewe of Heauen from aboue. And wyth thy of the bleſſynge, that his father bleſſed hym wyth all. And Eſau ſayde in hys herte: The dayes of my fathers ſorowe are at hande, and I wyl ſlaye my brother Iacob. And theſe wordes of Eſau her eldeſt ſonne were tolde to Rebecca.

And ſhe ſent ⁊ called Iacob her yongeſt ſonne, ⁊ ſayde vnto hym: beholde, thy brother Eſau threateneth to kyl yͤ: now therfore my ſonne heare my Then wyl I ſende ⁊ fet the away from thēce. Why ſhulde I be deſolate of you both in one daie? And Rebecca ſpake to Iſaac, I am wery of my life, for feare of yͤ doughters of Heth. Yf Iacob take a wyfe of the doughters of Heth ſuche ony as theſe are, or of yͤ doughters of yͤ lande what good ſhall my lyfe do me?

The xxviij. Chapter.

¶ Iacob is ſent into Meſopotamia to Laban for a wyfe. Eſau marieth an Iſmaelite. Iacob dremeth a dreme. Chriſt is promiſed. Iacob maket a vowe.

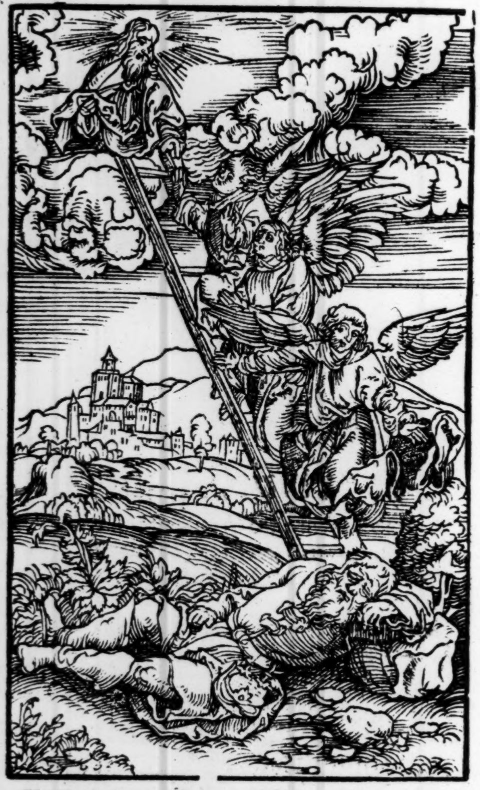
AND ſo Iſaac called Iacob, A and bleſſed hym and charged Gene.27.a. hym, and ſayde vnto hym: ſe thou take not a wyfe of the donghters of Canaan, but aryſe and get the to Meſopotamia to yͤ and there take the a wyfe of yͤ doughters

ters of Laban thy mothers brother. And GOD almyghty bleſſe yͤ, & make yͤ to encreaſe, & multiplie the yͤ thou mayeſt be a nombre of people, & geue the yͤ bleſſyng of Abraham: to the & to thy ſede wͭ the, that thou mayſt poſſeſſe yͤ lãd (wherin thou art a ſtraunger) whych GOD gaue vnto Abraham. Thus Jſaac ſent forth Jacob. And he wẽt to Meſopotamia vnto Labã ſonne of Bethuel yͤ Syrien, & brother to Rebecca Jacob & Eſaus mother. When Eſau ſawe that Jſaac had bleſſed Jacob, and ſent B him to *Meſopotamia, to fet him a wyfe Ozee.12.d thence, and that as he bleſſed him, he gaue hym a charg ſaying: thou ſhalt not take a wife of the doughters of Canaan, and that Jacob had obeyed hys father & mother, and was gone to Meſopotamie: and Eſau ſeinge alſo that yͤ doughters of Canaan pleſed not Jſaac hys father: then went he vnto Jſamel, & tolke vnto yͤ wiues whych he had, Malath yͤ doghter of Jſmael Abrahãs ſonne, yͤ ſyſter of Nebaioth to be his wyfe. Jacob departed from Berſaba, to come vnto. Haran, and came vnto a place by chaũce, and taryed there al nyghte, becauſe the ſunne was downe.



And toke a ſtone of the place, & put it vnder hys heade, & layde him downe in the ſame place to ſlepe. And he dreamed: and behold there ſtode a ladder vpon the earth, & the toppe of it reached vp to heuen. And ſe, the angels of GOD went vp and downe vpon it: yee, and GOD ſtode vpon it, and ſayde: J am yͤ LORDE GOD of Abraham thy father, C & the GOD of Jſaac: the lande whych thou ſlepeſt vpon wyll J geue the and thy ſede. And thy ſede ſhalbe as yͤ duſt of yͤ earth, and thou ſhalte ſprede abrode to the weſt, to the eaſt, to the north, and to the ſouth. And thorowe the and in thy ſeed ſhall all the kynreds of the earth be bleſſed. And ſe J am with the, and wyl be thy keper in all places whyther thou goeſt, and wyl brynge the agayne into thys lande: nether wyll J leaue the vntyll J haue made good all that J haue promiſed the. Whẽ Jacob was awaked out of his ſlepe, he ſayde: ſurely the LORDE is in thys place, and J was not aware. And he was afrayde and ſayde: howe fearfull is thys place: it is none other but euen the houſe of GOD, & the gate of Heuen. And Jacob ſtode vp early in the mornyng, and D toke the ſtone that he had layde vnder hys heade, and pytched it vp an ende* Gene.31.b & powred oyle in the top of it. And he called the name of the place Bethel, but the name of the citie was Lus before tyme. And Jacob vowed a vowe, ſayinge: yf God wyll be wyth me, and wyll kepe me in thys iourney whyche J goo, & wyll geue me breade to eate, & clothes to put on, ſo that J come agayn vnto my fathers houſe in ſafetye, then ſhall the LORDE be my GOD, and thys ſtone whyce J haue ſet vp an ende, ſhalbe Goddes houſe: and of al that thou ſhalte geue me, wyll J geue the tenth vnto the.

The xxix. Chapter.

¶ Jacob commeth to Labã and ſerueth vii. yere for Rachel. Lea was brought to his bed in ſteade of Rachel. He maryeh them both, and ſerueth yet vii. yere more for Rachel. Lea conceyueth.

THen Jacob lyfte vp hys fete & A came into yͤ eaſte countre. And as he loked aboute, beholde there was a well in the felde, and thre flockes of ſhepe laye therby (for at that well were the flockes watered) & there was a great ſtone vpon the welles mouthe. And thyther were all the flockes brought, and they rouled the ſtone from the welles mouth, and watered the ſhepe, & put ỷ ſtone agayne vnto the welles mouth vnto hys place. And Jacob ſayde vnto them: brethren, whence be ye? And they ſayde: of Harã are we. And he ſayde vnto them: knowe ye Laban ỷ ſonne of Nahor? They ſayd: we know hym. And he ſayd vnto them, is he in good helth? And they ſayde, he is in good helth, & beholde, hys doughter Rachel cõmeth wᵗ the ſhepe, And he ſayde, lo, it is yet but hye daye, nether is it tyme that the catel ſhulde be gathered together, water ye ỷ ſhepe B & go & fede them. And they ſayde, we may not vntyl all ỷ flockes be brought together, & tyl they roll ỷ ſtone from ỷ wels mouth, & ſo we water our ſhepe. Whyle he yet talked wᵗ them, Rachel came wyth her fathers ſhepe, for ſhe kept thẽ. And aſſone as Jacob ſawe Rachel ỷ doughter of Laban his mothers brother, & the ſhepe of Labã hys mothers brother, he went & rouled the ſtone frõ the wels mouth, & warred the flocke of Laban hys mothers brother. And Jacob kyſſed Rachel, & lyft vp hys voice & wept: & Jacob tolde Rachel, ỷ he was her fathers brother & Rebeccas ſonne. Therfore rãne ſhe and tolde her father C And it happened when Laban heard tell of Jacob hys ſyſters ſonne, he ran to mete hym: and embraced hym & kyſſed hym & brought hym to hys houſe. And he tolde Laban al ỷ matter. To whom Laban ſayde: well, thou art my bone & my fleſhe. And he abode with hĩ ỷ ſpace of a moneth. And Labã ſayd vnto Jacob: Though thou be my brother ſhuldeſt thou therfore ſerue me for nought? tell me, what ſhal thy wages be? Laban had two doughters: The eldeſt called Lea, & the yongeſt Rachel. Lea was tender eyed, but Rachel was bewtyful & well fauored. And Jacob loued Rachel, & ſayd: J wil ſerue ỷ vij. yer for D Rachel thy yongeſt doughter. Labã anſwered: it is better ỷ J geue her ỷ then to another mã: byde wᵗ me. And Jacob ſerued * vij. yeres for Rachel, & they ſemed Gene.12.d. vnto him but a fewe dayes, for the loue he had to her. And Jacob ſayde vnto Laban: geue me my wyfe ỷ J maye lye wᵗ her. For my dayes are fulfylled. Then Laban gathered together all ỷ men of ỷ place, & made a feaſt. And whẽ euẽ was come he toke Lea his doughter & brought her to hym, & he wẽt * in E vnto her. Gene.16.c. And Laban gaue vnto hys doughter Lea, Silpha his maide, to be her ſeruaũte. ♣ To whome when Jacob came in accordynge to the cuſtome, & when the morninge was come, beholde it was Lea. Then ſayde he to Labã, wherfore haſt thu playd thus wᵗ me? did not J ſerue ỷ for Rachel? wherfore then haſt thou begyled me? Laban anſwered: it is not ỷ maner of this place, to mary the yõgeſt before ỷ eldeſt. Paſſe out thys weke, & then ſhall thys alſo be geuen the for ỷ ſeruice which thou ſhalt ſerue me yet vij. yeres more. And Jacob did euẽ ſo, & paſſed out ỷ weke, & then he gaue hym Rachel his doughter to wyfe alſo. And Labã gaue to Rachel his doughter bilha hys handmayd to be her ſeruaunt. So lay he by Rachel alſo, & loued Rachel more thẽ Lea, * & ſerued hĩ yet vij. Gene.31.f. yeres more. Whẽ ỷ LORD ſawe ỷ Lea was deſpyſed, he made her frutefull, & Rachel remayned baren. And Lea conceaued & bare a ſõne, & called his name Ruben, for ſhe ſayde: ỷ LORDE hath loked vpon my tribulacion. Nowe therfore my huſbande wyll loue me. And ſhe conceaued agayne and bare a ſonne, & ſayde: the LORDE hath hearde ỷ J am deſpyſed & hath therfore geuen me this ſonne alſo, & ſhe called hys name * Simeon. 1.Par.2.d. And ſhe conceaued yet and bare a ſonne, and ſayde: nowe thys once wil my huſbande kepe me company, becauſe J haue borne hym thre ſonnes: and therfore was hys name called Leui. And ſhe conceaued yet again and bare a ſonne ſayinge: nowe wyll J prayſe ỷ LORDE: therfore ſhe called hys name Juda and lefte bearynge.

The xxx. Chapter.

¶ Rachel and Lea beyng both baren geue theyr maydens vnto theyr huſband. Jacob deceaueth. Laban in the conceauynge of the ſhepe an dkiddes Jacobs rewarde for hys ſeruice.

RAchel when ſhe ſawe ỷ ſhe A bare Jacob no children, ſhe enuyed her ſyſter, & ſayd vnto Jacob: Geue me chyldrẽ or els J am but deed. And Jacob was wroth wᵗ Rachel ſayĩge: Am J in GODDES ſteade, whych kepeth frome ỷ the frute of thy wombe? Then ſhe ſayde: here is my mayde Bilha, goo ĩ vnto her, & ſhe ſhal beare vpon my lappe ỷ J may be encreaſed by her. And ſhe gaue hym Bilha her hãdmayde to wyfe. And Jacob went in vnto her, and Bilha conceaued ⁊ bare Jacob a ſonne. Then ſayde Rachel. God hath geuen ſentence on my ſyde, ⁊ hath alſo heard my voice ⁊ hath geuẽ me a ſonne. Therfore called ſhe hi Dan. And Bilha Rachels mayd conceaued agayne, ⁊ bare Jacob another ſonne. And Rachel ſayde, wyth godly wreſtlynges haue I wreſtled wͭ my ſyſter and haue gotten yͤ vpper hande. And ſhe called his name, Naphtali. When Lea ſawe yͭ ſhe had left bearing, B ſhe toke Silpha her mayde, ⁊ gaue her Jacob to wyfe. And Silpha Leas mayde bare Jacob a ſonne. Then ſayd Lea good lucke: and called hys name Gad. And Silpha Leas mayde bare Jacob another ſonne. Then ſayde Lea: happy am I, for the doughters wyll call me bleſſed. And called hys name Aſſer.

And Ruben went out in the dayes of the wheat harueſt, and founde mandragoras in the feldes ⁊ brought them vnto hys mother Lea. Then ſayd Rachel to Lea: geue me of thy ſonnes mãdragoras. To whom Lea anſwered: Is it not ynough yͭ thou haſte taken awaye my huſbande, but woldeſt take awaye my ſonnes mandragoras alſo? Then ſayde Rachel: well, let hym ſlepe wyth yͤ thys nyght, for thy ſonnes Mãdragoras. C And Jacob came from yͤ feldes at euen, ⁊ Lea wẽt oute to mete hi ⁊ ſaide: come ĩto me, for I haue bought yͤ wyth my ſonnes mandragoras. And he ſlepte wͭ her yͭ nyght. And GOD heard Lea that ſhe cõceaued ⁊ bare vnto Jacob the fifte ſonne. Then ſayde Lea: GOD hath geuen me a reward, becauſe I gaue my maydẽ to my huſband, and ſhe called hym Iſaſchar. And Lea conceaued yet agayne, ⁊ bare Jacob yͤ ſixt ſonne. And Lea ſayde: GOD hath endued me wͭ a good dowry. Nowe will my huſbande dwel with me, becauſe I haue borne him ſyxe ſonnes, and called hys name Sebulon. After that ſhe bare a doughter ⁊ called her name *Dina. Gene.34.a D And GOD remẽbred Rachel, he heard her, ⁊ made her fruteful: ſo that ſhe conceaued and bare a ſonne, and ſayde: GOD hath takẽ awaie my rebuke. And ſhe called his name Joſeph, ſayig: The LORDE geue me yet another ſõne. And aſſoone as Rachel had borne Joſeph, Jacob ſayde to Labã: ſende me awaye that I maye go vnto myne owne place ⁊ contrey, geue me my wyues and my childrẽ, for whome I haue ſerued the, ⁊ let me go: for thou knoweſt what ſeruice I haue done the. To whome Laban anſwered, yf I haue found fauour in thy ſyght (for I ſuppoſe that yͤ LORD hath *bleſſed me for thy ſake) appoynt Gene.29.a what thy reward ſhalbe, and I wyl geue it the. But he ſayd vnto hym, thou knoweſt what ſeruice I haue done yͤ, and in what takyng thy catel haue bene vnder me: For it was but lytle that thou haddeſt before I came, ⁊ nowe it is encreaſed into a multitude, and the LORDE hath bleſſed the for my ſake. But nowe when ſhal I make prouiſiõ for myne owne houſe alſo? And he ſayde: what ſhall I then geue the? And Jacob anſwered: thou ſhalt geue me nothynge at al, yf thou wylt do this one thing for me, and then wyll I turne agayne ⁊ fede thy ſhepe, ⁊ kepe them.

E I wyll go aboute all the ſhepe thys daye, ⁊ ſeperate from them al the ſhepe that are ſpotted ⁊ of diuerſe coloures, ⁊ al blacke ſhepe amonge the lambes, ⁊ the partye, and the ſpotted amonge yͤ kyddes: ⁊ the ſame ſhalbe my rewarde So ſhall my rightweſnes anſwere for me to morowe, ⁊ ſhall come for my rewarde before thy face, ⁊ euery one that is not ſpecklede and partie amonge the goates, ⁊ blacke amonge the ſhepe, the ſame ſhalbe theft wyth me.

And Laban ſayde: Go to, wold GOD it might be accordynge to thy ſaying. Therfore he toke out the ſame daye yͤ he goates that were partye and of diuers colour, and al the ſhe goates that were ſpoted ⁊ partye coloured, ⁊ all yͭ had whyte in them, and all the blacke amonge the ſhepe, and put them in the kepyng of hys ſonnes, ⁊ ſet thre dayes iourney betwyxte him ſelf and Jacob. And ſo Jacob kepte the reſte of Labãs ſhepe, Jacob toke roddes of grene popular, haſel and of the cheſte nut trees, and pylled whyte ſtrakes in them, and made the whyte apere in the roddes. ☞ But they that were whole, remained grene, ãd thus was it made a variable coloure. And put the rods whyche he had pylled, euen before the ſhepe, in the gutters and wateryng troughes, when the ſhepe came to dryncke: that they ſhuld conceaue when they came to drincke. And the ſhepe conceaued before the rods, and brought furth lābes ſtracked, ſpotted, ⁊ party. And Jacob parted yͤ lambs ⁊ turned the faces of yͤ ſhepe toward ſpoted thynges, ⁊ toward al maner of blacke, yͭ was among the ſhepe of Laban, namely, puttynge his owne flockes by them ſelfe, ⁊ not puttynge them wyth Labās ſhepe. And it fortuned yͭ in euery rammynge tyme of yͤ ſtronger ſhepe Jacob layde yͤ roddes before yͤ eyes of yͤ ſhepe in the gutters: namely, that he myght make them conceaue before the roddes. But when yͤ ſhepe were feble, he put them not in. And ſo yͤ febler were Labās, ⁊ the ſtronger Jacobs. And yͤ man encreaſed exceadyngly, ⁊ had a great flocke, mayde ſeruauntes, ⁊ men ſeruauntes, camels and aſſes.

The xxxi. Chapter.

¶ At the commaundement of God Jacob departed from Labā, and toke hys goodes wyth him. Rachel ſtealeth her fathers images. Laban foloweth Jacob. The couenaunt betwene Laban and Jacob.

A But he heard the wordes of Labans ſonnes ſaying: Jacob hath taken awaye all yͭ was our fathers, ⁊ of our fathers goods hath he gotten all thys honoure. And Jacob behelde yͤ countenaunce of Laban, ⁊ beholde, it was not as yeſterdaye and yeryeſterday. And yͤ LORDE ſayde vnto Jacob, turne agayne into the lāde of thy fathers, ⁊ to thy kynred, and J wyl be wyth yͤ. Therfore Jacob ſent and called Rachel and Lea to yͤ felde vnto his flocke, and ſayde vnto them: J ſe youre fathers countenaunce yͭ it is not towarde me as yeſterdaye, ⁊ yeryeſterdaye. But the GOD of my father hath bene wyth me. And ye knowe howe yͭ J haue ſerued youre father wͭ all my myght. But your father hath diſceaued me, ⁊ chaunged my wages x. tymes: but GOD ſuffred him not to hurte me. When he ſaide, the ſpotted ſhal be thy wages, then al yͤ ſhepe bare ſpotted. And when he ſayde: yͤ ſtraked ſhal be thy reward, then bare al the ſhepe ſtraked: B thus hath GOD takē awaie your fathers ſhepe, and geuen them me But in rammynge tyme it happened, yͭ J lyfted vp myne eyes ⁊ ſawe in a dreame, ⁊ beholde the rammes leaped vpō yͤ ſhepe that were ſtraked, ſpotted and party. And the Angell of GOD ſpake vnto me in a dreame, ſayinge: Jacob, ⁊ J anſwered: here am J. And he ſayde: lygte vp nowe thyne eyes, and ſe al the rammes leapyng vpon the ſhepe yͭ are ſtraked, ſpotted and partye, for J haue ſene all that Laban doth vnto the, J am the GOD of * Bethel, where thou Gene.28.d anoyntedſt the ſtone, and where thou vowedſt a vowe vnto me. Nowe therfore aryſe and get the out of thys Gene.32.c. countre, and returne vnto the lande where thou waſt borne. C

Then anſwered Rachel, and Lea, ⁊ ſayde vnto him: haue we a porcion and inheritaūce in our fathers houſe? Doth not he count vs euen as ſtraungers? for he hath ſold vs, and hath euen eatē vp our money. But al the riches which GOD hath takē from oure father, that is oures and our chyldrens. And nowe what ſoeuer GOD hath ſayde vnto the that do. Thē Jacob roſe vp, and ſet his ſonnes and wyues vp vpon camels, ⁊ caryed awaye all hys flockes, and all hys ſubſtaunce whyche he had procured, hys ryches and poſſeſſions which he had gotten in Meſopotamia, for to go to Jſaac hys father vnto yͤ lande of Gene.38. Canaan. But Labā was gone to * ſhere 2.Reg.13.c his ſhepe, ⁊ Rachel had ſtollen her fathers images. And Jacob ſtale awaye the hart of Laban yͤ Syrian, in that he tolde hym not that he fled. So fled he ⁊ al that he had, and made him ſelfe redy and paſſed ouer the ryuer, and ſet hys face ſtreyght towarde the mount Gilead. D Upon the thyrde daye after, was it tolde Laban that Jacob fled. Then he toke hys brethren wyth hym, and folowed after hym ſeuen dayes iourney, ⁊ ouertoke hym at yͤ mount Gilead. And GOD came to Laban the Syrian in a dreame by nyght, and ſayde vnto hym: take hede that thu ſpeake not to Jacob oughte ſaue good. And Laban ouertoke Jacob: and Jacob hat pytched hys tente in the mount. And Laban wyth his brethren pytched theyr tent alſo vpon the mount Gilead. And Laban ſayde to Jacob: Why haſt thou thys done to ſteale awaye my harte, and carye awaye my doughters, as though they had bene taken captiue wͭ the ſweard.

Wherfore wenteſt thou awaye ſecretely vnknowne to me, ⁊ dydeſt not tell me, that J myght haue brought the on yͤ waye wyth mirth, ſyngynge, tymrell

The xxxiij. Chapter.

¶ Eſau and Iacob are agreed, and Iacob came into Sichem.

IAcob lyftynge vp hys eyes, loked, A and beholde Eſau came hauynge wyth hym foure hundred men. And he deuided the chyldren vnto Lea ⁊ vnto Rachel, and vnto the two maydens. And he put the maydens & theyr chyldren for moſte: & Lea and her chyldren after, & Rachel, and Joſeph hyndemoſt. And he went before them & *felle on the groũde ſeuẽ Gene.19.d. tymes vntil he came vnto his brother.

Gene.27.g Eſau* came to mete hym and enbraced hym, and fel on hys necke & kyſſed hym, and they wepte. And he lyfte vp hys eyes, & ſawe the wemen, and yͤ children, and ſayde: whence haſt thou theſe ☙(And do they belonge vnto the)? And he anſwered: they are the chyldren whyche GOD hath geuen they ſeruaunt. Than came the maydens forth, & theyr chyldren, and dyd theyr obeyſaunce. Lea alſo wyth her chyldrẽ came & did theyr obeſaunce. And laſt of all came Joſeph B & Rachel, and dyd theyr obeyſaunce.

And he ſayde: what is all the droue whyche I mette? He anſwered: that I maye fynde grace in the ſyght of my lorde. And Eſau ſayde: I haue ynoughe my brother, kepe yͭ thou haſte vnto thy ſelfe. To whome Jacob anſwered, oh nay, but yf I haue founde grace in thy ſyght, receaue my preſent of my hande: for I haue ſene thy face* as Heſt.15.d. though I had ſene the face of GOD, & thou haſte had a good wyl towarde me Oh take my bleſſynge that is brought the, for GOD hath had mercy on me. C ☙(Geuing me all thinges.) And I haue ynough. And ſo he compelled hym, and he toke it. And he ſayde: let vs take oure iourney and go, I wyll go before yͤ. Jacob anſwerede hym: my lorde thou knoweſt, that the chyldren are tendre, and the ewes and kyne with yong vnder myne hande, whych yf men ſhulde ouerdryue, but euen one daye al the ſhepe wyl dye. Oh let my lorde goo before hys ſeruaunte, and I wyll dryue fayer and ſoftlye, accordyng as the catel that goth before me and the chyldrẽ be able to endure vntyll I come to my lorde vnto Seir.

D And Eſau ſayde: let me yet leaue ſome of my floke with the. And he anſwered, what nedeth it? ☙(Thys one thinge onely haue I nede of) let me fynd grace in the ſyght of my lorde. So Eſau went hys waye agayne that ſame daye vnto Seir. And Jacob toke hys iourney towarde Sucoth, and buylte him an houſe, & made boothes for hys catell. And therfore is it, that the name of the place is called* Sucoth. Bothes.

And Jacob came to Salem a citie of Sichem, whyche is in the lande of Canaã, after that he was come from Meſopotamia, and pytched before the Citie, & bought a parcell of groũde (where he pytched hys tente) of the chyldrẽ of Hemor Sichems father for an hundred peces of money. And he made there an aulter, and called vpon the myghtye GOD of Iſrael.

The xxxiiij. Chapter.

A Dina the doughter of Lea* Gene.30 whyche ſhe bare vnto Jacob wẽte out to ſe the daughters of the lande. Whome whan Sichem the ſonne of Hemor the Heuite, lorde of that countre ſaw, he toke her, and laye wyth her, and forced* her 2.Reg and hys hart laye vnto Dina yͤ doughter of Jacob. And he loued that dameſell & ſpake kyndely vnto her, & Sichẽ ſpake vnto hys father Hemor ſayeng, get me thys mayden vnto my wyfe.

B And Jacob herd that he had defyled Dina his doughter, his ſonnes beynge wyth theyr catel in the felde, and he helde his peace, vntil they were come. And Hemor the father of Sichem went out vnto Jacob, to comen wyth hym. And when the ſonnes of Jacob commyng out of the felde hearde it, it greued thẽ & they wer not a lytel wroth, because he had wrought folye in Iſrael, in yͭ he had lyen wyth Jacobs doughter whyche thynge ought not to be done. And Hemor commoned wyth them ſayenge: the ſoule of my ſonne Sichem lõgeth for youre doughter: geue her hym to wyfe, and make mariages with vs, and geue your doughters vnto vs, and take our doughters vnto you, and ye ſhall dwel wyth vs, and the lande ſhall be before you, dwell and do your buſynes, and haue your poſſeſſions therein. And Sichem ſayde vnto her father, & her brethren, let me fynde grace in youre eyes, and what ſoeuer ye appoynte me, that wyll I geue. Are frelye of me both the drowry and gyftes, and I wyl geue accordynge as ye ſaye vnto me, ſo that ye gyue me the damſel to wyfe.

But the ſonnes of Jacob aũſwered to Sichem and Hemor hys father tal-kynge among them ſelues deceytfully, because he had defyled Dina their ſyſter. And they ſayd vnto them: we can not do this thinge, that we ſhould geue our ſyſter to one that is vncircūciſed, for that were a ſhame vnto vs. But in this wyll we conſent vnto you. yf ye wylbe as we be, and all the men childrē among you be circumciſed, then wil we geue oure doughters to you, and take your doughters to vs, and wyll dwell C with you, and be one people. But ⁊ yf ye wyl not harken vnto vs to be circūciſed, then wyl we take our doughter ⁊ go our wayes. Their wordes pleaſed Hemor and Sichem his ſonne. And the yonge man deferde not for to do the thing, because he had a luſte to Jacobs doughter: he was alſo moſt ſette by of all that were in his fathers houſe. Thē Hemor ⁊ Sichē his ſonne wēt vnto the gate of their citie, and comened with the men of their citie, ſaying: theſe men are vnfayned towarde vs, and dwel in the lande and do their occupacion therin. And in the lande is rowme ynoughe for them, we wil take their doughters to wyues, and geue them our doughters, onely herein wyl they conſent vnto vs for to dwel with vs and to be one people: yf all the men children that are amonge vs be circumciſed as they are. Shal not their goodes and their ſubſtaunce and all their catell be oures, D onely yf we conſent vnto them: For they wyll dwell with vs. And vnto Hemor and Sichem his ſonne herkened all that wente out of the gate of his citie. And all the men children were circumciſed, what ſoeuer went out of the gates of his citie. And it happened the thyrde daye (when it was paynfull to them) two of the ſonnes of Jacob Simeon ⁊ Leui, Dinas brethren, toke eGe. xlix. a Judic. ix. a ther of them his * ſwearde and wente into the Citie boldely, and ſlewe al that was male, and ſlewe alſo Hemor and Sichem his ſonne with yͤ edge of the ſwearde; ⁊ toke Dina out of Sichems houſe, and went their waye.

And yͤ ſonnes of Jacob cōmyng vpō the deade, ſpoyled yͤ citie, becauſe they had defyled their ſyſter: and toke their ſhepe, oxen ⁊ their aſſes, ⁊ whatſoeuer was in the citie, and alſo in the feldes. And all their goodes and all their children, ⁊ their wyues toke they captiue, ⁊ made hauock of all yͭ was in yͤ houſe.

But Jacob ſayde to Simeon, ⁊ Leui: ye haue troubled me, ⁊ made me ſtynke before the inhabitours of the lande, before the Cananite, and the Phereſyte. And J beyng few in numbre, they ſhal gather thē ſelues togyther againſt me, and ſlaye me, ⁊ ſo ſhall J and my houſe be deſtroyed. And they anſwered: ſhuld they deale wͭ our ſiſter as wͭ an whore?

¶ The.xxxv. Chapter.

Jacob goeth vp vnto Bethel/and burieth his images vnder an oke. Debora dyeth. Jacob is called Iſrael. The lande of Canaan is promyſed him. Rachel dyeth in labour. Ruben laye with his fathers concubine. The death of Iſaac.

AND GOD ſayde vnto Jacob, aryſe, and get the vp to Bethel, and dwel there. And make there an alter vnto GOD, that appeared vnto A

¶ The .xxxvii. Chapter.

Joſeph accuſeth his brethren. Joſeph dreameth and is hated of his brethren/ and is ſolde to the Iſmaelites. Jacob bewayleth Joſeph.

A JAcob dwelt in the lande wherein his father was a ſtraunger, euẽ in yͤ lande of Canaan. Theſe are the generacions of Jacob: Whẽ Joſeph was ſeuentene yere olde, he kept ſhepe with his brethren, ⁊ the ladde was wͭ the ſonnes of Bilha, and with yͤ ſonnes of Silpha, his fathers wyues. And he brought vnto theyr father an euyl ſayinge of them. But Iſrael loued Joſeph more then all his children, bycauſe he begat him in his olde age, and he made him a coote of many colours.

B And when his brethrẽ ſawe that their father loued him more then all his brethren, they hated him, and coulde not ſpeake peaceably vnto him. Moreouer, when Joſeph*had dreamed a dreame, he tolde it his brethren, whiche hated him yet yͤ more. And he ſayde vnto thẽ: heare, I praye you, this dreame which I haue dreamed: Beholde, we were byndynge ſheues in the felde: ⁊ lo, my ſhefe aroſe, and ſtode vp ryght, ⁊ yours ſtode rounde about, and made obeyſaunce to my ſhefe. To whome his brethren ſayde: ſhalt thou be our kynge in dede: or ſhalte thou in dede haue dominion ouer vs? And they hated him yet the more, bycauſe of his dreames and of his wordes.

C And he dreamed yet an other dreame, and tolde his brethren, ſayinge: beholde, I haue had one dreame more: me thought the ſunne and the moone, and xi. ſtarres made obeyſaunce to me.

And when he had tolde it vnto his father and his brethren, his father rebuked him, and ſayde vnto him: what is this dreame which thou haſt dreamed? ſhall I and thy mother, ⁊ thy brethren come to fal on the grouude before thee? And his brethrē hated him, but his father noted the ſaying. His brethren alſo went to kepe their fathers ſhepe in Sichem, ⁊ Iſrael ſayde vnto Joſeph: Doe not thy brethren kepe in Sichem? come, and I wyll ſende the to them.

i.Re.iii.c. He anſwered * here am I. And he ſayde vnto him: goe and ſe whether it be well with thy brethrē, and the ſhepe: and brynge me worde againe. And ſo he ſent him out of the vale of Hebron, and he wēt to Sichem. And a certaine man founde him, and beholde he was wandryng out of his waye in yͤ felde, ⁊ yͤ mā aſked him: what ſekeſt thou? He anſwered: I ſeke my brethrē, tell me I praye yͤ where they kepe ſhepe. And yͤ mā ſayde, they are departed hēce, for I hearde thē ſay: let vs go vnto Dothan. Thus went Joſeph after his brethren, and founde them in Dothā. And when they ſawe him a far of before he came at them, they toke councel againſt him, for to ſleye him. D For one ſayde to another: Beholde * this dreamer commeth: Ma.xxi. Mar.xii. Luke.xx.e. come nowe therfore and let vs ſley him and caſt him into ſome pyt, and we wil ſay a wicked beaſt hath deuoured him, and we ſhall ſe what wyll come of hys dreames. When Ruben hearde that, he ryd him out of their hādes ⁊ ſayde, we wil not kyll him. And Rubē ſayd moreouer vnto them, ſhede not his * bloude, Ge.xlii.d. but caſt him into this pyt that is in the wyldernesse, and laye no hande vpon him. (Thus he ſayde) Namely, that he might rydde him out of their handes, and delyuer him to his father againe.

E And it happened that when Joſeph was come vnto his brethrē, they ſtripte him out of his coate, his party coloured coote that was vpon him, and they toke him and caſte him into an emptye pitte: wherin was no water. And they ſat them downe to eate breade. And as they lyfte vp their eyes ⁊ loked aboute, there came a companye of Iſmaelites from Gilead, and theyr camels ladē wͭ ſpicery, baulme, ⁊ myrre, ⁊ were goyng downe to cary it into Egipte.

And Juda ſayde vnto his brethren: what auayleth it yf we ſlaye our brother, and kepe his bloude ſecrete? F come on and let vs * ſell him to the Iſmaelytes, Acte.vii. Ge.xlv. and let not our handes be vpon him: for he is our brother ⁊ our fleſhe. And his brethren were content. Then as the Madianytes marchaunte men paſſed by, they drewe and lyfte Joſephe out of the pytte and ſolde him vnto the Iſmaelytes for twentye peces of ſyluer. And they brought him into Egipt.

And when Ruben came againe vnto the pytte ⁊ foūde not Joſeph there, he rent his clothes ⁊ went againe vnto his brethren ſaying: the lad is not yender, and whether ſhall I go? And they toke Joſephs coote and kylled a goate, and dypped the coote in yͤ bloude. And G they ſent that partye coloured coote, and brought it vnto their father and ſayde: This haue we foūde: ſe whither it be thy ſonnes coote or no. And he knew it ſayinge, it is my ſonnes coote, a wicked beaſt hath * deuoured him, Ge.xliiii. Joſeph is rent in peces.

And Jacob rēt his clothes, ⁊ put ſacke cloth about his loynes, ⁊ ſorowed for his ſonne a long ſeaſon. But all his ſōnes and al his doughters roſe vp to cōforte him. Neuertheleſſe, he wolde not be conforted, but ſayd: I wil go downe into yͤ graue vnto my ſōne, mourning. And thus his father wept for him. And the Madianites * ſolde him in Egypte Ge.xxxi Pſal,ciii Sapi.x. vnto Putiphar a lorde of Pharaos, and his chefe ſtewarde.

¶ The mariage of Juda The treſpace of Er and Onan, and the vengeaunce of God that came there vpon. Juda laye with his doughter Thamar. The byrthe of Pharez and Sarah.

IT fortuned at that tyme, that A Judas went downe frō his brethren, ⁊ gate him to a mā called Hira of Odollan, and there he ſawe the doughter of a man called * Sua a Canaanite. i.Par.ii. And he toke her and went into her. And ſhe cōceaued and bare a ſonne ⁊ called his name Er. And ſhe cōceaued againe, ⁊ bare a ſonne ⁊ called him Onā. And ſhe cōceaued againe, ⁊ bare yet a ſonne, whome ſhe called Sela: and he was at Cheſib when ſhe bare him.

And Juda gaue Er his eldeſt ſonne a wyfe whoſe name was Thamar.
And Er Judas eldeſt ſonne was wicked in the ſight of the LORDE, & the LORDE ſlewe him. And Juda ſayde vnto Onã: go in to thy brothers wyfe, and marye her: that thou mayſt ſtirre

The.xxxix.Chapter.

¶ God proſpereth Joſeph, Pharaos wyfe tempteth him. He is accuſed and caſt in pryſon. God hathe mercye vpon him.

JOſeph was brought vnto Egipte, A and Putiphar * a Lorde of Ge 37.g Pharaos (and his chief ſtewarde an Egiptian) boughte him of the Jſmaelites, whiche had brought him thyther.
And God was with Joſeph, & he became a lucky man, continuyng in the houſe of his maſter the Egiptian. And his maſter ſawe ẏ God was with him, and ẏ God made all ẏ he dyd to proſper in his hande. And Joſeph founde grace in his maſters ſighte, and ſerued him.
And made him rular of his houſe, & put all ẏ he had in his hãd. And it fortuned from the tyme ẏ he had made him rular

ouer his houſe and ouer al that he had, Gen.39.d the LORDE* bleſſed ẏ Egipcians houſe for Joſephs ſake, and the bleſſing of the LORDE was vpon al that he had in the houſe, and in the felde. And therfore he left al that he had in Joſephs hand, and loked vpon nothinge ẏ was with hym, ſaue onely on the breade whiche he dyd B eate. And Joſeph was a* goodly perſonne and a well fauoured. 1 Re.16.c And it fortuned after this, that his maſters wyfe caſt her eyes vpon Joſeph, and ſayde: come lye with me. But he refuſed, and ſayde to his maſters wyfe: Beholde my maſter woteth not what he hath in the houſe with me, and hath committed all that he hath to my hande. There is no man greater in the houſe thē J. Nether hath he kepte any thinge from me, but onely the, becauſe thou art his wyfe. How then can J do this great wickednes, and ſynne againſt GOD? And after this maner ſpake ſhe to Joſeph day by day, but he harkened not vnto her, to ſlepe, nor heare, or to be in her cōpanye. And it fortuned on a certayne cōuenient daye, that Joſeph entred into the C houſe, to do his buſines: and there was none of the houſholde by in the houſe. And ſhe caught him by the garmēt ſaying: come ſlepe with me. And he lefte his garment in her hande, and fledde, and got him out. And it chaunced, whē ſhe ſawe that he had lefte his garmente in her hāde, and was fled out. (And ſhe not regarded) ſhe called vnto the men of her houſe, and tolde them, ſaying: Se, he hath brought in an Hebrue vnto vs to do vs ſhame: for he came into me, for to haue ſlepte with me. And J began to crye wᵗ a loude voice. And whē he heard that J lyfte vp my voice and cryed, he lefte his garment with me, and fledde awaye, and got him out.

And ſhe layde vp his garment by her, vntyl her lorde came home. And ſhe tolde him with theſe wordes, ſayinge: This Hebrues ſeruaunt whiche thou D haſt brought vnto vs, came into me to doe me ſhame. But aſſone as J lyfte vp my voice & cried, he lefte his garmente with me, and fled out. When his maſter (beynge to lyghte of credence) hearde theſe wordes of his wyfe, whiche ſhe tolde him, ſaying: after this maner dyd thy ſeruaunt to me, he waxed wrothe.

And the maſter toke Joſeph and put him in* priſon, euē into the place wher the kynges pryſoners laye bounde. And there continued he in priſon: but Psay.104 the LORDE was with Joſeph, & ſhewed him mercye, and got him fauoure in the ſight of the Lorde of the priſon. And the keper of the priſon committed to Joſephs hande, all ẏ priſoners that were in the pryſon houſe. And what ſoeuer was done there, ẏ dyd he. And the keper of the pryſon loked vnto nothing ẏ was vnder his hād, ſeyng ẏ the LORDE was wᵗ him. For what ſoeuer he dyd, the LORDE made it to proſper.

AND it chaūced after this, that the butteler of the Kynge of Egipte & A his baker had offēded their Lorde the kyng of Egipte. And Pharao was angry againſt his two officers: againſt the chefe butler and ẏ chefe baker: and put thē in warde in his chefe ſtewards houſe: euen in the priſon & place where Joſeph was bound. And the chefe ſtewarde gaue Joſeph a charge wᵗ them, and he ſerued them. And they continued a ceaſon in ward. And they dreamed eyther of thē in one night both ẏ butler and the baker of the Kynge of Egypte, whiche were boūde in the priſon houſe, ether of them his dreame, and eache mannes dreame of a ſundry interpretacion. When Joſeph came in vnto thē B in the mornynge, and loked vpon them, beholde: they were ſad. And he aſked Pharaos officers that were with him in his maſters warde, ſaying: wherfore loke ye ſo ſadly to day? They anſwered him: we haue dreamed a dreame, and haue no man to declare it. And Joſeph C ſayd vnto them: Do not interpretinges belonge to GOD? yet tell me: And the chefe butler tolde his dreame to Joſeph, & ſayde vnto him: Jn my dreame me thought there ſtode a vyne before me, and in ẏ vyne were .iii. braunches, and it was as thoughe it budded, & her bloſſoms ſhotte furthe: and the grapes therof, waxed rype. And J had Pharaos cup in my hāde, and toke of the grapes, & wrong thē into Pharaos cup, & deliuered Pharaos cup into his hand. And Joſeph ſayde vnto him: this is the interpretaciō of it: The .iii. braunches are thre dayes: for wythin thre dayes ſhal Pharao lyfte vp thyne heade, & reſtore yͤ vnto thyne office agayne, & thou ſhalte delyuer Pharaos cup into hys hande, after yͤ olde maner wherin thou waſt wont to geue him drinke. But yf thou thyncke on me wͭ the, when thou arte in good caſe, ſhew mercy (I praye yͤ) vnto me. And make menciō of me to Pharao, & brynge me out of this houſe: for I was ſtollē out of the lande of the Hebrues, and here alſo haue I done no thyng at all, wherfore they ſhuld haue put me into this dongeon. Whē yͤ chefe baker ſawe that yͤ interpretacion was good, he ſayd vnto Joſeph: me thought alſo in me dream yͭ I had thre wycker baſkettes on my heade. And in yͤ oppermoſt baſket there was of all maner bakemeates for Pharao. And yͤ byrdes D dyd eate them out of the baſket yͭ was vpon my head. And Joſeph anſwered & ſayde: thys is yͤ interpretacion therof. The thre braſkets are thre dayes, for thys day thre dayes ſhall Pharao take thy heade from the, & ſhal hange yͤ on a tree, & yͤ byrdes ſhall eate yͤ fleſh frō yͤ.

And it came to paſſe the thyrd daye Math.14:a whych was Pharaos * byrth daye, yͭ he made a feaſt vnto all hys ſeruaūtes. And he lyfted vp the head of the chefe butler, and of the chefe baker amonge hys ſeruauntes. And reſtored the chefe butlar vnto hys butlarſhyp agayne: which alſo reached the cup in to Pharaos hande, but he hanged the chefe baker: euen as Joſeph had interpreted vnto them. Nether dyd the chefe buttelar remembre Joſeph, but forgatte hym.

The xli. Chapter.

¶ Pharaos dreames are expounded by Joſeph. He is made ruler ouer all Egypte. He hath two ſonnes, Manaſſes and Ephraim. The derth begynneth in Egypte.

A AND it fortuned after ij. yeres, that Pharao dremed, & beholde, he ſtode by a ryuers ſyde, & there came out of the ryuer ſeuen goodly kyne & fat fleſhed, and fed in a medow, & ſeuen other kyne came vp after them out of yͤ ryuer, euell fauoured and leane fleſhed, and ſtod by the other kyne vpon the drynke of the ryuer. And the euyl fauored and leane fleſhed kyne dyd eate vp the ſeuen wel fauored and fat kine: & Pharao awoke. And he ſlept agayn, & dreamed yͤ ſecōde tyme. And behold, ſeuen eares of corne grewe vpon one ſtalke, ranke and goodly. And agayne, ſeuen thyn eares blaſted wyth the eaſte wynde ſprange vp after them: and the ſeuen thynne eares deuoured the ſeuen rancke & full eares. And Pharao awaked: and ſe, it was a dreame. And when the mornynge came, his ſpirite was troubled. And B he ſent and called for all the ſothſayers of Egypte, and al the wyſe men therof, and Pharao tolde thē his dreame: but there was none of them that coulde interpretate it vnto Pharao. Then ſpake the chefe buttelar vnto Pharao ſayng: I do remember my fautes thys daye. Pharao beynge angry wyth his ſeruauntes put in warde in the chefe ſtewards houſe both me and the chefe baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght, & ech mannes dreame of ſondry interpretacion. And there was with vs a yonge man, an Hebrue borne, ſeruaūt vnto the chefe ſtewarde. To whome when we tolde them, he declared oure dreames to vs accordynge to eyther of oure dreames. And as he declared thē vnto vs, euen ſo it came to paſſe. For he reſtored me to myne office agayne, and hāged hym. Pharao ſente therfore, and called Joſeph, and they brought hī haſtely out of * pryſon. And he ſhaued him Psal.104.b ſelfe, & chaunged hys rayment, & came into Pharao. And Pharao ſayde vnto C Joſeph: I haue ſene a dreame, and noman can interpretate it, & I haue hearde ſaye of yͤ, that aſſone as thou heareſt a dreame, thou canſte interpretate it. Joſeph anſwered Pharao ſaying: Not I, but GOD ſhall geue Pharao an anſwere of peace. And Pharao ſayd vnto Joſeph: in my dreame my thought I ſtode by a ryuers ſyde, & there came out of the ryuer ſeuen fat fleſhed, & wel fauored kyne, & fed in the meddowe. And then ſeuē other kyne came vp after thē, poore and very euel fauored, and leane fleſhed: ſuche as I neuer ſawe in all thys land of Egypte, they were ſo euel fauored. And the ſeuen leane and euell fauored kyne dyd eate vp yͤ fyrſte ſeuen fat kyne. And when they had eaten thē vp, a man could not perceyue that they had eaten them: but they were ſtyll as euell fauored as they were at the begynnynge. And I awoke. And I ſawe agayne in my dreame and beholde ſeuē eares ſprange out of one ſtalke, ful and fayer, and ſeuen other eares agayne, wythered thyn ⁊ blaſſeth wyth yͤ eaſte wynde, ſprange vp after them. And the thynne eares deuoured the ſeuen good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto yͤ ſothſayers, but there was no mã that could tel what it meaneth. And Ioſeph anſwered Pharao: both Pharaos dreames are one. And GOD hath ſhewed Pharao what is he aboute to do. The ſeuen good kyne are ſeuen yeres: and yͤ ſeuen good eares are ſeuen yeres alſo, and it is but one dreame. Lykewyſe, yͤ ſeuen thynne and euel fauoured kyne yͭ came out after them, are ſeuen yeres: ⁊ the ſeuen emptye ⁊ blaſted eares ſhall be ſeuẽ yeres of hunger. This which I haue ſayd vnto Pharao, it is yͭ GOD is about to do, ⁊ ſheweth it vnto Pharao.

Behold there come ſeuẽ yere of great D plenteouſnes through oute all yͤ lande of Egypte. And agayne, there ſhal aryſe after them ſeuẽ yeres of hunger. And alſo the plenteouſnes ſhalbe forgotten in the lande of Egypte. And the hunger ſhal conſume the lande: nether ſhal the plenteouſnes be knowne in the lande, by reaſon of the hunger that ſhall come after, for it ſhalbe exceadyng great. And as concernynge that the dreame was doubled vnto Pharao the ſeconde tyme, beholde, the thinge is certaynly prepared of GOD, and GOD wyll ſhortly bryng it to paſſe.

Nowe therfore let Pharao prouide for a mã of vnderſtandyng ⁊ wyſdome, ⁊ ſet hym ouer the lande of Egypt. And let Pharao do this alſo yͭ he make officers ouer the lande, ⁊ take vp the fyfth parte of the lande of Egypte in yͤ ſeuen plenteous yeres, and let them gather al the food of theſe good yeres that come, and lay vp corne vnder the hande of Pharao, that there maye be foode in the cities, and there lette them kepe it: yͭ there maye be found in ſtore in yͤ lande, agaynſt the ſeuẽ yeres of hunger whiche ſhall come in the lande of Egypt, yͭ the lande periſhe not thorowe hunger.

And the ſayinge pleaſed Pharao and E all hys ſeruaũtes. Then ſayde Pharao vnto hys ſeruauntes: where ſhall we fynde ſuche a man as this is, in whom is the ſpirite of GOD: And Pharao ſayd vnto Ioſeph: for as much as GOD hath ſhewed the all thys, there is no man of vnderſtandyng or of wyſdome lyke vnto yͤ. Thou therfore ſhalte be *ouer my houſe, ⁊ accordynge to thy worde ſhall all my people be ruled, onely in the kynges ſeate wyll I be aboue yͤ. And Pharao ſayde agayne vnto Ioſeph: behold, I haue ſet the ouer al yͤ land of Egypt. And he toke of his ringe frõ his hande, ⁊ put it vpon Ioſephs hande, ⁊ arayed hym in cloth of raynes, ⁊ put a golden cheyne aboute hys necke, and ſet hym vpon the beſt charet yͭ he had, ſaue one. And they cryed before hym: Bowe the knee, and Pharao made him ruler ouer all the lande of Egypte. And Pharao ſayd vnto Ioſeph: I am Pharao, without the ſhall no man lyfte vp hys hand or foote in all the lande of Egypte.

And he called Ioſephs name Zaphnath Paena. F And he gaue hym to wyfe Aſnath yͤ doughter of Potipher preaſt of On. Then wente Ioſeph abrode in yͤ lande of Egypte. And he was thyrtie yere olde when he ſtode before Pharao kynge of Egypte. And Ioſeph departynge frõ the preſence of Pharao, went thorowe out all the lande of Egypte. And in the ſeuen plenteous yeres they made ſhewes and gathered vp all the foode of yͤ ſeuen plenteous yeres which were in the lande of Egypte, and layde vp the ſame in the cities. The foode of yͤ feldes that grewe rounde about euery citie, layde he vp in the ſame. And Ioſeph layde vp corne in ſtoore, lyke vnto the ſande of the ſee, in multitude out of meaſure, vntyl he lefte nombryng: For it was wyth out nombre. And vnto Ioſeph were borne two ſonnes (before the yeres of hunger came) which Aſnath yͤ doughter of Potipher preaſt of On bare vnto him. And Ioſeph called yͤ name G of the firſte ſonne *Manaſſe, for GOD (ſayde he) hath made me forget all my laboure and al my fathers houſholde. the Egyptians, go vnto Joſeph, and what he ſayth to you, that do. And the derth was thorowout all ỹ lande. And Joſeph opened all that was in the cities, and ſolde vnto the Egyptians. For ỹ hunger waxed ſore in the lande of Egypte. And all coũtrees came to Egypte to Joſeph for to bye corne: becauſe ỹ the hunger was ſo ſore in all landes.

The xlij. Chapter.

¶ Joſephs brethren come into Egypte to bye corne and he knoweth them and tryeth them. Simeon is put in pryſon, the other returne to theyr father to fet the Ben Jamin. His father is loth to let hym go, but at the laſt he graunteth.

A ANd Jacob ſeynge ỹ there was corne in Egypte, ſayde vnto hys ſonnes: why gape ye one vpon another? And he ſayde: beholde, J haue heard that there is corne in Egypte. Get you downe thyther and bye vs corne from thence, that we maye lyue and not dye. Act.7.d. So wente Joſephs ten brethren downe to bye corne of the Egyptians. But Ben Jamin Joſephs brother wolde not Jacob ſende wyth hys other brethren, for he ſayde: leſt ſome myſſortune happen hym. And ỹ ſonnes of Jſrael came to bye corne amonge other that came, for there was derth in the land of Canaan. And Joſeph was gouerner in ỹ land, & ſolde to all the people of the lande. And hys brethren came, & fell flat on the groũde before him. When Joſeph ſawe his brethren, he knewe thẽ: & made hym ſelfe ſtraunge vnto them, & ſpake roughly vnto them, ſayinge: Whence come ye? They anſwered: out of ỹ land of Canaan, to bye vytayle. And Joſeph knewe hys brethren, but they knewe not him.

B And Joſeph remembred hys *dreames which he dreamed of them, & ſaide vnto them: ye are ſpyes, & to ſe where ỹ land is weake is your comminge. Gene.37.b And they ſayde vnto hym: naye my lord, but to bye vitayle thy ſeruaũtes are come. We are all one mans ſonnes, & meane truly, and thy ſeruaũtes are no ſpyes. And he ſayde vnto them agayne, naye, but euen to ſe where ỹ lande is weake, is youre commynge. And they ſayde: we thy ſeruauntes are twelue brethrẽ the ſonnes of one man in ỹ lande of Canaan.

C And beholde, the yongeſt is this daye wyth oure father, and one no mã woteth where he is. And Joſeph ſayde vnto thẽ, that is it ỹ J ſpake vnto you, ſaying: ye are ſpyes. Hereby ye ſhalbe proued. By the lyfe of Pharao, ye ſhall not go hence, except your yongeſt brother come hither. Sẽde out one of you whiche maye fet your brother, and ye ſhal be kepte in pryſon, that youre wordes maie be proued, whether there be any truth in you: or els by ỹ lyfe of Pharao, ye are but ſpyes. And he put them in ward thre dayes. And Joſeph ſayde vnto them the thyrde day: Thys do & lyue, for J feare GOD. Yf ye meane no hurte, lette one of your brethren be bounde in the houſe of your pryſon, & goo ye and bringe the neceſſarie foode vnto youre houſholdes, but bryng your yongeſt brother vnto me: ỹ your wordes maye be tryed, & ỹ ye dye not. And they dyd ſo. And one ſayde to another: we haue verely ſynned agaynſte our brother, in that we ſawe ỹ anguiſh of hys ſoule when he beſought vs, & we wolde not heare him, & therfore is this trouble come vpon vs. And Ruben anſwered them ſaying:

A Ge.xlvi.b. These are yͤ names of the childrē of Iſrael, which came to Egipt with Jacob euery man came wͭ his houſhold: Rubē Simeō Leui, & Juda, Iſachar, Zabulō, & Bēiamin, Dan Nephtali, Gad, & Aſar. All the ſoules that came out of yͤ loynes of Jacob were .lxx. But Joſeph was in Egipt already. And Joſeph dyed and all his brethren, and all the generacion, and the* children of Iſraell grewe encreaſed, multiplyed, & waxed exceadig mightye: & yͤ lād was ful of thē. Actes.vii Psal.ciiii

B But there roſe vp a new kyng in Egipt, whiche knewe not Joſeph. And he ſayde vnto his folke: beholde, yͤ people of the childrē of Iſrael are greater and mightier then we. Come on, let vs play wyſely with them, leſt they multiplye, and leſt it happen, that (yf there chaūce any warre) they ioyne them ſelues vnto our enemyes, and fyght againſt vs, and ſo get them out of the lande. Therfore did they ſet taſkemaſters ouer thē, to kepe them vnder with burdens. And they buylt vnto Pharao treaſure cityes: Phiton and Rameſes. But yͤ more they vexed them, yͤ more they multiplied & grew, ſo yͤ they abhorred yͤ children of Iſraell. C And the Egipcians helde the children of Iſrael in bondage without mercye. Therfore was their lyfe bitter vnto them in that cruel bōdage, in clay and bricke, and al maner of worke in yͤ feldes. For al their bondage which they ſerued them, was full of tyrannye.

And the kyng of Egipte ſayde vnto the mydwyues of the Hebrues women, of which yͤ ones name was Sephora and the other Phua: when ye do the office of a midwyfe to the women of yͤ Hebrues and ſe in yͤ birthe tyme that it is a boye, ye ſhal kyl it. But if it be a doughter, it ſhal lyue. Notwithſtandinge the mydwiues feared GOD, & did not as yͤ king of Egipt cōmaunded them, but ſaued yͤ men children. And the kyng of Egipte called for yͤ midwyues, & ſaid vnto thē: D why haue you delt on this maner, and haue ſaued yͤ men childrē: And yͤ mydwyues anſwered Pharao, that yͤ Hebrues women are not as the wemen of Egipte: for they are ſturdy wemē, and are delyuered yer the mydwyues come at them. And GOD therfore delt wel wͭ the mydwyues And the people multiplyed & waxed very mightie. And it fortuned becauſe the mydwyfes feared GOD, he made them houſes. And Pharao charged all his people: ſayinge. All the men children that are borne caſte into the ryuer, and ſaue the maydechildren alyue.

The .iiii. Chapter.

Moſes receaueth ſignes of his calling / and was ſent into Egipt. His wife Zephora circumciſed her ſon. Aaron meteth with Moſes. Moſes taketh his leaue of his father in lawe.

Moſes anſwered ⁊ ſaid: Se, they wyll not beleue me nor hearken A vnto my voyce: but wyll ſaye, the LORD hath not appeared vnto the. And the LORDE ſayd vnto him: what is that which is in thy hande? he anſwered, a rodde. And he ſayd: caſte it on the grounde. And he caſte it on the groũd, ⁊ it became a ſerpẽt. And Moſes fled frõ the ſyght of it. And yͤ LORD ſayd vnto Moſes: put forth thyne hãde ⁊ take it by the tayle. And therfore he put forth hys hande and caught it, ⁊ it became a rodde in hys hande. For this thyng (ſayeth he) ſhal they beleue the that the LORD GOD of theyr fathers, yͤ GOD of Abrahã, yͤ GOD of Iſahac, ⁊ yͤ GOD of Jacob hath appered vnto yͤ.

And the LORDE ſayd forthermore B vnto hym: thruſt thyne hande into thy boſome. And he thruſt his hande into his boſome. And when he toke it out agayne, beholde: his hãde was leprous euen as ſnowe. And he ſayd: put thyne hãd into thy boſome agayn. And he put his hãd into his boſome again, ⁊ pluckt it out

it out of his boſome, & beholde, it was turned againe as his other fleſhe. Therfore yf they wyl not beleue yͤ, nether heare the voyce of yͤ firſt tokē, yet wyll they beleue for the voyce of the ſeconde token. But and yf they wyl not beleue the two ſygnes, nether herken vnto thy voice, thou ſhalte take of the water of the ryuer, and powre it vppon the drye lande. And the water whiche thou takeſt out of the riuer, ſhall turne to bloude vppon the drye lande.

C Moſes ſayd vnto the LORDE: oh my LORDE, I am not eloquente from yeſterday and yeryeſterdaye, and namely ſence thou haſt ſpokē vnto thy ſeruaūt: but I am ſlow mouthed & ſlow tunged. And yͤ LORD ſayd vnto him: who hath made mās mouthe, or who hath made yͤ dūme or the deafe, yͤ ſyeng or yͤ blynde: haue not I the LORDE? Therfore * I wylbe with thy mouthe, and teache the what thou ſhalte ſaye. He ſayde: oh my LORDE, ſende I praye the by the hande of him whome thou wilt ſende. And the LORDE was angry with Moſes, and ſayde: Do not I knowe Aaron thy brother yͤ Leuite, that he can ſpeake? For lo, he commeth forthe to mete the, and when he ſeeth the, he wylbe glad in his herte. Therfore thou ſhalte ſpeake vnto him, and put theſe wordes in his D mouthe, & I wyll be with thy mouthe & with his mouth, & wil teache you what ye ought to do. And he ſhalbe thy ſpokeſman vnto the people: he alſo ſhall be thy mouthe, & thou ſhalte be his GOD: and thou ſhalt take this rod in thy hād, wherwith thou ſhalte do miracles.

Therfore Moſes wēt and returned to Iethro his father in lawe againe, and ſayde vnto him: I wil go nowe, & turne againe vnto my brethren whiche are in Egipt, and ſe whether they be yet aliue. And Iethro ſayde to Moſes, goe in peace. And yͤ LORDE ſayd vnto Moſes in Midian: goe and returne again into Egipte, * for they are deade which wēt about to kyll the. And Moſes toke his E wyfe, and his ſonnes, and put them on an aſſe, and went againe to Egipt, and Moſes toke yͤ rod of GOD in his hāde. And yͤ LORDE ſaid vnto Moſes: Whē thou art entred and come into Egipte againe, ſe that thou do all theſe wonders before Pharao, which I haue put F in thy hād: but I wil holde * his herte, and he ſhall not let the people go: And thou ſhalte ſay vnto Pharao, thus ſayeth the LORDE: Iſrael is myne eldeſt ſonne, & I haue ſaid vnto the that thou ſhuldeſt let my ſonne go, yͭ he may ſerue me, and thou woldeſt not let him go: behold, I wil * ſle thyne eldeſt ſonne.

And it chaunced by yͤ way in the inne yͭ the LORDE met him, & wolde haue kylled him. And Zephora toke a ſtone, & cut away yͤ foreſkynne of her ſonne, and fell at his fete, and ſayd: a bloudy huſbande arte thou vnto me. Then he let him go. And ſhe ſayd a bloudye huſbande, because of the circumciſiō. Thē G ſayde the LORDE vnto Aaron: go mete Moſes in the wyldernesſe. And he wēt and met him in the mount of GOD and kyſſed him. And Moſes tolde Aaron al the wordes of the LORDE whiche had ſent him, & all the tokens which he had charged him withal. So wente Moſes and Aaron, and gathered al the elders of the children of Iſrael. And Aaron tolde all the wordes whiche the LORD had ſpoken vnto Moſes, & dyd the miracles in the ſight of the people, & the people beleued. And when they hearde that yͤ LORD had viſited the childrē of Iſrael, & had loked vpō their tribulaciō, they bowed theyr heade, & worſhypped.

Moſes and Aaron do go vnto Pharao. The people of Iſrael are oppreſſed more and more, and they crye out vpon Moſes and Aaron therfore.

A MOſes and Aaron went in afterwarde, and tolde Pharao, thus ſayth yͤ LORDE GOD of Iſrael: Let my people go, that they maye kepe holy day vnto me in the wyldernesſe. And Pharao ſaid: who * is the LORDE, that I ſhoulde heare his voyce, and let Iſrael go? I knowe not the LORDE, neyther wyll I let Iſrael go. And they ſayde: the GOD of the Hebrues hath met with vs: & therfore wyl we go thre dayes iourney in the deſerte and ſacrifice vnto yͤ LORD our GOD: leeſt there happen vnto vs, either peſtilence or ſwearde. Then ſayd the king of Egipt vnto them: wherfore do ye (Moſes and Aaron) lette yͤ people frō their worke? get you vnto your labour. And Pharao ſayd furthermore: beholde, there is muche people nowe in the lande, and ye make them leaue their worke. And Pharao cōmaūded yͤ ſame daye vnto yͤ taſkmaſters whiche were amonge the people, and vnto the officers, ſaying: ye ſhal geue the people nomore ſtrawe to B make bricke withal,(as ye dyd in tyme paſſed,) let them go and gather them ſtraw them ſelues, and the nombre of brycke which they wer wonte to make in tyme paſſed lay vnto their charges alſo, and myniſhe nothinge therof, for they be ydle, ⁊ therfore crye ſaying: we wil go and do ſacrifice vnto our GOD. They muſte haue more worke layde vpon them, that they may labour therin and not regarde vayne wordes.

Then went the taſkmaſters of yͤ people ⁊ yͤ officers out, and tolde yͤ people: Thus ſayeth Pharao: I wyl geue you nomore ſtrawe, go your ſelues and gather you ſtrawe where ye can fynde it, yet ſhall none of your labour be myniſhed. And ſo were the people ſcatered abrode thorowout al yͤ lande of Egipt: for to gather ſtubble in ſteade of ſtraw. C And the taſkemaſters haſted them forwarde, ſaying: fulfyl our worke day by daye, euen as yf ye had ſtrawe. And the officers of the children of Iſrael which Pharaos taſkemaſters had ſet ouer them, were beaten. And they ſayd vnto them: wherfore haue ye not fulfylled your taſke in makynge brycke, bothe yeſterday and to daye, as well as in times paſt? The officers alſo of the children of Iſrael came and complayned vnto Pharao, ſayinge: wherfore dealeſt thou thus with thy ſeruauntes? ther is no ſtrawe geuen to thy ſeruaũtes, and they ſaye vnto vs: make brycke. And thy ſeruauntes are beatẽ, and thy people is foule intreated. He ſayde, ydell are ye, ydell, and therfore ye ſaye: We wyll go and do ſacrifice vnto yͤ LORD. Go therfore now and worke and there ſhall no ſtrawe be geuen you, ⁊ yet ſhal ye delyuer the whole tale of brycke.

D And the officers of the children of Iſrael did with heuineſſe loke on thẽ that ſayd: ye ſhall myniſhe nothinge of your daylye makyng of bricke. And they met Moſes and Aaron which ſtode in their waye as they came out from Pharao, and ſayde vnto them: The LORD loke vpon you and iudge you, whiche hathe made the ſauoure of vs ſtincke in the eyes of Pharao and in the eyes of his ſeruaũtes: ⁊ haue put a ſwearde in their hãde to ſle vs. Moſes returned vnto the LORDE, ⁊ ſayd: LORD, wherfore haſt thou delt cruelly wͭ this people, ⁊ wherfore haſte thou ſent me? for ſẽce I came to Pharao to ſpeake in thy name, he hath fared foule wͭ this folke, ⁊ yet thou haſt not deliuered thy people at all. Then the LORD ſayd vnto Moſes: Nowe ſhalt thou ſe, what I wil do vnto Pharao, for in a mighty hãd ſhal he let them go, and*in a mighty hande ſhall he dryue them out of his lande. Exo.xii ſende downe a myghtye greate hayle: euen ſuche a one as was not in Egipt, ſens it was grounded vnto this tyme.

Sende therfore nowe, and gather thy beaſtes, and all that thou haſt in yͤ feld.
For vpon all the men and the beaſtes which are founde in the felde, and not brought home, ſhall the hayle fall and they ſhall dye. And as manye as feared the worde of the LORDE amonge the ſeruauntes of Pharao, made theyr ſeruauntes and their beaſtes flee into the worde of the LORDE, lefte his ſeruauntes E and his beaſtes in the felde. And yͤ LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes: ſtretche furth thyne hande vnto heauen, that there maye be hayle in all the lande of Egipte: vpon man and vpon beaſtes, ⁊ vpon all the herbes of the feld, thorow out all the lande of Egipt. And Moſes ſtretched out his rod vnto heauen: and the LORDE thundred and hayled, ⁊ the fyre ran a longe vpon the grounde.

Pſalme. lxxviii.c and.cv.c. *And the LORDE ſo hayled in the land of Egypte, yͭ there was hayle and fyre myngled with the hayle, ſo greuous, ⁊ ſuche as there was none thorowoute al the lande of Egypte, ſence people inhabited it. And yͤ hayle ſmote thorowout al the land of Egypte, all that was in the felde both man ⁊ beaſte. And the F hayle ſmote all the herbes of the felde, and broke all the trees of the feld: only in the land of Goʒam, where yͤ chyldrē of Iſrael were, was ther no haile. And Pharao ſent and called for Moſes and Aaron, ⁊ ſayde vnto them I haue now ſynned: the LORDE is ryghteous, and Exo.x I and my people are vngodly. *Praye ye vnto the LORDE: for it is much that there ſhould be thunders of GOD and hayle. I wyll let you go, and ye ſhal tary no longer. Moſes ſayde vnto hym: aſſone as I am out of the Cytie, I wyl ſprede abrod my hādes vnto yͤ LORDE, and the thūder ſhall ceaſe, neyther ſhal there be any more hayle, yͭ thou mayſte know how that yͤ earth is yͤ LORDES.
But I knowe that thou and thy ſeruauntes yet feare not the face of the LORDE GOD.

G And ſo the flaxe and the barlye were ſmytten for the barly was ſhut vp, and the flaxe was boulled: but the wheate and the rye were not ſmytten for they were late ſowen. And Moſes went out of the cytie from Pharao and ſprede abrod his handes vnto the LORDE: and the thunder ⁊ hayle ceaſed, neither rained it vpon the earth. And when Pharao ſawe that the rayne and the hayle and thunder were ceaſed, he ſynned agayne: and hardened his herte, he and his ſeruauntes. And the herte of Pharao was hardened: nether would he let the children of Iſrael go, as the LORD had ſayd by the hande of Moſes.

¶The.x.Chapter.

The herte of Pharao is hardened of God The greſhoppers. The thycke darkenes.

A AND the LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes, Exo.iiii goe in vnto Pharao: for *I haue hardened his herte, and the herte of his ſeruauntes, that I myght put theſe my ſygnes amongeſt them, ⁊ that thou tel in yͤ audience of thy ſonne and of thy ſonnes ſonne, what thynges I haue done in Egypte, and the myracles whiche I haue done amōg them: yͭ ye maye know how yͭ I am the LORD.
And ſo Moſes and Aaron came vnto Pharao and ſayde vnto hym: Thus ſayth the LORDE GOD of the Ebrues, howe longe ſhall it be or thou wylte go, that they maye ſerue me. Or els (yf thou do reſyſt) and wylt not let my people go: beholde, to morowe wil I bring greſhopers into thy coaſtes, and they ſhall couer the face of the earth, that B it can not be ſene: and they ſhall eate the reſydue whyche remayneth vnto you and is eſcaped from the haile: and they ſhall eate euerye grene tree that beareth

beareth you frute in yͤ felde, ⁊ they ſhall fyll thy houſes, and all thy ſeruauntes houſes, and the houſes of al the Egipcyans after ſuche a maner, as neyther thy fathers, nor thy fathers fathers haue ſene, ſence the time they were vpon the earth vnto this daye. And he turned him ſelfe about, and went oute from Pharao.

And Pharaos ſeruauntes ſayd vnto him. Howe longe ſhall he be a ſlaūder vnto vs? Let the men go, that they maye ſerue the LORDE their GOD: knoweſt thou not that Egypte is deſtroyed? And Moſes and Aaron were brought agayne vnto Pharao, and he ſayde: then goe, and ſerue the LORDE youre GOD. Who are they yͭ ſhal goe? And Moſes anſwered: we wil go with our yong and with our old: yea, and wͭ our ſonnes and with our doughters, ⁊ with our ſhepe and with our oxen we muſt go. For we muſt holde a feaſt vnto the LORDE.

C And he ſayde vnto them: let it be ſo. The LORDE be with you. When I let you go, and youre chyldren alſo, take hede, for ye haue ſome miſchefe in hād. Naye, not ſo: but go they that are men ⁊ ſerue the LORDE: for that was your deſyre. And they thruſte them oute of Pharaos preſence. And the LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes: Stretch out thyne hand ouer the land of Egypt for greſhoppers that they maye come vpō the lande of Egypte and eate all the herbes of yͤ land, and all that the hayl left behynde. And Moſes ſtretched furthe his rod ouer the lande of Egypte: and the LORDE brought an eaſt wynd vpon the lande all that daye, and all that nyght. And in the mornyng, the eaſte Pſal.cv.c. Sap.xvi.b Joel.i.a. wynde *brought the greſhoppers, and the greſhoppers wente vp ouer all the lande of Egypte: and remayned in all D quarters of Egypt very greuouſlye. Before them were there no ſuche greſhoppers, neyther after them ſhalbe: for they couered al the face of yͤ earth, ſo yͭ the land was darke. And they dyd eate all the herbes of the lande, and all the frutes of the trees, and whatſoeuer the hayle hadde lefte: there was no grene thynges left in the trees and herbes of the felde thorow al the land of Egipt.

Therefore Pharao called for Moſes and Aaron in haſte, ⁊ ſayde: I haue ſynned agaynſt the LORDE your GOD and agaynſt you. And now forgeue me my ſynne only this once: and *pray vnto the LORDE your GOD, that he may Exod.ix.f. E take awaye from me thys death onlye. And Moſes wente out from Pharao, and prayed vnto the LORDE. And the LORDE turned a myghtie ſtrong weſt wynde, and it toke away the greſhoppers, and caſt them into the red ſea, ſo that there was not one greſhopper in al the coaſt of Egypte. And the LORD Exo.iiii.f *hardened Pharaos herte, ſo that he woulde not let the chyldren of Iſraell goe.

And the LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes: F ſtretch out thy hand vnto heauen, that there maye be vpon the lande of Egipt darkeneſſe whiche maye be felte. And Moſes ſtretched furth his hand vnto Sa.xvii.a heauen, ⁊ there was a thycke* darkeneſſe vpon all the lande of Egypte thre dayes longe, no man ſawe another, nether roſe vp frō the place wher he was by the ſpace of three dayes: but all the children of Iſraell had lyghte where they dwelled.

G And Pharao called for Moſes and ſaide: go and ſerue the LORDE, only let your ſhepe and youre oxen abyde, and let your children go with you. And Moſes ſayde: thou muſte geue vs alſo offerynges and burnt offrynges for to ſacrifyce vnto the LORDE oure GOD: our catell alſo ſhall go with vs, ⁊ there ſhall not one hofe be lefte behynde, for thereof muſt we take to ſerue yͤ LORD our GOD. Neyther do we know what we ſhall offre vnto the LORDE, vntyll we come thyther.

But the LORDE hardened Pharaos herte: and he woulde not let chē go. And Pharao ſayde vnto hym: get thee fro me, and take hede to thy ſelfe, and ſe my face nomore. For when ſoeuer thou commeſt in my ſyghte, thou ſhalte dye. And Moſes ſayde: Let it be as thou haſte ſayde, I wyll ſe thy face no more.

Ios.xxiiii.b *and the chyldren of Iſrael cryed out vnto the LORDE. But they ſayed vnto Moſes: becauſe there were no graues in Egipte, haſte thou therfore brought vs awaye for to dye in the wyldernes: wherfore haſt thou ſerued vs thus, for to carye vs out of Egipt? Dyd not we tell the this in Egypte, ſaying: let vs be in reſt, that we maye ſerue the Egipcians? For it had bene better for vs to haue ſerued the Egipcians then for to dye in the wilderneſſe. And Moſes ſayde vnto ỹ people *feare ye not, ſtand ii.Pa.xx.c ſtyll, and beholde, howe the LORD ſhal ſaue you this day. For ye ỹ haue ſene ỹ Egipcians this day, ſhal ſe thẽ nomore for euer. The LORDE ſhall fyghte for you, and ye ſhall holde your peace.

D And the LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes: wherfore cryeſt thou vnto me? ſpeake vnto the children of Iſrael that they go forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rod, ⁊ ſtretche out thy hande ouer the ſea and deuide it a ſunder, and let the chyldren of Iſraell go on drye grounde thorowe the myddeſt of the ſea. And beholde, I wyll harden the herte of the Egipciãs that they maye folowe them. And I wyll get me honoure vpon Pharao, ⁊ vpon all his hooſt, and vpõ his charets and vpon his horſemen. And the Egipcians ſhall know that I am ỹ LORDE when I haue gotten me honour vpon Pharao, vpon his charettes, and vpon his horſemen. And the angell of GOD whiche wente before the hooſte of Iſraell remoued and beganne to go be-

E hynde them. And ỹ clouden pyller that was before the face of them began to ſtande behynde them, ⁊ came betwene the hooſt of the Egipcians ⁊ the hooſt of Iſrael. It was alſo a darke cloud, ⁊ gaue lyght by nyght: and all the nyght longe the one came not at the other.

And Moſes ſtretched furth his hande ouer the ſea: and the LORDE caryed awaye the ſea, by a verye ſtronge Eaſte wynd all that nyght, and made the ſea drye lande, and the waters were deuided. And the children of Iſraell wente

F out into the mydſt of the ſea: vpon the drye grounde. And the waters were a walle vnto them on the ryghte hand, ⁊ on the left hande. And the Egipcians folowed and wente in after them to ỹ myddeſt of the ſea, euen all Pharaos horſes, his charettes and his horſemẽ. And in the mornyng watche, ỹ LORDE loked vnto the hooſt of the Egipcians out of the fyrye and cloudye pyller: and troubled the hooſt of the Egipcians, ⁊ toke of his charet wheles ⁊ caried them awaye violently. So that the Egipcyans ſayde: Let vs flee from the face of Iſrael, for the LORDE fyghteth for thẽ agaynſt the Egipcians. And ỹ LORD ſayde vnto Moſes: ſtretche out thyne hande ouer the ſea, that ỹ waters may

The Iſraelites come into the deſerte of Sin. It rayneth quayles and Manna. They grudge.

A um.33.b. THe * children of Iſraell came to Elim where were twelue welles of water, & .lxx. palme trees, and they abode there by ỹ waters. And they toke their iorney from Elim: & all the whole company of the childrẽ of Iſrael cam to ỹ wildernes of Sin (which C is betwene Elim & Sinai:) the fiftene daye of the ſeconde moneth after theyr departyng out of the lande of Egipte. And the hole multitude of the children um.11.a of Iſraell* murmured againſt Moſes and Aaron in the wyldernes: and the children of Iſrael ſayd vnto thẽ: wolde to GOD we had dyed in the hãde of the LORD, in ỹ lande of Egipt whã we ſat by the fleſhe pottes, and when we dyd eate breade our bellyes ful: for ye haue brought vs out into this wyldernesse, to kyl this hole multitude with hũger. Then ſayde the LORDE vnto Moſes: B beholde, I wyl rayne* bread from Heauen to you, and the people ſhall go out, pi.16.d a.78.c. ohn.6.d. and gather day by day, ỹ I may proue them, whether they wyll walke in my lawe or no. The ſyxte daye they ſhall prepare for thẽ ſelues that which they wyll bryng in, & let it be twyſe aſmuche as they gather in dayly. And Moſes & Aaron ſayde vnto all the childrẽ of Iſraell: at euen ye ſhall know that it is ỹ LORD, whiche brought you out of the lande of Egipte: and in the mornyng, ye ſhall ſe the glory of the LORD, becauſe he hath hearde your grudgynges againſt ỹ LORD. And what are we that ye haue murmured againſte vs? And Moſes ſayde: At euen ſhall the LORD um.11.d *geue you fleſhe to eate, and in ỹ mor- C ninge breade ynoughe: for the LORDE hath heard your murmuringes: which ye murmur againſte him: for what are we? youre murmurynges are not againſt vs, but againſt the LORDE. And Moſes ſpake vnto Aaron: Saye vnto al the company of the childrẽ of Iſrael, come forthe before the LORDE: for he hath hearde your grudgynges. And as Aaron ſpake vnto ỹ whole multitude of the children of Iſrael, they loked towarde the wyldernes: & beholde, the glorye of the LORDE appeared in the cloude. And ỹ LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: I haue hearde the murmuringe of the children of Iſraell, tell thẽ therfore and ſaye: at euen ye ſhall eate fleſhe, and in the mornynge ye ſhalbe fylled with breade, and ye ſhall knowe that I am the LORDE your GOD. The.xviii. Chapter.

Jethros councell is receyued of Moſes.

A Jethro the preaſt of Midian Moſes father in law, hearde of all þ GOD hadde done for Moſes, and for Iſrael his people, and that the LORDE had brought Iſrael out of Egipt* Therfore he toke Zephora Moſes wyfe. (After he had ſēt her backe) & her two ſonnes, of which the one was called* Gerſō, for he ſaid: I haue bene an aliant in a ſtraūge lande. The name of the other was: Elieſar: for the GOD of my father (ſayd he) was myne helpe, and delyuered me from the ſwearde of Pharao. And Jethro Moſes father in lawe came wᵗ his two ſonnes, and his wyfe vnto Moſes into the wyldernes: where he abode by the mount of GOD. And he ſayd vnto Moſes: I thy father in lawe Jethro am come to the, and thy wife alſo, and her two ſonnes with her. B And Moſes went out to mete his father in lawe, and dyd obeyſaunce and kyſſed him, & eache aſked other of his health, and they came into the tēt. And Moſes tolde his father in lawe all that the LORDE had done vnto Pharao & to D the Egipcians for Iſraels ſake, and al the trauayle that had happened thē by the way, and how the LORD delyuered them. And Jethro reioyſed ouer all the goodneſſe which þ LORD had done to Iſraell, and becauſe he had delyuered them out of þ hande of the Egipcians. And Jethro ſayde: bleſſed be the LORD whiche hath deliuered you out of þ hād of the Egipcians, and out of the hande of Pharao, which hath alſo delyuered his people from the captiuitye of the Egipciās. Now I know that þ LORD is greater then all gods, for in þ thing wherby they dealte cruelly with them, are they thē ſelues peryſſhed. E And Jethro Moſes father in law offred burnt offrynges and ſacrifices vnto GOD. And Aaron and al the elders of Iſrael came to eate breade with Moſes father in lawe before GOD.

And thou ſhalte make the barres of Sethim wood, and ouerlay them with gold, that the table may be borne with them. And thou ſhalt make his diſſhes, and ſpones, ſtatpeces, and pottes to powre out withall: Euen of fyne golde ſhalt thou make them. And thou ſhalte ſet vpō the table, ſhewbread before me D alwaye. Exodi. xxxvii.c *And thou ſhalt make a candelſtycke of pure golde euen of a whole worke ſhall the candelſtycke be made wͭ his ſhafte, braunches, bolles, knoppes and floures proceadyng there out: Syxe braunches alſo ſhal procede out of the ſydes of it: three braunches of yͤ candelſtycke out of the one ſyde, ⁊ thre out of the other. Three cuppes like vnto almondes with knoppes ⁊ floures in one braunche. And three cuppes like almondes in the other braunche, with knoppes and floures. And euen ſo thorowe out the ſyxe braunches yͭ procede out of the candelſtycke: and in the candelſtycke ſelfe foure cuppes lyke vnto almōdes wͭ their knoppes ⁊ floures, ⁊ there ſhalbe a knop vnder euerye two braunches (in three rowmes,) of the ſixe that procede oute of the candelſtycke. And the knoppes and the braunches ſhalbe of it. And it ſhalbe one worke euen of pure golde. And thou ſhalt make the ſeuen lampes of it: and the ſeuen lampes thereof, ſhalte thou put an hye thereon, to geue lyghte vnto the other ſide that is ouer againſt it. The tonges and ſnuffers therof ſhalbe of pure gold. Of an hundred pounde weyght of fyne golde ſhalte thou make it with all apparell. *Loke therfore that thou make them after the faſhyon that was ſhewed the in the mount.

Act.vii.f

¶This chapter alſo deſcrybeth the thinges pertaynyng to the holy place

A THe tabernacle ſhalte thou make with.x.curtaynes of whyte twined ſylke yelowe ſylke, purple ⁊ ſkarlet. And in them thou ſhalte make pyctures of broydered worke. The length of one curtayne ſhalbe eyght ⁊ twentye cubytes, and the bredth of one courtayne four cubytes, and euery one of the courtaynes ſhall haue one meaſure: fyue curtaynes ſhall be coupled together one to another: and fyue curtaynes ſhalbe coupled together one to another.

B And thou ſhalt make lowpes of yelowe ſylke a long by the edge of yͤ one curtayne whiche is in yͤ ſeluedge of the couplyng curtayne. And likewiſe ſhalt thou make in the edge of the vtmoſte curtayne that is to be coupled therewͭ on the other ſyde. Fyftye lowpes ſhalte thou make in the one curtayne, ⁊ fiftye lowpes ſhalte thou make in the edge of the curtaine that is to be coupled therwyth on the other ſyde: that yͤ lowpes maye take holde one of another. And thou ſhalt make fyftye buttōs of gold, and couple the curtaynes together wͭ the buttons and it ſhalbe one habytacyon.

C *And thou ſhalt make eleuen curtaynes of goates heare, to be a coueryng vpon the tabernacle. The length of a curtayne ſhall be thyrtye cubytes, and the bredth foure, and they ſhall be all euē of one meaſure. And thou ſhalt couple fyue curtaynes by them ſelues, and the ſyxe by them ſelues, and ſhalte double the ſyxte in the fore fronte of yͤ tabernacle. And thou ſhalte make fyftye lowpes in the edge of the vtmoſte curtayne on the one ſyde: euē in yͤ edge of the couplynge curtayne: and fyftye lowpes in the edge of the other curtain that muſte be ioyned vnto it. And thou ſhalte make fyftye buttons of braſſe, ⁊ put them on yͤ lowpes: and couple the coueryng together, that it may be one.

And the remnaunt that reſteth in yͤ curtaines of the coueryng: euen yͤ halfe courtayne that reſteth, ſhall be left on the backe ſydes of the habytacion: that a cubyte on the one ſyde, and a cubyte on the other ſyde maye remayne in the length of yͤ curtaynes of the couering, and that it may remayne of eyther ſyde of the habitacion to couer it withall. And vpon the tabernacle thou ſhalte make a coueryng of rammes ſkynnes dyed red: and yet a coueryng aboue all of taxus ſkynnes.

D And thou ſhalt make bordes for the habitacyon, of Sethim wood to ſtande vpryght: ten cubytes longe ſhall euery borde be, and a cubyte ⁊ an halfe brod. Two fete ſhall there be in one borde: ⁊ they ſhalbe ſeparate one frō an other. And thus ſhalt yͧ make for al yͤ bordes of yͤ tabernacle. *And thou ſhalt make twentye bordes for the habitacion on the ſouthe ſyde, and thou ſhalte make ſockettes of ſyluer, vnder the twentye bordes: two ſockettes vnder one bord, for his two fete, and two ſockettes vnder another borde for hys two fete.

In lyke maner in the north ſyde of yͤ habitacion there ſhalbe.xx.bordes and xl.ſockets of ſyluer: ii. ſockettes vnder one borde, and two ſockettes vnder another borde. And in the weſt ende of yͤ habitacion, ſhalte thou make ſyxe bordes, and two bordes ſhalte thou make in the corners of the habitacion in the metyng together of the two ſides. And they ſhalbe coupled together beneth, ⁊ lykewyſe aboue to a rynge. And thus ſhal it bs for the two bordes that are in the corners. And they ſhalbe eyghte bordes hauing ſockettes of ſiluer, euen ſyxtene ſockettes: that there maye be two ſockettes vnder one borde, ⁊ two ſockettes vnder an other borde.

F And thou ſhalt make barres of Sethim wood, fyue for the bordes of the tabernacle in one ſyde, and fyue barres for the bordes of the tabernacle in the other ſyde, and fyue barres for yͤ bordes of the tabernacle in the weſt ende. And yͤ mydle barre ſhall go along thorowe the myddes of the bordes frõ the one ende vnto yͤ other. And thou ſhalte couer the bordes with gold, and make their ringes of golde, to put the barres thorow, and thou ſhalt couer yͤ barres with golde alſo. And thou ſhalt rere vp the habitacion accordyng to the faſhiõ thereof, as it was ſhewed thee in the mounte. And thou ſhalte make a vayle of yelowe ſylke, of purple, ſcarlet, and white twyned ſylke. Of broydered worke wyth pyctures ſhalt thou make it. And hange it vpon foure pyllers of Sethim wood couered with golde.

G Whoſe heades ſhalbe of golde, ſtãding vpon four ſockettes of ſiluer. And thou ſhalt hang vp the vayle wyth rynges, that thou mayſt bryng in (wythin the vayle) the arke of wytneſſe. And yͤ vaile ſhall vnto you deuide the holy from the moſt holy. And thou ſhalt put yͤ mercyſeate vpõ the arke of wytneſſe in yͤ holyeſt place. And thou ſhalte put the table without the vayle: and the candelſticke ouer againſt the table on yͤ ſouth ſyde of yͤ habitacion. And put the table on yͤ north ſyde. And thou ſhalte make an hangynge for the dore of the tabernacle of yelowe ſylke, purple, ſcarlet, ⁊ whyte twyned ſylke wrought with nedle worke. And thou ſhalte make for yͤ hanging, fyue pillers of Sethim wood and couer them with golde, and theyr knoppes ſhalbe of golde, and thou ſhalt caſt fyue ſockettes of braſſe for them.

The forme of the alter of the burnt offerynge with his hornes/rynges/ſtaues/gredиernes/ and other ornamentes.

A And thou ſhalte make an * altar of Sethim wood, fyue cubytes long and fyue cubytes brode. For it ſhalbe foure ſquare, and three cubytes hye. And thou ſhalte make it hornes in the foure corners of it, the hornes ſhall be of it ſelfe, ⁊ thou ſhalte couer it wyth braſſe. And make his aſhepaunes, ſhouels, baſẽs, fleſhokes, fyrepãnes, ⁊ al yͤ apparell thereof for the ſame of braſſe. And yͧ ſhalt make vnto it a gredyerne alſo (like a net) of braſſe. And vpõ that net ſhalte thou make foure braſen rynges in the foure corners therof: ⁊ thou ſhalte put it vnder the compaſſe of the altare beneth, that the net may be in yͤ myddes of the altare. And thou ſhalte make (two) barres for yͤ altare of Sethim woode, and couer thẽ with braſſe, and let them be put in rynges along by the ſydes of the altar to beare it wyth all. And make the altar hollowe wyth bordes: euen as it was ſhewed thee in the mount, ſo ſhall they make it.

Eze. 43. d.

B And thou ſhalte make the courte of yͤ habytacyon, that there maye be in the ſouth ſyde hangynges of whyt twined ſylke, of an hundred cubites longe, for one ſyde, ⁊ twentie pyllers therof, with their twentye ſockettes of braſſe: but yͤ knoppes of the pyllers and theyr whopes ſhalbe ſyluer. In lykewyſe on the north ſyde there ſhall be hanginges of an hundred cubytes longe, and .xx. pyllers with theyr .xx. ſockettes of braſſe, and yͤ knoppes and the whopes of ſyluer. And the breadth of yͤ court whiche is eaſtwarde ſhal haue ſyftye cubytes. Hangynges of fyftene cubytes in the one ſyde, and theyr pyllers with theyr three ſockettes: and lykewyſe on the other ſyde ſhall be hangynges of fyftene cubytes with theyr three pyllers and ſockettes.

C And in the gate of the courte ſhal be a vayle of twentye cubytes of yelowe ſylke, purple, and ſkarlet, and whyte twyned ſylke wrought wͭ nedle worke: and foure pyllers with theyr foure ſockettes. All the pyllers rounde aboute the courte ſhalbe whoped with ſyluer, and their knoppes ſhall be of ſyluer, and their ſockettes of braſſe. The length of the courte ſhalbe an hundred cubytes, and the bredth fyftye, and the heygth fyue. And the hangynges ſhall be of whyte twyned ſylke, ⁊ theyr ſoc-kettes of braſſe. All ẏ veſſels of the habitacion in al maner ſeruice ⁊ the pynnes therof: yea, and all the pynnes alſo D of ẏ court, ſhalbe of braſſe. * And thou Leui. 20. a. ſhalt cõmaunde the children of Iſrael, that they giue the pure oyle olyue beaten for the lyght, to powre alwaye into the lampes. In the tabernacle of wytneſſe wythout the vayle whyche is before the wytnes, ſhall Aaron and hys ſõnes dreſſe it both euenyng and mornyng before the LORDE: and it ſhalbe a ſtatute for euer vnto the generaciõs of the chyldren of Iſrael.

¶ The. xxviii. Chapter.

Aarons apparell and his ſonnes.

A AND take thou vnto the Aaron thy brother, and his ſonnes with him, from among the chyldrẽ of Iſrael, that they may myniſter vnto me, Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, Eleaſar, ⁊ Ithamar, Aarõs ſonnes. And thou ſhalt make holy rayment for Aaron thy brother, that they maye be vnto glory and bewtye. And thou ſhalte ſpeake vnto all that are wyſe harted, and whomſoeuer I haue fylled with the ſprete of wyſedome: ẏ they make Aarons rayment to conſecrate hym wͭ, that he may miniſter vnto me. Theſe are the garmentes which they ſhall make: a breſtlap, Ephod, a tunicle, a ſtrayt coate, a myter, and a gyrdell. Theſe holye garmentes ſhall they make for Aaron thy B brother: and his ſonnes, that they may miniſter vnto me. And let them take gold, yelowe ſylke, purple, ſkarlet, and whyte twined ſylke. They ſhal make ẏ Ephod of golde, yelowe ſylke, purple, ſkarlet, and whyte twyned ſylke wyth broydered worke. The two ſydes ſhal come together, and be cloſed vp in the two edges thereof. And the gyrdle of ẏ Ephod ſhalbe of the ſame workemanſhyppe, and of the ſame ſtuffe, euen of golde, yelowe ſilke, purple, ſkarlet and white twyned ſylke. And thou ſhalte take two Onix ſtonnes, and graue in them the names of the chyldren of Iſrael: ſyxe names of thẽ in the one ſtone, and the other ſyxe in the other ſtone: accordyng to (the order of) theyr byrth.
After the worke of a ſtone grauer, and of hym that graueth ſygnettes ſhalte thou graue the two ſtones wyth ẏ names of the children of Iſrael, and ſhalt make them to be ſet in golde. And thou ſhalte put the two ſtones vpon the two ſhoulders of the Ephod, that they may be ſtones of remembraunce vnto the children of Iſraell. And Aaron ſhall beare their names before the LORDE vpon his two ſhoulders, for a remembraunce.
And thou ſhalt make hokes of C gold, ⁊ two cheines of fine golde, lynkworke and wrethed, and faſten ẏ wrethed cheynes to the hokes. And thou ſhalt make the breſtlap of iudgemente with broydered worke, euen after the worke of the Ephod ſhalte thou make it: namely of golde, yelow ſylke, purple ſkarlet, and white twyned ſylke, ſhalte thou make it. Fourſquare it ſhalbe ⁊ double, an hande breade longe and an hande breade brode. And thou ſhalt fyl it wͭ foure rowes of ſtones. In the firſt rowe ſhalbe a Sardios, a Topas and Smaragdus: in ẏ ſeconde rowe, a Ruby, Saphir, and Diamonde: in ẏ thirde Ligurios, an Achat, and Amatiſt: in ẏ fourth, a Turcas, Onix, and Iaſpis.
And they ſhalbe ſet in golde in their incloſers.
And the ſtones ſhalbe grauen Eccl. 4 as ſygnettes be grauen wͭ the names of the chyldren of Iſraell, euen with D twelue names, euerye one wͭ his name accordyng to the twelue trybes. And thou ſhalt ~~make~~ vpon the breſtlap, two faſtenyng cheynes of pure golde, and wrethen worke. And thou ſhalt make lykewiſe vpon the breſtlap two ringes of golde: and put them on the edges of the breſtlap, and put the two wrethen cheynes of gold in the. ii. ringes which are in the edges of the breſtlappe. And the other two endes of the two cheynes, thou ſhalt faſten in two cloſe hokes, and put them vpon the ſhoulders of the Ephod on the foreſyde of it. And thou ſhalte yet make two rynges of golde, whiche thou mayſt put in ẏ two edges of ẏ breſtlap, euen in the borders therof, towarde ẏ inſyde of the Ephod ouer againſt it. And yet two other ringes of golde thou ſhalte make and put them on the two ſydes of the Ephod, beneth ouer againſt the breſtlap, alowe where the ſydes are ioyned together E vpon ẏ broydered gyrdle of ẏ Ephod.
And they ſhal bynd the breſtlap by hys ringes vnto ẏ ringes of the Ephod, wͭ a lace of yelowe ſylke, ẏ it maye lye cloſe aboue ẏ broidered gyrdell of ẏ Ephod, and that the breſtlappe be not loſed frõ the

the Ephod. And Aaron ſhall beare the names of the children of Iſraell in the breſtlap of Judgement vpon his herte, when he goeth into the holy place,for a remembraunce before the LORDE alwaye.
And thou ſhalte put in the breſtlap C of iudgement Urim & Thumin:and they ſhall be euen vpon Aarons herte, when he goeth in before the LORDE:& Aaron ſhal beare the iudgement of the children of Iſraell vpon hys herte before the LORD alway. And thou ſhalte F make the tunycle vnto the Ephod altogether of yelowe ſylke. And there ſhalbe an hole for the heade in the myds of it hauynge a bonde of wouen worke round about the coller of it(as it were the coller of a partlet)that it rent not.
And beneth vpon the hem, thou ſhalte make pomgranates of yelow ſilke and of purple and ſkarlet, rounde aboute yͤ hem, and belles of gold betwene them rounde aboute: and let there be euer a golden bel and a pomgranate, a goldẽ bel and a pomgranate, rounde aboute vpon the hem of the tunycle.

Eccl.45.b *And Aaron ſhal haue it vpon him, when he miniſtreth, and the ſound ſhal D be hearde, when he goeth into the holy place before the LORDE, and when he commeth out, and he ſhall not dye. And thou ſhalt make a plate of pure golde, and graue thereon, as ſygnettes are grauen, The holyneſſe of the LORDE, and put it on a yelowe ſylke lace to be G vpon the mytre, euen vpon yͤ fore frõte of it. And it ſhalbe vpon Aarons foreheade: that Aaron maye beare yͤ ſigne of the holy thynges whiche the childrẽ of Iſrael halowe in all their holy giftes.
And it ſhalbe alwayes vpon hys forehead, for the reconcilyng of thẽ before the LORDE. And thou ſhalt make a lynnen cote, and thou ſhalte make a mytre of lynnen and a gyrdel of nedle worke. And thou ſhalte make for Aarons ſonnes alſo cotes, gyrdels, and bonettes, glorious and bewtyfull, and thou ſhalte put them vpon Aaron thy brother, and on his ſonnes with him:& E ſhalt annoynt them, and fyl their handes, and ſanctifye them, that they may miniſtre vnto me. And thou ſhalt make them lynnẽ breches to couer their preuityes from the loynes vnto the thyes ſhal they reache. And they ſhalbe vpon Aaron and his ſonnes when they come into the*tabernacle of wytnes, or whẽ Exod.27.a they come vnto the altar to miniſter in holyneſſe, that they beare no ſinne, and ſo dye. And it ſhalbe a lawe for euer vnto Aaron and his ſede after hym.

The.xxix.Chapter.

The conſecracyon of Aaron and of his ſonnes.

THis thing alſo ſhalt thou do vnto A thẽ whẽ thou*haloweſt them Leui.8.b to be my preſtes. Thou ſhalte take a calfe, euen a yonge oxe, and two rammes that are withoute blemyſhe, and vnleuened breade & cakes of ſwete bread tempored with oyle, and wafers of ſwete breade anoynted with oyle(of wheten ſlower ſhalt thou make them) and put them in a maunde, and brynge them in the maunde with the calfe and the two rammes. And bryng Aaron & his ſonnes vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes, and waſhe them with water, and take the garmentes, & put vpon Aaron: the ſtrayte cote the tunycle of the Ephod, and the Ephod, and yͤ breſtlap: and gyrde them to hym wyth the broydered gyrdel whiche is in the Ephod. And put the mytre vpon hys heade:& put the holye crowne vpon the mytre. Then ſhalte thou take the anoyntyng oyle, and powre it vpon hys heade, and anoynte him. And bryng his B ſonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrde them with gyrdels aſwell Aarõ as his ſonnes. And put the myters on them, and the prieſtes offyce ſhalbe theyrs for a perpetual lawe. And thou ſhalt fyl yͤ handes of Aaron and of hys ſonnes: and brynge the calfe before the tabernacle of wytnes. *And Aaron & Leui.1.b his ſonnes ſhal put theyr handes vpon the head of the calfe, and thou ſhalt kyl him before the LORD, by the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And take of the bloud of the calfe & put it vpon the hornes of the altar with thy fynger: and powre all the bloud beſyde the bottõ of the alter, and take al the fatte that couered the inwardes, and the kall that is on the lyuer, and the two kydneys, & the fat that is vpõ them and burne thẽ vpon the altar. But the fleſhe of the calfe and his ſkynne, & hys donge ſhalt thou burne wͭ fyer without the hooſt.
It is a ſynne offeryng. Thou ſhalte alſo C take one ramme, and Aaron and his ſonnes ſhal put theyr handes vpon the head of the ramme, & when thou haſte ſlayne the ramme, thou ſhalte take his bloud, and ſprinkle it round about vpon the altar, and cut the ramme in peces, and waſhe the inwardes of hym ⁊ hys legges, and put them vnto the peces and vnto his head: and then burne the whole ramme vpon the altar for a burnt offring vnto the LORDE, and for a ſwete ſauour and a ſacrifice vnto the LORDE.

Leuit.8.b.

*And take the other ramme, ⁊ Aarõ and his ſonnes ſhall put their handes vpon his heade. Then ſhalte thou kyll hym, and take of his bloude and put it vpon the typ of the ryght eare of Aarõ and of his ſonnes, and vpõ the thumbe of their right hãdes, and vpon ẏ greate too of theyr ryght fote, and ſprinkle the bloude vpon the altar rounde aboute.

And thou ſhalte take of the bloude that is vpon the altar, and of the anointing oyle, and ſprynkle it vpon Aaron and his veſtimentes, and vpon hys ſonnes, and vpon their garmentes with hym. And he ſhalbe halowed, ⁊ hys clothes, and his ſonnes, and their clothes with hym.

*And thou ſhalte take the fat of ẏ ramme and his rompe, and the fat that couereth the inwardes, and the kall of the lyuer, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is vpon them, and the ryghte ſhoulder: for that ramme is a full offerynge: and a ſymnel of breade, ⁊ a cake of oyle bread, and a wafer out of ẏ baſkette of ſwete breade that is before the LORDE, and put all vpon the handes of Aaron, ⁊ on ẏ handes of his ſonnes: and waue them for a waue offerynge before the LORDE. And againe, thou ſhalte take it from of theyr handes, and burne it vpon the altar for a burnt offering, to be a ſauour of ſwetnes before the LORDE. For it is a ſacrifyce vnto the LORDE.

*And thou ſhalte take the breſt of the ram of Aarons conſecracion, ⁊ waue it for a waue offerynge before ẏ LORDE: and it ſhal be thy part. And thou ſhalt ſanctifie the breſt of the waue offeryng: ⁊ ẏ ſhoulder of ẏ heueofferynge, whiche is waued and heued vp of the ramme of the cõſecratyon for Aaron and for hys ſonnes. And it ſhalbe Aarons and his ſonnes by a ſtatute for euer, of the children of Iſrael: for it is an heue offerynge : Euen an heue offeryng of the children of Iſraell, and of their peaceofferynges. Their heueofferynges is the LORDES. And the holy garmentes of Aaron ſhalbe hys ſonnes after hym, to be anoynted therin: and to fyll their handes therin. And that ſonne that is Prieſt in his ſtede after hym, ſhal put thẽ on .vii. dayes whẽ he cõmeth into the tabernacle of wytnes, to miniſtre in the holy place.

Leuit.

*And thou ſhalte take the ram of the conſecracyon, and ſeth his fleſhe in an holye place. And Aaron and his ſonnes ſhall eate the fleſhe of the ram, and ẏ breade that is in the baſket, euẽ by the dore of the tabernacle of witnes: and they ſhal eate them, becauſe ẏ attonement was made therwith, to fyll theyr hãdes, and to conſecrate thẽ: but a ſtraunger ſhall not eate therof, becauſe they are holy.

And yf ought of the fleſhe of the conſecracion, or of the breade remayne vnto the mornyng, thou ſhalt burne it with fyre, ⁊ it ſhall not be eaten, becauſe it is holy. Therfore ſhalt thou do vnto Aaron and his ſonnes, euen ſo, according to all thynges whiche I haue cõmaũded the, ſeuen dayes ſhalt thou fil their handes, ⁊ offer euery daye a calfe for a ſynne offeryng, for to reconcyle withal: that thou maieſt clenſe the altar when thou reconcileſt vpon it: and thou ſhalt anoynte it, to ſanctifye it. Seuen daies thou ſhalt reconcyle vpon the altar, ⁊ ſanctifie it, and it ſhall be as an altare moſt holy. Euery one that toucheth the altar, let him be holy.

*This is ẏ which thou ſhalt offer vpon the altare : euen two lambes of one yere olde, daye by daye contynually: the one thou ſhalte offre in ẏ mornyng, ⁊ the other at euẽ. And wyth ẏ one lambe a tenthe deale of floure, mingled with ẏ fourth parte of an hyn of beten oyle, and the fourth part of an hyn of wine, for a drynke offryng. And the other lambe thou ſhalt offer at euen, and ſhalte do thereto according to the meate offering ⁊ drinke offering in ẏ mornyng, to be an odoure of a ſwete ſauoure and a ſacrifyce vnto the LORDE. And let this be a cõtynual burnt offrynge amonge youre children after you before the doore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe, before the LORDE, where I wyll *mete you, to ſpeake there vnto thee.

C And all the company of the children of Iſrael departed from the preſence of Moſes. And euery one came (as many as their hertes coraged them, and as many as their ſprites made them wyllyng) ⁊ brought a preſent for yͤ LORD, to the makynge of yͤ tabernacle of witneſſe, and for al his vſes, and for yͤ holy veſtimentes. And they came both men and wemen (euen as many as wer wyllynge herted) and brought bracelettes, ⁊ earynges, rynges, ⁊ chaynes, whiche iewels were all of golde: and all yͤ men brought a waue offerynge of gold vnto the LORDE. And euery man wͭ whom was foūde yelow ſylke, purple, ſkarlet, whyte ſylke, ⁊ goates heare, ⁊ red ſkinnes of rammes, ⁊ taxus ſkins, brought thē: All yͤ dyd heaue vp an oblacion of golde ⁊ braſſe, ⁊ brought an heue offrig vnto yͤ LORD. And al men wͭ whō was founde Sethim woode for any maner worke of yͤ miniſtracion, brought it.

And all the wemen yͤ were wyſe herted, D dyd ſpynne with their handes: and brought the ſpunworke both of yelowe ſylke, purple, ſkarlet, and whyte ſylke. And all the wemen whome their owne heart herte moued, ſpanne goates heare wyſely. And the LORDES brought onix ſtones, and ſtones to be ſet in yͤ Ephod, and in the breſtlap, and ſpyce, and oyle for lyght, and for the anoyntynge oyle, and for the ſwete cenſe. And the childrē of Iſrael brought a wyllynge offeringe vnto the LORD both men and wemen, as many as had wyllynge hertes to bryng, for all maner of workes whiche the LORD had cōmaunded to be made, by the handes of Moſes.

And Moſes ſayde vnto the children Ex.31.a. of Iſraell: beholde, *the LORDE hath called by name Bezaleel yͤ ſonne of Vri the ſon of Hur of yͤ trybe of Iuda, and hath fylled him with yͤ ſprete of GOD, in wyſedome and vnderſtandynge, in knowledge, and in all maner worke, to fynde out curious workes whiche are made in golde, ſyluer, and braſſe. In the crafte of ſtones to ſet thē, ⁊ in caruinge of woode to make any maner of ſotle worke. And he hath put in his hart that he maye teache: bothe he and Aholiab the ſonne of Ahiſamach of the trybe of Dan. Them hath he fylled with wyſedome of herte, to worke all maner of grauen, and ſotle, ⁊ nedle worke in yelowe ſylke, and purple, in ſcarlet, and whyte ſylke, and in weuynge. And to do all maner of worke and ſotle feates.

The .xxxvi. Chapter.

The thinges that Bezaleel and Aholiab made.

AND Bezaleel wrought, and Aholiab ⁊ al wyſe herted men, to whome the LORD gaue wyſdom and vnderſtandynge, to knowe how to worke all maner worke for the ſeruyce of the ſanctuary, and all that the LORDE had commaunded. And Moſes called Bezaleel, Aholiab and all the wyſe herted men, and ſuche as the LORDE had geuen wyſdome vnto, ⁊ as many as their hertes couraged to come vnto yͤ worke to worke it. And they receaued of Moſes all the preſent, whiche the children of Iſrael had brought for the worke of the ſeruice of the ſanctuary, to make it. And beſyde that they broughte gyftes vnto it euery daye in the mornynge.

And all the wyſe men that wroughte al yͤ holy worke, came euery mā frō his worke whiche they made, ⁊ ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: yͤ people bryng to much and more then ynough, for the ſeruice ⁊ worke which yͤ LORDE hath cōmaūded to be made. And then Moſes gaue a commaundement, and they cauſed it to be proclamed thorowout the hooſt, ſayinge: ſe that neyther man nor womā prepare any more worke for the preſēt of the ſanctuarye: and ſo yͤ people were forbydden to brynge: for the ſtuffe they had was ſufficient for all the worke, to make it, and to muche. *All yͤ wyſe her- Exo.26.a B ted men therfore, and they yͤ wroughte for the habitacion, made ten curtaynes of white twined ſylke, yelowe ſylke, purple and ſcarlet: wͭ pictures of brodred worke made he thē. The length of one curtayne was .xxviii. cubytes, and the bredth foure, ⁊ the curtaynes were al of one ſyſe. And he coupled fyue curtaynes by them ſelues, ⁊ other fyue by thē ſelues. And he made lowpes of yelowe ſilke along by yͤ edge of one curtaine, euē in yͤ ſeluage of yͤ couplig curtayne. And lykewyſe he made on yͤ ſyde of yͤ coupling courtaine on yͤ other ſide. Fyfty lowpes made he in the one curtayne, and fyfty in the edge of the couplynge curtayne on the other ſyde: and the lowpes helde one curtayne to another. And he made fifty ringes of gold, and coupled the curtaynes one to another with the rynges: ⁊ ſo was it made one dwellynge place.

*And he made eleuen curtaynes of goates heare, to be a tent ouer yͤ tabernacle. Exo.31.a. The length of a curtaine, had thirty cubytes and was four cubytes brode, and they all eleuen of one ſyſe. And he coupled fyue curtaynes by thē ſelues, and ſyxe by them ſelues, and he made fyftye lowpes alonge by the border of yͤ vtmoſt coupling curtaine, and fyftie in the edge of the other coupling curtain. (That they might be ioyned together.) And he made fyfty rynges of braſſe to couple yͤ tent together, that it might be one. And he made a coueryng vpon the tent of rams ſkynnes red, and yet another of taxus ſkynnes aboue that.

*And he made ſtandynge bordes (for Exo.26.a. the tabernacle) of Sethim woode. The length of a borde was ten cubytes, the bredth one cubite ⁊ an halfe. One bord had .ii. fete, wherby thei wer ioyned one to another. And thus made he for al yͤ bordes of yͤ tabernacle. And he made twenty bordes for the southe ſyde of the habitacion, and fortye ſockets of ſyluer vnder the twentye bordes, two ſockettes vnder one boꝛde, foꝛ his two fete, and two ſockettes vnder another boꝛde foꝛ his two fete (where the ſockets of the ſydes end in the corners) And foꝛ yͤ other ſyde of yͤ dwellinge whiche is towarde yͤ noꝛthe, he made twentye boꝛdes, and their fourty ſockettes of ſiluer two ſockettes vnder one boꝛde, ⁊ two ſockettes vnder yͤ other. And towarde the weſt ende of the tabernacle. (That is to ſaye/at that ende of the tabernacle whiche enclineth towarde the ſea.) he made ſyxe boꝛdes, and two other boꝛdes made he in yͤ coꝛners of the habitacion, foꝛ eyther ſyde, and they were ioyned cloſe beneth and aboue with a clampe, ⁊ thus they dyd to bothe the coꝛners. And there were eyght boꝛdes ⁊ ſyxtene ſockettes of ſiluer: vnder euery boꝛde two ſockettes.

D And he made barres of Sethim woode, fyue foꝛ the boꝛdes of the tabernacle in the one ſyde: ⁊ fyue foꝛ the boꝛdes of yͤ tabernacle in yͤ other ſyde: and fyue barres foꝛ the boꝛdes of yͤ habitació in yͤ weſt ende (Towarde the ſea.) And he made the mydde barre to ſhote thoꝛowe the boꝛdes: euen from the one ende to the other, and ouerlayde yͤ boꝛdes with golde, and made rynges of golde to thꝛuſte the barres thoꝛowe, ⁊ couered yͤ barres with golde. And he made an hangyng of yelowe ſylke, purple, ſkarlet, ⁊ whyte twyned ſilke, euen with pictures made he it of bꝛodꝛed woꝛke. And made therunto foure pillers of Sethim wood, and ouerlayde them with golde. Their knoppes were alſo of golde, and he caſt foꝛ them four ſockets of ſyluer. And he made an hangynge foꝛ the Tabernacle doꝛe: of yelowe ſilke, purple, ſkarlet, and wͭ white twyned ſylke of nedle woꝛke. And the fyue pyllers of it with their knoppes, ⁊ ouerlayde the knoppes of them and the whopes wͭ golde. Their fyue ſocketes alſo were of bꝛaſſe.

The arke of witnes. The mercy ſeate. The table. The candelſticke. The lyghtes The altare and the incenſe

A Exo. 25. c

AND Bezaleel made yͤ *arke of Sethim wood, two cubites ⁊ an halfe long, and a cubyte ⁊ a halfe bꝛode, and a cubite and a halfe hye: and ouerlayde it with fyne golde within ⁊ without, and made a crowne of golde to it rounde aboute, and caſte foꝛ it four ringes of golde foꝛ the foure coꝛners of it two rynges foꝛ the one ſyde, and two foꝛ yͤ other, ⁊ made barres of Sethim wood, ⁊ couered thē with gold, ⁊ put yͤ barres in the rynges along by the ſyde of the arke, to beare it withall.

And he made yͤ mercy ſeat. (That is to ſay/Goddes anſweryinge place) of pure gold: two cubytes ⁊ a halfe was the length therof, ⁊ one cubyte and a halfe the bꝛeadth: and he made two Cherubyns of thicke golde vpon the two endes of the mercy ſeate. One Cherub on the one ende, and another Cherub on the other ende.

B Euen of the mercy ſeate made he the Cherubins: namely, in yͤ endes therof. And yͤ Cherubins ſpꝛed out their wynges aboue an hye, ⁊ couered the mercy ſeate therwith. And their faces were one to another: euē to the mercye ſeate warde, were yͤ faces of the Cherubyns. *And he made yͤ table of Sethim wod, two cubites was the length therof, ⁊ a cubite yͤ bꝛedth, ⁊ a cubite and a halfe yͤ heigth of it. And he ouerlayde it with fine golde, ⁊ made therto a crowne of golde rounde about, ⁊ made therto an whope of an hāde bꝛead, roūde about, ⁊ made vpō yͤ whope a crowne of gold rounde about, and caſt foꝛ it foure ringes of golde, ⁊ put yͤ rynges in yͤ foure coꝛners yͭ wer in yͤ four fete therof. Euen hard by yͤ whope wer yͤ ringes, into yͤ which the barres wer put, to beare the table withal. And he made yͤ barres of Sethim woode, ⁊ couered thē with golde to beare the table withall, and made the veſſels (foꝛ the table) of pure golde: the dyſſhes, ſpones, ſtat peces, ⁊ pottes to powꝛe withal. *And he made the candelſtycke of pure golde: euen of one pece made he the candelſticke. Foꝛ his fote, his ſhafte, his cuppes, his knoppes, ⁊ his ſloures, wer of one pece. Syxe bꝛaūches pꝛoceadyng out of the ſydes therof, thꝛe out of the one ſyde, ⁊ thꝛe out of yͤ other. And in one bꝛaūche thꝛe cuppes made lyke vnto almondes with knoppes ⁊ ſloures: and in another bꝛaunche thꝛe cups made lyke almondes with knoppes and ſloures.

knoppes ⁊ the braunches proceded out of it, ⁊ it was all one pece of pure thicke golde. And he made his ſeuen lampes with the tonges and ſnoffers therof, of pure golde: Euē of an hūdred weyght of pure golde, made he it, with all the veſſels therof . And he made the cens D aultar of Sethim wood. The length of it was a cubyte, and yͤ bredth a cubite, for it was foure ſquare, and two cubites hye, with hornes proceading out of it. And he couered it wᵗ pure gold, both the toppe and the ſydes therof rounde about, and the hornes of it, and made B vnto it a crowne of golde roūde about.
And he made two rynges of golde for it, euen vnder the crowne therof in the two corners of it and in the two ſydes therof to put bars in, for to beare it withall: and made yͤ barres of Sethim wood, and ouerlayde them with golde.
And he made the holy anoyntyng oyle, and the ſwete pure incens after the apotecaries crafte.

¶ The.xxxviii. Chapter.

¶ The aultar of burnt offerynges. The braſen lauer. The ſumme of that the people offered.

A AND he made the burnt offeringe Exo.27.a. aultar* of Sethim wood, fyue cubytes was the length therof, and fiue cubytes yͤ bredth: euen.iiii. ſquare, and.iii. cubytes hye. And he made vnto it hornes in the foure corners of it procedyng out of it, and he ouerlayde it wᵗ C braſſe. And he made all the veſſels of yͤ aultar: the cauldrons, ſhouels, baſyns, fleſhokes, and cole pannes. All the veſſels therof made he of braſſe. And he made a braſen gredyren of networke vnto the altar, rounde about, a low beneth vnto the myds of the aultar, ⁊ caſt foure rynges of braſſe for the foure endes of the grediren to put barres in.
And he made the barres of Sethim wood, and couered them with braſſe, ⁊ put the barres into yͤ rynges in yͤ foure corners of the aultar, to beare it withal, and made the aultar holowe within the bordes. And he made the lauer of braſſe, and the fote of it alſo of braſſe, in D the ſyght of them that dyd watche at yͤ dore of the tabernacle of witneſſe. And he made yͤ courte on the ſouthe ſyde, ⁊ yͤ hanginges of yͤ courte were of white twined ſilke, hauig an hūdred cubites.
Their pyllers were twenty, and theyr braſen ſockettes twenty. But yͤ knoppes of the pyllers, ⁊ their whopes wer of ſyluer. And on the northe ſyde: the hangynges were an hundred cubites.
Their pillers were twenty, ⁊ their ſockettes of braſſe twenty. But yͤ knoppes ⁊ yͤ whopes of yͤ pyllers were of ſiluer.
On the weſt ſyde, were hangynges of fyfty cubytes, ten pyllers and their ten ſockettes (Of braſſe.) But the knoppes and the whopes of the pyllers were of ſiluer. And towarde the eaſt ſyde, were hangynges of fyftye cubites: the hangynges of the one ſyde of the gate, were fyftene cubites long, with thre pyllers, and thre ſockettes. And of yͤ other ſyde of the courte gate were hangynges alſo of fyftene cubytes longe, with three pyllers and thre ſockettes.
C All the hangynges of yͤ courte roūde about were of whyte twyned ſylke: but the ſockettes of yͤ pyllers wer of braſſe: and the knoppes, and yͤ whopes of the pyllers were of ſyluer, ⁊ the couueringe of the heades was of ſyluer, and all the pyllers of the courte were whoped about with ſyluer. And the hanging of yͤ gate of the court was nedle worke, of yelowe ſylke, purple, ſcarlet and whyte twined ſylke.xx. cubytes long, and fiue in the bredth, ouer againſt yͤ hanginges of the courte . And their pyllers were foure, ⁊ their foure ſockettes of braſſe: and the knoppes of ſyluer, and the heades ouerlayde with ſiluer, and whoped about with ſyluer, and al the pynnes of the tabernacle and of the court rounde aboute, were of braſſe. This is the ſum of the habitacion of witnes, as it was counted accordyng to the commaundement of Moſes for the office of the Leuites by the hand of Ithamar ſonne to Aaron yͤ preaſt. And Bezaleel yͤ ſonne of Vri the ſonne of Hur of the trybe of Iuda, made all that yͤ LORDE cōmaūded Moſes, and with him was Aholiab ſonne of Ahiſamach of yͤ trybe of Dan, a cunninge grauer and a worker of nedle worke in yelowe ſylke, purple, ſcarlet, D and white twyned ſylke. All yͤ golde that was occupied for all the worke of the holy place was the golde of yͤ waue offringe, euen.xxix. hundred weyght, ⁊ ſeuen hundred and.xxx. ſycles, accordig to the ſyckle of the Sanctuarye . And the ſumme of ſyluer yͤ came of yͤ multitude, was fyue ſcore hundred weyght,

For euery man an halfe weyght, euen halfe a ſycle after the ſycle of the Sāctuarye, for al them that went to be nōbred from .xx. yere olde and aboue, euen for ſyxe hundred thouſande and three thouſande and fyue hūdred and .l. men.

And of the fyue ſcore hundred weyght of ſyluer, wer caſt yͤ ſockets of yͤ ſanctuarye, and the ſockets of yͤ vayle, an hundred ſockets of the fyue ſkore hundred weyght, an hundred weyght to euery ſocket. And of the thouſande ſeuē hundred and .lxx. ſycles, he made knoppes to the pyllers, & ouerlayde yͤ heades, and whoped them (with ſyluer.) And the braſſe of the waue offring was .lxx. hundred weyght, and two thouſande, & iiii. hundred ſycles . And therwith he made the ſockettes to the dore of the tabernacle of witneſſe, and the braſen aultare, and the braſen gredyren for it, with all the veſſels of the aultar, and the ſockets of the court rounde about, and the ſockets for the court gate, and all the pinnes of the habitacion, & al the pyns of the court rounde about.

A AND of yͤ yelowe ſylke, purple, and ſcarlet, they made the veſtimentes of miniſtracion to do ſeruyce in yͤ holy place, and made the holy garmentes for Aaron, as the LORDE cōmaunded Moſes. And he made the Ephod of golde, yelowe ſylke, purple, ſkarlet, & whyte twined ſilke. And they dyd beate the golde into thynne plates, and cut it into wyers: to worke it in the yelowe ſylke, purple, ſcarlet, & in yͤ fyne white, with broydred worke. And they made two ſydes for it, to cloſe them vp by the two edges. And yͤ broydryng of yͤ gyrdel yͤ was vpon it, was of yͤ ſame ſtuffe, and after yͤ ſame worke: of gold yelow ſylke, purple, ſcarlet, & twyned whyte ſylke, as yͤ LORD cōmaūded Moſes.

B And they wrought Onix ſtones, cloſed in ouches of golde, and graued as ſygnettes are grauen with the names of yͤ children of Iſrael, and put them on the ſholders of the Ephod, that they ſhulde be ſtones for a remembraunce of yͤ children of Iſrael, as the LORDE cōmaūded Moſes. And he made yͤ breſtlap of conning worke, and lyke the worke of yͤ Ephod: euē of golde, yelowe ſylke, purple, ſcarlet, and twined whyte ſylke. It was foure ſquare, and they made the breſtlappe double, an hāde breadth lōg, and an hande bredth broade.

C And they fylled it with foure rowes of ſtones. The firſt rowe, a Sardios, a Topas and Smaragdus: the ſeconde rowe, a Rubye, a Saphir and a Dyamonde: in the thirde rowe, Ligurios, an Achat, and an Amatiſt: in the fourth row, a turcas, an Onix, and a Iaſpis. And they were cloſed in ouches of gold in their incloſers. And the twelue ſtones were grauen as ſygnets with the names of the children of Iſraell: euery ſtone with his name, accordinge to the twelue trybes. And they made vpō the breſtlap, two faſtening cheynes of wrethē worke, & pure gold. And they made two hokes of golde, & two golde rynges: & put the two rynges in the two corners of the breſtlappe. And they put yͤ two cheynes of golde in the two ringes, in the corners of the breſtlappe.

D And the two endes of the two cheynes they faſtened in the two hokes, and put them on yͤ ſholders of yͤ Ephod vpon the fore fronte of it. And they made two rynges of golde, and putte thē on the two corners of the breſtlappe vpon the edge of it, whiche was on the inſyde by the Ephod. And they made two goldē rynges, & put them on the two ſydes of the Ephod, beneth on yͤ foreſyde of it, & ouer agaiſt his felow aboue vpon the broydring of yͤ Ephod, & they ſtrained yͤ breſtlappe by his rynges vnto yͤ ringes of yͤ Ephod, with a lace of yelow ſilke, that it might be vpon the broyderynge of the Ephod, and yͤ the breſtlap ſhould not be leuſed from of the Ephod: as the LORDE commaunded Moſes. E And he made the tunycle vnto the Ephod of wouē worke, altogether of yelow ſilke and there was an hole in yͤ myddeſt of the tunicle, as the coler of a partlet, wͭ a bonde rounde aboute the coler, that it ſhulde not rent.

And in the tunycle they made hemmes wͭ pomgranates, of yelow ſylke, purple ſcarlet, and whyte twyned ſylke. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, & put them amonge the pomgranates rounde about vpon the edge of the tunycle: a bell and a pomgranate, a bell and a pomgranate rounde aboute the hemmes of the tunycle to miniſter in, as the LORDE commaunded Moſes. And they made cotes of fyne whyte of wouen worke for Aaron and his ſons, and a mytre of fyne white, and goodly bonettes of fyne whyte, and lynen breches of twyned whyte, and a gyrdell of twyned whyte, yelowe ſylke, purple ⁊ ſcarlet: euen of nedle worke, as the LORDE cōmaunded Moſes. And they made the plate for the holye crowne of fyne golde, and wrote vpō it with grauen worke, the holines of the LORDE: and tyed vnto it a lace of yelowe ſylke to faſten it an hye vpon the mytre, as ẏ LORDE commaunded Moſes.

F Thus was all the worke of the habitacion and of the Tabernacle of witneſſe fyniſhed. And the chyldren of Iſrael dyd accordyng to all that ẏ LORD had commaunded Moſes: euen ſo dyd they. And they brought the habitacion vnto Moſes: the tente and all his apparel, buttons, bordes, barres, pyllers, and ſockets, the coueryng of rammes ſkynnes redde, and the couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, and the hanging vaile, the arke of witneſſe and ẏ barres therof, and the mercy ſeate: the table, and al the veſſelles therof, ⁊ the ſhewe bread: the pure candelſticke, with the lampes therof: euen with the lampes to be prepared, and all the veſſelles therof, and the oyle for lyght: the golden altar and the annoyntynge oyle, and the ſwete cens, and the hanging of the Tabernacle dore, and the braſen altar wyth his G gredyren of braſſe, hys barres and all his veſſels, the lauer and hys fote: the hangynges of the courte with his pyllers and ſockettes: the hangyng to the courte gate, and his pynnes ⁊ coardes, and all the veſſell of the ſeruyce of the habytacion for the Tabernacle of witneſſe: the myniſtrynge veſtimentes to ſerue in the holy place, and ẏ holy veſtimentes for Aaron the Prieſte, and hys ſonnes raymētes to miniſter in: accordyng to all that the LORDE commaūded Moſes: euen ſo the children of Iſraell made all the worke. And Moſes behelde all the worke, and ſee: they had done it euen as the LORDE commaunded: euen ſo had they done, and Moſes bleſſed them.

The tabernacle is reared vp. The glorye of the Lorde appeareth in a cloude, couerynge the tabernacle.

A AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge. In the fyrſt daye of ẏ fyrſte moneth, ſhalte thou ſet vp the habitacion and the Tabernacle of wytnes, and put therin ẏ Arke of wytnes, and couer the arke with the vaile, and brynge in the table, and apparel it accordyng to ẏ order therof. And thou ſhalte brynge in the candelſtycke, and lyght his lampes, and ſet the cenſe altar of gold before the Arke of witnes, and put the hangyng at the dore of the habitacion.

And ſet the burnt offeryng altar before the dore of the habitacion, and Tabernacle of wytneſſe, and ſet the lauer betwene the Tabernacle of wytnes ⁊ the altare, and put water therein, and make the courte rounde aboute, and hange vp the hangynge at the courte gate. *And thou ſhalt take the anoyntyng oyle, and anoynte the habitacion, and all that is therin, and halowe it wͭ all the veſſelles thereof, that it maye be holy. And thou ſhalt anoynte the altar of burnt offeryng, and all his veſſels, and ſanctifie the altar, that it maye be an altar moſt holy. Exod.30.a B

C Thus was the Tabernacle reared vp the fyrſte day in the fyrſt moneth in the ſecond yere. And Moſes reared vp the tabernacle and faſtened his ſockettes, and ſet vp the bordes therof, and put in the barres of it, and reared vp his pyllers, and ſpreade abrode the tent ouer the habitacion, and put the couerynge of the tent an hye aboue it: as ẏ LORD

For euery man an halfe weyght, euen halfe a ſycle after the ſycle of the Sāctuarye, for al them that went to be nōbred from.xx.yere olde and aboue, euen for ſyxe hundred thouſande and three thouſande and fyue hūdred and.l.men.

And of the fyue ſcore hundred weyght of ſyluer, wer caſt yͤ ſockets of yͤ ſanctuarye, and the ſockets of yͤ vayle, an hundred ſockets of the fyue ſkore hundred weyght, an hundred weyght to euery ſocket. And of the thouſande ſeuē hundred and.lxx.ſycles, he made knoppes to the pyllers, ⁊ ouerlayde yͤ heades, and whoped them (with ſyluer.) And the braſſe of the waue offring was.lxx. hundred weyght, and two thouſande, ⁊ iiii.hundred ſycles. And therwith he made the ſockettes to the dore of the tabernacle of witneſſe, and the braſen aultare, and the braſen gredyren for it, with all the veſſels of the aultar, and the ſockets of the court rounde about, and the ſockets for the court gate, and all the pinnes of the habitacion, ⁊ al the pyns of the court rounde about.

A And of yͤ yelowe ſylke, purple, and ſcarlet, they made the veſtimentes of miniſtracion to do ſeruyce in yͤ holy place, and made the holy garmentes for Aaron, as the LORDE cōmaunded Moſes. And he made the Ephod of golde, yelowe ſylke, purple, ſkarlet, ⁊ whyte twined ſilke. And they dyd beate the golde into thynne plates, and cut it into wyers: to worke it in the yelowe ſylke, purple, ſcarlet, ⁊ in yͤ fyne white, with broydred worke. And they made two ſydes for it, to cloſe them vp by the two edges. And yͤ broydryng of yͤ gyrdel yͤ was vpon it, was of yͤ ſame ſtuffe, and after yͤ ſame worke: of gold yelow ſylke, purple, ſcarlet, ⁊ twyned whyte ſylke, as yͤ LORD cōmaūded Moſes.

B And they wrought Onix ſtones, cloſed in ouches of golde, and graued as ſygnettes are grauen with the names of yͤ children of Iſrael, and put them on the ſholders of the Ephod, that they ſhulde be ſtones for a remembraunce of yͤ children of Iſrael, as the LORDE cōmaūded Moſes. And he made yͤ breſtlap of conning worke, and lyke the worke of yͤ Ephod: euē of golde, yelowe ſylke, purple, ſcarlet, and twined whyte ſylke. It was foure ſquare, and they made the breſtlappe double, an hāde breadth lōg, and an hande bredth broade.

C And they fylled it with foure rowes of ſtones. The firſt rowe, a Sardios, a Topas and Smaragdus: the ſeconde rowe, a Rubye, a Saphir and a Dyamonde: in the thirde rowe, Ligurios, an Achat, and an Amatiſt: in the fourth row, a turcas, an Onix, and a Iaſpis. And they were cloſed in ouches of gold in their incloſers. And the twelue ſtones were grauen as ſygnets with the names of the children of Iſraell: euery ſtone with his name, accordinge to the twelue trybes. And they made vpō the breſtlap, two faſtening cheynes of wrethē worke, ⁊ pure gold. And they made two hokes of golde, ⁊ two golde rynges: ⁊ put the two rynges in the two corners of the breſtlappe. And they put yͤ two cheynes of golde in the two ringes, in the corners of the breſtlappe.

D And the two endes of the two cheynes they faſtened in the two hokes, and put them on yͤ ſholders of yͤ Ephod vpon the fore fronte of it. And they made two rynges of golde, and putte thē on the two corners of the breſtlappe vpon the edge of it, whiche was on the inſyde by the Ephod. And they made two goldē rynges, ⁊ put them on the two ſydes of the Ephod, beneth on yͤ foreſyde of it, ⁊ ouer agaiſt his felow aboue vpon the broydring of yͤ Ephod, ⁊ they ſtrained yͤ breſtlappe by his rynges vnto yͤ ringes of yͤ Ephod, with a lace of yelow ſilke, that it might be vpon the broyderynge of the Ephod, and yͤ the breſtlap ſhould not be leuſed from of the Ephod: as the LORDE commaunded Moſes. And he made the tunycle vnto the Ephod of wouē worke, altogether of yelow ſilke E and there was an hole in yͤ myddeſt of the tunicle, as the coler of a partlet, wͭ a bonde rounde aboute the coler, that it ſhulde not rent.

And in the tunycle they made hemmes wͭ pomgranates, of yelow ſylke, purple ſcarlet, and whyte twyned ſylke. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, ⁊ put them amonge the pomgranates rounde about vpon the edge of the tunycle: a bell and a pomgranate, a bell and a pomgranate rounde aboute the hemmes of the tunycle to miniſter in, as the LORDE commaunded Moſes. And they made cotes of fyne whyte of wouen worke for Aaron and his ſons, and a mytre of fyne white, and goodly bonettes of fyne whyte, and lynen breches of twyned whyte, and a gyrdell of twyned whyte, yelowe ſylke, purple & ſcarlet: euen of nedle worke, as the LORDE cōmaunded Moſes. And they made the plate for the holye crowne of fyne golde, and wrote vpō it with grauen worke, the holines of the LORDE: and tyed vnto it a lace of yelowe ſylke to faſten it an hye vpon the mytre, as yͤ LORDE commaunded Moſes.

F Thus was all the worke of the habitacion and of the Tabernacle of witneſſe fyniſhed. And the chyldren of Iſrael dyd accordyng to all that yͤ LORD had commaunded Moſes: euen ſo dyd they. And they brought the habitacion vnto Moſes: the tente and all his apparel, buttons, bordes, barres, pyllers, and ſockets, the coueryng of rammes ſkynnes redde, and the couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, and the hanging vaile, the arke of witneſſe and yͤ barres therof, and the mercy ſeate: the table, and al the veſſelles therof, & the ſhewe bread: the pure candelſticke, with the lampes therof: euen with the lampes to be prepared, and all the veſſelles therof, and the oyle for lyght: the golden altar and the annoyntynge oyle, and the ſwete cens, and the hanging of the Tabernacle dore, G and the braſen altar wyth his gredyren of braſſe, hys barres and all his veſſels, the lauer and hys fote: the hangynges of the courte with his pyllers and ſockettes: the hangyng to the courte gate, and his pynnes & coardes, and all the veſſell of the ſeruyce of the habytacion for the Tabernacle of witneſſe: the myniſtrynge veſtimentes to ſerue in the holy place, and yͤ holy veſtimentes for Aaron the Prieſte, and hys ſonnes raymētes to miniſter in: accordyng to all that the LORDE commaūded Moſes: euen ſo the children of Iſraell made all the worke. And Moſes behelde all the worke, and ſee: they had done it euen as the LORDE commaunded: euen ſo had they done, and Moſes bleſſed them.

A AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge. In the fyrſt daye of yͤ fyrſte moneth, ſhalte thou ſet vp the habitacion and the Tabernacle of wytnes, and put therin yͤ Arke of wytnes, and couer the arke with the vaile, and brynge in the table, and apparel it accordyng to yͤ order therof. And thou ſhalte brynge in the candelſtycke, and lyght his lampes, and ſet the cenſe altar of gold before the Arke of witnes, and put the hangyng at the dore of the habitacion.

And ſet the burnt offeryng altar before the dore of the habitacion, and Tabernacle of wytneſſe, and ſet the lauer betwene the Tabernacle of wytnes & the altare, and put water therein, and make the courte rounde aboute, and hange vp the hangynge at the courte gate. Exod.30.a *And thou ſhalt take the anoyntyng oyle, B and anoynte the habitacion, and all that is therin, and halowe it wͭ all the veſſelles thereof, that it maye be holy. And thou ſhalt anoynte the altar of burnt offeryng, and all his veſſels, and ſanctifie the altar, that it maye be an altar moſt holy.

And he toke the teſtimony, and put it in the Arke, and ſette the barres to the arke, and put the merciſeate an hie vpon the Arke, and brought the Arke into the habitacion, and hanged vp the vayle, and couered the Arke of witnes, as the LORDE commaunded Moſes.

And he put yͤ table in the tabernacle of wytnes in the North ſyde of the habitacion, (but withoute the vayle) ⁊ ſet the breade in ordre before the LORDE, euen as the LORDE had commaunded Moſes. And he put the candelſtycke in yͤ Tabernacle of wytnes ouer agaynſt the table towarde the ſouth ſyde of the habitacion, ⁊ ſet vp the lãpes before the LORD: as yͤ LORD cõmaunded Moſes. And he put the golden altar in the Tabernacle of witneſſe before the vayle, ⁊ brent ſwete cenſe theron, as the LORD commaunded Moſes. And he hanged vp the hangyng at the dore of the habitacyon, and ſet the burnt offerynge altar by the entryng in of the habitacion of yͤ Tabernacle of wytneſſe, ⁊ offered burnt offerynges ⁊ meate offerynges theron, as yͤ LORD cõmaũded Moſes.

Exod. 30.c

* And he ſet the lauer betwene the Tabernacle of wytneſſe and the altar, ⁊ powred water therin, to waſhe whal. And Moſes, Aaron and hys ſonnes, waſhed their handes ⁊ their fete therat: when they went into the Tabernacle of wytnes, and when they wente to the altar: they waſhed themſelues, as the LORDE commaunded Moſes. And he reared vp the courte rounde about the habitacion and the altar, and ſette vp an hangyng at the courte gate: and ſo Moſes finiſhed the worke.

* And the cloude couered the Tabernacle of wytneſſe, and the glory of the LORDE fylled the habitacion. And Moſes could not entre into the tabernacle of wytnes, because yͤ cloud abod theron, ⁊ the glory of yͤ LORD fylled yͤ habitacion. (For the cloud had couered all.

And when the cloude was taken vp from of the habitacion, the chyldren of Iſraell toke their iorneys thorowout their armies. And when yͤ cloude was not taken vp, they iourneyed not tyll it was takẽ vp: for the cloud of yͤ LORD was vpon the habitacion by daye, and fyre by nyght: in the ſyght of all yͤ houſe of Iſraell, thorowout al their armies.

A AND the LORDE called Moſes, and ſpake vnto hym oute of the Tabernacle* of wytneſſe, ſayinge: Exo. 29. Speake vnto the chyldren of Iſraell, and thou ſhalte ſay vnto them. yf a man of you bryng a ſacrifice vnto the LORDE ye ſhal bryng your ſacrifice from amõg theſe catell, euen from among the oxen and yͤ ſhepe. Yf his ſacrifice be a burnt offeryng, let hym offre a male of yͤ oxen without blemyſhe, and brynge hym (of his owne voluntary wyll) vnto yͤ dore of the tabernacle of witneſſe before the LORDE. And he ſhall put his hand vpon the heade of the brent ſacrifice and it ſhalbe accepted for him, to be his attonement. And he ſhal kyl the calfe of the droue before the LORDE. B And the prieſtes Aarons ſonnes, ſhall brynge the bloude, and ſhall ſprynkle it rounde aboute vpon the altar, that is by yͤ dore of the Tabernacle of wytneſſe. And then ſhall he ſlaye the burnt offeryng, and hewe him in peces. And the ſonnes of Aaron the Prieſt ſhal put fyre vpon the altar, and put wood vpon the fyre. And the prieſtes Aarons ſonnes ſhall laye the partes (euen the head and the fatte) vpon the wood that is on the fire in the altar. But the inwardes and the legges therof he ſhall waſhe in water, and the prieſt ſhal burne al on yͤ altar, that they maye be a burnt ſacryfice for a ſwete odour vnto the LORDE.

C And yf his ſacrifice be of the flockes (namely of the ſhepe or goates) let him bryng a male withoute blemyſhe for a burnt offerynge. And let hym kyll it on the Northſyde of the altare before the LORDE. And the prieſtes Aarons ſons ſhall ſprynkle the bloude round about vpon the altare. And it ſhalbe cut in peces: euen with his head and his fat, and the prieſte ſhall put them vpon the woode that lyeth vpon the fyre on the altar. But he ſhal waſhe the inwards, and the legges with water: ⁊ the prieſt ſhal bryng al together ⁊ burne it vpon the altar for a burnt offering of a ſwete ſauour vnto the LORDE. Yf the burnte be of the foules, he ſhall bryng hys ſacrifice of the turtyl doues or of yͤ yong pygeons. And the Prieſt ſhall bryng it vnto the altar, and wrynge the necke a ſunder of it, and burne it on the altar.

A But the bloude therof ſhal runne out vpon by the ſyde of the altar. And he Exo.29. ſhall plucke away his croppe with his fethers, and caſte them beſide the altar on the eaſt parte in the place of aſhes.
And he ſhall breake the wynges of it, but plucke them not a ſunder. And the Prieſt ſhal burne it vpon the altar, euẽ vpon the woode that is vpon the fyre, that it maye be a burnte ſacryfice for a ſwete ſauour vnto the LORDE.

The order of meateofferynges.

A THe ſoule that wyll offre a meate offerynge vnto the LORDE, the ſame offerynge ſhall be of fyne B floure, and he ſhall powre oyle, vpõ it, and put frankencens thereon, and ſhal bryng it vnto Aarons ſonnes the prieſtes.
And he ſhal take therout his hanfull of the floure, and of the oyle wyth all the frankencens, and the prieſt ſhal burne it for a memoryall of hym vpon the altar: to be an offeryng for a ſwete ſauour vnto the LORDE. And the remnaunt of the meate offering ſhalbe Aarons and his ſonnes, a thyng moſt holy B of the ſacrifices of the LORDE. Yf thou bryng alſo a meateoffering that is baken in the ouen, let it be a ſwete cake of fyne floure myngled wͭ oyle, or an vnleuened wafer anoynted with oyle. If thy meatofferyng be baken in the frying C pan, it ſhalbe of ſwete floure myngled with oyle. And thou ſhalt mynce it ſmall, and powre oyle thereon, that it maye be a meate offerynge. And yf thy meate offeryng be a thyng broyled vpon the gredyrẽ, let it be of floure myngled with oyle. And thou ſhalte brynge the meate offerynge (that is made of theſe thinges) vnto the LORDE, ⁊ ſhalt delyuer it vnto the prieſt that he may offre it vpon the altar, and the prieſte ſhall take of the meate offeryng a memorial, and ſhal burne it vpon yͤ altar that it maye be a burnt offerynge for a ſwete ſauour vnto the LORDE. And that whiche is lefte of the meate offerynge ſhalbe Aarons and his ſonnes. C It is a thing moſt holy of yͤ offeringes of the LORDE. All the meate offeringes which ye ſhall brynge vnto the LORD, ſhall be made withoute leuen. For ye ſhall neyther burne leuen nor hony in any offeryng of the LORDE.
Notwithſtandyng ye ſhall bryng the fyrſtlynges of them vnto the LORDE: but they ſhall not come vpon the altar for a ſwete ſauoure.* All the meate offerynges Math.5.b alſo ſhalte thou ſeaſon with Mark.9 g ſalte: nether ſhalt thou ſuffer yͤ ſalt of yͤ Collo.4.a of thy fyrſt ripe frutes vnto the LORD, thou ſhalte offer for the meatofferynge of thy fyrſt frutes, eares of corne dried by the fyre, and corne beaten as meale.

And thou ſhalt put oyle vpon it, ⁊ laye frankenſence thereon, that it maye be a meatofferyng. And yͤ prieſt ſhall burne part of the beaten corne, ⁊ part of that oyle with al the frankenſence, for a remembraunce.
And it ſhalbe a ſacrifyce vnto the LORDE.

take awaye with the kydneis. And Aarons ſonnes ſhall burne thẽ on the altar vpon the burnt ſacrifice whiche is vpon the wood that is on the fyre to be a burnt ſacrifyce for a ſwete ſauoure vnto the LORDE. Yf he brynge a peace offeryng vnto the LORDE from of the flocke, let him offer male or female: but without blemiſhe. And yf he offer a ſhepe for his ſacrifice, he ſhal bryng it before the LORDE, and put his hande vpõ his offerynges heade, and kyll it before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnes, and Aarons ſonnes ſhall ſprynkle ẏ bloud therof rounde aboute the altar. And of the peace offeryng, let hym bryng a ſacrifice vnto the LORDE: the fat therof, C and the rumpe altogether, which they ſhall take of, hard by ẏ backe bone: and the fat ẏ couereth the inwardes, & all ẏ fat ẏ is vpon the inwardes & the two kydneys, & the fat that is vpon thē and vpon the loynes, and ẏ aboūdance that is vpon the lyuer ſhal he take away wt the kydneys. And the prieſt ſhal burne them vpon the altar, to be the foode of a ſacrifice vnto the LORDE. If hys offeryng be a goate, he ſhall brynge it before the LORDE, and put hys hande vpon the head of it, and kyll it before ẏ tabernacle of the couenaunt, & the ſons D of Aaron ſhal ſprynkle the bloud therof vpon the altar rounde aboute. And he ſhal bryng therof his offeryng euen a ſacrifice vnto the LORD: the fat that couereth the inwardes, and all the fat that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kydneys, & the fat that is vpon them & vpon the loynes, & the abundaunce vpon the lyuer ſhall he take awaye wyth the kydneys. And the prieſt ſhal burne them vpon the altar for the food of the ſacrifice: that al the fat may be a ſwete ſauour vnto the LORDE. Let it be a perpetuall ſtatute for youre generacyons, thorowout your dwellinges, that ye eate nether fat nor *bloude.

The offerynges made for ſynnes done of ignoraunce.

A AND the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto the chyldrē of Iſraell, and ſaye: If a ſoule ſynne thorowe ignoraunce, and hath done anye of thoſe thynges whych the LORD hath forbidden in his cōmaundemētes to be done. As yf the prieſt that is anoynted do ſynne (accordynge to the ſynne of the people) let hym brynge for hys ſynne whiche he hathe ſynned a yonge oxe without blemyſhe vnto the LORD for a ſynne offering. And he ſhal bryng the yonge oxe vnto the dore of ẏ tabernacle of wytnes before the LORD, and ſhall put his hande vpon the yong oxe head, and kyll the yonge oxe before the LORDE. And the prieſt that is appoynted * ſhall take of the yonge oxe bloude, and bryng it into the tabernacle of witneſſe, and the prieſt ſhal dippe his fynger in the bloude, and ſpryncle therof ſeuen tymes before the LORD, euen before the hangynge of the holye place. And he ſhall put ſome of ẏ bloud before the LORDE, vpon the hornes of the altar of ſwete cens, whiche is in ẏ tabernacle of wytnes, and ſhal powre all the bloude of the yong oxe vnto the botome of the altar of burnt offeryng, whych is at the dore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And he ſhal take away al the fat of the oxe that is for ſynne, the fat that couereth the inwards, and all the fatte that is aboute the inwards, and the two kydneys, and the fat that is vpon them, and vpon the loynes and the abundaunce of ẏ lyuer ſhal he take awaye with the kydneys: as it was taken awaye in the oxe of the peace offerynges, and let the Prieſt burne them vpon ẏ altar of burnt offerynge. C *But the ſkynne of the yong oxe, and all hys fleſhe, with his heade, and hys legges, with his inwards, and his dunge, ſhall he beare out and carie the yong oxe altogether out of the hooſt vnto a cleane place: euen where as the aſſhes are powred oute, and burne hym there on wood in the fire: euē by ẏ place where the aſſhes are caſt out, ſhal he be brent. F Yf the whole congregacyon of Iſraell ſinne thorowe ignoraunce, & the thing be hyd from their eyes, ſo ẏ they haue cōmitted any of thoſe thynges which the LORDE hath forbydden to be done in hys commaundementes, and haue offended. When the ſynne whiche they haue ſinned in, is knowen, the congregacion ſhall bryng a yonge oxe for the ſyn: and brynge hym before the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and the elders of the multytude ſhall put theyr handes vpon the head of the yonge oxe before the LORDE. And the yonge oxe ſhalbe ſlayne before the LORDE. And the prieſt that is anoynted, ſhall bryng of his bloude into the tabernacle of wytnes, and the pryeſt ſhall dyppe his finger in the bloude, and ſprynkle it ſeuen tymes before the LORDE, euen before the vayle.

ſynne whiche he hath ſynned. A female from the flocke, a lambe or a ſhe goate for a ſinne offeryng. And the prieſt ſhal make an attonement for hym. concernyng his ſynne. Leui.12.d. Luke.2.d *And yf he be not able to bryng ſuch a ſhepe, he ſhal bryng for his treſpace which he hath ſynned, two turtyl doues, or two yong pigeons vnto yͤ LORDE, one for a ſynne offering, ⁊ the other for a burnte offeryng. And he ſhal bryng them vnto the prieſt, which ſhall offer the ſynne offeryng fyrſt, and wryng yͤ necke a ſōder of it, but plucke it not cleane of. And he ſhal ſprynkle of the bloude of the ſynne offeryng vpon the ſyde of the altar: and the reſt of the bloude ſhal he powre by the botome of the altar: for it is a ſynne offerynge.

C And he ſhall offer the ſeconde for a burnt offeryng as the maner is: and ſo ſhal the prieſt make an attonement for hym (for the ſynne whyche he hath ſinned) and it ſhalbe forgeuen hym. And yf he be not able to brynge two turtle doues, or two yonge pygeons, then he that hathe ſynned, ſhall brynge for hys offerynge, the tenth parte of an Epha of fine floure for a ſynne offeringe, but put none oyle therto, neyther put anye frankenſence thereon, for it is a ſynne offeryng. And let the prieſt offer it: and the Prieſt ſhal take his hande ful of it, for a remembraunce therof, and burne it vpon the altar, to be a ſacryfice for yͤ LORDE, it is a ſynne offeryng. And the prieſt ſhall make an attonemente for hym as touchyng hys ſynne yͭ he hath ſynned in one of theſe, and it ſhalbe forgeuen. And the remnaunte ſhall be the prieſtes, as a meate offeryng.

D And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: yf a ſoule treſpace ⁊ ſynne thorowe ygnoraunce in thynges that are conſecrated vnto the LORDE, let hym brynge for hys treſpace vnto yͤ LORD a ramme wythout blemyſhe out of the flockes, valued in money at two ſicles, Exod.30.b after the *ſycle of the ſanctuary, that it maye be for a treſpace offering. And he ſhal make amendes for the harme that he hath done in the holy thyng, and let hym put the fyfte parte more thereto, and geue it vnto the prieſt. And yͤ prieſt ſhall make an attonemēt for him with the ramme that is for the treſpace, and it ſhalbe forgeuen hym.

Yf a ſoule ſynne and commit anye of theſe thynges which are forbydden to be done by the commaundementes of the LORDE and wyſte it not, and hath offended, he ſhall beare hys ſynne: and ſhall brynge a ramme wͭoute blemyſhe oute of the flocke that is eſtemed to be wurth a treſpace offering, vnto yͤ prieſt: And the prieſt ſhal make an attonemēt for hym concerninge hys ygnoraunce, wherein he erred and was not ware, and it ſhall be forgeuen hym. Thys is the treſpace offerynge which he offred vnto the LORDE for that treſpaſſe. Exo

A AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: yf a ſoule ſynne ⁊ treſpace agaynſt the LORDE, ⁊ denye vnto his neyghbour that whiche was taken him to kepe, or that was put into hys handes, or doeth vyolent robberye C or wrong vnto his neyghbour, or if he haue founde that whiche was loſt, and denyeth it, and ſweareth falſelye, vpō whatſoeuer thyng it be that a mā doeth, and ſynneth therein: yf he haue ſo ſinned or treſpaced, he ſhal reſtore agayne that he toke violently away, or the wrong whych he dyd or that which was delyuered him to kepe, or the loſte thynge whiche he founde: ⁊ all that aboute whiche he hath ſworne falſelye, he ſhall reſtore it agayne in the whole ſumme, and ſhal ad the fyfte part more therto, and geue it vnto hym to whome it pertayneth, the ſame daye yͭ he offereth for his treſpace: ⁊ let hym brynge for his treſpace vnto the LORD a ram wythout blemyſhe out of the flocke (yͭ is eſtemed worth a treſpace offeryng) vnto the prieſt.

B And the prieſt ſhal make an attonemente for hym, before the LORDE, ⁊ it ſhal be forgeuē him, whatſoeuer thing it be that he hath done ⁊ treſpaced therin. And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes: ſaying: commaunde Aaron ⁊ his ſons, ſayinge: this is the lawe of the burnte offeryng. Exo *The burnt offeryng ſhal be D vpon the harth of the altar all nyghte vnto the mornyng, and the fyre ſhalbe kyndled on the altar. And yͤ prieſt ſhal altogether.

D For euery meate offeryng yͭ is made for the prieſt, ſhalbe burnt altogether, and ſhall not be eatē. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto Aaron, and vnto his ſonnes, and ſaye:
This is the lawe of the ſynne offering.
In the place where the burnt offering for it is moſte holye. And no ſynne offeryng, whoſe bloude is brought into the tabernacle of wytnes to reconcyle withall in the holye place, ſhalbe eaten: but ſhalbe burnt in the fyre.

¶ The.vii.Chapter.

¶ Treſpace offerynges. Synne offerynges and peace offerynges. The fat and the bloud maye not be eaten.

THis is the lawe of treſpace offeryng: it is moſte holy. In yͤ place A where they kyll the burnte offeryng, ſhall they kyll the treſpace offeryng alſo, ⁊ his bloude ſhal he ſprynkle rounde aboute vpon the altar. All the fatte therof ſhall they offer: the rumpe and the fatte thereof that couereth the inwardes, and the two kydneys, ⁊ the fat that is on them and vpon yͤ loynes: and the aboundance that is on yͤ lyuer ſhalte thou take awaye with the kydneys, ⁊ the prieſt ſhall burne them vpon the altar, to be a ſacrifyce vnto the LORDE for it is a treſpaſſe offerynge.
All the males among the prieſtes ſhall eate thereof in the holy place, for it is moſte holy. As the ſyn offeryng is, ſo is the treſpace offerynge: one lawe ſerueth for both, and it ſhalbe the prieſtes that reconcyleth therwith. And the prieſt that offereth any mannes burnt offerynge, ſhall haue the ſkynne of the burnt offeryng which he hath offered.
And all the meate offeryng that is baken in yͤ ouen ⁊ that is dreſſed vpon yͤ gredyren, ⁊ in the fryinge pan, ſhall be the prieſtes that offereth it. And euery meate offeryng that is myngled wyth oyle and that is drye, ſhal pertaine vnto all yͤ ſonnes of Aaron, and one ſhall B haue as much as another. This is the lawe of the peace offeryng, when it is offered vnto the LORDE. yf he offer it to geue thankes, he ſhal bring vnto his thankeofferyng ſwete cakes myngled with oyle, and ſwete wafers anoynted wyth oyle, ⁊ cakes myngled wͭ oyle, of fyne floure fryed. He ſhall brynge hys offryng vpon cakes of leuened breade, for his peace offeriges to geue thãkes: and of al the ſacryfice he ſhall offer one for an heueofferinge vnto the LORDE, and it ſhall be the prieſtes that ſprinkled the bloud of the peace offerynges. And the fleſhe of the thankeoffering in hys peace offerynges, ſhal be eaten the ſame day that it is offered. And let him laye vp nothynge of it vntyl yͤ morow. But yf he offer hys ſacrifice by reaſon of a vowe, or of hys owne free wyll, it ſhalbe eaten the ſame day that he offereth his ſacrifice.

And yf ought remayne vntyll yͤ morowe, it maye be eaten: but as much of the offred fleſhe as remaineth vnto the thyrde daye, ſhalbe burnte with fyre. And yf any of the fleſhe of his peace offrynges be eaten in the thyrd day, then ſhall he that offereth it obtayne no fauour, neyther ſhall it be rekened vnto hym, but ſhall be an abhomynacyon. Therfore yͤ ſoule that eateth of it ſhal C beare hys ſynne. And the fleſhe that toucheth any vncleane thinge, ſhal not be eaten, but burnt with fyre: and all yͭ be cleane ſhall eate the fleſhe. But yf anye ſoule eate of the fleſhe of the peace offerynge that pertaynethe vnto the LORDE hauyng hys vnclenneſſe vpon hym, the ſame ſoule ſhall peryſhe frome among hys people. Moreouer, yͤ ſoule that doth touch any vncleane thyng, yͭ is of the vnclenneſſe of man, or of anye vncleane beaſt: or any abhominacyon that is vncleane, and then eate of the fleſhe of the peace offering whiche pertayneth vnto the LORDE, that ſoule ſhall peryſhe from his people. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, and Leui.3.d. ſaye.*ye ſhal eate no maner fat of oxẽ, of ſhepe, and of goates: neuerthelater yͤ fatte of the beaſt that dyeth alone, and the fatte of that whiche is torne wyth wylde beaſtes, ſhall be occupied in any maner of vſe, but ye ſhall in no wyſe eate of it. For whoſoeuer eateth yͤ fatte of the beaſt of which men vſe to bryng an offerynge vnto the LORDE, yͤ ſoule that eateth it, ſhall peryſhe from hys people. Moreouer, ye * ſhall eate no Gene. maner of bloude, whether it be of foule Leui. or of beaſte. What ſoeuer ſoule it be yͭ and.19 eateth any maner of bloude, the ſame Deut. ſoule ſhall peryſhe from his people. 1.Re. And the LORDE talked with Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the chyldrẽ of Iſraell ⁊ ſaye: he that bryngeth hys peace offerynge vnto the LORDE, lette hym brynge hys gyfte vnto the LORDE of his peace offering: let his own handes bryng the offerynges of the LORDE: euen the fat with the breſt ſhal he bring: that yͤ breſt may be waued for a waue offering before the LORDE. And the prieſt ſhal burne the fat vpon the altar, and the breſt ſhall be Aarons and hys ſonnes.

And the ryght ſhoulder ſhal ye geue vnto the prieſt, for an heue offeryng, of your peace offerynges. The ſame that offreth the bloud of the peace offerynges and the fat, amonge the ſonnes of Aaron, ſhall haue the ryghte ſhoulder for his parte, for the*wauebreſt and yͤ Num. heue ſhoulder haue I taken of the chyldren of Iſrael, euen of theyr peace offerynges, and haue geuẽ it vnto Aaron and vnto hys ſonnes: by a ſtatute for euer of the chyldren of Iſraell.

This is the anoyntynge of Aaron ⁊ the annoyntynge of hys ſonnes in the ſacryfyces of the LORDE, in the daye when he offred them to be prieſtes vnto the LORDE. And theſe be the ſacryfyces whiche the LORDE commaũded to be geuen them, (in the daye of theyr anoynting) of the chyldren of Iſraell, by a ſtatute for euer in their generacyons. This is the lawe of the burnte offeryng and of the meatofferyng, and of the ſacrifyce for ſynne and treſpace, for conſecracion and for the peace offeryng: which the LORDE commaunded Moſes in the mounte of Sinay, when he commaunded the children of Iſrael to offer theyr ſacrifices vnto yͤ LORD, in the wylderneſſe of Sinai.

¶ The.viii.Chapter.

And

A Exo.28.a. AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: take *Aaron and hys ſonnes with him, and yͤ veſtures and yͤ anoyntinge oyle, and a yong oxe for ſynne, and two rammes, ⁊ a baſket with ſwete breade: and gather thou al Gene. Leui. and.19 Deut. 1.Re. the congregacion together vnto yͤ dore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And Moſes dyd as the LORDE commaunded him, and the people were gathered together vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And Moſes ſayde vnto the congregacion: this is the thing which the LORDE commaunded to be done.

And Moſes broughte Aaron and hys ſonnes, and waſſhed them wᵗ water, ⁊ put vpon him the albe, and girded him with a girdle, and put vpõ him the tunicle, (of yelowe ſylke) and put the Ephod thereon, whiche he girded with yͤ brodered B girdel that was in the Ephod, ⁊ bounde it vnto him ther wᵗ. And he put the breſtlappe theron, ⁊ put in yͤ breſtlappe Urim and Thumim. And he put the miter vpon his heade, ⁊ put vpon yͤ miter, (euen vpon the forefrunte of his face) yͤ golden plate or the holy croune, as the LORDE commaunded Moſes.

Exo.30.b. *And Moſes toke the anointyng oyle, and anoynted the Tabernacle and all Num. that was therin, and ſanctified them, ⁊ ſprinkled therof vpon the aultar ſeuen tymes, ⁊ anoynted the aultar ⁊ all hys veſſels, the lauer and his fote, to ſanctifye them (with the oyle.) And he powred of the anoyntinge oyle vpon Aarons head, ⁊ anoynted him, to ſanctifye him. And Moſes brought Aarons ſonnes, and put albes vpon them, ⁊ gyrded thẽ with girdels, ⁊ put bonettes vpõ theyr heades: as the LORDE commaunded Exo.29.a. Moſes. *And he brought the yong oxe C for ſynne. And Aaron ⁊ his ſonnes put their handes vpõ the head of the yong oxe that was for ſynne. And Moſes ſlewe him, and toke of yͤ bloude, which he put vpon yͤ hornes of yͤ aultar roũde about with his fynger, and purified it, and powred the bloud vnto the botom of the aultar, and ſanctified it, and reconcyled it. And he toke all the fat that was vpon the inwardes, and the abũdaunce of the lyuer, and the two kydneyes, and their fat, ⁊ Moſes burned it vpon the aultar. But the yong oxe and hys hyde, his fleſhe and his dunge, he burnt with fyre without the hooſte, as the LORDE commaũded Moſes. And he brought the ram for the burnt offering, D and Aaron ⁊ his ſonnes put their handes vpon the head of yͤ ram, which Moſes kylled, and ſprinkled yͤ bloude, vpon the aultar rounde about, ⁊ Moſes cut the ram in peces and burnt the head, the peces and yͤ fat, and waſſhed the inwardes ⁊ the legges in water, ⁊ Moſes burnte the ram euery whit vpon the aultar, for a burnt ſacrifice, that it might be a ſwete ſauour, ⁊ an offrig vnto the LORDE, as the LORDE commaunded Moſes.

*And he brought the other ram, namely yͤ ram of cõſecracion (of the prieſtes) Exod.29.c and Aaron ⁊ his ſonnes put their handes vpon the heade of the ram, whiche Moſes ſlew, and toke of the bloude of it, and put it vpon the typ of Aarons right eare, and vpon the thumbe of his right hande, and vpon the great too of E his right fote. And Moſes broughte Aarons ſonnes, and put of the bloude (of the ram) on the tippe of the right eare of them, and vpõ the thumbes of their right handes, and vpon the great toes of their right fete, ⁊ Moſes ſprinkled yͤ bloude vpon the aultar rounde aboute.

*And he toke the fatte and yͤ rumpe, Exod.29 d and al the fat that was vpon yͤ inwardes, and the aboundaunce of the liuer, and the two kydneys with their fat, ⁊ the right ſhulder. And out of yͤ baſket of ſwet breade yͭ was before yͤ LORDE, he toke one ſwete cake of oyled breade, and one wafer, and put them on yͤ fat, and vpon the right ſhulder: ⁊ put altogether vpon Aarons handes, and vpon his ſonnes handes, and waued it a waue offering before the LORDE. And Moſes toke them from of their handes, and burnt them vpon the aultar, euen F vpon the burnt offerig aultar: for it was the ſacrifice of conſecracion, for a ſwete ſauour and a ſacrifice vnto the LORD. *And Moſes toke the breaſte ⁊ Exo. 29.e. waued it for a waue offerig before the LORDE, for it was of the ram of yͤ conſecracion, and it was Moſes parte, as the LORDE commaunded Moſes.

And Moſes toke of the anoyntinge oyle, ⁊ of the bloude whiche was vpon the aultar, and ſprinkled it vpõ Aaron ⁊ vpon his veſtimẽtes, vpõ his ſonnes and ſonnes veſtimentes with hym, and ſanctyfied Aaron, his veſtures, and his ſonnes, and his ſonnes veſtures with him. And Moſes ſayde vnto Aaron and his ſonnes: boyle the fleſh in the dore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe, Exo.39. f. G and there*eate it with yͤ breade that is in the baſket of conſecracion, as I cōmaunded, ſayinge: Aaron and his ſonnes ſhal eate it. And that which remaineth of the breade, ſhal ye burne wͭ fyre. And ye ſhall not departe from the dore of the tabernacle of witneſſe ſeuen daies, vntyll the dayes of youre conſecracion be at an ende. For ſeuen dayes ſhal he fyll your hande as he dyd this daye: euen ſo the LORD hath commaūded to doe, to reconcyle you withal. Therfore ſhall ye abyde in the dore of the tabernacle of witneſſe day ⁊ night ſeuen daies long: ⁊ kepe the watche of yͤ LORD, and ye ſhall not dye: for ſo I am commaūded. And ſo Aaron and his ſonnes dyd all thinges which the LORD commaunded by the hande of Moſes.

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

The firſt offeringes of Aaron. Aaron bleſſeth the people, the glory of the Lorde is ſhewed.

A AND it fortuned that in yͤ eight day Moſes called Aaron and his ſonnes, and the elders of Iſrael: and ſayde vnto Aaron: take the a calfe, a yong one out of the droue, for ſyn, and a ram for a burnt offring: both withoute blemyſhe, and brynge them before the LORDE. And vnto the children of Iſrael thou ſhalt ſpeake, ſayinge: take ye an he goate for ſynne, and a calfe, and a lambe both two of a yere olde, without blemyſhe, for a burnt ſacrifice, ⁊ an oxe and a ram for peace offringes, to offer before the LORD, and a meate offering myngled with oyle: for to day yͤ LORD wyll appere vnto you.

B And they brought that (which Moſes commaunded) before the tabernacle of witnes, and al yͤ congregacion came and ſtode before yͤ LORD. And Moſes ſayd, this is the thinge, which yͤ LORD commaunded yͭ ye ſhoulde do: and the glorye of the LORD ſhal appeare vnto you. Hebre.5. a and 7. d. *And Moſes ſaid vnto Aaron: go vnto the aultar ⁊ offer thy ſacrifice for ſynne, ⁊ make an attonemēt for thee ⁊ for the people: and thou ſhalte offer the offering of the people, to reconcyle thē, as the LORDE commaunded.

Aaron therfore went vnto the aultar, and ſlewe the calfe whiche he had for ſynne. And yͤ ſonnes of Aaron brought the bloude vnto him, and he dypte hys fynger in the bloude, and put it vpō the hornes of the aultar, ⁊ powred yͤ bloud vnto the botome of the aultar. But the fat and the two kydneyes and the abūdaunce of the lyuer of the ſynne offerig, he burnt vpon the aulter, as the LORD commaunded Moſes: The fleſhe ⁊ the hide he burnt with fire without yͤ hoſt. And he ſlewe the burnt offering, *and Aarons ſons broughte vnto him the bloude, whiche he ſprynkled rounde about vpon yͤ aultar. And they broughte the burnt offering vnto him with yͤ peces therof, and the head: and he burnte it vpon the aultar, and dyd waſhe the inwardes and the legs, and burnt thē vpon the burnt offring on the aultar. And then he brought yͤ peoples offerig taking the goate that yͤ people had for the ſacrifice of ſynne, and ſlewe it and offered it for ſynne, as he dyd the fyrſt. And brought yͤ burnt offerig, ⁊ offered it as the maner was, *and brought the meate offring, ⁊ fylled his hande therof, and burnt it vpon the aultar, beſyde the burnt ſacrifice of the mornynge.

He ſlew alſo the oxe and the ram for the peace offeringe, that the people had for thē ſelues, ⁊ Aarōs ſonnes brought vnto him yͤ bloude, which he ſprinkled vpon the aultar rounde aboute, ⁊ toke the fatte of the oxe and of the ram, the rumpe, and the fat that couereth yͤ inwardes and the kidneys and the abundaunce of the lyuer: and they put yͤ fat vpon yͤ breſtes, and he burnt the fat vpon the aultar: but yͤ breſtes ⁊ the right ſhulders Aaron waued for a waue offering before the LORD, as the LORD cōmaunded Moſes. And Aaron lyfte vp his hande ouer the people, ⁊ bleſſed them, and came downe from offring of the ſynne offringe, burnte offringes and peace offringes. And Moſes and Aaron went into yͤ tabernacle of witnes and came out, and bleſſed yͤ people, and the glory of the LORDE appeared vnto al the people. * And there came a fyre out from before the LORD and cōſumed vpon yͤ aultar that burnt offrige and the fat. Whiche when all the people ſawe, they gaue thankes, and fell on theyr faces.

chaweth the cud, but he deuydeth not the hoofe, therfore is he vncleane vnto you, euen ſo the conye, whiche chaweth yͤ cud but deuydeth not the hofe. He is vnclene to you. And yͤ hare, thoughe he chaweth yͤ cud, yet becauſe he deuideth not the hofe, he is therfore vncleane to Theſe ſhal ye eate of al that are in the B of all yᵗ moue and lyue in the waters, let them be abhominacion vnto you: ye ſhall not eate of their fleſhe, but abhorre their carkaſes. Let al yͭ haue no fynnes nor ſkales in the waters, be abhominable vnto you.

C These are they, which ye ſhal abhorre among the foules, and that ought not to be eaten, for they are an abhominacion. The eagle the goſhauke, and the cormoraunte, the vultur, and the kyte after his kynde, ⁊ al rauens after theyr kynde: the eſtriche, the nyghte crowe, the coockowe, and the owle after hys kynde, the falcon, the ſtorke, the greate owle, the backe, the pelycane, the pye: the heron, the Jaye after his kinde, the lapwynge and the ſwalowe. Let all foules that crepe and goe vpō al foure, be an abhominacion vnto you.

And let theſe alſo be vncleane to you amonge yͤ thinges that crepe vpon the earth, yͤ weaſel, and the mouſe, and the toode, after their kynde, the hedgehog, the ſtellio, yͤ lacerte, the ſnayle, and the molle: theſe are vncleane to you among al yͭ crepe: who ſo euer doth touche thē whē they be deade, ſhalbe vncleane vntyl yͤ euē. And what ſoeuer any of the dead carkaſſes of them doth fal vpon ſhalbe vncleane: whether it be veſſel of woode, or rayment, or ſkynne, or bagge, or what ſoeuer veſſell it be that any worke is wrought in. And it muſt be plunged in the water, and it ſhalbe vncleane vntil the euen, and ſo ſhal it be clenſed.

All maner of earthen veſſel wherinto any of them falleth, ſhalbe vncleane, with all that there in is: and*it ſhalbe broken. All maner meate alſo yͭ is vſed to be eaten yf any ſuch water come vpon, it ſhalbe vncleane. And all maner drynke that is vſed to be dronke in all maner ſuche veſſels ſhal be vncleane. And euery thing that their carcaſe falleth vpon, ſhal be vncleane. Whether it be ouen or kettel, let it be broken. For they are vncleane, and ſhalbe vncleane vnto you: Neuerthelater, yet the fountaynes and welles and collectiō of waters ſhall be cleane ſtyl. And who ſo toucheth their carkaſes, ſhall be vncleane. yf the deade carkaſe of any ſuch fal vpon any ſede vſed to ſowe, it ſhall yet be cleane ſtyl: but and yf any water be powred vpō yͤ ſede, and a deade carkaſſe fal theron, it ſhal be vncleane vnto you. Yf any beaſt of whiche ye may eate, dye and any man touche the dead carkaſſe therof, he ſhalbe vncleane vntyl the euen, he that eateth of the deade carkaſſe of it, ſhal waſh his clothes and be vncleane vntil yͤ euen. And he alſo yͭ beareth the carkaſſe of it, ſhal waſh his clothes, and be vncleane vntyl euen.

Let euery crepyng thing that crepeth vpon the earth be an abhominacion, ⁊ not be eaten. Whatſoeuer goeth vpon yͤ breſt ⁊ what ſoeuer goeth vpon foure, or that hath moo fete among al creping thinges that crepe vpon the earthe, of that ſe ye eate not, for they are abhominable. ye ſhal not make your ſoules abhominable with nothing that crepeth, neyther make your ſelues vncleane wͭ them: that ye ſhoulde be defiled therby. For I am the LORDE your GOD. Be ſanctifyed therfore, and ye ſhalbe holy, *for I am holye: and ye ſhal not defyle your ſoules with any maner of creping thing, that crepeth vpon the earth. For I am the LORDE that broughte you out of the lande of Egipte, to be your GOD, ye ſhalbe holy therfore, for I am holy. This is the lawe of beaſtes ⁊ foules, and of euery lyuyng creature that moueth in yͤ waters, and of euery creature that crepeth vpon the earth, that there maye be a difference betwene the vncleane and cleane, ⁊ betwene yͤ beaſt that maye be eaten, and the beaſte that ought not to be eaten.

The preſtes muſt iudge who are Lepers.

And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron ſaying: when there appeareth a riſing in any mans fleſh, eyther a cabbe, or a gliſtrynge white: ⁊ the plage of leproſy be in the ſkin of his fleſhe, he ſhalbe brought vnto Aaron yͤ preaſt, or vnto one of his ſonnes yͤ preſtes: and the preaſt ſhall loke on yͤ ſore in the ſkyn of his fleſhe.

And when the heare in the ſore is turned vnto white, ⁊ the ſore alſo ſeme to be lower then yͤ ſkyn of his fleſhe, it wil be a plage of leproſy: ⁊ the preaſtes ſhal loke on him, ⁊ iudge him vncleane. yf there be but a white plecke in yͤ ſkin of his fleſh, ⁊ ſeme not to be lower then yͤ ſkyn, nor yͤ heare therof is turned vnto whyte, the preaſt ſhal ſhut him vp ſeuen dayes. And yͤ preaſt ſhal loke vpon him againe the ſeuenth daye. And yf the plage ſeme to him to abyde ſtyl, and the plage growe not in the ſkin, the preaſt ſhal ſhut him vp yet ſeuen dayes mo. And the preaſt ſhal loke on him againe the ſeuenth day. Then yf yͤ plage be darker, and not growen in the ſkin, the preaſt ſhal iudge him cleane, for it is but a ſkyrfe. And he ſhal waſhe hys clothes, and be cleane. But and yf the ſcabbe growe in the ſkyn after that he is ſene of the preaſt, and iudged cleane, he ſhalbe ſene of the preaſt agayne. yf the preaſt ſe that the ſcab be growē abrode in the ſkynne, the preaſt ſhall make him vncleane: for it is a leproſye.

When the plage of the leproſye is in a mā, he ſhalbe brought vnto the prieſt, ⁊ the prieſt ſhal ſe hym. And yf the ryſyng be white in the ſkin, ⁊ haue made the heare whyte, and there be rawe fleſhe in the ſore, it wyl be an old leproſye in yͤ ſkyn of his fleſhe. And yͤ prieſt ſhal make him vncleane, ⁊ ſhal not ſhut hym vp: ſeyng he is vncleane. yf a leproſye breake out abrode in yͤ ſkynne, and couer al the ſkinne, from his heade to his fote, where ſoeuer the prieſt loketh, ⁊ the prieſt loke vpon hym: And yf the leproſye haue couered all hys fleſhe, he ſhall iudge the plage to be clene, becauſe it is al turned into whitneſſe, and he ſhalbe cleane. But and yf there be rawe fleſhe on him when he is ſene, he ſhal be vncleane.

and declare him to be vncleane. For yͤ rawe fleſhe is vncleane, ſeyng it is a leproſy. Or yf yͤ raw fleſh depart agayne and chaunge vnto whyte he ſhal come to the preaſt, and the preaſt ſhal ſe hym and beholde: yf the ſore be chaūged vnto whyte (and couer the whole man) yͤ preaſt ſhal iudge the plage cleane and he ſhalbe cleane. The fleſhe alſo in whoſe ſkin there is a byle and is healed, and in the place of the byle there appeare a white riſyng, ether a ſhinyng whyte and ſom what reddiſhe, it ſhalbe ſene of yͤ preaſt.

D And yf when the preaſt ſeeth him, it appere lower then the ſkynne, and the heare therof be chaunged vnto whyte, the preaſt ſhall iudge him vncleane: for it is a plage of leproſy, broken out of the byle. But and yf the preaſt loke on it and there be no white heares therin, and yf it be not lower then the ſkynne, but be darker, the preaſt ſhall ſhut hym vp ſeuen dayes. And yf it ſpreed abrode in the fleſhe, the Preaſt ſhall make him vncleane, ſeyng it is the plage. But and yf the ſpot ſtande ſtyll, and growe not, it is the printe of an hoote byle, ⁊ therfore the preaſt ſhall declare him to be cleane. If there be any fleſhe, in whoſe ſkynne there is a hote burnynge, and yͤ fleſhe that burneth haue a white ſpot, ſomwhat reddiſhe or white, the Preaſt ſhall loke vpon it. And yf the heare in the bryght ſpot be chaunged to whyte, and it appeare lower thē the ſkynne, it is a leproſie broken out of the burning. And therfore the preaſt ſhal iudge him vncleane, ſeing it is yͤ plage of leproſy. But yf the preaſt loke on it and there be no whyte heare in yͤ bryght ſpot, and be no lower then the other ſkynne, but be darker, the preaſt ſhall ſhut him vp ſeuen dayes. And the Preaſt ſhall loke on him the ſeuenth daye: And yf it be growen abrode in the ſkynne, yͤ preaſt ſhal iudge him vncleane, ſeyng it is the plage of leproſye. And yf the ſpot ſtāde ſtyl in it, ⁊ growe not in the ſkynne, but is darke, it is a riſyng of the burnynge, and yͤ preaſt ſhall therfore declare him cleane, ſeyng it is yͤ print of yͤ burnyng.

E Yf a man or woman hath a ſore vpon the head or the bearde, the preaſt ſhall ſe it. And yf it appeare lower then the ſkynne, and ther be in it a yelow heare: ⁊ thin (more then it was wont to be,) yͤ preaſte ſhall iudge him vncleane, ſeyng that yͤ ſame frettyng is a token of leproſy vpon yͤ heade or beard. And yf the preaſte loke on the ſore of the print, and it ſeme not lower then the ſkyn, and that the heare is not blacke, the preaſt ſhal ſhut vp the frettyng ſore ſeuen dayes. And in the ſeuenth daye the preaſt ſhall loke on the ſore and yf the ſore be not growen, and there be in it no yelowe heare, and yͤ ſore ſeme not lower then yͤ ſkyn, he ſhalbe ſhauen: but the place of yͤ ſore ſhal he not ſhaue, and the preaſt ſhall ſhut vp the ſore ſeuen dayes mo. And in the ſeuenth daye the preaſt ſhal loke on the ſore: And yf yͤ ſore be not growē in the ſkynne, nor ſeme lower then the other ſkynne, the preaſt ſhal clenſe him, and he ſhal waſhe his clothes, and be cleane. But yf the ſore growe in the fleſhe after his clenſyng, the prieſt ſhal loke on him.

F And yf the ſore be growen in yͤ ſkin, the prieſt ſhal not ſeke for yelow heare, for he is vncleane. But yf he ſe yͤ prynt ſtande ſtyl, ⁊ that there is blacke heare growne vp therin, the ſore is healed, ⁊ he ſhalbe cleane, and the prieſt ſhal declare him to be cleane. yf ther be white ſpottes in the ſkyn of the fleſhe of man or woman, the preaſt ſhal loke vpon it. And yf the ſpottes in the ſkyn of theyr fleſhe be ſomwhat darke and white withal, (he maye be ſure, that it is no leproſye) it is a frekel growyng in the fleſhe. Therfore is he cleane. And the man whoſe head is deſtytute of heare, (whereby he is made balde) is cleane. And he that hath his heare out in his forehead, is foreheed balde, and cleane. If there be in yͤ bauld head or balde forehead, a whyte reddyſhe ſore ſcabbe, there is leproſye ſprong vp in his baulde head or baulde forehead.

G And the preaſt ſhal loke vpon hym, and yf the riſynge of the ſore be whyte reddyſhe in his baulde head or baulde forehead, after the maner of leproſye which is in yͤ ſkin of the fleſhe, thē he is a leperous mā ⁊ vncleane. And yͤ preſt ſhal make him vncleane, for the plage therof is in his head. The leper in whō the plage is ſhal haue his clothes rent, and his head bare, and ſhal put a couering vpon his lyppe, and ſhalbe called vncleane and defyled. And as long as yͤ dyſeaſe laſteth vpon him, he ſhalbe defyled and vncleane: he ſhal dwel alone, euen *without the hooſt ſhal his habitaciō be. The cloth that the plage of leproſye is in, whither it be lynnen or wollē, whither it be in yͤ warpe or wofe of lynnē or of wollē: ether in a ſkyn or any thing made of ſkyn, yf yͤ dyſeaſe be pale or ſomwhat reddyſhe in the clothe or ſkyn: whether it be in the warpe or wofe, or any thing that is made of ſkin, then it is a plage of leproſye, and ſhalbe ſhewed vnto the preaſt.

The Preaſt therfore ſhal ſe yͤ plage, and ſhut it vp ſeuen daies, and loke on the plage the ſeuenth day. Whiche yf it be encreaſed in yͤ clothe (whether it be in the warpe or wofe, or in a ſkyn) or in any thing that is made of ſkynne, it is the leproſy of a fretynge ſore: it is vncleane: and that cloth ſhalbe burnt, ether warpe or woofe, whether it be F wollen or lynnen, or any thing that is made of ſkynne, wherin yͤ plage is, for it is a frettyng leproſy, it ſhalbe burnt in yͤ fire. If the preaſt ſe that the plage is not growen in the cloth: ether in the warpe of wofe, or in what ſoeuer thing of ſkynne it be, the preaſt ſhal cōmaūde them to waſhe yͤ thing wherin yͤ plage is, ⁊ he ſhall ſhut it vp ſeuen dayes mo. And the preaſt ſhall loke on the plage againe, after that it is waſhed. And yf yͤ plage haue not chaunged his colour, and is ſpred no further abrode, it is vncleane. Thou ſhalt burne it in the fyre, for it is a frette inwarde: in parte or in altogether. And yf the preaſt ſe that the plage is darker after yͤ it is waſhed, he ſhall rent it out of the clothe, or out of the ſkyn, or out of the warpe, or out of the woofe. And yf it appeare any more in the clothe (eyther in the warpe or in the woofe, or in any thīg made of ſkyn) it is a waxynge plage. Thou ſhalte burne yͤ plage that is in it. G Moreouer the clothe, eyther warpe or woofe, or what ſoeuer thing of ſkyn it be whiche thou haſte waſhed, yf the plage be departed there from, it ſhall be waſhed once again: ⁊ thē ſhal it be cleane. This is the lawe of the plage of leproſy in a clothe whether it be wollen or lynnen: ether in yͤ warpe or wofe, or in any thīg of ſkynnes, to make it clene or vnclene.

The clenſyng of the leper, and of the houſe that he is in

Math. 8. a Mar. 1. d uke. 5. c.
and. 17. e.

And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying *this is the lawe of the leper in the day of his clenſynge: He ſhalbe brought vnto the prieſt, and the preaſt ſhall go out without the hooſt, and loke vpon him. And yf the plage of leproſy be healed in the leper, then ſhal the prieſt cōmaunde yͤ he whiche is to be clenſed, brynge two liuynge byrdes and cleane, and cedar wood, and purple cloth, and yſope. And yͤ preaſt ſhal cōmaūde that one of the byrdes be kylled in an earthē veſſel, ⁊ vpō renning water. And he ſhall take yͤ liuyng birde wͭ the cedar wood, the purple ⁊ the yſope, and ſhall dip them and the liuing birde in the bloude of the ſlayne byrde, vpon the rennyng water, and ſprynkle vpon him (that muſt be clenſed of his leproſye) ſeuen tymes, and clenſe him, ⁊ ſhall lette yͤ liuing byrde goe fre into yͤ felde.

And he that is clenſed, ſhal waſhe his clothes, and ſhaue of all his heare, and waſhe him ſelfe in water, that he maye be cleane. And after that ſhall he come into the hooſt, ⁊ ſhal tary without his tent ſeuen dayes, but in yͤ ſeuenth day he ſhall ſhaue of all his heare, namely, his heade, his bearde, and his browes: euen all his heare ſhalbe ſhauē of. And he ſhall waſhe his clothes and his fleſh in water, and he ſhalbe cleane.

In the eyght daye he ſhall take two lambes without blemyſhe, and an ewe lambe of a yere olde without blemiſhe, and thre tenth deales of fyne floure for a* meate offeryng myngled with oyle and a logge of oyle. And the preaſt that maketh him cleane, ſhal bryng the man that is to be made cleane, ⁊ thoſe thinges, before the LORDE, euen before the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And the preaſt ſhall take one lambe, ⁊ offer him for treſpace, and the logge of oyle, and waue them before the LORD. And he ſhal ſle the lambe in the place where the ſynne offering ⁊ the burnt offering are ſlayne, euē in the holy place. For as the ſynne offering is, euen ſo is yͤ treſpace offeryng the Preaſtes: ſeyng it is moſt holy. And the preaſt ſhall take of the bloude of the treſpace offering, and put it vpon the typ of the righte eare of him that is to be clenſed, and vpon the thumbe of his right hande, ⁊ vpon the great too of his right foote.

The preſt ſhal take of yͤ logge of oyle, ⁊ powre it into yͤ palme of his lefte hāde, ⁊ dyp his righte fynger in the oyle that is in his lefte hande, and ſprynkle of the oyle with his finger ſeuen tymes before the LORDE. And of the reſt of the oyle that is in his hande, ſhal the preaſt put vpon the typpe of the right eare of him that is for to be clenſed, and vpon the thumbe of his right hande, and vpō the great too of his right fote, euen vpon the bloude of yͤ treſpace offering. And the remnaunt of the oyle that is in the preaſtes hande, he ſhall powre vpō the heade of him that is for to be clenſed: ⁊

And the preaſt ſhall offer the ſynne offeryng, and make an attonement for him that is to be clenſed, for his vncleneſſe. And then ſhall he kyll the burnte offeringe, and the preaſt ſhall offer the burnt offering and the meate offringe vpon the aultar: & the preaſt ſhal make an attonement for him, and he ſhalbe cleane. Leui. 5. b. *If he be poore, & can not get ſo muche, he ſhall take one lambe for a treſpace offering to waue it for his clēſynge, and a tenth deale of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meat offering, and a logge of oyle, and two turtyl doues, or two yonge pygeons, ſuche as he is able to get, wherof yͭ one ſhalbe for ſynne, and the other for a burnte offerynge. And he ſhal bryng them yͤ eight daye for his clenſinge vnto the preaſte before yͤ dore of the tabernacle of wytnes before the LORDE.

D And the prieſt ſhal take yͤ lambe that is for the treſpas, and yͤ logge of oyle, and ſhal waue them before the LORD. And he ſhal kil yͤ lambe for yͤ treſpas, and the preaſt ſhall take of the bloude of the treſpas offering, and put it vpon the tippe of his right eare that is to be clenſed, & vpon the thumbe of his right hande, and vpon the great too of hys right fote. And the preaſt ſhal powre of the oyle into his righte hande, and the preaſt ſhall with his fynger ſprinkle of the oyle that is in his lefte hande, ſeuen tymes before the LORD. And yͤ preaſt ſhall put of the oyle that is in his hand vpō yͤ tippe of yͤ right ear of him yͭ is to be clenſed, & vpō yͤ thumbe of his right hande and vpon the greate too of his right fote: euen in the place wher the bloude of yͤ treſpas offringe was put.

And the reſt of the oyle that is in the Preaſtes hande, he ſhall put vpon the heade of him that is to be clenſed: that he maye make an attonement for hym before the LORD. And he ſhal offer one of the turtyll doues: or of yͤ yonge pygeons: ſuche as he can get: the one for a ſynne offering, & the other for a burnt offering, with the meate offering. And the preaſt ſhall make an attonemēt for him yͭ is to be clenſed before yͤ LORDE.

E This is the lawe of him in whome is yͤ plage of leproſye, and whoſe hād is not able to get that whiche pertayneth to his clenſynge. And the LORDR ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron, ſaying: when ye be come vnto the lande of Canaan whiche I geue you in poſſeſſion.

And yf I put the plage of leproſye in a houſe of the lande of your poſſeſſion, he that oweth the houſe ſhal come, and tell the preaſt, ſayinge: me thinke that there is as it wer a leproſye in yͤ houſe. And the preaſt ſhall commaunde them to emptye the houſe before yͤ Preaſt go in to it to ſe the plage: that al that is in the houſe be not made vncleane, & then muſt the preaſte go in to ſe the houſe. yf the preaſt alſo ſe that the plage is in the walles of the houſe, and that there be holowe ſtrakes, pale or red whiche ſeme to be lower then the wall it ſelfe, yͤ preaſt ſhall go out at yͤ houſe doores, and ſhut vp the houſe ſeuen daies. And the preaſt ſhal come againe the ſeuenth daye, & yf he ſe that the plage be increaſed in the walles of the houſe, yͤ preaſte ſhall commaunde them to take awaye the ſtones in whiche the plage is, and let them caſte them in to a foule place without the citie, and he ſhall cōmaūde the houſe to be ſcraped within roūde about, & powre out yͤ duſte (yͭ they ſcrape of) without yͤ citie into a foule place.

F And they ſhall take other ſtones, and putte them in the places of thoſe ſtones, & other morter, to playſter yͤ houſe withall. And yf the plage come againe and breake out in the houſe, after that he hath taken awaye the ſtones & ſcraped the walles of the houſe, and after yͭ he hath playſtred the houſe a newe: the preaſt ſhal come and ſe it. And if he perceaue that the plage hath growen further in the houſe, it is a fretting leproſy in the houſe. It is therfore vncleane. And he ſhal breake downe the houſe. And the ſtones of it, & the tymber therof, and al the morter of the houſe, ſhall he carye out of the cytie vnto a foule place. Moreouer, he that goeth into yͤ houſe all the whyle that it is ſhut vp, ſhalbe vncleane vntil the euen. He that ſlepeth in the houſe ſhal waſhe his clothes: he likewiſe yͭ eateth in yͤ houſe, ſhal waſhe his clothes.

G And yf the preaſt come and ſe, that the plage hath ſpred no further in the houſe (after that it is new plaſtered) yͤ preaſt ſhal iudge yͤ houſe cleane, becauſe the plage is healed. And let him take to clenſe the houſe withal, two byrdes, cedar wood, purple cloth and yſope. And he ſhall kyll one of the byrdes in an earthen veſſell, and vpon runnynge water: and take the cedar woode, and the yſope, and the purple wyth the lyuyng byrde, and dyppe thē in the bloud of the ſlayne byrd, and in the runnyng water, & ſprinkle the houſe ſeuē tymes, and clenſe the houſe with the bloud of the byrde, and wyth the runnyng water, with the liuyng byrde, with the cedar woode and the yſope, and the purple cloth. But he ſhall let the lyuinge byrde flee out of the towne into yͤ brod feldes, & ſo make an attonement for the houſe, and it ſhalbe cleane. This is the lawe for all maner plage of leproſye, & breakyng out, & of the leproſye of cloth and houſe, for a ſwellyng, for a ſcabbe, and for a whyte blyſter. To teach whē it muſt be made vncleane and cleane. This is the lawe of leproſye.

A AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, and Aaron, ſayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Iſraell, & ſay vnto thē: Whoſoeuer hath a runninge yſſue oute of his fleſhe, is vncleane by reaſon of that yſſue. And thys ſhal be yͤ token of hys vnclenneſſe in hys yſſue, whē he is vncleane. Yf hys fleſhe rūne, or yf his fleſhe congele by the reaſon of his yſſue, then is it vnclennes. Euerye couche wheron he lyeth that hathe the yſſue, is vncleane, and euerye thynge wheron he ſytteth, is vncleane: Whoſoeuer toucheth his couche, ſhal waſhe hys clothes, and bath hym ſelfe in water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen. And he yͤ ſytteth on any thyng wheron he ſat that hathe the yſſue, ſhall waſhe his clothes and bath himſelfe in water, and be vncleane vntyll the euenynge. He that toucheth the fleſhe of him that hath the yſſue, ſhall waſhe his clothes, & bath hymſelfe in water, & be vncleane vnto the euen. If he alſo that hathe the yſſue, ſpyt vpon hym that is cleane, he ſhall waſhe his clothes, and bath hym ſelfe in water, & be vncleane vntyl euē. And what horſe harneſſe ſo euer he ri-B deth vpon that hath the yſſue, ſhall be vnclean. And whoſoeuer toucheth any thynge that was vnder hym, ſhall be vncleane vnto the euen. And he that beareth any ſuche thinges, ſhal waſhe his clothes, & bath himſelfe in water, & be vncleane vnto the euen. And whoſo euer he toucheth that hathe the yſſue (& haue not fyrſte waſhed his handes in water) ſhall waſhe his clothes, and bath himſelfe in water, and be vnclean vnto the euen. * The veſſell of earthe that he toucheth, which hath the yſſue, Leuit.6.d. and.11.f ſhalbe broken: and all veſſels of wood ſhalbe rynſed in water. When he alſo that hathe any yſſue, is clenſed of hys yſſue, he ſhall nomber ſeuen dayes for his clenſyng, and waſhe his clothes, & bath hys fleſhe in runnyng water, and ſo ſhall he be cleane.

And the eyght daye he ſhal take vnto hym two turtyl doues or two yonge pygeons, and come before the LORDE vnto the dore of the tabernacle of witnes, and geue them vnto yͤ prieſte. And the pryeſt ſhall offer them: the one for a ſynne offeryng, & the other for burnt offeryng: and yͤ prieſt ſhall make an attonement for hym before the LORDE, as concernyng hys yſſue. Yf any mans ſede departe from hym in hys ſlepe, he ſhall waſhe his fleſhe in water, and be vncleane vntyll euen. And all the clothes and all yͤ furres wherin is ſuche ſede of ſlepe, ſhall be waſhed with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And yf he that hathe ſuche an yſſue of ſede, do lye wͭ a woman, they ſhall both waſhe them ſelues with water, and be vncleane vntyll euen.

C Yf a womans natural courſe of bloud do runne, ſhe ſhall be put a parte ſeuen dayes: whoſoeuer toucheth her, ſhalbe vnclene vnto the euen. And all that ſhe lyeth vpon, in the tyme of her naturall dyſeaſe, ſhalbe vncleane: lyke as euery thyng alſo that ſhe ſytteth vpon, is vncleane. Whoſoeuer toucheth her bed, ſhall waſhe his clothes, and bath hym ſelfe wyth water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: And whoſoeuer toucheth any thing that ſhe ſat vpon, ſhal waſhe his clothes, and bath hym ſelfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: ſo yͭ whether he touch her couch, or any veſſell wheron ſhe hathe ſytten he ſhalbe vncleane vnto the euen. * And yf a mā Leuit.18.c. lye wyth her, and her vnclennes come vpon hym, he ſhall be vncleane ſeuen dayes, and all the couche whereon he lyeth ſhalbe vncleane.

Math.9.c D * When a womans bloude runneth longe tyme, out of the tyme of her naturall courſe: or yf it runne beyond her naturall courſe, let all the dayes of the yſſue be iudged vncleane, euen as the dayes of her naturall dyſeaſe. And ſhe ſhal be vncleane. All her couches wheron ſhe lieth (as lōg as her yſſue laſteth) ſhalbe as her couche whē ſhe hath her naturall diſeaſe. And what ſo euer ſhe ſytteth vpon, ſhalbe vncleane, as is her vnclennes when ſhe is put aparte.

And whoſoeuer toucheth any of theſe, ſhalbe vncleane, and ſhall waſſhe hys clothes, and bath himſelfe in water, ⁊ be vncleane vnto euen. And after that ſhe is clenſed of her yſſue, ſhe ſhal coūt her ſeuen daies, and after that, ſhe ſhal be cleane. In yͤ eyght day ſhe ſhall take vnto her two turtyls or two yonge pygeons, and brynge them vnto yͤ prieſte before the doore of the Tabernacle of wytneſſe. And the pryeſt ſhall offer the one for a ſynne offeryng, and the other for a burnt offerynge: and make an atonement for her before the LORDE, as concerning the yſſue of her vnclennes. Therfore ſhall ye ſeperate the chyldrē of Iſraell from theyr vnclenneſſe, that they dye not in theyr vnclennes: if they defyle my habitacion that is amonge them. This is the lawe of hym yͭ hathe a runnyng yſſue, and of him whoſe ſede runneth from hym in hys ſlepe, and is defyled therein, and of her, that (for her naturall diſeaſe) is put a parte, and of whoſoeuer hath a running yſſue: whether it be man or woman, and of hym that lyeth wyth her which is vnclean.

A Leuit.10.a AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, * after the death of the two ſonnes of Aaron, when they offered before the LORDE, and dyed: And he ſayde vnto Moſes: ſpeake vnto Aaron thy brother, that he come not at all tymes into the holye place within the vayle before the mercyſeate, whiche is vpon the arke, that he dye not. For I 3.Reg.8.b wyll appeare in the * cloude vpon the mercyſeate. But with thys thyng ſhal Aaron come into the holye place: euen with a bullocke for ſynne, and wyth a ramme for a burnt offerynge. He ſhall put the holy lynnen albe vpon him, and ſhall haue the lynnen bryche vpon hys fleſhe, and ſhalbe gyrded with a lynnē gyrdell, and put the lynnen mytre vpō his head: Theſe are yͤ holy garmentes: therefore ſhall he waſſhe hys fleſhe in water, when he doeth put them on.

And he ſhall take of the multitude of yͤ chyldren of Iſraell, two he goates for ſynne, and a ram for a burnt offeringe. Hebr And Aaron ſhall offer hys bullocke for B ſynne, * and make an attonemente for him, and for his houſe. And he ſhal take the two goates, and preſente them before the LORDE at the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnes. And Aaron ſhall caſt lottes ouer the two goates: one lot ſhalbe for the LORD, and the other for the ſcapegoate. And Aaron ſhal bryng the goate vpon which the LORDES lot fell, and offer hym for ſynne. But the goate on whiche the lotte fell to ſcape, ſhalbe ſet alyue before the LORDE, to reconcyle with, and to let hym go (as a ſcape goate) free into the wyldernesſe. And Aaron ſhal bring his bullocke for ſinne, ⁊ reconcyle for him ſelfe, ⁊ for hys houſe, ⁊ ſhal kyl his bullocke for ſynne.

C And he ſhall take a cenſer ful of burnyng coles oute of the altar before the LORDE, and ſhall fyll hys handfull of ſwete cenſe beaten ſmall, and brynge them within the vayle, and put yͤ cenſe vpon the fyre before the LORDE: that yͤ cloude of the cens maye couer the mercyſeate that is vpon the wytnes, ⁊ that Hebr and.10 he dye not. And he ſhal * take of yͤ bloud of the bullocke, and ſprinkle it with his fynger vpon the mercyſeate eaſtward: and before yͤ mercyſeate ſhal he ſprynkle of the bloude with hys fynger ſeuen tymes. Then ſhal he kyl the goate that is the peoples ſynne offeryng, ⁊ bryng his bloude within the vayle, ⁊ do with that bloud, as he dyd with the bloud of the bullocke, ſprynklynge it vpon the mercyſeate, and before the mercyſeate. And he ſhall reconcile the holye place from the vnclenneſſes of yͤ chyldren of Iſrael, and from theyr treſpaces in all theyr ſynnes. And ſo ſhall he do for the tabernacle of wytnes that is ſet amōg them, euen among theyr vnclenneſſe.

Luke.1 D * And let there be no bodye in yͤ Tabernacle of wytnes, when he goeth in to make an attonemente in the holye place, vntyll he come oute. And let hym make an attonement for him ſelfe and for his houſholde, & for all the multytude of Iſraell. And he ſhal go out vnto the altar that is before the LORDE, and reconcyle vpon it, and ſhall take of the bloud of yͤ bullocke, and of yͤ bloude of the goate, and put it vpō the hornes of the altar rounde aboute, & ſprinkle of the bloude vpon it wyth hys fynger ſeuen tymes, and clenſe it, and halowe it from the vnclenneſſes of the children of Iſrael. Hebr. B And when he hath made an ende of reconcilynge the holye place, & the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and the altar, he ſhall brynge the lyue goate: and Aaron ſhall put both his handes vpon the head of the lyue goate, and confeſſe ouer hym all the myſdedes of the chyldren of Iſraell, and al theyr treſpaces, E in all their ſynnes, puttyng them vpon the head of the goate, and ſende hym awaye (by the hande of a conuenyente man) into the wyldernes. And yͤ goate ſhall beare vpon him all their myſdedes vnto the wyldernes, and he ſhal let the goate go free into the wyldernes.

And Aaron ſhall come into the tabernacle of wytnes, and put of the lynnen clothes which he put on (when he wēt C in into the holy place) & leaue thē there. And let him waſhe his fleſhe with water in the holy place, & put on his owne rayment, and then come oute, and offer his burnt offeryng, and the burnt offeryng of yͤ people, & make an attonemēt for him ſelfe, and for the people, and yͤ Hebre. nd.10 fat of the ſynne offeryng ſhal he burne vpon the altar.

F And he that caryed forth the goate to Azazell, ſhal waſhe his clothes, & bath his fleſhe in water, and then come into the hooſt. And the bullocke whiche is for ſynne, and the goate that is for ſyn, (whoſe bloud was brought in, to clēſe the holy place) ſhal one carye out with out the hooſt to be burnt in the fyre, wͭ their ſkinnes, theyr fleſhe & their dūge. And he that burneth them ſhal waſhe his clothes, and bath his fleſhe in water, and then come into the hoſte. And this ſhalbe an ordynaunce for euer vnto you that in yͤ tenth day of the ſeuēth moneth ye humble your ſoules, and do no worke at all, whether it be one of D your ſelues or a ſtraunger that ſoiourneth amonge you, for that day ſhal the prieſt make an attonemente for you to clēſe you, & that ye may be cleane frō al your ſynnes before the LORDE. Let it be a Sabboth of reſt vnto you, & ye ſhal humble your ſoules, by an ordynaunce for euer. And the prieſt that is anoynted, G and whoſe hande was conſecrated (to miniſter in his fathers ſteade) ſhall make the attonement, and ſhall put on the lynnen clothes and holy veſtimentes, and reconcyle the holy ſanctuarye and the Tabernacle of wytnes, & ſhall clenſe the altar, & make an attonement then for the prieſtes and for al yͤ people of the congregacion. And this ſhalbe an *euerlaſting ordynaunce vnto you, that he make an attonement for yͤ children of Iſrael for al their ſynnes once a yere: and he dyd as the LORDE commaunded. Exod. 30. b

¶ A lawe for the prieſtes.

A AND the LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes, ſpeake vnto the prieſtes the ſonnes of Aaron, and ſay vnto thē.
Let none be defyled vpon a ſoule amōg hys people: but vpō hys kynſman that is nye vnto hym: vpon his father, and his mother, vpon ſonne and doughter, and hys brother, and on hys ſyſter a mayde that is nye vnto hym, whom no man hath knowen, vpon her ſhal he be defyled. But he ſhall not be defiled vpon B him that hath auctoritie among, his people, to polute him ſelfe for him. Let them not make * baldnes vpon their Leuit.19.f heade, nor ſhaue of the lockes of theyr bearde, nor make any markes in theyr fleſhe. They ſhall be holye vnto their GOD, and not polute the name of theyr GOD, for the ſacrifices of the LORDE which are as the breade of their GOD they do offer: therfore they ſhalbe holy.
*Let them not take a wyfe that is an 1.Tim.2.b aduoutreſſe, or poluted, nor put frō her huſband: for ſuch a one is holy vnto his GOD. Thou ſhalte ſanctifie hym therfore, for he offereth vp the breade of thy GOD: he ſhal therfore be holy vnto the, for I the LORDE whiche ſanctifye you am holy. If a Prieſtes doughter fal to playe ỹ whore, ſhe poluteth her father: therfore muſt ſhe be burnt with fyre.
He that is the hye pryeſte amonge hys brethren, vpon whoſe heade the anointynge oyle was powred, and that conſecrated his hand to put on ỹ veſtimētes, ſhal not vncouer his head, nor rēt his clothes, *nether go to anye deade Luke.9.g. body, nor make hym ſelfe vncleane on C hys father or his mother, neyther ſhall go out of the ſanctuary, nor polute the holy place of his GOD: for the croune of the anoyntyng oyle of his GOD, is vpon him: I am the LORDE. * He ſhal Eze.44.f take a mayde vnto his wife: but a widowe, a deuorſed woman, or an harlot, ſhall he not marye. But ſhall take a mayde of his own people to wyfe. Nether ſhall he defyle his ſede among his people: for I am the LORDE whyche ſanctifie hym.

And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto Aaron, & ſay. D Whoſoeuer of thy ſede in theyr generacions hathe any deformitie, let hym not preace for to offer breade vnto hys GOD. *For whoſoeuer hathe any blemyſhe, 2.Reg.5.b. ſhall not come nere, as yf he be blynde or lame, or that hathe a bruſed noſe, or that hath any myſſhapē membre, or is broken foted, or broken handed or haue no heare on hys eye browes, or haue a web or other blemyſhe in hys eyes, or be maūgie, or ſkauld, or hath his ſtones broken. No man that hathe a blemyſhe, and is of the ſede of Aaron the prieſt, ſhal come nye to offer the ſacrifyces of the LORDE. When he hath hath a deformitie, let him not preace to offer yͤ bread of his GOD. Let him eate yͤ bread of his GOD: euē of yͤ moſt holy ⁊ of yͤ holy: Onely let him not go in vnto the vayle, nor come nye the aultar, whē he is deformed, that he polute not my ſanctuarye, for I am the LORDE that ſanctifie them. And Moſes tolde it vnto Aaron and to his ſonnes, ⁊ vnto al the children of Iſrael.

¶ Who ought to abſtayne from eatyug the thinges that were offered. Howe/what and when they ſhould be offered.

AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: Speake vnto Aaron ⁊ hys ſonnes, that they be ſeperated from the holy thynges of the chyldren of Iſraell, and that they polute not my holy name in thoſe thinges, which they halowe vnto me: I am the LORDE. Saye vnto them: whoſoeuer he be of al your ſede amonge youre generacyons after you, that goeth vnto the holye thynges whiche the children of Iſrael halowe vnto the LORDE, hauinge hys vnclenneſſe vpon him: that ſoule ſhall peryſſhe from oute of my ſyghte. I am the LORDE.

Leuit.15.a * What man ſo euer of the ſede of Aaron is a leaper: or hath a runnynge yſſue, he ſhall not eate of the holy thinges vntyll he be cleane. And who ſo toucheth any man that is vncleane ouer the ſoule of the deade, or a manne whoſe ſede runneth from hym in hys ſlepe: or whoſoeuer touchethe anye worme, whereby he maye be made vncleane, or a man, of whome he maye take vnclenneſſe (whatſoeuer vnclennes he hath) the ſame ſoule that hathe touched any ſuche, ſhalbe vncleane vntyll euen, and ſhall not eate of the holy thynges, vntyll he haue waſſhed hys fleſhe wͭ water. And when the ſunne is downe, he ſhall be cleane, and ſhall afterwarde eate of the holye thynges: Exod.22.1 B for aſmuche as it is his foode. * Of a beaſt that dyeth alone, or is rent wyth wylde beaſtes (wherby he maye be defyled) he ſhall not eate. I am yͤ LORD. Lette them kepe therefore myne ordynaunce, leſt they for the ſame, lade ſyn vpon them, and dye for it, if they defile it. I the LORDE ſanctifie them.

There ſhall no ſtraunger eate of the holye thynge, neyther a geſte of the Prieſtes, neither ſhal an hyred ſeruaūt eate of the holy thynge. But yf yͤ prieſt bye any ſoule with money, he ſhall eate of it, lyke as he yͭ is borne in hys houſe, ſhal they eate of his bread. If yͤ prieſtes doughter alſo be maryed vnto a ſtraūger, ſhe maye not eate of the halowed heue offerynges. Notwythſtandynge if yͤ prieſtes doughter be a wydowe, or deuorſed and haue no childe, but is retourned vnto her fathers houſe again, ſhe ſhall eate of her fathers breade, as well as ſhe dyd in her youth. But there ſhall no ſtraunger eate therof. If a mā eate of the holy thynge vnwyttyngly, he ſhall put the fyfte parte therunto, ⁊ geue it vnto the Prieſt with the halowed thyng. And the Prieſtes ſhall not defyle the holy thynges of the children of Iſraell, (whiche they offer vnto the LORDE) to lade them ſelues with miſdoynge and treſpaſſe whyle they eate theyr holye thynges, for I the LORDE do halowe them. C And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto Aaron and his ſonnes, and vnto al the chyldren of Iſrael, and ſaye vnto them: A What ſo euer he be of the houſe of Iſraell, or ſtraunger in Iſrael, that wyll offer his ſacrifyce for all his vowes, ⁊ for all hys frewylofferynges whiche Exod.23.b they wyll offer vnto the LORDE: for a burnt offerynge ye ſhal offer (to reconcyle youre ſelues) a male without blemyſſhe of the oxen, of the ſhepe, or of the goates. But whatſoeuer hathe a blemiſſhe, that ſhall ye not offer, for ye ſhal get no fauoure therwith. And whoſoeuer bryngeth a peace offeryng vnto yͤ LORD (accordyng as he is appointed:) Exod.12.c Num.28.c or a vowe, or a free wyll offerynge, in oxe or ſhepe that is without deformytie, he ſhalbe accepted. Exo.12.b. There ſhall be alſo no blemyſſhe therin: blynde or broken, or wounded, or haue a wenne, or be maungie, or ſcabbed. ye ſhall not offer ſuche vnto the LORDE, nor put an B offerynge of any ſuche vpon the aultar vnto the LORD. D An oxe or a ſhepe that hath anye membre oute of proporcion, mayſte thou offer for a frewil offering, but for a vowe it ſhall not be accepted. Num.15.a ye ſhall not offer vnto the LORDE that whiche is broſed or broken, or plucked out, or cut awaye, neyther ſhal ye make anye ſuche in youre lande, neyther of a ſtraungers hande ſhall ye offer breade vnto your GOD of any ſuche. Becauſe theyr corrupciō is in them, & they haue deformitie in thē ſelues, & therfore ſhal they not be accepted for you. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: when an Oxe, or a ſhepe, or a goate is brought furth, it ſhalbe ſeuen daies vnder yͤ dam. And frō the eyght day forth, it ſhalbe accepted for a ſacrifice vnto yͤ LORD. And whether it be oxe or ſhepe, ye ſhal not kyll it, and her yonge bothe in one day. Whē ye wyl offer a thanke offering vnto the LORDE, offer it that ye may be accepted. And the ſame day it muſte be eaten vp, ſo yͭ ye leaue none of it vntyl the morowe. I am yͤ LORD.

Therfore ſhall ye kepe my cōmaundementes & do them. I am the LORDE.
Neyther ſhal ye pollute my holy name, but I wyl be halowed among the children of Iſrael. I am the LORD whych halowe you, and that brought you out of the lāde of Egipte, to be your GOD: C I am the LORDE.

¶ The.xxiii.Chapter.

Of the holy dayes/that they ſhulde kepe.

A AND the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto the chyldrē of Iſrael, & ſay vnto them: Theſe are my feaſtes: euē the feaſtes of yͤ LORD, Exod.23.b whych ye ſhall call holy conuocacions.
*Sixe dayes ye ſhal worke, but the ſeuenth daye is the Sabboth of reſte, an holy conuocacion: ſo yͭ ye do no worke therin, it is the Sabboth of the LORD, in all your dwellynges. Theſe are the feaſtes of the LORD, euen holy conuocacions, whyche ye ſhall proclayme in theyr ceaſons. In the .xiiii. daye of the fyrſt moneth at euen is the LORDES Exod.12.c *paſſeouer. And on the fyfteneth daye Num.28.c of the ſame moneth is yͤ feaſte of ſwete Exo.12.b. breade vnto the LORD: ſeuen dayes ye muſte eate vnleuened breade. *In the fyrſt daye ye ſhal haue an holy conuocacion: ye ſhall do no laborious worke B therin. But ye ſhall offre ſacrifyces vnto the LORDE thorow out thoſe ſeuen dayes, and in the ſeuenth day is an holy D cōuocacion: ye ſhal do no laborious worke therin. And yͤ LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto the childrē Num.15.c of Iſrael, & ſay vnto them *when ye be come into the lande (which I geue vnto you) & reape down the harueſt therof, ye ſhal bring a ſheafe of the fyrſt frutes of youre harueſt vnto the Prieſt, whych ſhall waue the ſheafe before the LORD to be accepted for you: & euē the morowe after the Sabboth, the Prieſt ſhal waue it. And ye ſhal offer that day when ye waue the ſheafe, an he lambe without blemyſhe, of a yeare olde, for a burnt offeryng vnto the LORDE: & the meatoffring therof, ſhalbe made of two tenth deales of fyne floure mingled wͭ oyle, to be a ſacrifice vnto the LORDE for a ſwete ſauoure: & the drinke offeryng therof ſhalbe of wyne, euen the rammes, whych ſhal ſerue for a burntofferyng vnto yͤ LORD, wͭ meatoffrynges & theyr drinkofferinges, to be a ſacrifice for a ſwete ſauour vnto yͤ Lord.

Then ye ſhall offer an he goote for a D ſynofferyng: & .ii. lābes of one yere olde for a peace offerynge. And yͤ prieſt ſhall waue thē wͭ yͤ bread of the fyrſte frutes before yͤ LORD, & with the two lābes.
And theſe holy thinges of yͤ LORD, ſhal be the prieſtes. And ye ſhall proclayme the ſame day, yͭ it may be an holy cōuocaciō vnto you: ye ſhal do no laborious worke therin: let it be a law for euer in al your dwellynges, & in al your generacions.
*And when you reape downe Leui.19.b your harueſt thou ſhalt not make clene Deut.24.d make any after gatherynge of thy harueſt: but ſhalt leaue it vnto the poore & the ſtraūger. I am yͤ LORD your God.

And yͤ Lord ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto the chyldrē of Iſrael, and
ſay. In the ſeuenth moneth, in the fyrſt

Num.29.a daye of the moneth ſhall ye haue reſte, *euen the remembraunce of blowyng, E an holy cõuocacion: ye ſhal do no laborious worke therin, but offer ſacrifice vnto the LORD. And the LORD ſpake Leui.16.f. vnto Moſes, ſaying: the*tenth day alſo of the ſelfe ſeuenth moneth is a daye of recõcylyng, therfore ſhal it be an holy conuocacion vnto you, and ye ſhall humble your ſoules, and offer ſacrifice vnto the LORDE. ye ſhall do no worke the ſame daye, for it is a daye of reconcilyng, to make an attonement for you before the LORDE your GOD.

For what ſo euer ſoule it be that hũbleth not hym ſelfe that daye, he ſhalbe deſtroyed frõ amonge hys people. And what ſo euer ſoule do ani maner worke yͤ daye, yͤ ſame ſoule wil I deſtroy from amonge his people. ye ſhall do maner worke therfore: Let it be a lawe for euer in your generacions, and in al your dwellynges. Let it be vnto you a Sabboth of reſte, and ye ſhal humble youre ſoules in the nynthe day of the moneth at euen: from euen to euen ſhall ye reſte in your Sabboth.

F And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, and ſay: Nu.29.b [illegible] [illegible] * the fyftenth daye of the ſame ſeuenth moneth is the feaſt of tabernacles, ſeuen dayes vnto yͤ LORD. The fyrſt day is an holy cõuocacion: ye ſhall do no laborious worke. Seuen dayes ye ſhall offre ſacrifice vnto the LORD, ⁊ in yͤ eyght day ſhalbe an holy cõuocacion vnto you, ⁊ ye ſhal offer ſacrifices vnto the LORD. It is yͤ collection, ⁊ ye ſhall do no laborious worke therin. Theſe are yͤ feaſtes of the Lord, whiche ye ſhall call holye conuocacions, for to offer ſacrifice vnto the Lord, burnt offeryng, meate offeryng, peace offering, and drynke offerynges, euery day his due ſacrifice beſide the Sabbothes of the Lord, ⁊ beſid your giftes, beſide al your vowes, ⁊ al your frewil offeringes, which ye geue vnto yͤ LORD.

G Moreouer in the fiftenth day of the ſeuenth moneth, whẽ ye haue gathered in the frute of the lande, ye ſhall kepe holye day vnto the LORD ſeuen dayes. The fyrſte daye ſhal be as a Sabboth: lykewyſe in the eyght daye ſhalbe the reſte of the Sabboth. And ye ſhall take you in the fyrſte daye, the frutes of goodly trees, braunches of Palme trees, and yͤ boughes of thycke trees, and wyllowes of the brooke, and ſhall reioyce before the LORDE your GOD ſeuen dayes. And ye ſhall kepe this feaſte vnto yͤ LORD .vii. dayes in the yere. It ſhalbe a lawe for euer in your generacions, yͤ ye kepe it in the ſeuenth moneth. ye ſhal dwel in boothes .vii. daies euen al that are Iſraelites borne, ſhall dwell in boothes, that your childrẽ after you may knowe how yͤ I made the children of Iſraell to dwell in boothes, whẽ I brought them out of the land of Egipt: I am the LORDE your GOD. And Moſes ſpake vnto the children of Iſrael, cõcerning yͤ feaſtes of yͤ LORD.

The oyle for the lampes. He that curſeth muſt be ſtoned He that kylleth ſhalbe kylled.

AND the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying*commaund the children of Iſrael that they brig vnto the, puer oile oliue beaten for lightes, to cauſe the lampes to burne alwaie: without yͤ vayle of witneſſe: in the tabernacle of witneſſe ſhall Aaron dreſſe them both euen and morning before the LORD alwayes. Let it be a lawe for euer in your generacions. He ſhal dreſſe the lampes vpon the pure candelſtycke before the LORD perpetually. And thou ſhalte take fine floure, and bake twelue waſtels therof, two tenth deales ſhal be in one waſtel. And thou ſhalte ſet them in two rowes, ſyxe on a rowe vpõ the puer table before the LORD, and put puer frãkenſence vpon the rowes, yͤ thei may be breade of remembraunce, and an offering to the LORD. Euery Sabbothe he ſhall putte them in rowes before the LORD euermore: of yͤ children of Iſraell ſhal they be offered for an euerlaſtig couenaũt. *And they ſhalbe Aarons ⁊ his ſonnes, which ſhal eate them in the holy place. For they are moſt holy vnto him of yͤ offerings of the LORDE, by a perpetuall ſtatute. And yͤ ſon of an Iſraelytiſche wife, whoſe father was an Egiptian, wẽt out among yͤ children of Iſraell. And this ſonne of the Iſraelitiſhe wyfe, and a man of Iſraell ſtroue together in the hoſte.

And the Iſraelytyſhe womans ſonne *blaſphemed the name of the LORDE and * curſed, ⁊ they brought him vnto Moſes. His mothers name was Salomith, lomith, which was the doughter of Dibri: of yͤ trybe of Dan: ⁊ they * put hym Num.15.d in ward, that the mynde of the LORDE myght be ſhewed them. And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes ſaying: bryng yͤ curſed ſpeaker without the hoſte, C ⁊ let all that herde hym, put theyr handes vpon his head, and let al the multitude ſtone hym. And thou ſhalte ſpeake vnto the children of Iſrael, ſaying: Who ſo euer curſeth his GOD ſhal beare his ſynne. And he that blaſphemeth the name of the LORD, let him be ſlayne: ⁊ al yͤ multitude ſhall ſtone hym to death. Whether he be borne in the lande or a ſtraūger, when he blaſphemeth the name of D the LORD, let hym be ſlayne. Exod.21.b And * he that kylleth any man, let hym dye the death. And he that kylleth a beaſt, let hym make hym good, ſoule for ſoule.

And yf a man mayme his neyghbour, as he hathe done, ſo ſhall it be done to hym: broke for broke, Mat.5.f. * eye for eye, and Exod.21.c tothe for toth: euen as he hath maymed a man, ſo ſhal he be maymed agayne. And he that kylleth a beaſt, let him pay for it: ⁊ he that kylleth a man, let hym dye. ye ſhal haue one maner of lawe: euen for the ſtraunger aſwell as for one of your ſelues: for I am yͤ LORD your GOD. And Moſes tolde the children of Iſrael, ⁊ they brought hym (that had curſed) out of the hoſte, ⁊ ſtoned him wͭ ſtones. And the chyldren of Iſrael dyd as the LORDE commaunded Moſes.

The Sabboth of the ſeuen yeres / and of the yere of iubelye / otherwyſe called the fyftyth yere.

A AND the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes in moūt Sinai, ſaying: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, ⁊ ſay vnto them: when ye be come into the lāde whych I gyue you, the lande ſhal reſt, and kepe Sabboth vnto the LORDE. Exo.23.b. * Syxe yeres thou ſhalt ſowe thy felde ⁊ ſyxe yere thou ſhalt cut the vineyard, and gather in the frute therof. But the Deut.15.a * ſeuēth yere ſhalbe a Sabboth of reſt vnto yͤ lande. The LORDES Sabboth it ſhalbe: thou ſhalte neyther ſowe thy feld, nor cut thy vyneyard. That which groweth of yͤ owne accorde thou ſhalt not reape, neyther gather the grapes yͭ thou haſt left behynde, for it is a yere of reſt vnto the lande. And the reſte of the lāde ſhalbe meate for you: euen for the, for thy ſeruaunt: and for thy maide for thy hyred ſeruaūt, ⁊ for the ſtraunger that ſoiourneth with the: ⁊ for thy catell, ⁊ for the beaſtes that are in the lāde, ſhal al yͤ encreaſe therof be meat.

And thou ſhalt numbre ſeuen Sabbothes of the yeres vnto the, euen ſeuē B tymes ſeuē yere: and the ſpace of the ſeuen Sabbothes of yeres, wyl be vnto the nyne and fortye yere.

And then thou ſhalt make a trumpe blowe: in the tenth daye of the ſeuenth moneth, euen in the daye of attonemēt ſhal ye make yͤ trompe blowe, thorowout all your lande. And thou ſhalt halowe that yere: euen the fyftyeth yeare, and proclayme lybertie thorowout the lande, vnto al the inhabiters therof: for it ſhalbe a yere of iubely vnto you. and ye ſhall retourne euery man vnto hys poſſeſſion, and euery mā vnto hys kynred agayne. A yere of iubely ſhall that fyftyeth yere be vnto you. ye ſhall not ſowe, neyther reape that whych groweth of it ſelfe, neyther gather the grapes that are lefte.

For that yere of Iubely ſhalbe holy vnto you: but ye ſhal eate of yͤ encreaſe therof out of the felde. ¶ They are bleſſed that kepe thoſe thinges that God byddeth.

A Deut.5.a Ye ſhal* make you no ydols noꝛ grauē image, neither reare you vp any ſtone, nether ſhal ye ſet vp any ymage of ſtone in your lande to woꝛſhip it: foꝛ I am the LORDE your GOD: ye ſhal kepe my Sabbothes, and feare my ſanctuary: foꝛ I am ẏ LORD. If ye walke in myne oꝛdinaunces and kepe my commaundementes, and do them, I will ſende you rayne in ẏ right ceaſon, & the lād ſhal yelde her increaſe, and the trees of ẏ felde ſhal geue their frute. And ẏ thꝛeſſhing ſhal reache vnto the wyne haruest, and the wyne haruest ſhall reache vnto ſowynge tyme, and ye ſhall eate youre bꝛeade in plenteouſneſſe, and dwell in your lāde peaceably. And I wil ſende peace in the lande, & ye ſhal ſlepe, without any man to make you afrayde.

And I wil ryd euel beaſtes out of the lande, and there ſhall no ſwearde goe thoꝛowout your lād. And ye ſhal chaſe your enemyes, and they ſhall fal befoꝛe Joſue.23.c you vpon ẏ ſwearde.* And fyue of you ſhal chaſe an hundꝛed and an hundꝛed: of you, ſhal put ten thouſande to flyght, B and your enemyes ſhall fall befoꝛe you vpon the ſwearde. Foꝛ I wyll haue reſpecte vnto you, & make you encreaſe & multiplye you, & ſet vp my couenaunt wyth you. And ye ſhal eate olde ſtoꝛe, & 2.Co.6.c. cary out olde foꝛ the newe.* And I wil make my dwellyng place among you, & my ſoule ſhall not lothe you. I wyll walke among you: & wyl be your GOD & ye ſhalbe my people. I am the LORD your GOD, whych bꝛought you out of the lande of Egipt, that ye ſhuld not be theyꝛ bondmen, and I haue bꝛoken the cheynes of youre yoke, & made you go vpꝛyght.* But & yf ye wyll not herken Deut.28.b Mala.2.b vnto me, noꝛ wil not do after theſe cōmaundementes. And yf ye ſhal deſpyſe myne oꝛdinaūces, eyther yf your ſoule abhoꝛre my lawes, ſo that ye wyll not do al my cōmaundementes, but bꝛeake myne appointmēt, I alſo wyll do thys vnto you. Foꝛ I wyll bꝛyng vpon you fearfulneſſe, ſwellyng of bodye, and the burnyng agewe to conſume your eyes, & gender ſoꝛowe of hert. And you ſhall ſowe your ſede in vayne, foꝛ your enemyes ſhall eate it. And I wyll ſet my face agaynſt you, and ye ſhal fal befoꝛe your enemyes: and they that hate you ſhal raigne ouer you,* and ye ſhal flee, Pꝛou.28.a when no man foloweth you.

And yf ye wil not yet foꝛ al this herken vnto me, then wyll I punyſhe you C ſeuen tymes moꝛe foꝛ your ſynnes, and wyl bꝛeake the pꝛyde of youre ſtubberneſ. And I wyl make your heauen as yꝛon, & your earth as bꝛaſſe: And your labour ſhalbe ſpent in vayne. Foꝛ your land ſhal not geue her increaſe, nether ſhall the trees of the lande geue theyꝛ frutes. And ye walke cōtrary vnto me, & wyl not herken vnto me, I wyl bꝛing ſeuen tymes mo plages vpon you accoꝛdyng to your ſynnes. I wyll alſo ſende in wilde beaſtes vpon you, which ſhall robbe you of youre chyldꝛen, and deſtroye youre cattell, and make you fewe in nūbꝛe, & cauſe your hye wayes to growe vnto a wylderneſſe. And yf ye may not be refoꝛmed by theſe thynges but ſhal walke contrary vnto me, then wyl I alſo walke contrary vnto you, & wyll punyſhe you yet ſeuen tymes foꝛ D your ſynnes. And I wyl ſēde a ſwerde vpon you, that ſhall auenge my teſtament. And when ye are gathered together within your cities, I wil ſende the peſtilēce among you, and ye ſhalbe delyuered into the hande of the enemye. And yf ye wyl not yet foꝛ al this, herken vnto me, but ſhal walke agaiſt me, I wil walke contrary vnto you alſo in indignacion, and wyll chaſtyce you ſeuen tymes foꝛ

4.Re.6.g your ſynnes. * And ye ſhall eate the fleſhe of your ſonnes and the fleſhe of your doughters ſhall ye deuoure.

E I wyll deſtroye your hye places, and rote out your ymages, & caſt your carkaſſes vpon the bodies of your ydols, & my ſoule ſhal abhorre you. And I wyl make your cyties deſolate, and bringe your ſanctuary vnto nought, and wyl not ſmel the ſwetneſſe of your odours. I wyl bryng the lande vnto a wyldерneſſe, & your enemyes which dwel therin, ſhall wonder at it. And I wyl ſtrow you among the heathen, & wyll drawe out a ſwearde after you, & your lande ſhalbe waſte, and your cyties deſolate. Then ſhall the lande enioye her Sabbothes, as longe as it lyeth voyde, & ye ſhalbe in your enemies lāde: euen then ſhal yͤ lande reſte, & reioice in her Sabbothes. As longe as it lyeth voyde, it ſhal reſt, becauſe it dyd not reſt in your Sabbothes, when ye dwelt vpon it.

F And vpō them yͭ are left alyue of you, I wyl ſende a fayntneſſe into theyr hertes in the lande of theyr enemyes: and the ſoūde of a ſhakyng leafe, ſhal chaſe them, & whē they flee the ſwearde, they ſhall fall: no man folowyng vpō them. They ſhall fall one vpon an other, as it were before a ſwearde, euen no mā folowyng vpon them, and ye ſhal haue no power to ſtande before your enemyes: And ye ſhal peryſhe among yͤ heathen, & the lāde of your enemyes ſhal eat you vp. And they that are lefte of you, ſhall pyne awaye in theyr vnryghteouſnes, euē in theyr enemyes lande, & in yͤ miſdedes of theyr fathers ſhall they conſume. And they ſhal cōfeſſe theyr myſdedes & the myſdedes of theyr fathers for theyr treſpace, whych they haue treſpaced againſt me, & for yͭ alſo that they haue walked contrary vnto me. Therfore, I alſo wyll walke contrary vnto them, & wyl brynge them into the lande of theyr enemyes. And then at the leſt waye theyr vncircūciſed hertes ſhalbe tamed, & they ſhal make an attonemēt for theyr myſdedes. And * I wyl remēber my couenaūt wͭ Iacob, & my bonde wyth Iſahac, & mine appointmēt with Abrahā wyl I remember, & wil thinke on the lande. The lande ſhalbe lefte of them, and ſhall enioye her Sabbothes whyle ſhe lyeth waſt wythout them. And they ſhall make an attonemēt for theyr myſdedes, becauſe they deſpyſed my lawes, and becauſe theyr ſoule refuſed myne ordynaūces: And yet for all that when they be in the lande of theyr enemyes: * I wyl not caſt them away, nether wyll abhorre them, to deſtroye thē vtterly, & to breake myne appointment wyth them: for I am the LORDE theyr God. I wyll for theyr ſakes remembre the couenaūt made vnto their fathers whome I brought out of the lande of Egipte in the ſyght of the heathen, that I myght be theyr GOD: I am the LORDE. Theſe are the ordinaūces, & iudgemētes, & lawes, which the LORD made betwene hym and the chyldren of Iſrael in mount Sinai, by the hande of Moſes.

The .xxvii. Chapter.

Of dyuerſe vowes and of tythes etc.

A AND the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, and ſay vnto them: yf any man wyll geue a ſynguler vowe vnto the LORDE, accordyng to the value of the ſoules, the value of the male from twentye yere olde vnto ſyxtye ſhall be fyftye * ſycles of ſyluer, after yͤ weyght of the ſanctuary. And yf it be a female: the value ſhalbe thyrty ſycles. And frō fyue yeres to twentye, the male ſhalbe ſet at twenty ſycles, and the female at x. ſycles. And from a moneth vnto fyue yere, the male ſhalbe ſet at fyue ſycles of ſiluer, and the female at thre. And he that is ſyxtye yere olde, & aboue ſhall be valued at fyftene ſycles, and the woman at ten.

D But yf he be to poore ſo to be ſet he ſhal preſent hym ſelfe before yͤ prieſt: & the prieſt ſhal value him accordyng as the hande of hym that vowed is able to get, euē ſo ſhal the prieſt value hym. If it be a beaſt of whych men bryng an offeryng vnto the LORD: al yͭ any man geueth of ſuche vnto yͤ LORD ſhalbe counted holy. He ſhall not alter it nor chaūge it a good for a badde, or a bad for a good. And yf he chaūge beaſt for beaſt, then both the ſame beaſt and it alſo wherwith it was chaunged ſhal be holy. If it be any maner of vncleane beaſte, of whych men do not offer a ſacrifyce vnto the LORDE, he ſhall ſet the beaſt before the prieſt, and the prieſt ſhall value it, whyther it be good or badde. And as the prieſt ſetteth it, ſo ſhal it be. But yf he wyll bye it agayne it agayne, he ſhall geue the fyfte parte more aboue that it was ſet at. Yf any man dedycate hys houſe to be holy vnto yͤ LORDE: C the prieſt ſhall ſet it, whether it be good or bad, and as the prieſt hath ſet it, ſo ſhal yͤ value be. And whẽ he that ſanctified it wyll redeme hys houſe: let hym geue the fyft part of the money that it was iudged at therto, & it ſhalbe hys.

Yf a man halowe a pece of his enherited lande vnto the LORD: it ſhalbe ſet accordyng to yͤ ſede therof. Yf it beare an homer of berly it ſhalbe ſet at fyfty ſycles of ſyluer. Yf he halow hys felde immediatly frõ yͤ yere of iubely, it ſhall be worth accordyng as it is eſtemed. But and yf he halowe hys felde after the iubely, the prieſt ſhal reken yͤ mony accordyng to the number of yͤ yeres yͭ remayne vnto the yeres of Iubely folowing, & therafter it ſhalbe lower ſet.

Yf he that conſecrated the felde, wyl redeme it agayne, let hym put the fyfte parte of yͤ pryce yͭ it was ſet at therunto, & it ſhalbe his. And yf he wyl not redeme the felde, but ſelleth yͤ felde to an other man, he (that vowed) may redeme it nomore. But when the felde goeth out in the yere of iubely, it ſhalbe holy vnto the LORD: euẽ as a felde that is vtterly put away, & it ſhalbe the prieſtes poſſeſſion. Yf a man ſanctifie vnto the LORD a felde whych he hath bought, & is not of hys inheritaunce, yͤ prieſt ſhal reken vnto hym what it is worth vnto the yere of iubely, & he ſhal geue yͤ price D that it is ſet at, yͤ ſame daye, as a thing cõſecrated vnto the LORD. And in the yere of iubely, the felde ſhall returne vnto him of whome he bought it: euen vnto him, whoſe inheritance of lande it is. And al ſettyng ſhalbe accordyng to the ſycle*of the ſanctuarye. One ſycle conteyneth.xx.halfpens.*But the firſt borne of the beaſtes yͭ is appointed vnto the LORDE, may no man ſanctifye: whether it be oxe or ſhepe, for it is the LORDES alredy. Yf it be an vncleane beaſt, he ſhall redeme it, as it is ſet at, & geue the fyfte parte more therto: Or yf it be not redemed, it ſhalbe ſolde, accordyng to the value. Notwythſtandyng, no damned thyng that a man putteth from hym & dedicateth vnto the LORD of all hys good (whether it be man or beaſt or lande of hys inheritance) may be ſolde or redemed: for euery thyng ſo put away is moſt holy vnto the LORD. Let no damned thing that a man ſeperateth, be redemed: but dye the death. Euery tyth of the lãde whych is of the ſede of the lande, or of the frute of the trees is yͤ LORDES: and is ſanctifyed vnto the LORD. And yf a man wyll redeme ought of hys tythes: let hym ad the fyft parte therto. And euery tyth of oxe & of ſhepe & of euery beaſt yͭ goeth vnder the rod, euen euery tenth ſhal be holy vnto the LORD. He ſhal not loke yf it be good or bad, nor chaũge it. Els yf he chaũge it, both it, and that it was chaunged withal, ſhal be halowed vnto the LORD, and may not be redemed. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: Thou ſhalte not number the trybe of Leui, neyther take the ſumme of them from amonge the chyldren of Iſraell. But thou ſhalte appoynte the Leuites ouer the habitaciõ of witnes, and ouer al the veſſels therof, and ouer all thinges that are in it. yea, they ſhal beare the tabernacle and all the veſſelles therof, and they ſhall miniſter in it, and ſhall dwell rounde aboute the tabernacle. And when the tabernacle goeth forthe, the Leuites ſhall take it downe: and when the tabernacle is to be pytched, they ſhall ſette it vp: and yf any ſtraunger come nye, he ſhall dye. And the chyldren of Iſraell ſhal pytch their tentes, euerye man in hys owne companye, and euerye man vnder hys own ſtanderd thorowout theyr hoſtes. But the Leuites ſhall pytche rounde aboute the tabernacle of witneſſe, that there be no wrath vpon the congregacyon of the chyldren of Iſraell, and the Leuites ſhal kepe yͤ watche of yͤ tabernacle of wytneſſe. And the children of Iſraell dyd accordynge to all that the LORDE commaunded Moſes, euen ſo dyd they.

A AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, and Aaron, ſayinge: euery mã of the children of Iſrael ſhal pytch vnder his owne ſtanderde and vnder yͤ armes of theyr fathers houſes: on the other ſyde and rounde aboute the tabernacle of wytneſſe ſhall they pytche. On the eaſte ſyde towarde the ryſynge of the ſunne, ſhall they of the ſtanderde of the hoſt of Juda pytche thorowoute their armies: And Naheſſon the ſonne of Aminadab was captayne of the ſons of Juda. And his hoſte and the number of them: lxxiiii. thouſande & ſyxe hundred. Nexte vnto hym ſhal they that be of the tribe of Iſachar pitche: and Nathanael the ſon of Zuar was captaine of the chyldren of Iſachar: his hooſt & the ſumme of the number therof. liiii. thouſande, and foure hundred. And then the trybe of Zabulon: and Eliab yͤ ſonne of Helõ, captayne ouer the chyldren of zabulon and his hooſt, and the number of them. lvii. thouſande & foure hundred: ſo that the whole numbre of yͤ whole hooſte of Juda are an hundred thouſande. lxxxvi. thouſande, and foure hundred thorowout theyr armies: and theſe ſhall go before. On the ſouthſyde ſhal the ſtanderd of the hoſte of Ruben B kepe thorow theyr companies: and the captayne ouer the ſonnes of Ruben, was Elizur the ſonne of Sedeur. And his hoſte and the numbre of them. xlvi. thouſande and fiue hundred. And faſte by hym ſhall yͤ trybe of Simeon pytch, and the captayne ouer the ſonnes of Symeon, was Salumiel the ſonne of Zuri Sadai, and his hoſte & the number of them. lix. thouſande and three hundred. And the tribe of Gad alſo and the captayne ouer the ſonnes of Gad, was Eliaſaph the ſonne of Deguell: And his hoſte and the numbre of them xlv. thouſande ſyxe hundred and fyftie. All that were numbred with the trybe of Rubẽ: an hundred thouſand. li. thouſand foure hundred and fyftie, thorow out their armyes: and they ſhall go in the ſecond place. And the tabernacle of wytnes ſhall go with the hooſte of the Leuites, in the myddes of the hoſtes. And as they lye in theyr tentes, euen ſo ſhall they procede in the iourney, euery man in his degree, & vnder their owne ſtanderdes.

C The weſtſyde ſhall the ſtanderd of the hooſt of Ephraim kepe wͭ their armies, and the captaine ouer the ſonnes of Ephraim, was Eliſama the ſonne of Amihud: His hoſte and the numbre of them. xl. thouſande and fyue hundred. And faſte by hym, ſhalbe the trybe of Manaſſe, & the captayne ouer the ſons of Manaſſe was Gamaleel the ſonne of Pedazur. His hoſte and the nombre of them. xxxii. thouſande and two hundred. And the tribe of Ben Jamin alſo: and the captayne ouer the ſonnes of Ben Jamin was Abidan, the ſonne of Gedeoni, His hoſte and the numbre of them.xxxv.thouſande and, foure hundred.

All yͤ were appoynted wyth the hoſt of Ephraim were an hũdred thouſande, eyght thouſand and an hundred, thorowout their armies, and they ſhal go in the thyrde place. The ſtanderd of the hooſte of Dan ſhall kepe the north ſyde with their armies: and yͤ captaine ouer the children of Dan, was Ahiezer the ſonne of Ammi Sadai. Hys hooſte and the numbre of them.lxii.thouſande and ſeuen hundred.

D And faſte by hym ſhall the trybe of Aſer pytche and the captaine ouer the ſonnes of Aſer, was Pagiel the ſonne of Ocran. Hys hoſte and the number of them.xli.thouſande and fyue hundred.
And yͤ trybe of Nephthali alſo, and the captayne ouer the chyldren of Nephthali: was Ahira the ſonne of Enan.
His hoſte and the number of them.liii. thouſande and foure hundred. All they that were appoynted with the hoſte of Dan, was an hundred thouſande.lvii. thouſande and.vi.hundred. And they ſhall goe hynmoſt wᵗ theyr ſtanderdes.
Theſe are the ſummes of the chyldren of Iſraell thorowe oute the houſes of theyr fathers, euen all yͤ numbres that pytched thorowout their hooſtes, ſixe hundred thouſande thre thouſande.v. hundred and fyftie. But the Leuites were not numbred among the children of Iſrael as the LORDE commaunded Moſes. And the children of Iſrael dyd accordyng to all that the LORDE commaũded Moſes, for ſo they pytched wᵗ theyr ſtanderdes, and ſo they iurneyed thoroweout theyr kinredes ⁊ thorowout the houſholdes of theyr fathers.

❡ The.iii. Chapter.

❡ The Leuites goe not to battell/but miniſter in the ſanctuarye. They pytche theyr tentes nexte to the habitacion.

THeſe are the generacions of Aaron ⁊ Moſes, in the day that the LORDE ſpake wyth Moſes in mounte Sinai, and theſe are the names of the ſonnes of Aaron: Nadab yͤ um.16 g eldeſt ſonne Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar.
Leui.8.a *Theſe are the names of the ſons of Aaron whiche were *prieſtes anoynted, and whoſe hande was conſecrated eui.10.a to miniſter. *And Nadab and Abihu dyed before the LORDE, when they offered ſtraunge fyre before the LORDE in the wilderneſſe of Sinai, ⁊ had no children. And Eleazar ⁊ Ithamar miniſtred in the ſyghte of Aaron theyr father.

B And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: bryng the trybe of Leui, and ſet them before Aarõ the prieſt*that they Num. maye ſerue him, and wayte vpon him ⁊ and.
vpon all the multytude, before the tabernacle of witnes, to do the ſeruice of the habitacion. They ſhall kepe all the apparel of the tabernacle of wytnes, ⁊ wayte vpõ the children of Iſrael to do the ſeruice of the habitacion. And thou ſhalte geue the Leuites vnto Aaron ⁊ his ſonnes, for they are geuen: and delyuered vnto him of the children of Iſraell.
And thou ſhalte appoynte Aaron and his ſonnes to wayte on their prieſtes offyce: and the ſtraunger that cõmeth nye, ſhal be ſlayne.

C And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: beholde, I haue taken the Leuites from amonge the chyldren of Iſraell* for all the fyrſte borne that openeth the matryce amonge the chyldren Exo. of Iſrael, and the Leuites ſhalbe mine: Num. becauſe al the fyrſt borne are myne: for the ſame daye that I ſmote all the firſt borne in the lande of Egypte, I halowed vnto me all the firſte borne in Iſraell, bothe man and beaſte, and myne they ſhalbe: I am the LORDE. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, in the wilderneſſe of Sinai, ſaying: Numbre the chyldren of Leui after yͤ houſes of their fathers in theyr kynredes. All that are males, from a moneth olde and aboue ſhalte thou numbre. And Moſes numbred them, accordyng to the commaũdemente of the LORDE, and as he had commaunded. *And theſe were yͤ children Exod.6 E of Leui in theyr names: Gerſon ⁊ Cahath and Merari. And theſe are the names of yͤ children of Gerſon in their kynredes: Libni ⁊ Semei. The ſonnes of Cahath in their kynredes: Amram, Iezehar, Hebron and Oziel. And the ſonnes of Merari in theyr kynredes, Maheli and Muſi. Theſe are the kynredes of the Leuites, accordyng to the D houſes of theyr fathers. Of Gerſon came the kynred of the Libnites ⁊ the kinred of the Semeites. Theſe are the kynredes of the Gerſonites. And the ſumme of them (after the number of all the males frõ a moneth olde ⁊ aboue) was ſeuen thouſand and fyue hũdred.

And the kynredes of the Gerſonites ſhal pytch behynd the habitacion weſtwarde. The captayne and moſt auncyent of the houſe of yͤ Gerſonites, was Eliaſaph the ſonne of Lael. And vnder the kepyng of the children of Gerſon in the tabernacle of wytneſſe was yͤ habitacyon and the tente, the couerynge therof, and the hangyng of the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes, and the hangynges of the courte, and the curtaine of the doore of the courte: whiche is rounde about the Tabernacle, and the altar, and the cordes of it for al the ſeruice therof. And of Cahath came yͤ kinred of the Amramites, and the kynred of the Iezeharites: the kynred of the Hebronites, and the kinred of the Ozielites. Theſe are the kynredes of yͤ Cahathites. And yͤ number of all the males from a moneth olde ⁊ aboue, was eyght thouſand and ſyxe hundred, and theſe ſhal kepe yͤ thinges that are to be kepte in the holy place. And the kynred of the children of Cahath ſhal pitch on the ſouthſyde of the Tabernacle.

The captayne and moſt auncyent of yͤ houſe of the kynred of the Cahathites, was Eliſaphan the ſonne of Oziel, and vnder their kepyng was the arke, the table, the candelſticke, and the aulters, and al the veſſels of the ſanctuary that they miniſter in, and the vayle, ⁊ what ſoeuer belonged to the miniſtracyon therof. And Eleazar the ſonne of Aarõ the prieſt, was captayne ouer all the captaynes of the Leuites, and had the ouerſyght of them that wayted vpõ the ſanctuarye. And of Merari came the kynred of the Mahelites, and the kynred of the Muſites.

E These are the kynredes of Merari. And the ſumme of them accordynge to the numbre of all the males, frõ a moneth old and aboue was ſyxe thouſand and two hundred. The captayne and the moſte auncyent of their houſe that were of the kynred of Merari, was Zuriel the ſonne of Abihael: ⁊ theſe ſhal pytche on the northeſyde of the tabernacle. And vnder the cuſtodye of the ſonnes of Merari ſhalbe the bordes of the dwellyng, and the barres, pillers ⁊ ſockettes therof, all the veſſell therof, ⁊ all that ſerueth therto: ⁊ the pyllers of the courte rounde aboute, with theyr ſockets, theyr pynnes ⁊ theyr cordes.

But on the fore front of the habitacion before the tabernacle of witneſſe eaſtwarde ſhall Moſes and Aarõ and hys ſonnes pytche and wayte to kepe the ſanctuary, and to kepe the chyldren of Iſrael. And the ſtraunger that commeth nye, ſhalbe ſlayne. And the whole ſumme of the Leuites whiche Moſes and Aaron numbred, at the commaundement of the LORDE thorowout their kynredes (euen all the males from a moneth olde and aboue) was * .xxii. thouſande. Nu.26.g

F And the LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes: Numbre all the fyrſte borne that are males amonge the children of Iſraell (from a moneth olde and aboue) and take the number of theyr names. And thou ſhalte appoynt the Leuites to me (for I am the LORDE) for all the fyrſte borne of the children of Iſrael, and the cattell of the Leuites, for all the fyrſte gendred of the cattel of the children of Iſraell. And Moſes numbred as the LORDE commaunded him, all the firſte borne of the children of Iſraell. And al the firſt borne males reherſed by theyr names (from a moneth old and aboue, accordyng to their numbre) were .xxii. thouſande two hundred and .lxxiii.

G And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: take the Leuites for all yͤ fyrſte borne of the children of Iſraell, and the catell of the Leuites for their cattell, ⁊ the Leuites ſhall be myne. I am the LORDE. And for the redemynge of the two hundred and .lxxiii. (whiche are mo then the Leuites in the firſte borne of the children of Iſraell) take .v. ſycles of euery heade after the weyght of the Sanctuarye * the ſycle conteynynge twentye halfepens. Exo.30.b. Le.27.d. Ezec.45.d And geue the money wherwith the odde number of thẽ is redemed vnto Aarõ and his ſonnes. And Moſes toke the redempcyon money, of the ouerplus that were moe thẽ the Leuites: of the firſte borne of the children of Iſrael toke he this money: euen a thouſande three hundred ⁊ .lxv. ſycles, after the ſycle of the ſanctuary. And Moſes gaue the money of them yͭ were redemed, vnto Aarõ ⁊ his ſonnes, accordyng to the word of the LORDE, euen as the LORDE commaunded Moſes.

¶ The.iiii. Chapter.

The offyces of the Leuites.

AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, A and Aaron, ſayinge: Take the ſumme of the children of Cahath from amonge the ſonnes of Leui, after their kynredes, and houſes of their fathers (from thyrtie yere ⁊ aboue vntyl fyftie) all that are able to go furth to the warre: for to doe the woorke in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. The offyce of the children of Cahath in yͤ Tabernacle of wytneſſe, is moſte holy. And whē the hoſt remoueth, Aaron ⁊ his ſonnes ſhall come and take downe the vayle, that hangeth betwene, and wrappe the arke of witneſſe in it: ⁊ ſhal put theron a coueryng of tarus ſkynnes, and ſhal ſprede vpon it a clothe that is altogether of yelowe ſilke ⁊ put in the barres therof. And vpon the ſhewe table, they ſhall ſprede abroade a cloth of yelowe ſylke, and putte thereon the dyſſhes, ſpones, flatpeces, and pottes to powre with, and there ſhalbe breade thereon contynually: and they ſhall ſprede vpō them a coueryng of purple, and couer yͤ B ſame wͭ a coueryng of tarus ſkynnes and put in the barres therof. And they ſhall take a clothe of yelowe ſylke, and couer the candelſtycke of lyghte, wyth his lampes, tonges, and ſnoffers, and all the oyle veſſelles, whiche they occuppe aboute it: and they ſhall put both it, and all the veſſel therof within a coueryng of tarus ſkynnes, ⁊ put it vpō a barre.

And vpon the golden altar they ſhal ſpread a cloth of yelowe ſylke, and couer it with a couerynge of tarus ſkynnes, and put in the barres thereof. And they ſhall take all the thynges, (which they occupie to miniſter within yͤ holy place) and put a clothe of yelowe ſylke vpon them, and couer them with a coueryng of tarus ſkinnes, and put them on a barre.

And they ſhall take awaye the aſhes from the aultar, ⁊ ſprede a purple cloth theron: and put vpon it all the veſſelles therof that they miniſter withall: euen the cole pannes, yͤ fleſſhhokes, the ſhouels, the baſens, and the other veſſelles of the aultar, and they ſhall ſprede vpon it a coueryng of tarus ſkynnes, and put in the barres of it. And when Aarō and hys ſonnes haue made an ende of coueryng the holy thynges, and all the veſſelles of the ſanctuary (againſt that the hooſte remoue) then the ſonnes of Cahath ſhall come in for to beare, but they ſhal not touche any holye thynge, leaſt they dye. And this is the charge of the ſonnes of Cahath in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And to the offyce of Eleazar the ſonne of Aaron the prieſt, pertayneth the oyle for the lyghte, the ſwete cenſe, the dayly meate offerynge, and the anoyntyng oyle, and the ouerſyghte of all the tabernacle, and of all that therin is, both in the ſanctuarye ⁊ in all the veſſelles thereof. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron ſaying: ye ſhall not deſtroye the trybe of the kynred of the Cahathites, from C among the Leuites. But thus do vnto them, yͤ they may liue and not dye, whē they goe vnto the moſte holy thynges: Let Aaron and hys ſonnes goe in, and take them downe, to euerye one after his ſeruyce, and after his charge. But let them not goe in, to ſe when the holy D thynges are folden vp, leſt they dye.
And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: Take alſo the ſumme of yͤ children of Gerſon, thorowout the houſes of their fathers, and thorowoute theyr kynreds: from .xxx. yere ⁊ aboue, vntil fyftye ſhalte thou number them, al that are able to go forth to the warre for to do ſeruice in the tabernacle of witnes.
And this is the ſeruyce of the kynred of the Gerſonites, to ſerue and to beare.
They ſhall beare the curtaynes of the dwellyng, and the rouſe of the tabernacle of wytneſſe, his couerynge, and the coueryng of tarus ſkynnes, that is an hye aboue vpon it, and the hangyng of the dore whiche is in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe: and the hangynges of the courte, and the hangyng that is in the entrynge in of the gate of the courte rounde aboute the dwellynge, and the altar, with the cordes, and all yͤ inſtrumentes yͤ ſerue vnto them, and all that is made for to ſerue them. At yͤ mouth of Aarō and his ſonnes, ſhal al the ſeruyce of the children of the Gerſonites be done, in all their charges, and in all their ſeruice, and ye ſhall number vnto them all theyr burdens to kepe. And this is the ſeruice of the kynred of the children of Gerſon in the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and theyr watche ſhal be vnder the hande of Ithamar the ſonne of Aaron yͤ prieſt. And thou ſhalt number the ſonnes of Merari after their kynredes, and after the houſes of their fathers: from thyrtie yeres and aboue vnto fyftie ſhalt thou number them, euerye one that is able to goe forth to yͤ warre, to do the ſeruice of the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And this is the charge that they muſt wayte vpon, accordyng to all their ſeruice in the tabernacle of wytnes. The Lordes of the dwellyng, with the barres, pyllers, and ſockettes therof, and the pyllers that are rounde about the courte, with their ſockettes, pynnes and cordes, and with al the inſtrumentes of it, for all theyr ſeruyce.

And by name ye ſhal reken the thinges that they muſte wayte vpon to beare. This is the ſeruyce of the kynredes of the ſonnes of Merari accordyng to al their offyce in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe vnder the hande of Ithamar the ſonne of Aaron the prieſt.

And Moſes and Aaron and yͤ princes of the multitude numbred yͤ ſonnes of the Cahathites, after their kynreds and houſes of their fathers, frō thirtye yere and aboue vnto fiftie, al that were able to go forth to the warre, to do ſeruice in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe. And the numbres of them thorowoute their kynredes were two thouſande, ſeuen hundred and fyftye. This is the numbre of yͤ kynredes of Cahath: namely, all that myghte do ſeruice in the tabernacle of wytneſſe, whiche Moſes and Aaron dyd numbre accordynge to the commaundemēt of the LORDE by the hande of Moſes. Theſe are yͤ numbres of the ſonnes of Gerſon thorowe out theyr kynredes and houſes of their fathers, from thyrtye yere vp vnto fiftye all that were able to go forth to the warre, for to do ſeruice in yͤ tabernacle of wytneſſe. And the numbres of them thorowout their kynredes, and houſes of their fathers, were two thouſande ſyxe hundred and thyrtye. This is the numbre of the kynredes of the ſonnes of Gerſon of al that dyd ſeruyce in the tabernacle of witneſſe, whiche Moſes and Aaron dyd numbre accordynge to the commaundemente of the LORDE. And theſe are the numbres of the kynredes of yͤ ſons of Merari thorowoute their kynreds ⁊ houſes of their fathers frō thirty yere vp vnto fyftie: all yͭ wēt forth to warre, and ſerued in the tabernacle of wytnes. And the nūbres of thē after their kynredes were three thouſande and two hundred. This is the ſumme of the kynredes of the ſonnes of Merari, whiche Moſes and Aaron numbred accordyng to the worde of yͤ LORDE, by the hande of Moſes. And ſo all the numbres of yͤ Leuites, which Moſes, Aaron and the Lordes of Iſraell numbred, after their kynredes ⁊ houſholdes of their fathers, from thirtie yere vp vnto fiftie, euery one yͭ came to do hys offyce and ſeruyce, ⁊ to beare his burthē in yͤ tabernacle of witneſſe: were (when they were numbred). viii. thouſande. v. hundred and. lxxx. Accordyng to the worde of the LORDE dyd (Aaron) numbre them by the hande of Moſes, euery one accordynge to theyr ſeruyce and charge, and accordynge to their offyces: as the LORDE commaūded Moſes.

The. v. Chapter.

The knowledgynge of ſynne. The clenſynge of ſynne. The lawe of the firſte frutes / and of gelouſye.

Leui.13.g.

AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: commaund the childrē of Iſrael that they *put out of the hooſte, euery leper and euerye one that hath an yſſue, and whoſoeuer is defyled vpō a ſoule. Both male and female ſhal ye put out: euen out of the hoſt ſhal ye put thē, that they defyle not the tentes amonge whiche I dwell. And the children of Iſraell dyd ſo, and put thē oute of the hooſte: euen as the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſo dyd the chyldren of Iſraell.

Leuiti.5.

And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto the children of Iſraell: whether it be *man or woman. yf they haue committed any ſinne that a man doeth, and haue treſpaced agaynſte the LORDE, that ſoule hathe done amiſſe: Therfore they ſhal knowledge their ſinne which they haue done and let hym reſtore agayne the hurte yͭ he hath done in the hole, and put the. v. part of it more therto, and geue it vnto hym whō he hath treſpaſſed agaynſte.

But and yf there be not a man to reſtore the hurte vnto, nor a kynſman of his, let the treſpace be made good vnto the LORD, and it ſhalbe the prieſtes, beſyde the ramme of the attonemente, whereby

wherby an attonemente ſhall be made for him. And euery heueoffering that is made of the holy thinges of the childrẽ of Iſrael whiche they brynge vnto the prieſt, ſhalbe his, and euery mans halowed thinges ſhal be his: and whatſoeuer any man geueth the prieſt, it ſhalbe his. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: Speake vnto the children of Iſraell, and ſaye vnto them. If any mannes wyfe go aſyde ⁊ treſpace agaynſte hym, ſo that another man lye with her fleſhlye, and it be hyd from the eyes of her huſbande, and is not come to lyght that ſhe is defiled, and there is no wytnes againſt her, neyther ſhe taken with the maner, and the ſprete of gelouſie commeth vpon him, ſo that he is gelouſe ouer his wife, which is defiled: or yf yͤ ſprite of gelouſye come vpõ him, ſo that he is gelouſe ouer his wife whiche is yet vndefyled: then lette the man bryng his wyfe vnto the prieſte, ⁊ brynge with her an offeryng for her: yͤ tenth part of an Epha of barlye meale, but let hym powre none oile vpõ it, nor put frankencens theron: for it is an offeryng of gelouſy, an offeryng for a remembraunce cauſynge the ſynne to be thought vpon.

C And the prieſt ſhall brynge her, and u.19.b. ſette her before the LORDE, and lette him*take holy water in an erthen veſſell, and of the duſt that is in the floore of the habytacyon, and put it into the water. And let the prieſt ſet the womã before the LORDE, and vncouer yͤ womans head, and put the memorial of yͤ offerynge in her handes whiche is the gelouſye offerynge, and the prieſt ſhall haue bytter and curſed water in hys hande, and the prieſt ſhall charge her, and ſaye vnto the woman. If no man haue lyen with the, neyther haſte gone aſyde to vnclenneſſe withoute thy huſbande, then haue thou no harme of this bytter and curſed waters. But and yf thou haſte gone aſyde behynde thyne huſbande, and arte defyled, and ſome other man hathe lyen wyth the beſyde thyne huſbande, (and the prieſt ſhall charge the woman wyth an horryble curſe, and the prieſt ſhall ſaye vnto the woman) the LORDE make the to be an abhominacion and a curſe amonge thy people: when the LORDE doeth make thy thye rotte, ⁊ thy belly ſwell: Theſe curſed waters go into the bowelles of the, that they may make thy belly ſwel and thy thye rotte, and let the woman ſaye, Amen, Amen. And let the prieſt D wryte theſe curſes: And when they be clenſed, let hym caſte them into bytter waters, and geue the woman thoſe bitter and curſed waters to drinke, that thoſe curſed ⁊ bytter waters maye enter into her. And then the Prieſt ſhall take the gelouſy offryng oute of yͤ womannes hand, and waue it before the LORDE, and bring it vnto the aultar, ⁊ the prieſt ſhall take an handefull of the offeryng for a memoryall, and burne it Act.18.d vpon the altar, and then make the woman drynke the water: ⁊ when he hath made the womã drinke the waters, (if ſhe be defiled ⁊ haue treſpaſſed againſt her huſbande) then ſhall the curſed and bitter waters go into her, and her belly ſhall ſwell, and her thye ſhal rotte, ⁊ the woman ſhalbe a curſe amonge her people. And if the womã be not defiled but is cleane, ſhe ſhall haue no harme, but ſhall conceaue and beare. This is the lawe of gelouſie, when a wife goth aſyde behynd her huſbande, and is defiled, or when yͤ ſprete of gelowſye cõmeth vpon a mã, and he beyng gelowſe C ouer his wife, doeth brynge her before the LORDE. And the Prieſt ſhal do acordyng vnto al this law, and the man ſhall be gyltleſſe, and the woman ſhall beare her ſynne.

The. vi. Chapter.

¶ The lawe of abſtynence. The bleſſyng of the people.

AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the children of Iſraell, and ſay vnto thẽ: when ether man or woman doth ſeperate themſelues to vowe a vowe of an abſteyner, and appoint themſelues vnto the LORDE, he ſhall ſeperate hym ſelfe from*wyne and ſtrong drynke, ⁊ Iud.1 ſhall drynke no vyneagre of wine or of A.nos. ſtronge drynke, nor ſhal drynke what ſoeuer is preſſed out of grapes: ⁊ ſhall eate no freſhe grapes neyther yet dried. As longe as his abſtynence endureth, ſhal he eate nothing that is made of the vyne tree, or of the carnels, or of the huſke of yͤ grape. And as long as he voweth, ⁊ is ſeperated, there ſhall no raſure come vpõ his heade: but vntyll his daies be out, in the whiche he ſeperateth rateth hymſelfe vnto the LORDE, he B ſhalbe holy, and ſhall let the lockes of his heare growe. As long as he conſecrateth hym ſelfe vnto the LORDE, he ſhall come at no deade bodye: he ſhall not make him ſelfe vncleane at yͤ death of his father, mother, brother, or ſyſter: becauſe that the vowe of the abſtynēce of his GOD is vpon his heade. All the dayes of his abſtynence he is holy vnto the LORDE. And if it fortune that any man by chaūce dye ſodenly before him, the heade of hys abſtynence ſhalbe defyled, and he ſhall ſhaue *his heade the Act.18.d daye of his clenſynge: euen the ſeuenth daye he ſhall ſhaue it. And the eyghte daye he ſhal bryng two turtels or two yonge pygeons to the prieſt, before the dore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And the prieſt ſhall offer the one for ſynne, and the other for a burntofferyng, and make an attonement for him as cōcernynge that he ſynned vpon a ſoule, and ſhall halowe his heade the ſame daye, and he ſhall conſecrate himſelfe vnto yͤ LORD (the time of his abſtinencie) and ſhall bryng a lambe of a yere olde for treſpace: but yͤ dayes that were before are loſt, becauſe his abſtinēcie was defyled. C This is the lawe of the abſteyner, when the time of his abſtinencie is out, he ſhalbe brought vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and he ſhal brynge his offeryng vnto the LORDE: an he lambe of a yeare olde wythoute blemyſhe for a burnte offerynge, and a ſhe lambe of a yeare olde withoute blemyſhe for ſynne, a ramme wythoute blemiſhe alſo for a peaceoffering, and a baſket of ſwete breade, euen cakes of fyne floure mingled with oyle, and wafers of ſwete brede anointed with oyle, with their meatofferynges and drinkofferynges.

And the Prieſte ſhall bryng hym before the LORDE, and offer hys ſynofferyng and his burntofferynge, and ſhall offer the ramme for a peaceofferynge vnto the LORDE, wᵗ the baſket of ſwete breade, and the prieſt ſhal offer alſo his meateofferyng & his drynke offering. And he ſhall ſhaue the heade of the abſteyner in the dore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe: euen the heade of hys abſtynence, and ſhall take the heare of hys ſober head, and put it in the fyre, which is vnder the peaceofferynge. And the prieſt ſhal take yͤ ſodē ſhulder of yͤ ram, D & one ſwete cake out of the baſket, and one ſwete wafer alſo, and put thē vpon the handes of the abſteyner (after he hath ſhauen his abſtynence of) and the Prieſt ſhall (take them of him/and) waue them before the LORDE. And theſe holy thynges ſhalbe the prieſtes, with the wauebreſt and heue ſhoulder, and then the abſteiner maye drynke wine. This is the law of the abſteyner which hath vowed his offerynge vnto the LORDE for his conſecracyon: Beſydes thoſe thinges that his hande can get, accordyng to the vowe whiche he vowed, euen ſo he muſte do after the lawe of his abſtynence. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto Aaron and his ſonnes, ſaying: of this wiſe ye ſhall bleſſe the chyldren of Iſraell, & ſaye vnto them.

The LORDE bleſſe the, and kepe the.
The LORDE make his face ſhyne vpon the, and be mercyfull vnto the. The LORDE lyfte vp his countenaunce vpon the, and geue thee peace. And they ſhall put my name vpon the children of Iſraell, and I wyll bleſſe them.

The.vii.Chapter.

¶ The offerynge of the Lordes and heades of Iſraell.

AND it fortuned in that daye, when A Moſes had full ſet vp the habitacion & anoynted it, & ſanctifyed Exo.40.b it, and all the apparell therof, the altar alſo and all the veſſelles thereof, & had anointed them and ſanctified thē, then the princes of Iſrael, heades ouer the houſes of their fathers whiche were yͤ Lordes of the trybes, ſtanding in their offyces, offered and broughte their ſacrifices before the LORD: ſyre couered charettes, and twelue oxen: one charet for two Lordes, and for one an oxe, & they broughte them before the habitacyon, and the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: take it of them, yͭ they maye be to do the ſeruice of the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and thou ſhalt geue thē vnto the Leuites, to euery man accordynge vnto his offyce. And Moſes toke the charettes and the oxen, and gaue them vnto the Leuites: two charrettes and foure oxen he gaue vnto the ſonnes of Gerſon, accordynge vnto theyr offyce. And foure charettes and eyght oxen he gaue vnto yͤ ſonnes of Merari (accordynge dyng vnto their offyces)vnder yͤ hād of Ithamar yͤ ſon of Aaron yͤ pꝛieſt But vnto yͤ ſonnes of Cahath he gaue none, becauſe they had vpon thē the office of holy thynges, whyche they dyd beare vpon ſhoulders.

The .viii. Chapter.

The order of the lampes. The forme of the candelſtycke. The clẽſing and offering of the Leuites

Exod. 25.

AND the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto Aaron, ⁊ ſaye vnto him: * when thou putteſt on the lãpes, the ſame ſeuen lampes ſhall geue lyght toward the forefront of the candelſtycke. And Aaron dyd euen ſo, ⁊ lyghted the lampes towarde the forefront of the candelſtycke, as the LORD cõmaunded Moſes, ⁊ the worke of the candelſtycke was of ſtyffe golde, both yͤ ſhafte ⁊ the floures therof: accordynge vnto the vyſion which the LORDE had ſhewed Moſes, euen ſo he made yͤ candelſtycke. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes ſaying: take the Leuites frõ amonge the chyldren of Jſrael, ⁊ clenſe them. But thus ſhalt thou do vnto thẽ, when thou clenſeſt thẽ: ſprinkle water of purifying vpon them, ⁊ let thẽ make a raſure to runne a longe vpon all the fleſhe of them, ⁊ let thẽ waſhe theyr clothes, ⁊ ſo make them ſelues cleane.

B Then let them take a bullocke with hys meatofferyng: euẽ fyne floure mingled with oile: ⁊ another bullocke ſhalt thou take for ſinne. And whẽ thou doſt bryng the Leuites before yͤ tabernacle of wytneſſe, thou ſhalt gather yͤ whole multitude of the chyldren of Jſrael together, ⁊ bryng the Leuites before the LORD, ⁊ the children of Jſrael ſhal put theyr hãdes vpõ the Leuites. And Aaron ſhall waue the Leuites before the LORD, for a waue offeryng of the chyldren of Jſrael, that they may execute yͤ miniſtracion of yͤ ſeruyce of yͤ lord. And yͤ Leuites ſhall put theyr handes vpon yͤ heades of the bullockes, ⁊ thou ſhalt offer yͤ one for ſinne, and the other for a burnt offeryng vnto yͤ Lord, that thou mayeſt make an attonement for yͤ Leuites. And thou ſhalt ſet yͤ Leuites before Aaron and hys ſons, ⁊ waue them for a waueofferynge before the Lorde. And thus thou ſhalt ſeperat yͤ Leuites from among yͤ children of Jſraell, ⁊ the Leuites ſhalbe mine: after that ſhall yͤ Leuites go in, to do the ſeruyce of yͤ tabernacle of witneſſe. And yͧ ſhalt clenſe them ⁊ waue them, for they are geuen and delyuered vnto me from amonge yͤ chyldren of Jſrael, for ſuche as open euery wombe: euen for the fyrſt borne of all the children of Jſrael haue J taken them vnto me.

C Exod.13.c. Luke.2.d *For all the fyrſt borne of yͤ chyldrẽ of Jſrael are myne both mã ⁊ beaſt: ſẽs the daye yͭ J ſmote euery fyrſt borne in the lande of Egypt, J ſanctifyed them for my ſelfe: ⁊ J haue takẽ the Leuites for all the fyrſt borne of the chyldren of Jſrael, ⁊ haue geuen the Leuites as a gyft vnto Aaron and hys ſonnes from amonge yͤ chyldren of Jſrael, to do the ſeruyce of the chyldren of Jſrael in the tabernacle of wytneſſe, to make an attonement for the chyldren of Jſrael, yͭ there be no plage amonge the chyldren of Jſrael, yf the chyldrẽ of Jſrael come nye vnto the holy thinges. And Moſes and Aaron ⁊ all the cõgregacion of the chyldren of Jſrael dyd with the Leuites accordyng vnto al yͭ the LORD cõmaunded Moſes cõcernyng the Leuites: euen ſo dyd the chyldren of Jſrael vnto them. D And the Leuites were purifyed, and waſhed theyr clothes. And Aaron waued them before the LORD, and made an attonement for them, and clenſed them. After that went the Leuites in to do theyr ſeruyce in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe before Aaron and hys ſonnes: as the LORD had cõmaũded Moſes concernynge the Leuites, euen ſo they dyd vnto them. Exod.12. John.19.

C And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: this is it that belongeth vnto yͤ Leuites: *from .xxv. yere vpward they ſhal go in, to wayte vpon the ſeruice of the tabernacle of wytneſſe, ⁊ from the age of fyfty yere, they ſhal ceaſſe waytyng vpon the ſeruyce therof, and ſhall ſerue no more: but ſhall myniſter vnto theyr brethrẽ in the tabernacle of wytnes, to wayte, but ſhal do no more ſeruyce. Thus therfore ſhalte thou do vnto the Lyuites in theyr watche.

¶ The .ix. Chapter.

Exo.40.c. .Reg.3.b

A AND the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes in the wylderneſſe of Sinai, in the fyrſt moneth of the secõde yere, after they *were come out of the lande of Egipte, ſaying: let yͤ chyldren of Jſrael offer paſſeouer in hys ſeaſon: euen the .xiiii. day of this moneth at euen, let him kepe it in hys ſeaſon, accordyng to al yͤ ceremonies of it, and accordynge to all the maners therof. And Moſes ſpake vnto the chyldren of Jſrael, that they ſhulde offer paſſeouer, and they offered paſſeouer the .xiiii. daye of the fyrſt moneth at euen in the wylderneſſe of Sinai, accordyng to all that the LORDE commaunded Moſes, euen ſo dyd the chyldren of Jſrael.

B And certayne men were defyled vpõ the ſoule of a mã, that they myght not offer paſſeouer the ſame day. And they came before Moſes and Aaron yͤ ſame daye. And the men ſayd vnto hym: We are defyled vpon yͤ ſoule of a mã: wherfore are we kept backe yͭ we maye not offer an offering vnto yͤ LORD in yͤ due ſeaſon, among the chyldren of Iſrael: And Moſes ſayd vnto them: Stande ſtyll, ⁊ I wyll heare what the LORDE wyll commaunde concernyng you.

And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, and ſay: yf any man among you or your chyldren after you, be vncleane by the reaſon of a corſe, or is in yͤ way far from you, ⁊ wyl offer Paſſeouer vnto yͤ LORD: the fourtene daye of the ſeconde moneth at euen let him offer it, ⁊ eate it wyth ſwete breade ⁊ ſowre herbes: let them leaue none of it vnto yͤ mornyng

*nor breake any bone of it: But accordyng to all the ordinaunce of the paſſeouer, let them offer it.

C But the mã that is cleane ⁊ is not in a iourney, ⁊ yet was negligent to offer Paſſeouer: the ſame ſoule ſhal peryſhe frõ his people, becauſe he brought not the offryng of the LORD in his due ſeaſon, that mã ſhal beare hys ſynne. And yf a ſtrãger dwel amõg you, ⁊ wyl offer Paſſeouer vnto yͤ LORD, accordyng to the ordinaũce of Paſſeouer ⁊ maner therof, he ſhall offer it thus. ye ſhall haue one lawe both for the ſtrãger, ⁊ for him yͭ was borne at home in yͤ lãde.

Reg.8.b

At the ſame day that the Tabernacle was reared vp, a *cloude couered yͤ habitaciõ, which was a tabernacle of the wytneſſe: and at euen there was vpon the habitacion, as it were yͤ ſimilitude of fyre vntyll the mornyng. So it was alwaye, the cloude couered it by daye, and the ſimilitude of fyre by night, And when the cloude was takẽ vp from of the tabernacle, then the chyldrẽ of Iſrael iourneyed: and where the cloude abode, there the chyldren of Iſrael pytched theyr tentes. At the mouth of the LORD the childrẽ of Iſrael iourneyed, and at the mouthe of the LORDE they pytched. And as longe as the cloude abode vpon the habitacion they laye ſtyll: and when the cloude taryed ſtyll vpon the habitacion lõge time, the children of Iſrael kept the watch of yͤ LORDE, and iourneyed not. And it chaũced that when the cloude abode a fewe dayes vpon the habitacion, they abode in theyr tentes, accordyng to the commaundement of the LORDE: and they iourneyed alſo at the cõmaundement of the LORDE.

D And it happened that when yͤ cloude abode vpon the habitacion from euen vnto the mornyng, ⁊ was taken vp in the morning, then they iorneyed. Whether it was by daye or by nyght that yͤ cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. Or yf the cloude taryed two dayes or a moneth, or a longe ſeaſon vpon yͤ habitacion, ⁊ remayned theron, the chyldren of Iſrael abode ſtyll, ⁊ iourneyed not. And aſſone as the cloud was taken vp, they iourneyed. At the mouth of the LORD, they reſted in the tentes, and at the cõmaundement of the LORD, they iourneyed, kepyng the watche of the LORD, at the commaundement of the LORDE by the hande of Moſes.

The.x. Chapter.

The trompettes of ſyluer. The Iſraelites departe from Sinai. The captaynes of the hooſte are nũbred. Hobab refuſeth to go with Moſes.

A AND the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: Make the two trompettes of ſyluer: of an whole pece ſhalte thou make them, that thou mayeſt vſe them to cal the congregacion together, and when the hooſt ſhal iorney. Therfore ſhall they blowe wyth them, that all the multitude may reſorte to the before the dore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And yf they blowe but one tõpet, then the prynces whyche are heades ouer the thouſandes of Iſrael ſhal come vnto the. But yf ye trompe, the hoſtes that lye on the eaſt partes ſhall go forwarde. And yf ye trompe the ſeconde tyme, the hoſte that lyeth on the ſouthe ſyde ſhall take theyr iourney: for they ſhall trompe when they take theyr iourneyes. But when the congregacion is to be gathered together, they ſhall blowe onely, and not trompe. And the ſonnes of Aaron the Prieſt ſhall blowe wyth theyr trompettes, and ye ſhall haue them as a lawe for euer in your generacions.

B And yf ye go to warre in your lande againſt your enemies that vexe you, ye ſhal blow with the trõpets, ⁊ ye ſhalbe remẽbred before the LORD your GOD to be ſaued frõ your enemyes. Alſo in yͤ daye of your gladneſſe, ⁊ in your feaſte dayes, and in the begynnynge of youre monethes, ye ſhall blowe the trompettes ouer youre burnte ſacrifices and peaceofferynges, that they may be a remembraunce for you before youre God. I am the LORDE your GOD.

And it came to paſſe the twẽteth day of the ſeconde moneth in yͤ ſecõde yere, that the cloude was taken vp from of the habitacion of wytneſſe. And yͤ chyldren of Iſrael toke theyr iorney out of the deſerte of Sinai, and the cloude reſted in the wylderneſſe of Pharan. And the fyrſt toke theyr iourney at yͤ mouth of the LORDE, by the hande of Moſes. In the fyrſt place went the ſtãdarde of the hoſte of Iuda, accordynge to theyr armyes: whoſe captayne was Nahaſſon the ſonne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoſte of the trybe of the chyldren of Iſachar, was Nathanael the ſonne of Zuar. And ouer the hooſte of yͤ trybe of yͤ childrẽ of Zabulon, was Eliab yͤ ſone of Helon. And yͤ habitacion was taken downe: & yͤ ſonnes of Gerſon and Merari went forth bearyng yͤ habitacion.

And the hoſte of Ruben wẽt forth wᵗ C theyr ſtandarde & armyes, whoſe captayne was Elizur yͤ ſonne of Sedeur. And ouer yͤ hoſte of yͤ trybe of yͤ childrẽ of Simeon was Salamiel yͤ ſonne of Suri Saddai. And ouer yͤ hoſte of the trybe of yͤ chyldren of Gad was Eliaſaph the ſonne of Deguel. The Cahathites alſo went forward & bare yͤ ſanctuary, & the other dyd ſet vp yͤ habitacion agaynſt they came. And yͤ ſtãdard of the hooſte of yͤ chyldren of Ephraim went forth according to theyr armyes whoſe captayne was Eliſama yͤ ſonne of Amiud. And ouer yͤ hoſte of yͤ trybe of the ſonnes of Manaſſe, was Gamaliel yͤ ſonne Pedazur. And ouer yͤ hoſte of the trybe of yͤ ſonnes of BenIamin was Abidan the ſonne of Gedeoni.

And yͤ ſtandarde of yͤ hoſte of yͤ chyldren of Dan came forth (hauyng al the hooſtes together) thorowout theyr armyes: whoſe captayne was Ahiezer yͤ ſonne of Ammi Saddai. And ouer the hoſte of yͤ trybe of yͤ chyldren of Aſer, was Pagiel yͤ ſonne of Ochran. And ouer yͤ hoſte of the trybe of yͤ chyldrẽ of Nephthali, was Ahira yͤ ſonne of Enã. Theſe are the iorneyes of the chyldren of Iſrael thorowout theyr armyes, & thus the hooſtes remoued.

D And Moſes ſayd vnto Hobab yͤ ſon of Raguel the Madianite: which was Moſes father in lawe: we go vnto the place of whych the LORD ſayd: I wyll geue it you. Come thou therfore wᵗ vs, & we wil do the good: for yͤ LORD hath promiſed good vnto Iſrael. And he anſwered hym: I wyl not go: but wyl departe to myne owne lande & to my kynred. He ſayd: Oh naye, leaue vs not: for thou knoweſt our mãſions in the wyl- C derneſſe: & thou haſte ben to vs in ſtede of eyes. And if thou go wᵗ vs loke what goodneſſe the LORD ſheweth vnto vs, the ſame wyll we ſhewe vnto the.

And they departed from the moũt of the LORD, thre daies iorney: & the arke of the teſtament of the LORD went before them in the thre dayes iourney, to ſearche out a reſtyng place for them. And the LORDE made a ſhadowe for them thorowe the cloude by day, when they went out of the tentes.

And it fortuned, that when the arke went forth, Moſes ſaid: *Riſe vp LORDE, and let thyne enemyes be ſcattred: and let them that hate the, flye before the. And when the arke reſted, he ſayd: Returne O LORD vnto yͤ many thouſandes of Iſrael.

The.xiii. Chapter.

Certayne men are ſent to ſearche the lande of Canaan.

AND the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: *Sende mẽ out to ſearche the lãde of Canaan whych I geue vnto the chyldren of Iſrael: of euerye trybe of theyr fathers ſhall ye ſende a man, & let thẽ al be ſuche as are rulers amõg them. And Moſes at the cõmaũdement of ẏ LORD ſent forth out of the wyldernеſſe of Pharan ſuche men as were al heades of the childrẽ of Iſrael. Theyr names are theſe. Of the tribe of Rubẽ, Sãmua the ſonne of Zacur. Of the tribe of Simeõ, Saphat ẏ ſonne of Hori. Of the trybe of Iuda, Caleb the ſonne of Jephune. Of the trybe of Iſachar, Igeal ẏ ſonne of Joſeph. Of the trybe of Ephraim, Oſea ẏ ſõne of Nun. Of ẏ trybe of BenJamin, Palthi the ſonne of Raphu. Of ẏ trybe of Zabulõ, Gadiel the ſonne of Sodi. Of ẏ trybe of Joſeph, namely of the trybe of Manaſſe, Gaddi ẏ of ſon Suſi. Of ẏ trybe of Dan, Amiel ẏ ſonne of Gemali. Of ẏ trybe of Aſer, Sethur ẏ ſonne of Michael. Of the trybe of Nephtali, Nahebi the ſonne of Vaphſi. Of the trybe of Gad, Guel the ſonne of Machi. Theſe are the names of the men, whych Moſes ſent to ſpye out the land. And Moſes called the name of Oſea the ſonne of Nun, Joſua.

And Moſes ſent them forth to ſpye out ẏ lande of Canaã, & ſayd vnto thẽ: get you vp this waye ſouthwarde, that ye may go vp into the hye cõutrey, and ſe the lande what maner thyng it is, & the people ẏ dwelleth therin: whether they be ſtronge or weake, ether fewe or many, and what the lande is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad: and what maner of cyties they be, that they dwell in, whether they dwell in tentes or walled townes: and what maner of lande it is, whether it be fatte or leane, and whether there be trees ther in or not. Be of a good corage, & bryng of the frute of the lande. And it was about ẏ tyme that grapes are fyrſt rype.

C And ſo they went vp, ⁊ ſearched out the lande frõ the wyldernesse of Zin vnto Rehob, as mẽ come to Hemath, ⁊ they aſcended vnto the ſouth, and came vnto Hebron, where Ahiman was ⁊ Seſai ⁊ Thalmani, the ſonnes of Enack. Hebron was buylt .vii. yere before Zoan in Egipte. And they came vnto yͤ ryuer of Eſcol, and cutte downe there a braũche wyth one clouſtre of grapes ⁊ twayne bare it vpon a ſtaffe: and they brought alſo of the pomgranates ⁊ of the fygges. And the place was called the ryuer Eſcol: becauſe of the clouſtre of grapes whych yͤ chyldren of Iſrael cut downe thẽce. And they turned backe agayne frõ ſearchyng of yͤ lande after fourty dayes. And they went and came to Moſes ⁊ Aaron and vnto all D the multitude of the chyldren of Iſrael in the wyldernesse of Pharan: whyche is Cades, and brought them worde, ⁊ alſo vnto al the cõgregacion, ⁊ ſhewed them the frute of the lande. And they tolde hym, and ſayd: we came vnto the land whither thou ſenddeſt vs, ⁊ ſuerly it floweth with mylke and hony: ⁊ here is of the frute of it. Neuertheleſſe, the people be ſtronge that dwell in yͤ lãde, ⁊ the cyties are walled and exceadyng great: and moreouer, we ſawe the childrẽ of Enacke there. The Amalechites dwell in the ſouth coũtrey, and the Hethites, Jebuſites, ⁊ the Amorites dwel in the mountaynes, and the Cananites dwel by yͤ ſea, ⁊ by yͤ coſtes of Jordan.

And Caleb ſtylled yͤ (murmure that was rayſed vp) of the people before Moſes, ſaying: we wyl go vp, and conquere it: for we be able to ouercome it. But the men that went vp wyth hym, ſayd: We be not able to go vp againſt the people for they are ſtrõger then we. And they brought vp an euel report of the lande whych they had ſearched, ſaying vnto the chyldren of Iſrael: the lande which we haue gone thorow to ſearche it out, is a lãde that eateth vp the inhabiters therof: and the people that we ſawe in it, are men of a great ſtature. And there we ſawe alſo gyauntes, the chyldren of Enacke, whych come of the gyauntes. And we ſemed in our ſyght as it were greſhoppers, and ſo we dyd in theyr ſyght.

The.xiiii.Chapter.

The people murmure agaynſt God / and woulde haue ſtoned Caleb and Joſue. The ſearchers of the lande dye. Amalech kylleth the Iſraelites.

A AND all the multitude of the people cryed out, and wepte thorowe out that nyght, and all the chyldren of Iſrael murmured agaynſt Moſes and Aaron. And the whole congregacion ſayd vnto them: woulde GOD that we had dyed in the lande of Egypt, eyther that we had dyed in thys wyldernesse. Wherfore hath the LORD brought vs vnto thys lande, to fall vpon yͤ ſweard: and that our wyues, and our chyldren ſhould be a praye? Were it not better yͤ we returne vnto Egypt agayne? And they ſayd one to another: We wyl make a captayne and returne vnto Egypte agayne.

B But Moſes and Aaron fell on theyr faces before al the cõgregacion ⁊ multytude of yͤ chyldren of Iſrael. And Joſua the ſõne of Nun, ⁊ Caleb the ſonne of Jephune (whych were of them that ſearched the lande) rent theyr clothes, and ſpake vnto all the company of the chyldren of Iſrael, ſaying: The lande whyche we walked thorowe to ſearche it, is a very good lande. yf the LORDE hath luſte to vs, he wyll brynge vs into thys land and geue it vs, which is ſuch a lãde as floweth wyth mylke ⁊ hony. But in any wyſe rebell not ye agaynſte the LORDE. *Neyther nede ye to feare the people of the lande for they are but bread for vs. Theyr ſhadowe is departed from them, and the LORDE is wyth vs: feare them not therfore.

But al they whych were in that multitude bad ſtone them with ſtones. And the glory of the LORD appeared in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe, before all the chyldren of Iſrael. And the LORD ſaid vnto Moſes: How long do this people prouoke me, ⁊ howe long wyll it be yer they beleue me, for al yͤ ſygnes whyche I haue ſhewed amonge them? I wyll ſmyte them wᵗ the peſtilence, ⁊ deſtroye them: ⁊ wyl make of thee a greater nacion, and a myghtyer then they.

And Moſes ſayde vnto the LORDE: then the Egipcians ſhall heare it, for thou broughteſt thys people in thy myght frõ among them. And it wyll be tolde to the inhabyters of thys lande alſo: for they haue heard lykewyſe, that thou LORD art amonge thys people:

and that thou LORDE art ſene face to face, and that thy cloude ſtandeth ouer Exod.13.c them, and that *thou goeſt before them by day tyme in a pyller of a cloude, ⁊ in a pyller of fyre by nyght. Yf thou ſhalt kyll all thys people as they were but one man, then the nacions which haue hearde the fame of the, wyll ſaye: The LORD is not able to bryng in this people into the lande, whych he ſware vnto them: but hath ſlayne them in the wyldernеſſe. And now I beſeche the, let the D power of my LORD be great, accordіng as thou haſt ſpoken, ſaying: the LORD is lõge yer he be angry, ⁊ ful of mercy, ⁊ ſuffereth iniquitie, ⁊ ſynne, ⁊ leaueth no man innocent, and vyſiteth the vnryghteouſneſſe of the fathers vpon the chyldren, in the thyrd ⁊ fourth generacion: be mercyfull I beſeche the vnto yͤ ſynne of thys people, accordynge vnto thy great mercy, as thou haſt forgeuen this people frõ Egipt, euen vntyl now. And the LORD ſayd: I haue forgeuen it, accordynge to thy requeſt. But as truely as I lyue, al yͤ earth ſhalbe fylled wyth the glory of the LORDE. But al thoſe men whych haue ſene my glory ⁊ my myracles whych I dyd in Egipte and in the wyldernеſſe, and haue tempted me nowe this ten tymes and wyl not hearken vnto my voyce, ſhall not ſe the lãde whych I ſware vnto theyr fa- Iosu.13.b thers: neyther ſhal any of thẽ that prouoked me ſe it. But my ſeruaunt *Caleb; wyth whome there was another maner of ſpirite: ⁊ becauſe he hath folowed me vnto the vtmoſte, hym wyl I bryng into yͤ lande which he hath walked in, and his ſede ſhal inherite it, and alſo the Amalechites and Cananites whych dwel in the playne cou͂trey. To morow turne you, ⁊ get you into yͤ wildernеſſe: euẽ by the way of the red ſea.

And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes ⁊ Aaron, ſaying: howe longe doeth thys euel multytude murmure agaynſt me? I haue herde the murmurynges of the chyldren of Iſrael, wyth the whyche they murmure agaynſt me: Tell them therfore: As truely as I lyue (ſayeth yͤ LORDE) I wyl do vnto you euen as ye haue ſpoken in myne eares. your carkaſſes ſhall lye in thys wyldernеſſe. And al you that were tolde thorowout your numbres, from twentye yere and aboue (whych haue murmured againſt me) ſhall not come into the lande, ouer whych I lyfted vp myne hãde, to make you dwel therin, ſaue Caleb the ſonne of Iephune, ⁊ Ioſua the ſonne of Nun.

But your childrẽ, which ye ſaye ſhuld be a praye, them wyll I brynge in, and they ſhall knowe the lande whyche ye haue refuſed, and your carkaſſes ſhall lye in thys wyldernеſſe. And your chyldren ſhall wander in thys wyldernеſſe, fortу yeres, and ſuffer for your whoredome, vntyl your carkaſſes be waſted in the wyldernеſſe, after the numbre of the dayes in whych ye ſerched out the lande, euen fortye dayes, * euery daye for a yere ſhal ye beare your vnryghteouſneſſe euen fortye yere, and ye ſhall knowe my dyſpleaſure. I the LORDE haue ſayd, that I wyl do it vnto al this euel cõgregacion that are gathered together againſt me. For in thys wyldernеſſe they ſhalbe conſumed, ⁊ here they ſhall dye.

And the men whych Moſes ſente to ſearche the lande, ⁊ whych (when they came agayn) made al yͤ people to murmure before hym ⁊ brought vp a ſlau͂der vpon yͤ lande, euen thoſe men yͭ dyd brynge vp yͤ ſlau͂der vpon it, as though it had ben euel, dyed in a great *plage before the LORDE. But Ioſua the ſon of Nun ⁊ Caleb the ſonne of Iephune, whych were of the men that wente to ſearche the lande, lyued ſtyl. And Moſes told theſe ſayinges vnto al the children of Iſrael, ⁊ the people toke great ſorowe. And they roſe vp early in the mornyng, ⁊ gat them vp into the toppe of the mountayne, ſaying: * lo, we be here, and wyll go vp vnto the place of whych the LORD ſayd vnto vs, for we haue ſynned. And Moſes ſayd: wherfore wyll ye go on thys maner, beyond the worde of yͤ LORD? it wyll not come wel to paſſe: go not vp therfore: (for the LORD is not amõg you) that ye be not ſlayne before your enemyes. For yͤ Amalechites ⁊ the Cananites are there before you, and ye wyll fall vpon the ſwearde becauſe ye are tourned away from the LORDE, and the LORDE wyll not be wyth you.

But they preſumed obſtinatly to go vp into the hyll toppe. Neuerthelatter the Arke of the teſtament of the LORDE, and Moſes departed not out of the hooſt. Then the Amalechites and the Cananites, whiche dwelte in that hyll came downe and ſmote them, and hewed them, euen vnto Horma.

¶The drynke offerynges of them that entre in to the lande The punyſhment of him that ſynneth of arrogancie or pride.

A AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſraell, and ſaye vnto thē: Leuit.23.b *whē ye be come into the land of youre habitacions, whiche I geue vnto you, and wyll offer an offerynge vnto the LORDE. Namely a burntofferyng or a ſpeciall ſacrifice, ether of a vowe or of a wyllyng mynde, and in your principal feaſtes, to make a ſwete ſauoure vnto the LORDE of the oxen or of ẏ flocke.

Leuit.2.a. and.6.b. Then*let him that offereth his offerynge vnto the LORDE, brynge alſo a meateofferyng of a tenth deale of floure myngled with the fourth parte of an hin of oyle, and the fourthe parte of an hin of wine for a drynke offeryng, and offer with the burntofferynge or anye other offeryng when it is a lambe. Or yf it be a ramme, thou ſhalte offer for a meate offerynge, two tenthe deales of floure myngle wyth the thyrde parte of an hin of oyle: and for a drynke offerynge, thou ſhalte offer the thyrde part of an hyn of wyne for a ſwete ſauoure vnto the LORDE.

B And when thou offereſt a bullocke for a burnteofferynge or for a ſpecyall vowe or peaceoffering vnto ẏ LORDE, lette hym brynge with a bullocke a meateofferynge of three tenth deales of floure myngled with halfe an hin of oyle. And thou ſhalt brynge for a drinke offeryng: euen halfe an hin of wyne, for an offeryng of a ſwete ſauoure vnto ẏ LORDE. After thys maner ſhall it be done for an oxe, or for a ramme, or for a lambe or a kyd. Loke what nūbre thou makeſt in theſe, ſuche a numbre ſhalte thou make in them alſo.

And according to the numbre of ſuch offrynges thou ſhalte encreaſe ẏ meat offerynges and the drynkeofferynges. All that are of your ſelues ſhal do theſe thynges after this maner, to offer an offerynge of ſwete ſauoure vnto the LORDE. And yf a ſtraūger ſoiourne wᵗ you, or whoſoeuer be amonge you in your generacions, ⁊ wyll offer an offeryng of a ſwete ſauoure vnto ẏ LORD: euen as ye do, ſo he ſhall do. One ordynaunce ſhalbe both for you of the congregacyō, ⁊ alſo for the ſtraunger. It ſhalbe an ordynaunce for euer in your generacions, both vnto you and to the ſtraunger before the LORD. C One law and one maner ſhall ſerue, both for you and for the ſtraunger that ſoiournethe with you. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael, and ſay vnto thē: Deute.8.c *Whē ye be come into the lande to the which I brynge you, then when ye wyll eate of the breade of the lande, ye ſhall take vp an heue offeryng vnto the LORDE.

And yf ye ouerſe youre ſelues, and obſerue not al theſe commaundementes, whiche the LORDE hathe ſpoken vnto Moſes, euen all that the LORDE hath commaunded you by the hande of Moſes from the firſt day that the LORDE commaunded Moſes, and hence forwarde amonge youre generacyons. If it happen that ought is commytted ignorauntlie of the cōgregacion, al the multytude ſhall offer a bullocke for a burntofferyng, to be a ſwete ſauour vnto the LORDE, with the meateoffering and drynkeofferyng therto, according to the maner, and an he goat for ſinne. And the prieſt ſhal make an attonemēt for all the multytude of the children of Iſraell, and it ſhall be forgeuen them: for it is ygnoraunce. And they ſhall bryng theyr offeryng for a ſacrifice vnto the LORD: ⁊ their ſynoffering before the LORDE for theyr ygnoraunce. And it ſhall be forgeuen vnto all the multytude of the children of Iſraell, and vnto the ſtraunger that dwelleth amōge you: ſeynge all the people were in ygnoraunce.

D Leuit.4. * If any one ſoule ſynne thorowe ygnoraunce, he ſhall bryng a ſhe goate of a yeare olde for ſynne. And ẏ prieſte ſhall make an attonement for the ſoule that ſynned ygnorauntlye, with ẏ ſynoffering before the LORDE to recōcyle hym: and that it maye be forgeuen him. And bothe thou that arte borne of the children of Iſraell, and the ſtraunger that dwelleth among you, ſhall haue bothe one lawe, whoſo doth ſynne thorowe ignoraunce. But the ſoule that doeth ought preſumptuouſly, whither he be an Iſraelite or a ſtraunger, the ſame blaſphemeth the LORDE. And that ſoule ſhall be roted out frō amōge his people, becauſe he hath diſpiſed the worde of the LORDE, and hath broken his cōmaundemente: that ſoule therefore ſhall peryſhe, and his ſynne ſhalbe vpō him. And while the children of Iſraell were in the wyldernes, they foūd a man that gathered ſtyckes vpon the Exod. 31. c *Sabboth daye.

And they that found him gathering ſtickes, brought him vnto Moſes and Aaron, and vnto all the congregacion: Leui. 24. b *and they put him in warde, ſeynge it was not declared what ſhould be done vnto him. And the LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes: Let the man dye: and let all the multitude ſtone him with ſtones with out the hooſt. And all the multytude broughte hym without the hooſte, and ſtoned him with ſtones, and he died as the LORDE commaunded Moſes. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ſpeake vnto the children of Iſrael and Deut. 22. c. byd them that they *make thē gardes in the quarters of their garmentes thorowout their generacions, and put vpon the garde of the quarters a ribande of yelowe ſylke. And the garde ſhall be vnto you to loke vpon it, that ye maye remembre all the cōmaundementes of the LORDE, and do them: and that ye ſeke not after your owne hart, or youre owne eyes: after the which ye vſe to go a whoringe: but ye ſhall remembre rather and do al my commaundementes, and be holy vnto your GOD: I am the LORDE your GOD, whiche broughte you oute of the lande of Egipte, for to be youre GOD: I am the LORDE your GOD.

¶ The rebellyon of Corah. Dathan and Abiram.

A Eccle. 45. c AND *Corah the ſonne of Iezehar, the ſonne of Cahath, the ſon of Leui, and Dathan, and Abiram yͤ ſon of Eliab, and On the ſonne of Peleth, the ſonne of Ruben: roſe vp before Moſes, wyth other men of the children of Iſraell, two hundred and fyftie, which were captaines of the multitude, great and famous men in the congregacion: and they gathered thē ſelues together againſte Moſes and Aaron, and ſayde vnto them: ye make muche to do, ſeyng all the multitude are holy euery one of them, and the LORDE is among them. Why heue ye your ſelues vp aboue the cōgregacyō of the LORDE? And when Moſes hearde it, he fell vpon his face, and ſpake vnto Corah and vnto all his company, ſayinge: to morowe yͤ LORD wyll ſhewe who are his, who is holye, and who oughte to approche nye vnto him, and whō he hath choſen to come to him. This do therfore, take you firepās bothe Corah and all hys cōpanye and do fire therin, and put cens in them before the LORDE to morowe.

B Num. And the man whō the LORDE doth choſe, the ſame ſhalbe holy. ye make muche to do, ye children of Leui. And Moſes ſayde vnto Corah: Num. *heare ye children of Leui: Is it but a ſmal thig vnto you that the GOD of Iſrael hath ſeperated you frō the multitude of Iſraell: and broughte you to hym ſelfe, to do the ſeruyce of the dwelling place of the LORDE, and to ſtande before the multitude and to miniſter vnto him: he hath taken the to hym and all thy brethren the ſonnes of Leui with the, and ſeke ye the office of the prieſt alſo? For whiche cauſe both thou and al thy cōpanie are gathered together agaynſte the LORDE. And what is Aarō that ye murmur agaynſt him?

C And Moſes ſente, and called Dathā, and Abiram the ſonnes of Eliab, which ſayd: we wyll not come vp. Is it a ſmal thing that thou haſt brought vs out of a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, to kyl vs in the wylderneſſe, and to raygne ouer vs alſo: Haſte thou brought vs vnto a land that floweth wͭ mylke and hony, and geuen vs inherytaunce of feldes and vyneyardes? Wylt thou pull oute the eyes of theſe men? we wyl not come vp. And Moſes waxed very angry, and ſayde vnto the LORDE. Turne not thou vnto theyr offerynge. I haue not taken ſo muche as an aſſe frō thē, nether haue I hurte any of them. And Moſes ſayed vnto Corah: Be thou and all thy cōpany before the LORDE: bothe thou, they, and Aarō to morowe. And take euery man hys cenſer, and put cens in them, that ye may offer before the LORDE: euery man of the two hundred and fyftie take his cenſour, thou alſo Aarõ, that euery one maye haue his cenſer. And they toke euery man his cenſer, and put fire in them, and layde cens thereon, and ſtode in the dore of the Tabernacle of wytneſſe with Moſes and Aarõ. And Corah gathered all the cõgregacyõ agaynſte them vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe.

And the glory of the LORDE appeared vnto all the cõgregacyõ. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes and Aarõ, ſayinge: ſeperate your ſelues frõ amõg this cõgregaciõ, that I maye conſume them at once. And they fel vpõ their faces and ſayde. Num.27.a *O moſt myghtie GOD B of the ſprites of all fleſhe, if one manne hath ſinned, wilte thou be wroth with all the multitude? And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the congregacyon and ſay: Get you away frõ about yͤ dwellyng of Corah, Dathan, and Abiram. And Moſes roſe vp, and went vnto Dathan and Abirã, and the elders of Iſrael folowed hym. D And he ſpake vnto the congregacyon, ſaying: depart from the tentes of theſe wycked men, and touche nothynge of theyrs: leſt ye periſhe in al their ſinnes. And ſo they gate them from the dwellynge of Corah, Dathan and Abiram on euery ſyde. And Dathan and Abirã came out and ſtode in the dore of theyr tentes with their wiues, their ſonnes, C and their lytle children. And Moſes ſayde: Here by ye ſhall knowe that the LORDE hathe ſente me to do all theſe workes, and that I haue not done thẽ of myne owne mynde. If theſe men die the comen death of al men: or yf they be viſyted after the viſitacion of all men, then the LORDE hath not ſente me. But and yf the LORDE make a newe thyng, and the earth open her mouth, and ſwalow them vp with al that they haue: and they goe downe quicke into hell: then ye ſhal vnderſtand, that theſe men haue prouoked the LORDE.

E And it fortuned that as ſone as he had made an ende of ſpeakyng al theſe Deut.11.a. wordes, *yͤ groũd cloue a ſunder that Num.26.b was vnder thẽ: ⁊ the earth opened her Pſa.106.c. mouth, and ſwalowed them vp, and their houſes, and al the men that were with Corah, and al theyr goodes. And they and all that they had, went down alyue vnto hell, and yͤ earth cloſed vpõ them and they peryſhed from amonge the congregacion. And all Iſraell that were aboute them fledde at the crie of them. And they ſayed: leſte the earth ſwalowe vs vp alſo. And there came out a fyre from the LORDE, and conſumed the two hundred and fyftie men yͭ offered cens. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: Speake vnto Eleazar, the ſonne of Aaron the Prieſte that he take vp the cenſers oute of the burnyng and ſkater the fyre here and there, for the cenſers of theſe ſynners are halowed in their deathes: and lette them make of them thynne beaten plates for a couering of the altar. For they offered them before the LORDE, ⁊ therfore they are halowed, and they ſhalbe a ſygne vnto the children of Iſraell. And Eleazar the prieſt toke the braſen cenſers whiche they that were burnte had offered, and beate them thynne for a coueryng of the altar, to be a remembraunce vnto the children of Iſraell, yͭ no ſtraunger whiche is not of the ſede of Aaron, come nere to offer cens before the LORD, that it happẽ not vnto hym, lyke as vnto Corah and hys company: as the LORDE ſayde of him by yͤ hand of Moſes. But on the morowe all the multytude of the chyldren of Iſraell murmured agaynſt Moſes and Aarõ, ſayinge: ye haue killed the people of the F LORDE. And it fortuned that whẽ the multytude was gathered agaynſt Moſes and Aaron, they loked towarde the Tabernacle of wytneſſe. And beholde. (when they were entred into it) the cloude couered it, and the glorye of the LORDE appeared. And Moſes and Aarõ came before the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: Get you from amonge this congregacion, that I may conſume them quickly. And they fell vpon their faces. And Moſes ſayde vnto Aaron: take a cenſer, and put fyre therin out of the altar, and powre on cens, and go quyckelye vnto the congregaciõ, that thou maiſte obtayne forgeueneſſe for them. For there is wrathe gone oute frome the LORDE, and there is a plage begonne. G

And Aarõ toke as Moſes commaunded hym, and ranne into the myddes of the congregacyon, and beholde, the plage was begonne amonge yͤ people, ⁊ he put on rens,and made an attonemēt for the people. And when he ſtode betwene the deade and them that were a lyue,the plage ceaſed.They that dyed in the plage were fourtene thouſand ⁊ ſeuen hundred : beſyde them that dyed aboute the buſines of Corah . And Aaron went agayne vnto Moſes before the dore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and the plage ceaſed.

¶ The.xvii.Chapter.

Aarons rod buddeth/and beareth bloſſoms.

A AND the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge:ſpeake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael:and take of euery prince of them a rodde, after yͤ houſes of their fathers, euē twelue roddes:and wryte euery mans name vpon his rodde.And wryte Aarons name vpon the rodde of Leui:for euerye rod is for an houſe of their fathers.And put thē in yͤ Tabernacle of wytnes,euē in the place wher B I mete you. And the mans rod whom I choſe, ſhall bloſſome . And I wyll make ceaſſe from me the grudgynges of the children of Iſrael,whereby they grudge againſt you.

And Moſes ſpake vnto the children of Iſraell,and al the princes gaue him euery prynce ouer theyr fathers houſes, a rodde,euen twelue roddes : and the rod of Aaron was amōg yͤ roddes: And Moſes put the roddes before the C LORDE,in the Tabernacle of wytnes.
And on the morowe,Moſes went into the tabernacle of wytneſſe:and behold, Hebre.9.a *the rod of Aaron for the houſe of Leui, was budded,and bare bloſſoms and almondes.And Moſes brought out al the roddes from before the LORDE vnto all the children of Iſraell: and they loked vpon them,and toke euery man his rod . And the LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes:bryng Aarons rod agayne before D the wytneſſe to be kept for a token of the childrens rebellyō,and that their murmuring maye ceaſe from me, and that they dye not.And Moſes dyd as the LORDE commaunded him,euen ſo dyd he.And the childrē of Iſrael ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge:beholde, we are waſted awaye and conſumed : we all come to nought,who ſo euer commeth nye the dwellyng of the LORDE, dieth.
Shall we vtterly conſume awaye?

The.xviii.Chapter.

¶ The offyce of the Leuites.The tythes and firſt frutes muſt be geuen them.Aarons herytage.

AND the LORDE ſayd vnto Aaron, thou and thy ſonnes and thy fathers A houſe with the ſhall beare yͤ faulte of that which is done amyſſe in the holy place . And thou and thy ſons with the,ſhall beare the faulte of that whiche is done amyſſe in youre prieſthode.
*And thy brethren of the tribe of Num.
Leui , and of thy fathers houſeholde thou ſhalt take vnto the, that they may

And they ſhall be by the, and wayte on the tabernacle of wytneſſe for all the Therfore ſhal ye kepe the holy place and the altar , that there fall no more wrath vpon the children of Iſraell:beholde, I haue taken your brethren the gyftes,thorowout al the waue offeringes of the children of Iſraell : I haue geuen

geuen them vnto the and thy ſonnes & thy doughters with the, to be a dutye for euer: and all that are cleane in thy houſe, ſhall eate of it, all the fatte of the oyle, and all the fatte of the wyne and of the corne, whiche they ſhall offer vnto the LORDE for fyrſt frutes, the ſame haue I geuen vnto the. And what ſo euer is fyrſte ripe in theyr lande whiche they brynge vnto the LORDE ſhalbe thyne, and all that are cleane in thyne houſe ſhall eate of it. All dedicate thinges in Iſraell ſhalbe thyne. All that C breaketh the matrice in all fleſhe that men bringe vnto the LORDE, whether it be of men or beaſtes, ſhalbe thyne.

Neuerthelater the fyrſte borne of man ſhalte thou redeme: and the firſte borne of vncleane beaſtes: ſhalt thou redeme lykewyſe. Thoſe that are to be redemed, ſhalt thou redeme from the age of a moneth, for the value of the monye, namely for fyue ſicles after the ſicle of the ſanctuarye. A ſicle maketh twenty halfpens. But the fyrſte borne of oxen, ſhepe and goates ſhalte thou not redeme. For they are holye: therfore thou ſhalte ſprynkle theyr bloude vpon the altar, and ſhalte burne theyr fat vpon the ſacrifice for a ſwete ſauour vnto yͤ LORDE. And the fleſhe of them is thine Leuit.7.d *as the wauebreſt and the ryght ſhulder. Theſe are thyne. All the holy heueofferynges whiche the children of Iſraell offer vnto the LORDE, haue I geuen thee, and thy ſons and thy doughters with the, to be a dutye for euer, let B it be a ſalted couenaunt for euer: before the LORDE, bothe vnto the and to thy ſede with the. And the LORDE ſpake Deut.13.a vnto Aaron: *thou ſhalt haue none in- Eccle.43g heritaunce in theyr lande, nether ſhalt thou haue any part among them. I am thy parte and thy enherytaunce amõg the children of Iſrael. Beholde I haue geuen the children of Leui al the tenth in Iſraell to inheryte, for the ſeruyce whiche they ſerue in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. Nether muſte the chyldrẽ of Iſrael henceforth come nye the tabernacle of wytnes, leſt they beare ſynne, and dye. But the Leuites ſhall do the D ſeruyce in the tabernacle of wytneſſe & beare theyr ſynne. It ſhalbe a lawe for euer in youre generacyons that amõg the chyldrẽ of Iſrael, they poſſeſſe none inherytaunce. But the tythes of the chyldren of Iſrael, which they paye as an heueofferynge vnto the LORDE, I haue geuen the Leuites to inheryte. And therfore I haue ſayde vnto them: Amonge the chyldren of Iſrael ye ſhal poſſeſſe none enherytaunce. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the Leuites, and ſay vnto them: when ye take of the chyldren of Iſraell the tythes whiche I haue geuen you of them for your enherytaũce, ye ſhall take an heueofferynge of that ſame for the LORDE: euen the tenthe parte of the tyth. And thys your heueofferyng ſhalbe rekened vnto you, euẽ as thoughe it were of the corne of the barne, or out of the fulneſſe of the wine preſſe. Of this maner ye ſhall therfore ſeperate an heueofferynge vnto the LORDE of all youre tythes whiche ye receiue of the children of Iſrael, and ye ſhal geue thereof vnto the LORDE an heueofferyng, whiche ſhall belonge to Aaron the prieſt. Of all your gyftes, ye ſhal take out al the LORDES heueofferinges, euen the fatte of their halowed thynges. Therfore thou ſhalte ſay vnto them: when ye haue taken away the fat of it from it, it ſhalbe counted vnto the Leuites, as yf it were the encreaſe of the corne flore, or the encreaſe of the wyne preſſe. And ye ſhall eate it in all places, both ye and your houſholds for it is your rewarde for youre ſeruice in the tabernacle of witneſſe. And ye ſhal beare no ſynne by the reaſon of it, when ye haue taken from it the fat of it: neyther ſhall ye vnhalowe the holy thynges of the chyldren of Iſraell, leſt ye dye.

The.xix. Chapter.

A ¶Of the red kowe. The law of him that dieth in the Tabernacle/and of him alſo that toucheth any vncleane thyng.

AND the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, and Aaron ſayinge: this is the ordynaunce of the law: whych the LORDE hathe commaunded, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the children of Iſrael that they bryng thee a red kowe wͭout ſpot, and wherein is no blemyſhe, and vpon whiche neuer came yoke. And ye ſhall geue her vnto Eleazar the prieſt, that he maye brynge *her without the Hebr.13.c hoſte, and cauſe her to be ſlayne before his face. And let Eleazar the prieſte take of her bloud with his fynger, and ſprynkle it before the Tabernacle of wytneſſe ſeuen tymes. And cauſe the kowe to be burnt in his ſyght with her Leui.4.c. *ſkynne, fleſhe and bloude. And the dung of her ſhall he burne alſo. And let the prieſt take Cedar wood, and yſope and purple clothe, and caſte it vpon the kowe as ſhe burneth. Then let yͤ prieſt waſhe his clothes, and he ſhall bath his fleſhe in water, and then come into the hoſt, and the prieſt ſhalbe vncleane vnto yͤ euen. And he that burneth her, ſhall waſhe his clothes in water, and B bath hys fleſhe in water, & be vncleane vntyll euen. And a man that is cleane ſhal take vp the aſhes of the kowe, and put them without the hoſte in a cleane place. And it ſhalbe kept for the multi- Num.3.b tude of the children of Iſraell * for a ſprynckelynge water, and for an attonement of ſynne. Therefore he that gathereth the aſhes of yͤ kowe, ſhal waſhe his clothes, and remaine vncleane vntyll euen. And this ſhalbe vnto yͤ chyldren of Iſraell and vnto the ſtraunger that dwelleth amonge them, a ſtatute Num.31.c. Eccle.34.D Agge.2.c for euer. * He that toucheth the dead body of any man, ſhalbe vncleane ſeuẽ dayes. And he ſhall purifie himſelfe wͭ this water the thyrd day & the ſeuenth daye, and he ſhalbe cleane.

C But if he purifie not himſelfe the thyrd day and the ſeuenth day, he ſhall not be cleane. Whoſo euer toucheth the corſe of any mã that is dead, and ſprinkleth not him ſelfe, defyleth the dwellyng of the LORD, and that ſoule ſhalbe roted oute of Iſraell, becauſe the ſprynklynge water was not ſprynkled vpon him. He ſhalbe therfore vncleane, and his vnclenneſſe ſhall remayne vpõ him. This is the lawe of the man that dyeth in a tente: all that come into the tent, and al that is in yͤ tent ſhal be vncleane ſeuen dayes. And all the veſſels D that be opẽ which haue no lyd nor couering vpõ thẽ ſhalbe vncleane. And who ſoeuer toucheth one that is ſlaine with a ſwearde in the feldes, or a dead perſon, or a bone of a dead mã, or a graue, ſhalbe vncleane ſeuẽ dayes. Therfore, for an vncleane perſon they ſhall take of the burnt aſſhes of the ſynofferyng, and runnynge water ſhal be put therto in a veſſell. And let a cleane perſone Psal.51.b. *take yſope and dippe it in the water, and ſprynkle it vpon the tent, and vpon all the veſſelles, and on the ſoules that were therin, and vpõ him that touched a bone, or a ſlayne perſone, or a dead body, or a graue. And the cleane perſone ſhall ſprynkle vpon the vncleane the thyrd day & the.vii.day, & yͤ ſeuẽth daye he ſhal purifie himſelfe, and waſhe his clothes, and bath hymſelfe in water, & ſhal be cleane at euen. Exod.17. But the mã that is vncleane and ſprynkleth not hymſelfe, the ſame ſoule ſhall be deſtroyed from amonge the cõgregacion: becauſe he hathe defyled the holye place of the LORDE, and the ſprinkling water hath not bene ſprynkled vpon him, therefore Psal.78. ſhall he remayne vncleane. And thys ſhalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto them. And he that ſprynkleth the ſprynklyng water, ſhall waſhe his clothes. And he C that toucheth the ſprynklynge water, ſhal be vncleane vntyl euen. And what ſoeuer the vncleane perſone toucheth ſhalbe vncleane. And yͤ ſoule that toucheth it ſhalbe vncleane vntyl the euẽ.

The.xx.Chapter.

MirJam dyeth. The people murmur. They haue water euen out of the rocke. Edom denyed the Iſraelites paſſage thorowe his realme. The death of Aaron in whoſe rowme Eleazar ſucedeth

A AND the children of Iſrael came wͭ the whole multitude into the deſert* of Syn in the fyrſt moneth, & Num the people abode at Cades. And there died MirJam, & was buried there. But there was no water for the multitude, and they gathered themſelues together agaynſte Moſes and Aaron. And the people chode with Moſes, and ſpake, ſayinge: woulde GOD that we Num.21.c had periſhed, when our brethren dyed before yͤ LORD. Why haue ye brought the congregacyon of the LORDE vnto this wilderneſſe, that both we and our Exo catell ſhould dye in it? * Wherfore haue ye made vs to go out of Egipt, to bring vs into this vngracyous place, which is no place of ſede nor of figges, nor vines, B nor of pomgranates, neyther is there any water to drinke. And Moſes and Aaron wente from the congregacyon vnto the dore of the Tabernacle of wytneſſe, and fell vpon their faces. (And they cried vnto the Lord / and ſayd: o Lorde God heare the cry of this people / and open them thy treaſure / euen a fountaine of liuynge water / that they may be ſatiſfied / and that theyr murmuring maye ceaſſe.) And the glorye of yͤ LORDE appeared vnto them. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: take ẏ rod, and gather thou and thy brother Aarō the congregacion together, and ſpeake vnto the rocke before theyr eyes, and it ſhall geue forth his water. And thou ſhalt bring them water out of ẏ rocke, to geue the companye drynke, & theyr Exod.17. beaſtes alſo. * And Moſes toke ẏ rod from before the LORD, as he commaūded hym. And Moſes and Aaron gathered the congregacyon together before the rocke, and Moſes ſayde vnto them: heare ye rebellyons: muſt we fet you water out of this rocke? And Moſes lyfte vp hys hande, & wyth his * rod Pſal.78. he ſmote the rocke two tymes, and the water came out abundauntly, and the multitude dranke and their beaſtes alſo. C And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron: becauſe ye beleued me not, to ſanctifie me in the eyes of the childrē of Iſrael, therfore ye ſhall not brynge this congregacion into the land which I haue geuen them. This is the water of ſtryfe, becauſe the chyldren of Iſrael ſtroue with the LORDE, and he was ſanctified in them. Iudg.11. And Moſes * ſente meſſengers from Cades vnto the king of Edom. Thus ſayth thy brother Iſraell: Thou knoweſt al the trauayle ẏ hath happened vs. Our fathers went downe into Egipt, and we haue dwelt in Egipte a longe tyme, and the Egipcians vexed vs and our fathers. And when we cryed vnto the LORDE, he hearde our voyce, and ſent an aungell, and hath ſet vs vp out of Egipte. And beholde we are in Cades, euen in ẏ vttermoſte citye of thy border. Num.21. We wyll go nowe thorowe thy countre * but we wyll not go thorowe the feldes or vinyardes, neyther wyll we drynke of the water of the fountaynes: we wil go by the kynges hye way, and nether tourne vnto the ryghte hande nor to the lefte, vntyll we be paſt thy countrie. And Edom anſwered him.

D Thou ſhalt not go by me: leſt I come out agaynſt thee with the ſwearde. The chyldren of Iſrael ſayde vnto him: we wyl go by the beaten way: and if I and my cattell drynke of thy water, I wyll pay for it, I wyll but onely (with out any harme) go thorowe on my fete. He anſwered: Thou ſhalt not go thorowe, And Edom came out agaynſte hym with muche peop myghtie power. And th them vp into mounte Hor, & thou ſhal ſtryppe Aaron oute of his veſtimentes and put them vpon Eleazar his ſonne, and Aaron ſhall be gathered vnto hys people and ſhall dye there. And Moſes dyd as the LORDE commaunded, and they went vp into mount Hor in ẏ ſight of all the multitude. And Moſes toke of Aarons clothes, and put them vpon Eleazar hys ſonne, * and Aaron dyed Deut.10.b and.32.g. there in the top of the mounte. And Moſes and Eleazar came downe out of the mounte. When all the multytude ſawe that Aaron was dead, they mourned for Aarō thyrtie dayes, thorowout all the houſholdes of Iſraell.

The.xx. Chapter.

MirJam dyeth. The people murmur. They haue water euen out of the rocke. Edom denyed the Iſraelites paſſage thorowe his realme. The death of Aaron in whoſe rowme Eleazar ſucedeth

AND the children of Iſrael came wͭ the whole multitude into the deſert* of Syn in the fyrſt moneth, ⁊ the people abode at Cades. And there died MirJam, ⁊ was buried there. But there was no water for the multitude, and they gathered themſelues together agaynſte Moſes and Aaron. And the people chode with Moſes, and ſpake, ſayinge: woulde GOD that we had periſhed, when our brethren dyed before yͤ LORD. Why haue ye brought the congregacyon of the LORDE vnto this wilderneſſe, that both we and our catell ſhould dye in it? * Wherfore haue ye made vs to go out of Egipt, to bring vs into this vngracyous place, which is no place of ſede nor of figges, nor vines, nor of pomgranates, neyther is there any water to drinke. And Moſes and Aaron wente from the congregacyon vnto the dore of the Tabernacle of wytneſſe, and fell vpon their faces. (And they cried vnto the Lord / and ſayd: o Lorde God heare the cry of this people / and open them thy treaſure / euen a fountaine of liuynge water / that they may be ſatiſſfied / and that theyr murmuring maye ceaſſe.) For the border of the chyldrē of Ammō was* ſtrong. And Iſrael toke al theſe cityes, and dwelt in all the cities of the Amorites: in Heſbon and in all the townes that longe therto. For Heſbon was the Citie of Sehon the kyng of ẏ Amorites, which fought before againſt the kinge of the Moabites, and toke al his lande oute of hys hande, euen vnto Arnon. Wherfore they ſaye in the pro-

Nowe therfore tary ye here this night: that I may wete, what the LORD wyl ſay vnto me more. And GOD came vnto Balaam by night, and ſaid vnto him: If yͤ men come to call the, ryſe vp & go with thẽ: but loke what I ſay vnto the, that ſhalt thou do. And Balaam roſe vp earely, and ſadled his aſſe, & went with the Lordes of Moab.

Nu.24.c.

And the countenaunce of GOD was angry becauſe he went. And the aungel of the LORD ſtode in the waye againſt him, as he rode vpon his aſſe, and hys two ſeruauntes were with him. And when yͤ aſſe ſawe the angel of yͤ LORD ſtande in yͤ waye, & hauyng a ſwearde drawen in his hãde, yͤ aſſe turned aſide out of the waye, and went out into the felde. And Balaam ſmote the aſſe, to turne her into the waye.

C But the aungel of the LORD ſtode in a path betwene the veyneyardes, and there was a wall on the one ſide and another on the other. And when the aſſe ſawe the aungel of the LORD, ſhe wrẽched vnto the wall, & thruſte Balaams fote vnto the wall, and he ſmote her againe. And the angel of the LORD wẽt further & ſtode in a narow place, where was no waye to turne, eyther to the right hande or to yͤ lyft. And when the aſſe ſawe the angel of the LORD, ſhe fel downe vnder Balaam: & Balaam was wroth, and ſmote the aſſe with a ſtaffe. And the LORD opened the mouth of yͤ aſſe, and ſhe ſayd vnto Balaam: what haue I done vnto the, that thou haſte ſmytten me nowe thre tymes? And Balaam ſayde vnto the aſſe: becauſe thou haſte mocked me: I woulde alſo there were a ſwearde in my hande, for euen nowe woulde I kyll the. And the aſſe ſaid vnto Balaam: am not I thine aſſe whiche thou haſt rydden vpõ ſence thou waſt borne vnto this daye? Was I euer wonte to doe ſo vnto the? he ſayde: naye.

F And the LORDE opened the eyes of Balaam: and he ſawe the aungel of the LORD ſtandynge in the waye, hauinge a ſwearde drawen in his hande. He bowed him ſelfe therfore, and fel flat on his face. And the Aungell of the LORD ſayde vnto him: Wherfore haſt ŷ ſmittẽ thyne aſſe thre tymes? beholde, I came out as an aduerſary, becauſe thou makeſt thy waye contrary vnto me, ⁊ the aſſe ſaw me, and wẽt backe fro me thre tymes: or elles yf ſhe had not turned fro me (geuing place to me that ſtode in the way) I had ſurely ſlayne the, and ſaued her alyue. Balaam ſaid vnto the aungel of the LORD: I haue ſynned: for I wyſte not that thou ſtodeſt in the way agaiſt me. Nowe therfore yf it dyſpleaſe the I wyll turne home againe. The aungell ſayde vnto Balaam, go with ŷ mẽ: but what I ſay vnto the, that ſhalte thou ſpeake. And ſo Balaam went with the

G Lordes of Balac. And when Balac heard that Balaam was come, he went out to mete hym vnto a Cytie of Moab, whiche is in ŷ border of Arnon, euẽ in ŷ vtmoſt coaſt. And Balac ſayd vnto Balaam: dyd I not ſende for the, to call the? And wherfore cameſt thou not vnto me? becauſe I am not able to promote the vnto honour? And Balaam made anſwer vnto Balac: Lo, I am come vnto the. And can I nowe ſay any Num.23.c. thing at al? The word ŷ GOD *putteth in my mouth that ſhal I ſpeake. And Balaam wente with Balac, and they came vnto a cytie of ſtretes.

And Balac offered oxen and ſhepe, and ſente (rewardes) for Balaam, and for the Lordes that were with him. And on the morowe Balac toke Balaam, ⁊ broughte him vp into the hye place of Baal, that thence he myghte ſe the vttermoſt parte of the people.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

Balaam bleſſeth the people.

AND Balaam ſayde vnto Balac: buylde me here ſeuen aultars, and prepare me here ſeuen oxen and ſeuen rammes. And Balac dyd as Balaam ſayde. And Balac and Balaam offered on euery aultar, an oxe and a ram. And Balaam ſayde vnto Balac: ſtande by the ſacryfice, and I wil go, yf happly the LORDE will mete me: and what ſo euer he ſheweth me, I wyll tell the: and he went forth alone. But GOD met Balaam, ⁊ Balaam ſaid vnto him: I haue prepared ſeuen aultars, ⁊ haue offered vpon euery aultar, an oxe and a ramme. And the LORD put a ſaying in Balaams mouth, ⁊ ſayde: go againe to Balac and ſaye on this wyſe. And whẽ he went againe vnto him, lo, he ſtode by his ſacrifice, he ⁊ al ŷ lordes of Moab.

And he toke vp his parable and ſaid, *Balac the kyng of Moab hath ſet me from Meſopotamia out of the mountanes of the eaſt (ſaying) come, curſe Jacob for my ſake: come and defye Iſrael. How ſhal I curſe him, whõ GOD hath not curſed? or howe ſhall I defye hym whome GOD hathe not defyed? from the top of the rockes I ſe him, ⁊ from the hylles I beholde him: lo the people ſhall dwel by them ſelues, and ſhal not be rekened amõg ŷ nacions. Who can tel the duſt of Jacob, ⁊ the number of ŷ fourth parte of Iſrael? I pray GOD, ŷ my ſoule may dye ŷ death of ŷ righteous, and that my laſt ende maye be lyke his. And Balac ſayd vnto Balaã: what haſt thou done vnto me? I ſet thee to curſe myne enemyes, ⁊ beholde, ŷ haſte bleſſed them. He anſwered ⁊ ſayd: muſt I not kepe that and ſpeake it, whiche ŷ LORDE hath put in my mouthe? a lambe thorowout the ſeuen lambes, and an he gote to make an attonement for you. This ye ſhall do beſydes the contynuall burnte offerynge, and his meate offerynge: and they ſhalbe vnto you wythoute ſpot, with theyr drynke offerynges.

The.xxix. Chapter.

What muſte be offered the eyght fyrſt dayes of the ſeuenth moneth.

AND in the fyrſt daye of the ſeuenth I moneth ye ſhall haue an holy conuocacion:*ye ſhall do then no ſeruile Le worke.For it is a daye of blowing vnto you.But ye ſhal offer a burntofferyng for a ſwete ſauour vnto yͤ LORD: one yōge bullocke, one ram, and ſeuen lambes of a yere olde a pece,yͭ are pure.
And theyr meate offeryng ſhalbe made of floure myngled with oyle,thre tenth deales vnto the bullocke,and two vnto vnto the ram:and one tenth deale vnto one lambe thorowout the ſeuen lābes.
And an he gote for ſyn to make an attonement for you,beſyde yͤ dayly burnt offering of the moneth,& his meatofferyng, & beſyde the dayly burnt offering, & his meatofferynge & the drynke offerynges of yͤ ſame,whych muſte be done accordyng vnto the maner of them for a ſauoure of ſwetneſſe of the ſacrifyce of yͤ LORD.*And ye ſhall haue yͤ tenth Le day of that ſame ſeuēth moneth an holy B cōuocacion:& ye ſhal hūble your ſoules, & ſhal do no maner worke therin.
But ye ſhal offer a burnt offeringe vnto the LORDE for a ſwete ſauour: one bullocke,a ram,& ſeuen lābes of a yere olde a pece , whyche ſhall be vnto you wythout faute.Theyr meate offerynge ſhalbe of floure myngled wyth oyle, thre tenth deales to a bullocke, & two to a ram,and a tenth deale vnto a lābe, thorowout the ſeuen lambes.

An he gote for ſynne,beſyde yͤ ſynne D offeryng of attonement,& dayly burnte offerynge, and the meate and drynke offerynges,that longe to the ſame.
*And in the fyftenth daye of the ſeuen Le moneth ye ſhall haue an holy conuocacion, & do then no ſeruile worke,and ye ſhall kepe a feaſt vnto the LORD:ſeuen dayes longe.And ye ſhall offer a burnt offeryng for a ſacrifyce of a ſwete ſauour vnto the LORD thyrtene bullockes, two rams,&.xiiii.lambes of a yere olde,whych ſhalbe wythout blemyſhe.
And theyr meatoffring ſhalbe of floure myngled with oyle thre tenth deales vnto euery one of yͤ thyrten bullockes, two tenth deales to either of the rams, and one tenth deale vnto eache of the fourtene lambes. And one he goate for ſynne, beſyde the dayly burnt offeryng with his meate and drynke offerynge.

C And the ſeconde daye, ye ſhall offer twelue yonge bullockes, two rammes, fourtene yearlyng lãbes without ſpot: and let their meateoffering and drinkofferynges vnto the bullockes, rams, and lambes, be accordynge to the number of them, and after the maner. And an he goate for ſynne, beſyde the dayly burnt offeryng and his meate & drinke offerynges. And the thyrde day ye ſhal offer eleuen bullockes, two rams, and xiiii. yerlyng lambes without ſpot: and let theyr meate and drynkofferynges vnto the bullockes rammes, and lambes be after the numbre of them, and accordynge to the maner. And there ſhalbe offered an he goate for ſinne, beſyde the daylye burnte offering and his meate and drynkofferyng.

In the fourth daye ye ſhall offer ten bullockes, two rammes, and fourtene lambes yerlynges and pure: let theyr meate and drynkofferynges vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes be accordyng to the number of them, and after the maner. And an he goate for ſin, beſyde the dayly burntofferynge & hys meate and drynkofferynge. In the .v. daye ye ſhall offer nyne bullockes, two rammes, and thyrtene lambes of one yere olde a pece without ſpot. And let theyr meate and drynkofferynges vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes be accordynge to the numbre of them, and after the maner. And an he goate for ſynne, beſyde the dayly burnte offeryng and his meate and drinkoffering.

D And in the ſyxte daye, ye ſhall offer eyghte bullockes, two rammes, and fourtene yearlynge lambes withoute ſpot. And let theyr meate and drynkeofferynges vnto the bullockes, rams, & lambes be accordyng to the numbre of them, and after the maner. And an he goate for ſynne, beſide the dayly burnt offerynge, and his meate and drynkofferynges. In the ſeuenth daye, ye ſhall offer ſeuen bullockes, two rammes, & thyrtene lambes, that are yearlynges and pure. And let theyr meate & drynkofferynges vnto the bullockes, rammes and lambes be accordynge to theyr nũber, and after the maner. And an he goate for ſynne, beſyde the daylye burnt offeryng, and his meate and drynkeoffering. In the eyght day, ye ſhall haue a collectyon of the feaſte vnto you, and ye ſhal do no ſeruile worke therin. But ye ſhall offer a burnt offerynge, a ſacrifyce for a ſwete ſauour vnto yͤ LORD: one bullocke, one ram and ſeuẽ yerling lambes without ſpot. Let theyr meate and drinkofferynges vnto the bullocke ramme and lambes, be accordynge to the number, and accordyng to the maner. And an he goate for ſynne, beſyde the dayly burntoffering and his meate and drynkofferynges. These thynges ye ſhall do vnto the LORDE in youre feaſtes: beſyde your vowes and fre wil offerynges, in your burntofferynges, meate offerynges, drynkeofferynges, & peaceofferinges. And Moſes tolde the children of Iſraell all that the LORDE commaunded him.

The .xxx. Chapter.

Of vowes when they ſhalbe kepte, and when not.

A And Moſes ſpake vnto the heades of the trybes of the chyldren of Iſrael, ſaying: this is yͤ thing which the LORDE hath commaunded. *Yf a man vowe a vowe vnto the LORDE, or ſweare an othe to bynd his ſoule, he ſhall not go backe with hys worde: but ſhall fulfyll all that is proceded out of his mouthe.

Deu. 23. d.

Yf a woman alſo vowe a vowe vnto the LORDE and bynde her ſelfe beinge in her fathers houſe, in the time of her youth, and her father heare her vowe & bonde whiche ſhe hath made vpon her ſoule, and holde his peace thereto: then al her vowes & bondes whych ſhe hath made vpõ her ſoule, ſhal ſtãde in effect. B But & if her father forbyd her the ſame daye yͤ he heareth it, none of her vowes nor bondes which ſhe hath made vpon her ſoule ſhalbe of value: & the LORDE ſhall forgeue her, becauſe her father forbad her. Yf ſhe had an huſbãde when ſhe vowed or pronounced ought out of her lyppes, wherwyth ſhe bounde her ſoule, & her huſbãde herde it & helde his peace thereat the ſame daye he herde it, then her vowe and her bõdes wherwith ſhe boũde her ſoule ſhal ſtande in effecte . And yf her huſbande forbad her the ſame day that he hearde it:and made her vowe whiche ſhe hath vpon her of none effecte, and releaſed the openyng of her lippes,wherwͭ ſhe boūde her ſoule,the LORD ſhal forgeue her.

C But euery vowe of a wydowe, and of her that is deuorced (that they haue bounde their ſoule withall)ſhal ſtande in effecte with them . If ſhe vowed in her huſbādes houſe, or boūde her ſoule with an othe, and her huſbande hearde it,and helde his peace, and forbad her not,then al her vowes ⁊ bondes wherwith ſhe bounde her ſoule, ſhall ſtande.
But yf her huſbande dyſanulled them, the ſame day that he hearde them,then nothing that proceadeth out of her lippes in vowes and bōdes(wherwith ſhe bound her ſoule!) ſhall ſtande in effecte: for her huſbande hath looced theym.
D And the LORDE ſhal forgeue her . All vowes and othes that binde to humble the ſoule,maye her huſbande ſtablyſhe or breake. But yf her huſbande holde his peace from one day vnto another, then he ſtabliſheth all her vowes and bondes whiche ſhe had vpon her, because he held his peace the ſame daye yͭ he hearde them . But yf he breake thē, after that he hath hearde them, he ſhal beare her ſynne him ſelfe. Theſe are the ordynaunces whiche the LORDE commaunded Moſes, betwene a man and his wyfe:and betwene yͤ father and his doughter, beynge yet a damoſell in her fathers houſe.

The.xxxi.Chapter.

¶ The Madianites and Balaam are ſlayne. The pray is equally deuided. A preſēt geuē of Iſrael.

A AND the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, Num.25.c ſaying:*auenge the childrē of Iſrael of the Madianytes, ⁊ afterwarde ſhalt thou be gathered vnto thy people. And Moſes ſpake vnto yͤ folke, ſayinge : Harneſſe ſome of you vnto warre,and let thē goe vpon yͤ Madianytes, and auenge the LORD of yͤ Madianites.
Let ther be choſen a thouſāde out of euery trybe of Iſrael,yͭ out of all yͤ tribes ye may ſēde ſome to yͤ warre.
And ther were taken out of yͤ thouſāds of Iſraell, twelue thouſande prepared vnto warre, of euery trybe a thouſāde.

And Moſes ſent them to the warre, euen a thouſande of euery trybe,⁊ with them, Phineas the ſonne of Eleazar the Preaſte,and the holy veſſelles : and the *trompets to blowe,were in his hāde. Num And they warred againſt yͤ Madianytes, as the LORDE commaunded Moſes, ⁊ ſlue all the males. And they ſlue yͤ kinges of Madian among other yͭ were ſlayne:Namely,Eui ⁊ Rekem,Zur and Hur,and Reba,fiue kynges of Madian with Balaam,yͤ ſonne of Beor,whome they ſlue with yͤ ſwearde:And the children of Iſrael toke al yͤ wemē of Madian priſoners,⁊ their children, ⁊ ſpoyled all their catel, and all their flockes, and al their goodes. And they burnte al their cities wherin they dwelte, and all their caſtels with fyre.

And they toke al the ſpoyle, ⁊ al that they could catche, bothe of men ⁊ beaſtes. B And they broughte the captyues ⁊ that whiche they had taken, ⁊ yͤ ſpoyle vnto Moſes and Eleazar the preaſt, ⁊ vnto the company of the childrē of Iſrael, euen vnto the Hoſte that wer in yͤ feldes of Moab by Iordā, ouer againſte Iericho. And Moſes and Eleazar the preaſt,and al yͤ lordes of the congregacion went out of yͤ hoſt againſte them.
And Moſes was angry wͭ the officers of yͤ Hoſte,wͭ the captaines ouer thouſandes ⁊ ouer hundredes, which came from the warre and battayle: ⁊ Moſes ſayde vnto them:Haue ye ſaued all the wemen alyue:beholde, *theſe cauſed yͤ Nu children of Iſrael thorow the councell of*Balaam, to commit treſpaſſe agaiſt P the LORDE, in the buſyneſſe of Peor, and there folowed a plage amonge the congregacion of yͤ LORDE. Now therfore, *ſlay al the men children, and the Iu wemen that haue lyen with mē fleſhly.
But al the wemē childrē that haue not lien with men, kepe alyue for your ſelues.
And ye ſhall remayne without the hoſt ſeuen dayes,all yͭ haue kylled anye perſone: *and all yͭ haue touched anye Nu and your pryſoners the thyrd daye and yͤ ſeuenth . And ſprynkle all youre raymentes and al that is made of ſkinnes and all worke of gootes heare, and all thinges made of woode.

D And Eleazar the prieſt ſayed vnto the men of warre, which came from yͤ battayle: this is the ordynaunce of yͤ lawe whiche the LORD commaunded Moſes: Golde ſyluer, braſſe, and yron,tyn, and leade, and all that maye abyde the fire

fyre,ye ſhall make it goe thorowe the fyre,and it ſhalbe cleane. Neuertheles, it ſhalbe ſprinkled wͭ ſprinklinge water. And all that ſuffereth not the fyre, ye ſhall make go thorow the water. And waſhe youre clothes the ſeuenth daye,and ye ſhall be cleane. And afterwarde come into the hoſt.

And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying:take the ſumme of ẏ praye that was taken, both of the wemen and of the cattel,thou and Eleazar the prieſt, ⁊ the auncyente fathers of the congregacion. And deuide it into two partes betwene them that toke the warre vpon them,and went out to battayle,and all the congregacion. And take a porcion vnto the LORDE of ẏ men of war, which went out to battayle: one ſoule of fyue hundred,both of the wemen, ⁊ of the oxen, and of the aſſes, and of the ſhepe:and ye ſhall take it of theyr halfe and geue it vnto Eleazar the prieſt,as an heueofferyng of the LORDE.

E And of the halfe of the chyldren of Iſraell,thou ſhalte take one porcyon of fyftie, of the wemen,of the oxen, of ẏ aſſes,and of the ſhepe,and of all maner of beaſtes: ⁊ geue them vnto ẏ Leuites, whiche wayte vpon the habitacion of the LORDE. And Moſes and Eleazar the prieſt dyd as the LORDE commaũded Moſes. And the botye,and ẏ praye whiche the men of warre had caughte, was ſyxe hundred thouſande, ⁊.lxxv. thouſande ſhepe:and.lxxii. thouſande oxen.lxi.thouſande aſſes: ⁊.xxxii.thouſande ſoules of wemen, that had lyen by no man. And the halfe whiche was the parte of them that wente oute to warre,was thre hundred thouſande: ⁊ ſeuen and thirtye thouſande and fyue hundred ſhepe. And the LORDES part of the ſhepe was ſyxe hundred ⁊.lxxv. And the oxen were.xxxvi. thouſand,of whiche the LORDES parte was.lxxii.

F And the aſſes were thirtye thouſãde and.v.hundred,of which the LORDES parte was.lxi. And the ſoules of wemẽ were.xvi.thouſande,of which ẏ LORDES parte was.xxxii.ſoules. And Moſes gaue the ſumme whiche was the LORDES heueofferynge,vnto Eleazar the prieſt,as the LORDE commaunded Moſes. And the other halfe of the children of Iſraell whiche Moſes ſeperated from the men of warre, (that is to wete the halfe that pertayned vnto the congregacyon) was thre hũdred thouſande,and.xxxvii.thouſand, and.v.hundred ſhepe:and.xxxvi. thouſande oxen: and.xxx.thouſand aſſes, and.v.hũdred and.xvi.thouſande ſoules of wemen. And Moſes toke of this halfe that pertayned vnto the children of Iſrael,one porcion of fyftie, bothe of the wemen ⁊ of the catell,and gaue them vnto the Leuites,whiche wayted vpon the habitacion of the LORDE,as the LORDE commaũded Moſes. And the offycers of thouſandes of the hoſt, ẏ captaynes ouer the thouſandes,and ẏ captaynes ouer ẏ hundredes came forth,and ſaide vnto Moſes:Thy ſeruauntes haue taken the ſum of the men of warre which are vnder oure auctoritie, ⁊ there lacketh not one man of vs. G

We haue therfore broughte a preſente vnto the LORDE what euery mã founde of iewelles of golde, cheynes, bracellettes,rynges,earynges, ⁊ ſpangelles,to make an attonement for oure ſoules before the LORDE. And Moſes and Eleazar toke the golde of them, iewelles of all maner faſhyons. And al the gold of the heueofferyng that they heued vp to the LORD,(of ẏ captaines ouer thouſandes and hundredes)was ſyxtene thouſande,ſeuen hundred and fyftie ſycles,for the men of warre had ſpoyled,euery man for himſelfe. And Moſes and Eleazar the prieſt, toke ẏ golde of the captaynes ouer the thouſandes, and of the captaynes ouer the hundredes, and brought it into ẏ Tabernacle of wytneſſe, for a memoryall of the chyldren of Iſraell before the LORDE.

To Ruben and Gad/and to halfe the trybe of Manaſſes/is promiſed the poſſeſſyon beyonde Iordan/Eaſtwarde. A

THe children of Ruben, and the chyldrẽ of Gad had an exceding greate multitude of catell. And when they ſaw the lande of Iazer,and the land of Galead,that it was an apt place for catell, the children of Ruben and the children of Gad came ⁊ ſpake vnto Moſes and Eleazar the Prieſte, and vnto the LORDES of the congregacyon, ſayinge:The lande of Ataroth ⁊ Dibon Iazer, and Nemrah, Heſbon ⁊ Elealeh, Sabam and Nebo ⁊ Beon:

Which countrey the LORDE ſmote before the congregacion of Iſrael: is a lande mete for catell, and we thy ſeruauntes haue catell: wherfore (ſayde they) yf we haue founde grace in thy ſighte, let this lande be geuen vnto thy ſeruauntes to poſſeſſe, and brynge vs not ouer Iordan.

B And Moſes ſayde vnto the children of Gad and of Ruben: ſhall youre brethren go to warre, and ye ſhall ſyt here?
Wherefore dyſcorage ye the harte of yͤ children of Iſrael: that they ſhould not go ouer into the lande, which yͤ LORD Num.13.d hath geuen them? *Thus dyd your fathers when I ſente them from Cades Barne to ſe the lande. For when they went vp euen vnto the ryuer of Eſcoll, and ſawe the lande: they dyſcoraged the hartes of the children of Iſraell, yͭ they ſhould not go into the land, which the LORDE hath geuen them.

C And the LORD was wroth the ſame Num.14.f tyme, and ſware, ſaying: *None of the men that came oute of Egypte frõ .xx. yere olde and aboue, ſhall ſe the lande whiche I ſware vnto Abrahã, Iſahac, and Iacob, becauſe they haue not wholye folowed me: ſaue Caleb the ſonne of Iephune the Keneſyte, and Ioſua the ſonne of Nun: for they haue folowed yͤ LORDE. And the LORDE was angrye with Iſraell, ⁊ made them wander in the wylderneſſe fortye yere, vntyll all the generacion that had done euyll in the ſyghte of the LORDE, were conſumed.

And beholde, ye are ryſen vp in your fathers ſteade, as an encreaſe of ſynful men, to augment yͤ fearce wrath of the LORDE, toward Iſrael. For if ye turne awaye from after hym, he wyll yet agayne leaue the people in the wylderneſſe, and ye ſhal deſtroye al this folke.
And they went nere hym and ſayd: we wyll buylde ſhepe foldes here for oure ſhepe and for our cattel, and (walled) cytyes for our children. But we oure ſelues wyll go ready armed before yͤ children of Iſrael, vntyl we haue brought D them vnto their place. And our childrẽ (and what ſo euer we maye haue) ſhal dwel in the fenced cities, becauſe of the inhabiters of the lande. We wyl not returne vnto our houſes, vntyll the chyldren of Iſraell haue enherited, euery man his enherytaunce. Neyther wyll we enherite with them on yonder ſyde Iordan forwarde, becauſe oure enherytaunce is fallen to vs on thys ſyde Iordan eaſtwarde.

And Moſes ſayde vnto them: yf ye wyll do this thynge, and go harneſſed before the LORDE to warre, and wyll go all of you in harneſſe ouer Iordan before the LORDE, vntyll he haue caſt out his enemies before hym: and vntill the lande be ſubdued before yͤ LORDE, then ye ſhall returne and be wythoute ſynne before the LORD, and before Iſraell, and this lande ſhalbe youre poſſeſſion before the LORDE. But and yf ye wyll not do ſo, beholde, ye haue ſynned agaynſte the LORDE: and be ſure your ſynne wyll fynde you out.

Nowe therefore, buylde cyties for your childrẽ, and foldes for your ſhepe, and do that ye haue ſpoken. The chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Rubẽ ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: thy ſeruaũtes wyl do as my Lord commaundeth.
Our children, our wyues, our ſhepe, ⁊ our catel ſhal remaine here in yͤ cities of Gilead. But *thy ſeruauntes wil go Io al harneſſed for yͤ warre, ⁊ vnto bataile before the LORD, as my LORD ſayeth.
And for theyr ſakes Moſes cõmaũded Eleazar the prieſt, and Ioſua the ſõne of Nun, and the aũcient fathers of the trybes of the chyldren of Iſrael: and Moſes ſayd vnto them: yf the chyldrẽ of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben wyl go with you ouer Iordan, al prepared to fyght before the LORDE, then when the lãde is ſubdued before you, ye ſhal geue them the lande of Gilead to poſſeſſe: but and yf they wyll not go ouer wyth you in harneſſe, they ſhall haue theyr poſſeſſions amonge you in yͤ lãde of Canaan.

And the chyldren of Gad and yͤ children of Ruben anſwered, ſaying: As yͤ LORD hath ſayd vnto thy ſeruauntes, ſo wyll we do. *We wyll go harneſſed Io before the LORDE into the lande of Canaan: that the poſſeſſyon of our enherytaunce may be on this ſide Iordã.
And Moſes gaue vnto the chyldren of Gad, and to the childrẽ of Ruben, and vnto halfe the tribe of Manaſſe the ſon of Ioſeph, the kyngdõ of Sehon kynge of the Amorites, and the kyngdome of Og, Kynge of Baſan: the lande wyth yͤ cytyes therof, in the coſtes and cities of

the countrey rounde aboute. And the chyldꝛen of Gad buylte Dibon, and Ataroth, and Aroer, ⁊ Atroth, Sophan Jaeſer, and Jegabea, Bethnimra, and Betharan, fenſed Cityes, ⁊ they buylte foldes foꝛ the ſhepe.

G And the chyldꝛen of Ruben buylte Heſbon, Eleale, Kiryathaim, Nebo, Baal, Meon, and turned theyꝛ names, and Sibama alſo: ⁊ gaue other names vnto the cities whiche they buylded.
And the chyldꝛen of Machir: the ſonne of Manaſſe went to Gilead, and toke it and put out yͤ Amoꝛites that dwelte therin. And Moſes gaue Gilead vnto Machir the ſonne of Manaſſe, and he Deut. 3.b. dwelte therin. And *Jahir the ſonne of Manaſſe went ⁊ toke the ſmal townes therof, and called them Hauoth Jair.
And Nobah wente and toke Kenath, ⁊ the townes longyng therto, and called it Nobah, after hys owne name.

And of the north ſyde two thouſande cubytes alſo: and the Cytye ſhall be in the myddes. And theſe ſhall be the ſuburbes of theyr cytyes.

B And from among the Cytyes which ye ſhall geue vnto the Leuites, *there ſhalbe ſyxe Cities for refuge, which ye ſhall appoynte to that entente, that he whiche kylleth, maye flye thyther. Joſu.20.a And to them ye ſhall adde .xlii. cities moo: ſo that all the cytyes whiche ye ſhall geue the Leuites, maye be .xlviii. wyth their ſuburbes. And the cytyes whiche ye ſhall geue, ſhalbe oute of the poſſeſſyon of the children of Jſraell. They that haue manye, ſhall geue many. But of thē that haue fewe, ye ſhall take fewe. Euery one ſhall geue of his cities vnto the Leuites accordinge to the enherytaunce whiche he enheryteth. And the LORDE ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the children of Jſrael, and ſay vnto them: *when ye be come ouer Jordane into the lande of Canaan, ye ſhall appoynt you cities to be cyties of refuge, for you: that he whych ſleyeth a ſoule vnwares: maye flye thyther. And of theſe ſyxe fre cyties which ye ſhall geue, ye ſhall geue three on thys ſyde Jordane, and three in the lande of Canaan. And the ſyxe fre cyties ſhalbe a refuge both for the childrē of Jſrael, and for the ſtraunger, and for him that dwelleth amonge you: yͤ all they which kyll any perſonne vnwares, maye flye thyther. *And yf any man ſmyte another with an inſtrumente of yron that he dye, then is he a murtherer, & ſhall dye for it. Exod.21.d C yf he ſmyte hym with a throwyng ſtone that a man may dye wyth, and yf he dye, he that ſmote hym is a murtherer, let the ſame murtherer be ſlayne therfore. Or yf he ſmyte him wͭ a hande weapon of woode that a man may dye wͭ, then yf he dye, he is a murtherer, lette the murtherer be ſlayne therfore.

The iuſtyce of bloude ſhall ſlaye the murtherer: when he meteth hym, he maye ſlaye him. But yf he thruſt at him *of hate, or hourle at him with layinge of wayt, that he dye, or ſmyte him with his hande of enuye, that he dye, he that ſmote him, ſhall dye, for he is a murtherer: Deut.19.

rer. The Juſtice of bloude ſhall ſleye the murtherer as ſoone as he fyndeth hym.

But and yf he puſſhed him by chaũce, and not of hate, or caſte at him with any maner of thynge, and not of layinge of wayte: or caſte anye maner of ſtone at hym (that a man maye dye with) & ſawe him not. And he caſte it vpon him and he dye, and was not hys enemye, neyther ſoughte hym anye harme: Then the congregacion ſhal iudge betwene the ſleyer & the executer of bloud in ſuche caſes. And the congregacyon ſhall delyuer the ſleyer oute of the hande of the auenger of bloude, and yͤ congregacion ſhall reſtore him againe vnto the Citie of his refuge, whither he was fledde.

Iohn.20.d And he ſhal byde there* vnto yͤ death of the hye Prieſt, whiche was anoynted with holy oyle. But and yf yͤ ſleyer come without the borders of his priuileged citie whyther he was fledde, yf Alſo ye ſhall take no money of hym yͤ is fledde to a free Cytie, that he ſhould come agayne, and dwell in the lande, before the death of the hye Prieſt. And ſe that ye polute not the land which ye ſhall dwell in: for bloude defyleth the lande. And the lande can none otherwiſe be clenſed of the bloud that is ſhed therin, but by the bloud of him yͤ ſhedde bloude. Defyle not therefore the lande whiche ye ſhall inhabite, for I am in the myddes thereof: Euen I the LORDE dwell amonge the chyldren of Iſraell.

A AND the auncient fathers of yͤ children of Gilead the ſonne of Machir, the ſonne of Manaſſe, of the kynred of the chyldrẽ of Joſeph, came forth and ſpake before Moſes and the prynces and auncyent fathers of the children of Iſrael, and ſayde: * The LORDE commaunded my Lorde, to geue the lande to enherite by lot to the children of Iſraell. And my Lord commaunded in GODDES behalfe, to geue the enherytaunce of* Zelaphead oure brother, vnto his doughters. Whome yf any of the ſonnes of the other tribes of Iſraell take to wyues, then ſhall theyr enheritaunce be takẽ from yͤ enheritaunce of our fathers, and ſhall be put vnto the enheritaunce of the trybe which they are receyued into: and ſhal be taken from the lotte of our enherytaunce. And when the yere of Jubelye

B of the children of Iſraell commeth, thẽ ſhall theyr enherytaunce be put vnto yͤ enherytaunce of yͤ trybe wherinto they are receyued: and ſo ſhall their enherytaunce be taken awaye from the enherytaunce of the trybe of our fathers.

And Moſes commaunded the chyldren of Iſraell: according to the word of the LORDE, ſaying: the children of yͤ

C trybe of Joſeph haue ſayde well. This therfore doeth the LORDE commaunde the doughters of Zelaphead, ſayinge: *let them be wyues to whom they themſelfe thynke beſt, onely to the kynred and trybe of their father ſhall they mary: ſo ſhal not the enheritaunce of the children of Iſraell remoue from trybe to trybe, when the children of Iſraell abyde euerye man in the enherytaunce of the tribe of his fathers.

And euery doughter that poſſeſſeth any enheritaunce in any trybe of the children of Iſraell, ſhall be wyfe vnto one which is of the kynred of the tribe of her father: that the chyldren of Iſraell maye enioye euery man the enherytaunce of his father: Neyther ought the enherytaunce to go from one trybe to another: but euery one of the tribes of the children of Iſraell muſt abyde in hys owne enherytaunce.

And as the LORDE commaunded Moſes: euen ſo dyd the doughters of zelaphead. And Mahela, Thirza, Hagla, Milcha, and Noa were maried vnto their fathers brother ſonnes, whiche were of the kynredde of the children of Manaſſes, the ſonne of Joſeph: and ſo their enheritaũce remayned in yͤ tribe of the kynred of their father.

These are the commaundementes and lawes whiche the LORD cõmaunded by the hande of Moſes, vnto yͤ children of Jſrael in the feldes of Moab: by Jordan, ouer againſt Jericho.

And it fortuned the firſte daye of the eleuenth moneth, in the fortyeth yere, yͭ Moſes ſpake vnto yͤ chyldren of Jſrael accordinge vnto all that yͤ LORD had geuen him in cõmaundement vnto them, after that he had ſmitten *Sehon the kyng of the Amorites which dwelte in Heſbon, and Og kyng of Baſan whiche dwelt at Aſtarothe in Edrai. On the other ſyde Jordan in the lande of Moab beganne Moſes to declare this law, ſaying: the LORDE our GOD ſpake vnto vs in Horeb, ſaying: ye haue dwelt long ynoughe in this moũt, departe therfore and take youre iourney, and goe vnto the hyll of the Amorites, and vnto all places nye therunto, both vnto the plaine and hylles and dales: to the ſouth, to the ſeas ſyde, to the lande of Canaan, and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the greate ryuer Euphrates.

And J ſpake vnto you the ſame ceaſon, ſaying: J am not able to beare you my ſelfe alone. For the LORDE your GOD hath multiplyed you: & beholde, ye are this daye as the ſtarres of heauen in numbre (yͤ LORD GOD of your fathers make you a thouſande tymes ſo manye mo as ye ar, and bleſſe you as he hathe promyſed you how) can *J my ſelfe alone beare the cumbraunce, charge and ſtryfe that is among you: bryng (from among you) men of wyſdome, & of vnderſtanding, and experte, accordyng to your trybes, and J wyll make them rulers ouer you.

the Moabites whiche dwel in Ar, dyd vnto me) vntyl I be come ouer Iordan, into the lande whiche the LORDE our GOD geueth vs. But Sehon the kyng of Heſbon woulde not let vs paſſe by him, for the LORD thy GOD hardened his ſprete, ⁊ made his hert toughe, be-

A Then we turned & wẽt vp yͤ waye Num.21.g. to Baſã.* And Og the kynge of Deut.29.b. Baſan came out againſt vs, he & al his people to battel at Edrai. And yͤ LORDE ſaid vnto me:feare him not, for I wil delyuer him, and al his people, & his lande into thy hande,and thou ſhalt kynge of the Amorites, whiche dwelte at Heſbon. And ſo the LORD our GOD delyuered into our handes, Og alſo the we ſmote him, vntil none was left hym alyue. And we toke al his cities yͤ ſame ceaſõ (neyther was there a cytie which we toke not from them) euen thre ſcore cityes thorow out al the region of Argob, the kyngdome of Og in Baſan. Al theſe Cityes alſo were made ſtrong wt of yͤ cities, we caught for our ſelues.

And thus we toke yͤ ſame ceaſon, out of the hande of two kinges of the Amorites, the lande that was on the other his owne name: Baſan Hauoth Jair vnto thys daye. And I gaue Gilead vnto Machir.

And vnto yͤ Rubenites & Gaddites I gaue halfe Gilead vnto yͤ ryuer of Arnon, halfe the valey and beyonde, euen vnto the ryuer of Jabock, which is the A ſuch as ẏ LORDE my GOD commaunded me, ẏ ye ſhould do euen ſo in ẏ lāde, whither ye go to poſſeſſe it. Kepe them therfore ⁊ do thē, for ẏ is your wyſdom and vnderſtandinge in the ſyght of the

Take therefore good hede vnto your C

If thou doeſt beget childrē ⁊ childrēs children, and when ye haue dwelte in Iere.16.c. the lāde, ye do wickedly, and make any maner of grauen * ymage, and worke euel in yͤ ſight of the LORD thy GOD, to prouoke him to angre, I cal Heauen and earth to recorde againſte you this daye, that ye ſhal ſhortly peryſhe from of the lande, whither ye go ouer Iordā to poſſeſſe it: ye ſhal not prolonge your dayes therin, but ſhall vtterlye be deſtroyed. And the LORD ſhal ſcater you among the nacions, and ye ſhalbe lefte fewe in numbre among yͤ people, whyther the Lord ſhal bring you: and there ye ſhall ſerue goddes whiche are the worke of mans hande, woode ⁊ ſtone, E whiche neither ſe, nor heare, nor eate, Deu.30.a. nor ſmell.* And there thou ſhalt ſeke yͤ Iere.29.c. When thou art in tribulacion, ⁊ when al theſe thinges (that be here ſpoken of) are come vpon the euen in the later dayes, thou ſhalt retourne againe to the LORD thy GOD, and be obedyent vnto his voice. The. vi. Chapter.

The lawe of God may not be forgotten.

A These are the commaundemētes, ordinaunces, and lawes, which yͤ LORDE your GOD commaūded me to teache you, that ye might do thē in the lāde: whither ye go to poſſeſſe it: Deut.10.c namely, that thou mighteſt * feare the LORDE thy GOD, and kepe all his ordinaunces & commaundemētes which I commaunde the: thou and thy ſonne, and thy ſonnes ſonne all dayes of thy lyfe, that thy dayes may be prolonged. Heare therefore, O Iſraell, & take hede that thou do therafter, that it maye go wel with the, and that ye may encreaſe mightely, euen as the LORDE GOD of thy fathers hath promyſed the a lande, that floweth with mylke and hony.

Mar.12.c *Heare O Iſrael, the LORDE our B GOD is LORDE onely, and *thou ſhalt Math.22.e loue the LORD thy GOD with al thyne Mar.12.c. harte, and with all thy ſoule, and with Luke.10.e. all thy mighte. * Deu.11.d And theſe wordes which I commaund yͤ this day, ſhalbe in thyne hart, and thou ſhalte ſhew thē vnto thy children, & ſhalt talke of them when thou art at home in thyne houſe, and as thou walkeſt by the waye, and when thou lyeſt downe, and when thou ryſeſt vp: and thou ſhalt bynde them for a ſygne vpon thyne hande. And they ſhalbe warnynges betwene thine eies, and thou ſhalt wryte thē vpon yͤ poſtes of thy houſe, and vpon thy gates.

And when the LORDE thy GOD hath brought the into the lande, whiche he ſware vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Iſahac, and Iacob, and geueth the greate and goodly cities which thou buildedſt not, houſes full of all maner of goods which thou fylledſt not, and wels dygged which thou dyggedſt not, vineyardes & olyue trees which thou plantedſt not, & when thou haſt eaten & arte full: Thē beware leſt thou forget yͤ LORD, whiche brought the oute of the lande of C Egipt, from the houſe of bondage.

ple, & haue compaſſion on his ſeruauntes, when he ſeeth that theyr power is gone, and that they be in a maner ſhut vp, or brought to nought and forſaken.

Iere.2.d And he ſhall ſaye: *where are their f goddes? their god in whō they truſted.

The fat of whoſe ſacrifices they dyd eate, & drāke the wyne of their drinke-offerynges? let them ryſe vp and helpe you, and be your protection (in neceſſitie)

Deute.4.f Se nowe howe that I, *I alone am GOD, and there is none but I: *I kil, and wyl make alyue: I wound, and I wyl heale: *nether is ther any that can delyuer out of my hande:

For I wyll lyft vp my hande to heauen, and wyl ſay: I lyue euer.

yf I whet the edge of my ſwearde, & myne hand take holde to do iuſtice, I wyl recompence vengeaunce on myne enemyes, & wyl reward thē ẏ hate me.

I wyl make myne arrowes dronke with blood, and my ſwearde ſhal eate fleſhe, & that for the blood of the ſlaine, and for their captiuitie, ſens the beginnyng of the wrath of the enemy.

* Prayſe ye Hethen his people, for he wil auenge the blood of his ſeruaū-tes, and wyl auenge him of hys aduerſaries, and wyll be mercyful vnto hys lande, and to his people.

And Moſes came and ſpake all the wordes of this ſonge in the eares of ẏ people, he and Joſua ẏ ſonne of Nun.
And Moſes ſpake al theſe wordes vnto the ende, to al the people of Iſraell, and ſayde vnto them: *Set your hartes vnto all the wordes whiche I teſtifie vnto you this daye: and ye ſhall commaunde them vnto your children, that they may obſerue & do al the wor-des of this lawe. And let it not be a vayne worde vnto you: for it is youre lyfe, and thorowe this worde ye ſhall prolonge your dayes in the lande whither ye go ouer Jordan to conquer it.

And the LORD ſpake vnto Moſes ẏ ſelfe ſame daye, ſaying: get thee vp into this mountayne Abarim, (that is to ſay / a paſſage) vnto mounte Nebo, which is in the lande of Moab, ouer agaynſt Jericho. And beholde the lande of Canaan, which I geue vnto the children of Iſraell to poſſeſſe: And dye in the mount which thou goeſt vp vnto, & thou ſhalt be gathered vnto thy people. *As Aaron thy brother dyed in mount Hor, & was gathered vnto his people, becauſe ye treſpaſed agaynſt me among ẏ children of Iſrael, *at the waters of ſtrife, at Cades in the wyldernes of Zin: for ye ſanctified me not among the childrē of Iſrael. Thou ſhalte therefore ſe the lande before thee, and ſhalt not go thy-ther, vnto the lande whiche I geue the children of Iſraell.

The.xxxiii. Chapter.

¶ Moſes dyinge bleſſeth all the trybes of Iſrael.

This

A THis is the bleſſynge wherewith Moſes the man of GOD bleſſed the children of Iſrael before his Exod.3.a. death, & ſayd:* The LORD came from Exod.19.a. Sinai, and ſhewed his beames* from Seir vnto them, & appeared frõ moũte Pharan, & he came with thouſandes of ſaynctes, and in his right hande a law of fyre for them. And he loued the peo-Sapi.3.a. ple.* All his ſayncte ſ alſo are in thy handes. They were ſmitten to go after thy fete, and to receyue of thy wordes.
Moſes gaue vs a lawe to be an enherytaunce of the congregaciõ of Iacob.
And he was in Iſrael kyng when the heades of the people, and the trybes of Iſrael were gathered together.

Let Ruben lyue, and not dye: and be fewe in number. This ſame alſo ſhall happen to Iuda. And he ſayde: heare LORDE, the voyce of Iuda, and bringe him vnto his people: his handes ſhalbe good ynough for him, if thou helpe him agaynſt his enemyes.

B And vnto Leui he ſayde: Thumim & Vrum ſhalbe with thee, & with euerye one that is godly in the. Thou dyddeſt proue hym alſo in the tentacyon, and ſtryuedſt wyth hym at the waters of ſtryfe. He that hath ſayde vnto his father and to his mother: I haue not ſene him. And he that knewe not hys brethren, nor knewe hys owne chyldren, thoſe are they that haue obſerued thy word, & ſhal kepe thy couenaunt. They ſhal teach Iacob thy iudgemẽtes, & Iſraell thy lawe. They ſhal put cens before thy noſe, and the burnte ſacrifyce vpon thyne aultar. Bleſſe LORDE hys fyrſte frutes, and accepte the worke of his handes, ſmyte the loynes of them yͭ ryſe againſt him, and of them that hate him, that they ryſe not agayne.

C And of Ben Iamin he ſayde . The LORDES derlyng ſhal dwell in ſafetie vpon him, and the LORDE ſhall couer him all the daye long, and he ſhal dwel betwene his ſhoulders.

And of Ioſeph he ſayde: bleſſed of yͤ LORDE is his lande, for the fruites of heauen, thorow the dewe and ſprynges that lye beneth, and for the ſwete fruites of the encreace of the ſunne, & rype fruites of the moone: for fyrſt yͤ fruites of the pryncipal mountaines, and for yͤ fruites that the hylles bryng forth for euer, & for yͤ fruites of yͤ earth, & fulnes therof: and for yͤ good wyll of him that dwelt in the *buſhe, ſhall the bleſſynge Exod.3.a. come vpon the head of Ioſeph, & vpon the toppe of the head of hym that was ſeparated from among his brethrẽ: his fyrſte borne oxe hath bewtye, and hys hornes are as the hornes of an Vnycorne. And with them he ſhall trouble the nacyõs together, euen vnto the endes of the worlde. Theſe are alſo the many thouſandes of Ephraim, and the thouſandes of Manaſſes. And vnto Zabulon he ſayde: Reioyce Zabulon in thy goynge oute, and thou Iſachar in thy tentes.

They ſhal cal the people vnto the hil, and there they ſhall offer offerynges of ryghteouſneſſe. For they ſhall ſucke of the abundaunce of the ſea, and of trea-ſure hyd in the ſande.

And vnto Gad he ſayde: bleſſed be the D rowme maker Gad: he dwelleth as a Lyon, that catcheth the arme with the head. He ſawe therfore his begynning, and that there was a porcyon there to hyde the lawegeuer, and he came wyth the heades of the people, and executed the ryghteouſneſſe of the LORDE, and hys Iudgementes with Iſrael.

And vnto Dan he ſayde: Dan is a Lyons whelpe, he ſhal flow frõ Baſã.

And vnto Nephtali he ſayd: Neph-tali hathe abundaunce of GODS good pleaſure, & is fylled wͭ the bleſſynge of yͤ LORD, and ſhal haue his poſſeſſions toward the ſouthweſt.

And vnto Aſer he ſayde: Aſer ſhal-be bleſſed with children: he ſhalbe acceptable vnto his brethren , and ſhall dyppe his fote in oyle. Thy dwelling be yrõ & braſſe, & thine age be as thy youth

There is none lyke vnto the GOD of Iſrael: which thoughe he ſyt vpon yͤ heuen as vpõ a horſe, yet is he thy helper, whoſe glory is in the celeſtyal places. The eternall GOD is thy refuge, & vnder the armes of the euerlaſtynge GOD: ſhalte thou lyue. He ſhal caſt out the enemye before thee, and ſaye: deſtroye. Iſrael then ſhal dwel in ſafetie, and alone. And the eye of Iacob, ſhal-be vpon a land of corne and wine, & his Heauens ſhall droppe the dewe. Hap-pye arte thou, O Iſraell, who is lyke vnto thee? O people that art ſaued in yͤ LORD, which is the ſhyld of thy helpe, and ſwearde of thy glorye. Thyne ene-myes haue loſte theyr ſtrength to thee warde, and thou ſhalt treade vpon the heigth of them.

The.xxxiiii. Chapter.

Moſes dyeth. Iſrael wepeth. Joſua ſuccedeth in Moſes rowme.

A Num.17.c AND*Moſes went from the plaine of Moab vp into mounte Nebo, & vnto the toppe of*the hyll that is Deut.3.d 1.Mac.2.8 ouer agaynſt Jericho. And the LORD ſhewed him all the lande of Gilead, euen vnto Dan, and all Nephtaly and the lande of Ephraim and Manaſſe, and all the lande of Juda: euen vnto ẏ vtmoſt ſea, and the South, and the regyon of the playne of Jericho the Cytie of palmetrees, euen vnto Zoar. And B Gene.12.b and.15.d the LORDE ſayd vnto him.*This is ẏ lande whiche I ſware vnto Abraham, Iſahac and Jacob, ſaying: I wyl geue it vnto thy ſede. I haue cauſed the alſo to ſe it with thine eyes, but thou ſhalte not go ouer thyther.

So Moſes the ſeruaunt of ẏ LORD dyed there in the land of Moab, accordyng to the worde of the LORDE. And C he buried him in a valey in the land of Moab ouer againſt the houſe of Peor, but no man knoweth of hys ſepulchre vnto this day. Moſes was an hundred and twentye yere olde when he dyed: hys eye was not dymme, nor his natural coloure abated. And the children of Iſrael*wepte for Moſes in the plaine Num. of Moab thyrtie dayes. And the daies of weppynge and mournynge for Moſes, were ended.

And Joſua the ſonne of Nun was full of the ſprite of wyſedō:* for Moſes Num. D had put his handes vpon him. And the childrē of Iſrael were obedient vnto him, and dyd as the LORDE commaunded Moſes. And there aroſe not a Prophet ſence in Iſraell lyke vnto Moſes, whom the LORDE knewe face to face, accordyng vnto all ẏ myracles and wonders whiche the LORD ſente him to do in the lande of Egypte, vnto Pharao and all his ſeruaūtes, & before al his lande: and accordyng to all that myghtie hand, and al the greate viſions, whiche Moſes ſhewed in the ſyght of al Iſraell.

The boke of Ioſua whome the Hebrues cal Iehoſua.

The firſt Chapter.

The Lorde courageth Ioſua to inuade the lande of promeſſe / and commaundeth him continually to reade Deuteronomie.

A After the deathe of Moſes the ſeruaũt of ẏ Lord, it happened alſo ẏ the lord ſpake vnto Ioſua ẏ ſonne of Nun, Moſes miniſter, ſayig:
Moſes my ſeruaũt is dead. Nowe therfore vp and go ouer Iordan thou and al this people, vnto ẏ lande the which I geue vnto ẏ childrẽ
m. 11. c. of Iſrael.* Al the places that ẏ ſolles of youre fete ſhall treade vpon, haue I geuen you as I ſayd vnto Moſes: from the wildernes and this Libanon vnto the great riuer Euphrates: all the lãde of the Hethites, euen vnto the great ſea towarde the goyng downe of ẏ ſunne, ſhalbe your coaſt. There ſhal not a man B be able to withſtande the all the dayes ue.31.c. of thy lyfe. *For as I was with Moſes d.13.b ſo wyl I be with the, *and wyll not u.31.c fayle the, nor forſake the. * Be ſtronge
.1.a. therfore and bolde: for vnto this people ſhalte thou deuyde the lande whiche I ſware vnto their fathers to geue them.
Onely be thou ſtronge and as bolde as thou canſte, that thou mayſt obſerue, ⁊ do accordyng to al the law, which Moſes my ſeruaunte commaunded the. e.5.d *Turne ther from nether to the right hande, nor to the lefte: that thou mayeſt do wyſely in al that thou takeſt in hãd: 17.d. *let not the booke of this lawe departe C out of thy mouthe: But recorde therein daye ⁊ night, that thou mayeſt obſerue, and do accordynge to al that is wryttẽ therin. For then ſhalte thou make thy waye proſperouſe, and then thou ſhalte do wyſely. Haue not I commaunded the, that thou ſhouldeſt be ſtrong ⁊ hardye and not feare nor be faynte harted: For I the LORDE thy GOD am with the, whither ſoener thou goeſt.

Then Ioſua commaunded the offycers of the people, ſayinge: Go thorowe the myddes of the hoſte, and commaũde ẏ people, ſayinge: prepare you vitayles, for after thre dayes ye ſhal paſſe ouer this Iordan, to go in and enioy ẏ lande, whiche the LORDE your GOD geueth you to poſſeſſe it.

And vnto ẏ Rubenites, Gaddites, and halfe the trybe of Manaſſes, ſpake Ioſua ſayinge: *Remember the worde, Num.32.D whiche Moſes ẏ ſeruaunt of ẏ LORD D commaunded you, ſayinge: the LORDE your GOD hath geuen you reaſt, ⁊ hath geuen you this lãde: your wyues, your children, and your cattel ſhall remayne in the lande which Moſes gaue you on this ſyde Iordan: but ye ſhal go before your brethren armed, al that be men of warre, and helpe them vntyl the LORD haue geuen your brethren reaſte, as he hath you, and vntyll they alſo haue obtayned the lande, whiche the LORDE your GOD geueth them. And then ſhal ye returne vnto the lande of youre poſſeſſion and enioye it, which lande Moſes the LORDES ſeruaunt gaue you on this ſide Iordan, towarde the ſunne riſing.
And they anſwered Ioſua, ſaying:
*All that thou haſt commaunded vs, Deut.5.b we wyll do, and whitherſoeuer ẏ ſendeſt Ier.42.a. vs, we wyll go. Accordynge as we obeyed Moſes in al thinges, ſo wyl we obey the, onely the LORDE thy GOD be with the as he was with Moſes. And whoſoeuer he be that doth diſobey thy mouthe and wyll not herken vnto thy wordes in all ẏ thou commaũdeſt hym, let him dye: Onelye be ſtronge and of good courage.

The.ii.Chapter.

Ioſua ſendeth ſpyes to Iericho / whiche were hyd of Rahab.

And Ioſua the ſonne of Nun ſẽt out of Settim two mẽ to ſpye ſecretly, A ſaying: go and vewe ẏ lande ⁊ alſo Iericho. And they went, and came into a harlottes houſe, named Rahab, and lodged there. And it was tolde the king of Iericho, and ſaid: Beholde, ther came men in hither to night, of the childrẽ of Iſrael, to ſpye out the countreye.

And the kynge of Iericho ſente vnto Rahab, ſaying: bryng forthe ẏ men that are come to the, and whiche are entred into thyne houſe, for they be come to ſearche out all the lande.

And the woman toke the two men *and hyd them. And ſayde thus: in dede Hebre.11.f. there came men vnto me, but I wyſte Iaco.2.d.

B not whence they were. And about the tyme of the ſhutting of the gate when it was darcke, the men went out: whither ẏ men went I wote not: folowe ye after them quicklye, for ye ſhall ouer take them. But ſhe brought them vp to Joſue.6.c the roofe of the houſe, and* hid them wᵗ the ſtalkes of flaxe, which ſhe had lying abrode vpon the roofe. And the men of the citie purſued after them, the way to Jordan, euen vnto the fery: and as ſone as they which purſued after them were gone oute, they ſhut the gate.

And or euer they wer a ſlepe, ſhe came vp vnto them vpon the roofe, and ſayde vnto the men: I knowe that the LORD Deutero. 28.a. hath geuē you the lande, * for the feare Joſue.5.a of you is fallen vpon vs: and the enhabiters of the lande faint at the preſence of you. For we haue hearde, howe the Exo.14.c LORDE* dryed vp the water of ẏ read ſea before you, when you came out of Egipt, and what you dyd vnto the two kynges of the Amorites, that were on Num.21.f the other ſyde Jordan* Sehon, & Og, and g. whōe ye vtterly deſtroyed. And as ſone as we had hearde theſe thinges (we wer ſore afrayde/and) oure hertes dyd faynte.
And there remayned no more courage in any man at the preſence of you. For the LORDE your GOD, he is the GOD in heauē aboue, and on ẏ earth beneth.

Nowe therfore (I praye you) ſweare Deut.10.d vnto me* by the LORD, that as I haue C ſhewed you mercye, ye ſhal alſo ſhewe mercy vnto my fathers houſe, and geue me a true token. And that ye ſhall ſaue alyue, both my father, and my mother, my brothren, & my ſyſters, and all that they haue. And that ye ſhal delyuer our ſoules from death.

And the men anſwered her: our lyues for you to dye, yf ye vtter not this oure buſynes. And when the LORD hath geuen Joſu.6.c. vs the lande* we wyll deale mercifully and truly with the. And thē ſhe let 1.Re.19.c. them downe by a coarde, * thorowe a Actis.9.d wyndowe: For her houſe was by the towne wal. And ſhe dwelte by ẏ towne wal. And ſhe ſayd vnto them, gette you into the mountayne, leſte the purſuers mete you, & hyde your ſelues there thre dayes vntil the purſuers be retourned, and then ſhal ye go your owne waye.

And the men ſayde vnto her: we wyll be blameleſſe of this thy othe, whiche thou haſt made vs ſweare. Beholde, when we come into the lāde, thou ſhalt bynd this purple coarde in ẏ wyndow, which thou latteſt vs downe by. And thou ſhalt brynge thy father & thy mother, thy brethren and all thy fathers houſholde, euen into thy houſe.

And then whoſoeuer dothe go out at D the dores of thy houſe, into the ſtreate, his bloud ſhalbe vpon his owne heade, and we wilbe giltleſſe. And whoſoeuer ſhalbe with the in the houſe, his bloude ſhall be on our heade, yf any mannes hande touche him: And yf thou vtter theſe our wordes, we wilbe quite of thy othe which thou haſt made vs ſweare.
And ſhe ſayde: accordynge vnto youre wordes, ſo be it: and ſhe ſent them away to departe. And ſhe bounde the purple coarde in the wyndowe.

And they departed, and came into the mountayne, & there abode thre dayes, vntil the purſuers were returned. And the purſuers ſought them thorowe out all the waye, but founde them not. And the two men returned, & deſcended frō the mountaine, and paſſed ouer, & came to Joſua the ſonne of Nun, and tolde him al that had chaunced thē. And they ſayde vnto Joſua: the LORD truly hath delyuered into our handes all ẏ lande, and all the enhabiters of the contreye faynte at the preſence of vs.

The.iiii. Chapter.

¶Joſua with the people paſſe ouer Jordan.

AND Joſua roſe early: & they remoued frō Settim, and came to Jordan, he and all the children of Iſraell, and lodged there, before they wente ouer.

And after thre dayes it fortuned, that the officers went thorow out the hoſte, and commaūded ẏ people, ſayinge: whē ye ſe ẏ arcke of the teſtamēt of ẏ LORD your GOD and the prieſtes that are Leuites bearing it: ye ſhall departe from your place, and go after it. So yet that ther ſhalbe a ſpace betwene you and it, about a two thouſāde cubytes by meaſure.
And ye ſhal not come nye vnto it, that ye maye knowe the way, by which ye muſte go: for ye haue not gone thys waye in tymes paſt (and beware/that ye approche not nye vnto the Arke.) And Joſua ſaid vnto the people: * Sanctifie your ſelues, for to morowe the LORDE ſhall do wonders amonge you.

And Joſua ſpake vnto the preaſtes, ſayinge:

ſaying: Take vp the Arke of the couenaunt and goe before the people. And they toke vp the arke of the Teſtament and went before the people.
And the LORDE ſaid vnto Joſua: this daye wyl I beginne to magnifye the in the ſight of all Iſraell, that they maye know how that* as I was wͭ Moſes, Joſue.1.a. ſo wyl I be with thee. And thou ſhalte commaūde the preaſtes that beare the arke of the couenaunt, ſaying: when ye are come to the edge of the waters of Jordan, ye ſhal ſtande ſtyll in it.
And Joſua ſayd vnto the children of Iſrael: come hyther, ⁊ heare yͤ wordes of the LORDE your GOD. And Joſua ſaid: Hereby ye ſhal know that yͤ liuing GOD is among you, and that he wyll C without fayle caſte out before you, the Cananites, and the Hethites, the Heuytes, the Phereſytes, the Gergeſites, the Amorites, and the Jebuſytes: Beholde, the arke of the apointment of the LORDE of all the worlde goeth before you into Jordan. Nowe therefore take from among you twelue men out of the tribes of Iſrael, out of euery tribe a mā.
And as ſone as the ſolles of the fete of the preaſtes (that beare the arke of the LORDE the Gouernoure of all the worlde) treade in the waters of Jordā, the waters of Jordan (that are beneth, ſhall runne downe/and) ſhalbe deuided: ⁊ yͤ waters that come from aboue, ſhal ſtande ſtil vpon an heape. And it fortuned, that when yͤ people were departed frō theyr tentes to go ouer Jordan, the preaſtes e.7.f. bearing* the arke of the appointment went before the people. And as ſone as they that bare the arke came vnto Jordan, and yͤ fete of the preaſtes that bare D the arke were dypped in the brim of the e.14.d water.* (For Jordan vſeth to fyl al his banckes al yͤ tyme of harueſt) yͤ waters alſo that came downe from aboue, dyd riſe vp vpō an heape (and appeared as great as a mountayne/) and departed farre from yͤ citye of Adā, that was beſyde zarthā.
And the waters yͭ were beneth toward the ſea of the wyldernes, fell away and departed into the ſalt ſea, and the people* al.66.c. went right ouer againſt Jericho.
And yͤ preaſtes that bare the arcke of yͤ appointment of the LORDE, ſtode drye within Jordā ready prepared, ⁊ al the Iſraelites went ouer thorow the drye, vntyll all the epople were gone cleane ouer thorowe Jordan.

¶ The.iiii.Chapter.

Joſua ſetteth vp twelue ſtones in Jordan.

AND it fortuned, that whan yͤ people A were al gone* ouer Jordan, the Deu.27 a LORDE ſpake vnto Joſua, ſaying: Take you twelue mē out of the people, out of euery tribe a mā. And cōmaūde you them, ſayinge: take you hence out of the myddes of Jordan (euen out of yͤ place where the preaſtes ſtode in a redines) twelue (of the moſt hardeſt) ſtones, whiche ye ſhal take away wͭ you, and leaue them in the place, where you ſhal lodge this night.
And Joſua called the twelue men, whiche he had prepared of the children of Iſrael, out of euery tribe a man, and Joſua ſayde vnto them: get you before the arcke of the LORDE youre GOD, euen thorowe the myddes of Jordan * and take vp euery man of you a Deu.27 ſtone vpon his ſhoulder, accordyng vnto the numbre of the trybes of the chyldren of Iſrael, that this may be a ſigne among you. That when your children aſke their fathers in tyme to come, ſaying: what meane theſe ſtones with you? ye maye anſwere them how that yͤ waters of Jordane deuided at yͤ preſence of the arcke of the appoyntment of the LORD. For whan it went ouer Jordan, yͤ waters of Jordan deuided. And theſe ſtones are become a memorial vnto the B children of Iſrael for euer.
And the children of Iſrael dyd euē ſo as Joſua commaunded, and toke vp *twelue ſtones out of yͤ middes of Jordan, 4.Regum. as the LORDE ſaid vnto Joſua, 15.f. accordynge to the numbre of the tribes of the children of Iſrael, and caried thē awaye with them vnto the place where they lodged, and layd thē downe there.
And Joſua ſet vp twelue ſtones alſo in the myddes of Jordan, in yͤ place wher the fete of the prieſtes whiche bare the arcke of the teſtament ſtode.
And there haue they continued vnto this day. For the preaſtes whiche bare the arke ſtode in the myddes of Jordā, vntyll all was fyniſhed that the LORD commaunded Joſua to ſaye vnto the people, accordyng to all yͭ Moſes charged Joſua. And the people haſted ⁊ wēt C ouer. It fortuned alſo, that whan all yͤ people were cleane ouer, the Arke of the LORDE went ouer alſo, and the Num. 32.e preaſtes before the people.* And yͤ children of Ruben, and the childrē of Gad, and half the trybe of Manaſſes wente before the children of Iſrael armed, as Moſes charged them. Euen fourtye thouſande prepared for warre, wente before the LORD vnto battel, thorow yͤ Ioſue .3.b plaine of Iericho:* yͤ daye the LORDE magnified Ioſua in yͤ ſight of al Iſraell, and they feared him, as they feared Moſes all dayes of hys lyfe.

Ioſue. 2.b ouer,* their hartes fainted for feare.
And there was no ſpirite in them any

Iſrael. That ſame tyme the LORD ſaid vnto Ioſua:* Make the ſharpe kniues

And Ioſua made him ſharpe kniues (of Actes.7.c.

the place called yͤ Hyl of yͤ foreſkynnes.
And this is the cauſe why Ioſua circūcyſed al the people that came out of Egipt, namely, ſuch as were males: becauſe that al the men of warre, dyed in the wildernes by the waye, after they came out of Egipt. For al yͤ people that came out were circumciſed. But all the people yͤ wer borne in yͤ wilderneſſe by the way after they came out of Egipte, were not circumciſed. For yͤ children of Iſrael walked forty yeares in the wilderneſſe, tyll all the people of the men

And when they had circumciſed al the

The.vi. Chapter.

The walles of Jericho fall/and it is deſtroyed.

A AND Jericho was ſhut vp, & locked becauſe of the children of Iſrael, nether might any mã go out or in. And yͤ LORD ſaid vnto Joſua: behold, I haue geuen into thy hande Jericho and and her king & the ſtrong mẽ of warre.

And ye ſhal compaſſe the cytie, al ye yͭ be men of warre, and go rounde about it once, & ſo ſhal you do ſyxe dayes. And ſeuen preaſtes ſhal beare before yͤ Arke, ſeuen trompettes of rammes hornes, (that be vſed in the Jubylie.) And the ſeuẽth daye, ye ſhall compaſſe the cytie ſeuen tymes, and yͤ prieſtes ſhall blowe with the trompettes.

And when they make a longe blaſte with the rãmes horne, and ye heare the ſounde of the horne, all the people ſhall ſhowte wͭ a great ſhowte. And thẽ ſhal the wal of the citye fal downe, & yͤ people ſhall aſcende vp, euery man ſtreyght before him. And Joſua yͤ ſonne of Nun, called yͤ preaſtes & ſaid vnto them: take vp yͤ arke of yͤ appoitment, and let ſeuen preaſtes beare ſeuẽ trõpettes of rãmes hornes before yͤ arke of the LORD. And he ſayde vnto the people, go & compaſſe the cytie: and let him that is harneſſed, go before the arke of the LORDE. And when Joſua had ſpoken vnto yͤ people, the ſeuen preaſtes bare the ſeuen trompettes of rammes hornes, & went forth before the arke of the LORD, and blewe with the trompettes, and the arke of yͤ B couenaũt of the LORD folowed them.

And al the men of armes went before the preaſtes, that blewe with yͤ trompettes, & the commen people came after yͤ arke: & the preaſtes that went, blewe with trompettes. And Joſua cõmaunded yͤ people, ſaying: ye ſhal not ſhoute, nor make any noyſe with your voyce, neyther ſhal any worde procede oute of your mouthe, vntil the day I byd you ſhowte, then ſhall ye ſhowte. And ſo yͤ arke of the LORD compaſſed the cytie, and wente aboute it once: and they retourned into the hooſt, & lodged there.

And Joſua roſe early in yͤ morninge, and yͤ Preaſtes toke vp the arke of the LORDE, and ſeuen Preaſtes bare ſeuen trompettes of rammes hornes, & went before the arke of the LORD, and blew with the trompettes. And all the mẽ of armes went before them, but yͤ commẽ people came after the arke of yͤ LORD, whiche went before wͭ the blowynge of the trompettes. And yͤ ſeconde day they compaſſed yͤ citie once, and roturned againe into yͤ hoſt, & ſo thei did ſixe daies. And when the ſeuenth day came, they roſe early: euen with the dawnyng of yͤ daye, and compaſſed the citye after the ſame maner ſeuen tymes: only that day they compaſſed the citie ſeuen tymes.

And at the ſeuenth tyme, whan the preaſtes blewe wͭ the trompettes, Joſua ſayde vnto the people: ſhowte, for yͤ LORDE hath geuen you the citye. C And the citie ſhalbe damned, both it and al yͭ are therin, vnto the LORD: only Rahab yͤ harlot ſhal lyue, and al that are wͭ her in the houſe, becauſe ſhe *hyd the meſſengers that we ſent. But al the ſiluer, golde, veſſels of braſſe, & yron, ſhalbe conſecrate vnto the LORDE, & ſhal come into his treaſurye.

And the people ſhowted, and blewe wͭ trompettes. And they vtterlye deſtroyed al that was in the cytie bothe man & woman, yonge and olde, oxe, ſhepe and aſſe, with the edge of the ſwearde.

Then Joſua ſayde vnto the two men that had ſpyed out the contreye: *goe Hebre.11. D into the harlottes houſe, & brynge out thence the womã, and al that ſhe hath, *as ye ſware to her. Joſue.2. And the younge men that wer ſpyes, went in, & brought out Rahab, and her father & mother, and her brethren, and all that ſhe had. LORDE

LORD GOD of Iſrael, ⁊ thus ⁊ thus haue I done. I ſawe amonge yͤ ſpoyle a goodlye Babyloniſhe garment, and two hundred ſicles of ſyluer, ⁊ a tonge of golde of fyftie ſycles weyght, and I coueted them, and toke them. And beholde they lie hyd in yͤ earth in my tent and the ſyluer is there vnder.

And ſo Joſua ſent meſſẽgers, which when they ran vnto his tent, beholde, they were hyd in his tent, and yͤ ſyluer there vnder.

Therfore, they toke them out of the myddeſt of his tent, and brought them vnto Joſua, ⁊ vnto al yͤ chyldrẽ of Iſrael, ⁊ layed thẽ out before the LORD.

And Joſua toke Acan the ſonne of Zareth, and the ſiluer, and the garmẽt, and yͤ tong of golde, and hys ſons and his daughters, his oxen, and his aſſes, his ſhepe, and his tent, and all that he had, and al Iſrael with him, broughte them vnto the valey of Acor.

And Joſua ſayde: In as muche as thou haſt troubled vs, the LORD ſhall trouble the this day. And al Iſrael ſtoned him wͭ ſtones, ⁊ burned thẽ with fyre, and ouerwhelmed them wͭ ſtones. And caſt vpõ hi a great heape of ſtones vnto thys day. And ſo the LORDE turned from the wrath of hys indignacion. And the name of the place is called the valey of Acor vnto this daye.

¶ The.viii. Chapter.

The ſeege and wynning of Hai. The kyng therof is hanged. Joſua ſetteth vp an altar. He bleſſeth the people.

A Deut.7.c. AND the LORDE ſayd vnto Joſua: *feare not, neither be thou faynte harted. Take al the men of warre with thee, and vp: and get thee to Hai. Beholde, I haue geuen into thy hand, the kynge of Hai, and hys people, hys cytie and his lande.

Joſu.6.d And thou ſhalte do to Hai and her kynge, as thou dyddeſt vnto *Jericho and her kynge. ut.20.c Neuertheles, the ſpoile and *cattell therof, ſhall ye take vnto your ſelues: And lay a watch vnto the towne, on the backſyde therof.

B And ſo Joſua aroſe, and all the men of warre to go vp agaynſte Hai. And Joſua choſe out thyrty thouſand ſtrõg men of warre, and ſent them away by nyghte. And he commaunded them, ſayinge: beholde, ye ſhall laye a wayte vnto the towne on the backſide therof. Go not very farre from the citie, but be all ready.

And I, and al the people that are wͭ me, wyll approche vnto the cytie. And when they come oute agaynſte vs, as they did at the fyrſt tyme, then wyll we flee before them. For they wil come out after vs: and we wyll bryng them out of the citie. For they wyll ſaye: they flee before vs, as at the firſt tyme, and we wyll flee before them. B In the meane tyme ſhall ye ryſe vp from lying await and deſtroy the citie: For the LORDE your GOD wyll delyuer it into your hand. And whan ye haue taken yͤ citie, ye ſhall ſet it on fire.

According to the commaundement of the LORD ſhal ye do: behold, I haue charged you. Joſua therefore ſent thẽ forth, and they went to lye awaite, and abode betwene Bethel and Hai, on the weſt ſyde of the cytie of Hai. But Joſua lodged that night amõge yͤ people.

And Joſua roſe vp early in the mornyng, and numbred the people, ⁊ went vp, he and the elders of Iſrael before the people againſt Hai. C And al the men of warre that were with him, went vp and drue nye, and came againſt yͤ citie, and pytched on the north ſyde of Hai. And there was a valey betwene them and Hai. And he toke vpon a fiue thouſande men, and put them to lye await, betwene Bethell and Hai, on the weſtſyde of the citie. And they put yͤ people (euen al the hoſt that were on yͤ northſyde) agaynſt the cytie, and the lyers awayte on the weſt. And Joſua walked the ſame nyght in the myddes of yͤ valey. And it fortuned, that when yͤ kinge of Hai ſawe it, they haſted and roſe vp earely, and the men of the cytye wente out agaynſte Iſraell to battell, he and all his people at a tyme appoynted, euen before the plaine, and wiſt not that there were liers awayte on the backe ſyde of the cytie.

D And Joſua and all Iſraell fayned them ſelues to be put to the worſe before them, and fled toward the wilderneſſe. And all the people of the towne were called together, to folowe after them. And they folowed after Joſua ⁊ were drawen awaye frõ the cytie: And there was not a man lefte in Hai, ⁊ in Bethel, that went not out after Iſrael. And they lefte the cytie open, and folowed after Iſrael.

And the LORDE ſayde vnto Joſua: ſtretche out the ſpeare that is in thyne hande towarde Hai, foꝛ I wyll geue it into thy hande. And Joſua ſtretched out the ſpeare that he had in his hand, towarde the citie. And the lyers await aroſe quickely out of theyꝛ place, ⁊ ran aſſone as Joſua had ſtretched out hys hande, and they entred into the cytye, ⁊ toke it, and haſted, and ſet the cytye on fyꝛe. And when the men of Hai loked backe after them, they ſawe the ſmoke of the citie aſcende vp to heauen. And they had no leyſure to flye, eyther thys waye oꝛ that, and the people that fled to the wildernes, turned backe againe vpon the folowers.

E And when Joſua and al Iſrael ſaw that the lyers awayte had taken the cytie, and that the ſmoke of it aſcēded, they turned agayne, and layed on the men of Hai. And the other iſſued oute of the cytie agaynſt them. And ſo were they in the myddeſt of Iſraell: foꝛ theſe were on the one ſide of them, and yͤ reſt on the other ſyde. *And they layed vpon them, ſo that they let none of them eſkape, noꝛ remayne. And the kynge of Hai they toke alyue, and bꝛought hym to Joſua. And when Iſrael had made an ende of ſlayinge all the inhabiters of Hai in the felde of the wyldernesse, where they chaſed thē, and when they were all fallen on the edge of yͤ ſwerd, vntyll they were waſted, all the Iſraelites returned vnto Hai, ⁊ ſmote it in the edge of the ſwerd. And al yͭ fel that day, both of men ⁊ womē, were twelue thouſande, euen all the men of Hai.

Joſu.6.e

For Joſua plucked not his hande backe agayne whiche he ſtretched out vpon the ſpeare, vntyll he had vtterly deſtroyed all the enhabitours of Hai. *Onely the cattell and the ſpoyle of yͤ cytie, Iſrael toke vnto themſelues, accoꝛdyng vnto the woꝛde of the LORD, whiche he commaunded Joſua. And Joſua ſet Hai on fyꝛe, and made it an heape foꝛ euer, and a wyldernesse, euen vnto this daye. And the kynge of Hai he hanged on a tree, vntyll euen. And aſſone as the ſunne was down, Joſua cōmaunded *that they ſhould take the carkaſſe downe of the tree, and caſte it at the entryng of the gate of the cytye, ⁊ *laye theron a great heape of ſtones, that remayneth vnto this daye.

The.ix. Chapter.

The Gibeonites obtayne peace of Joſua.

AND it foꝛtuned that when all the kinges yͭ dwell on thys ſyde Joꝛdan, in the hylles and valeyes, ⁊ alonge by all the coaſtes of the greate ſea, ouer agaynſte Libanon, (Namely the Hethites, the Amoꝛites, the Cananites, the Phereſites, the Heuites ⁊ the Jebuſites) hearde therof, they gathered themſelues together, to fyghte agaynſt Joſua, and againſt Iſrael with one accoꝛde.

* And the enhabytours of Gibeon heard what Joſua had done vnto Jericho, and to Hai. And they dyd woꝛke wylyly, and wente, and made themſelues embaſſadours, ⁊ toke (them vitayles/ and) olde ſackes vpon their Aſſes, and wyne bottelles old, and rent ⁊ woꝛne, and old clouted ſhoes vpon their fete, and their raiment was olde, & all their prouiſion of breade was dryed vp, and hoared. And they came vnto Ioſua into the hooſte, to Gilgall, and ſayd vnto him, and vnto all the men of Iſrael: we be come from a far countrye and nowe make ye agrement with vs. And the men of Iſraell ſayde vnto the Heuyte: peraduenture thou dwelleſt amonge vs: and then howe can I make peace wyth thee?

B And they ſayde vnto Ioſua: we are thy ſeruauntes. And Ioſua ſayde vnto them agayne: what are ye? and whence come ye? They anſwered hym: From a very farre countrey thy ſeruauntes are come, for the name of the LORDE thy GOD: for we haue hearde the fame (of the power) of hym, and all that he dyd in Egypte, and all that he dyd to the two *kynges of the Amorites that were beyonde Iordan, Sehon kyng of Heſbon, and Og kynge of Baſan, whiche was at Aſtharoth. Num.21.d Wherefore, oure elders and al the enhabytours of our cōtrey ſpake to vs, ſaying: take vytayles with you to ſerue by the waye, and go mete them, and ſaye vnto them: we are your ſeruauntes. And now make ye a couenaunt of peace with vs. This our foode of breade, we toke with vs oute of our houſes whotte, the daye we departed to come vnto you. And now beholde, it is dried vp and hoared. And theſe bottels of wyne which we filled, were newe: and ſe they be rente. And theſe oure garmentes and ſhoes, are worne for oldnes, by the reaſon of yͤ exceadyng long iourney.

C And the men toke of theyr vitayles, and counceled not with the mouth of yͤ LORDE. And Ioſua made peace with them, and *made a couenaũt wͭ them, Reg.21.a that they ſhould be ſuffred to lyue: and the Lordes of the congregacion ſware vnto them: And it fortuned, that thre daies after they had made peace with them, they hearde that they were theyr neighbours, and that they dwelt amonge them. And the children of Iſraell toke their iourney, and came vnto their cyties the thirde day, and their cities were Gibeon, and Caphira, Beroth and Kariath Iarim. And yͤ children of Iſrael ſlewe them not, because the Lordes of the congregacyon had ſworne vnto them by the LORD GOD of Iſraell. And all the multitude murmured agaynſte the Lordes. But all the Lordes ſaid vnto al yͤ congregacyon: we haue ſworne vnto them, by the LORDE GOD of Iſraell, and therfore we maye not hurte them. D But thys we will do to them. We wyll let them lyue, leſt wrath be vpō vs becauſe of yͤ othe whiche we ſware vnto them. And the Lordes ſayde vnto them agayne: Let them lyue, *and hewe wood, and drawe water vnto al yͤ congregaciō, Deut.29.b and they dyd as the Lordes ſayde vnto them.

And Ioſua ſent for them, and talked with them, and ſayd: wherfore haue ye begiled vs, ſaying: We dwell farre frō you, when ye dwell among vs? & nowe are ye curſed, and there ſhall not ſeaſe to be of you, bonde men, and hewers of woode, and drawers of water for the houſe of my GOD.

And they anſwered Ioſua & ſayde: it was tolde thy ſeruauntes, how that the LORD thy GOD, had commaunded his ſeruaunte Moſes, to geue you all the lande, and to deſtroye all the enhabitoures therof out of your ſyght, and therfore we were excedyng ſore afraid (and dyd prouide) for oure lyues at yͤ preſence of you, and haue done this thing: and beholde we are in thyne hande, as it ſemeth good and ryght in thine eyes to do vnto vs, ſo do.

And euen ſo dyd he vnto them, and ryd them oute of the hande of the children of Iſraell, and they ſlewe thē not. And Ioſua made them that ſame daye hewers of wod, and drawers of water for the congregacion, and for the alter of GOD vnto this day, in yͤ place which GOD ſhoulde choſe.

¶ The.x.Chapter.

¶ The Amorites are ouercome of Ioſua. It rayneth ſtones. The ſunne ſtandeth ſtyll. The v. Kynges are hanged.

A And it fortuned, that when Adonizedech kynge of Ieruſalem had hearde how Ioſua had takē Hai, and had diſtroyed it, & howe that *as he had done to Iericho and her kyng, Ioſua.6.c and.8.a euen ſo he had done to Hai & her king, and howe the enhabytours of Gibeon had made peace with Iſrael, and were amonge them, they feared excedyngly: for Gibeon was a greate cytye, as any citie of the kyngdome, and was greater then Hai, and all the men thereof were very myghtie.

Wherfore Adonizedech kyng of Jeruſalem, ſent vnto Hoham king of Hebrō, and vnto Piria king of Jarmuth, and vnto Japhia king of Lachis, & vnto Debir king of Eglon, ſaying: Come vp vnto me, and helpe me, that we may ſmyte Gibeō: for they haue made peace B with Joſua, and wyth the chyldren of Iſraell. Therfore the .v. kynges of the Amorites, the kynge of Jeruſalem, the kyng of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachis, & the king of Eglō gathered themſelues togither: they wᵗ al their hoſtes, and beſieged Gibeon, & made warre agaynſt it.

And the men of Gibeon ſente vnto Joſua, and to the hooſte of Gilgall, ſaying: withdrawe not thy hand from thy ſeruauntes, come vp to vs, to ſaue vs, and to helpe vs. For all the kynges of the Amorites whiche dwell in the mountaynes, are gathered together agaynſt vs.

And ſo Joſua aſcēded from Gilgal, he and al yͤ people of warre wyth him, and all yͤ men of myght, and the LORD ſayde vnto Joſua: feare them not, for I haue delyuered thē into thyne hand. Neyther ſhall anye of them ſtande agaynſt thee. Joſua therfore came vnto them ſodenly, and went vp from Gilgall al nyght. And the LORD troubled C them before Iſrael, and ſlewe them wᵗ a great ſlaughter at Gibeon, and chaſed them along the way that goeth vp to Bethoron, and ſmote thē to Eſaka and Makeda. And it fortuned, that as they fled from Iſraell, and were in the goyng downe to Bethoron, the LORD caſte downe greate ſtones from heauē vpon them, vntyl Eſaka. And there were mo dead with hayle ſtones, then they were whom the children of Iſrael ſlewe with the ſwerde.

Then ſpake Joſua before the LORD, in the daye when the LORD delyuered the Amorytes before the chyldren of Iſraell, and he ſayd in the ſyght of Iſ-Eccl.46.c raell. * Sunne ſtande thou ſtyll vpon Gibeon, and thou Moone, in Aialon. And the Sunne abode, and yͤ Moone ſtoode ſtyll, vntyll the people auenged themſelues vpon their enemyes. Is not this written in yͤ boke of the righteous. The Sunne (I ſay) abode in the myddeſt of heuen, and haſted not to go downe by the ſpace of a whole daye. And there was no day lyke that, before it, or after it, that the LORDE hearde the voyce of a man. For the LORDE fought for Iſraell.

And Joſua retourned, and al Iſrael with him vnto the hoſte to Gilgall: but the fyue kynges fled, and were hyd in a caue at Makeda. And it was told Joſua of one, ſaying: the fyue kynges are founde hyd in a Caue which is at Makeda. And Joſua ſayde roule greate ſtones vpon the mouth of the caue, and ſet men by it, for to kepe them.

And ſtande ye not ſtyll, but folow after your enemyes, & ſmyte al yͤ hindermoſt: And ſuffre them not to entre into their cyties, for the LORD your GOD hath delyuered them into your hande. And it fortuned when Joſua and the children of Iſraell had made an ende of ſleyinge them with an excedynge great ſlaughter, tyl they were waſted, the reſt that remayned of them, entred into walled cyties.

And al the people returned to yͤ hoſt, to Joſua at Makeda in peace, neither dyd any man moue his tonge agaynſt the children of Iſraell. Then ſayd Joſua: open the mouthe of the caue, and bryng out theſe .v. kynges vnto me out of the caue. And they dyd ſo, & brought thoſe .v. kynges vnto him out of yͤ caue, euen the kyng of Jeruſalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachys, and yͤ kyng of Eglon.

And it fortuned, that when they brought out thoſe kinges vnto Joſua: Joſua called for all yͤ men of Iſraell, & ſayd vnto yͤ chief of yͤ mē of war, which wente with him: come nere, and putte your fete vpō yͤ neckes of theſe kinges. And they came nere and put their fete vpon the neckes of them. And Joſua ſayde vnto them. ye ſhall not feare nor be faynte herted: But be ſtronge and plucke vp your hertes, for thus ſhall yͤ LORDE do to al your enemies againſt whom ye fyghte.

And then Joſua ſmote them, & ſlewe them, and hāged them on .v. trees. And they hanged ſtyll vpon the trees vntil the euenyng. And at yͤ goyng down of the Sunne, it fortuned yͤ Joſua gaue commaundement, and they toke them downe of the * trees, and caſte them into yͤ caue, (wherin they had bene hyd)

and & layed great ſtones on yͤ caues mouth, whiche remaine vntyll this daye.

And that ſame day Joſua toke Ma‑ keda and ſmote it with the edge of the Deut.20.c ſwearde, and the kyng therof alſo *de‑ ſtroyed he vtterly, with al the ſoules yͭ were therin, and let nought remayne.
And he dyd to the king of Makeda *as Joſua.6.c he dyd vnto the kynge of Jericho.

Then Joſua went from Makeda, & all Iſraell with him vnto Libna, and fought againſt Libna. And the LORD delyuered it, and the kynge therof into the hande of Iſrael: and he ſmote it wͭ the edge of the ſwerde, and all the ſoules that were therin. He let nought remayne in it, but dyd vnto yͤ kyng therof as he dyd vnto the kyng of Jericho.

And Joſua departed from Libna, & F all Iſrael with him vnto Lachys, and beſieged it, and aſſaulted it. And the LORDE delivered Lachys into yͤ hand of Iſrael, which toke it the ſecond day, and ſmote it with the edge of yͤ ſweard, and all the ſoules that were therein, doyng accordyng to al, as he had done to the citie of Libna.

Then Horam kynge of Geſer came vp to helpe Lachys: And Joſua ſmote hym and his people, vntyll noughte remayned of him.

And from Lachys Joſua departed, vnto Eglon, and al Iſraell with him, & they beſieged it, and aſſaulted it, & toke it the ſame daye, and ſmote it with the edge of ſwearde, and all the ſoules that were therin he vtterly deſtroied yͤ ſame daye, accordynge to al that he had done to Lachys.

And Joſua departed vp from Eglon and all Iſraell with him, vnto Hebrõ. And they fought agaynſt it, and when they had taken it, they ſmote it with yͤ edge of the ſweard, and the kyng therof, and al the townes that pertained to it, and all the ſoules that were therein, and he lefte nought remaynynge: but dyd accordyng to al as he had done to Eglon, and deſtroyed it vtterly, and al the ſoules that were therin.

G And Joſua returned, and al Iſrael with him to Dabir, and fought againſt it. And when he had taken it, and the kynge therof, and all the townes that perteyned thereto, they ſmote them wͭ the edge of the ſweard, and vtterly deſtroyed al the ſoules that were therin, neyther let he ought remaine. Euen as he dyd to Hebron, ſo he dyd to Dabir and the king therof, as he had done alſo to Libna, and her kyng.

Joſua therfore ſmote all the hil coũtreyes, & the ſouth coũtreyes, & yͤ valleyes, and the hyll ſydes, and all theyr kinges, and let nought remaine of thẽ, but vtterly deſtroyed all yͭ *breathed, Deut.20.b as the LORDE GOD of Iſraell commaũded. And Joſua ſmote them from Cades barne vnto Aſah, and al the cõtreye of Goſan, euen vnto Gibeon. All thoſe kynges and their lande dyd Joſua take at one tyme: becauſe yͤ LORD GOD of Iſrael fought for Iſrael. And Joſua and all Iſrael retourned vnto yͤ hoſt that was in Gilgal.

The.xi.Chapter.

The battaile of Joſua with diuerſe kynges.

AND it fortuned, that when Jabin A kynge of Hazor, had hearde thoſe thinges: he ſent to Jobab kyng of Madon, and to the kynge of Simrom, and to the kynge of Achſaph, and vnto the kynges that are by the north in the mountaynes, and plaines towarde the ſouthſyde of Ceneroth, and in the low countreys: and in the borders of Dor, weſtwarde, and vnto the Cananites, both by eaſte and weſt, and vnto the Amorites, Hethites, Phereſites, & Gebuſites in the mountaynes: and vnto the Heuites that wer vnder Hermõ in the lãde of Mizpa: And they came out and all their hoſtes with them, a multitude of folke, euen as the ſãde that is on the ſea ſhore in a great numbre wͭ horſes & charrettes excedynge manye. And all theſe kynges met together, and came and pitched together at the waters of Merom, for to fyght againſt Iſrael.

And the LORDE ſayd vnto Joſua: be B not afrayde at the preſence of them: for to morowe about this tyme wyl I deliuer them al ſlayne before Iſrael: thou ſhalt hough their horſes, & burne theyr charrettes with fyre. And ſo Joſua came, and all the men of warre wͭ hym againſte them by yͤ waters of Merom, and ſodenly fel vpon them. And the LORDE delyuered them into the hand of Iſraell: and they ſmote them, & chaſed them vnto great Sidon, and vnto the whot waters, and vnto the valeye of Mizpa which is Eaſtward: & ſmote them vntyll they had none remayning of them. And Josua did vnto them, as the LORDE bad him: he houghed their horſes, and burnte their charrettes wyth fyre.

And Josua at yͤ tyme turned backe and toke Hazor, and ſmote the kynge therof with the ſwearde. And Hazor before tyme was the heade of all thoſe kyngdomes. And they ſmote all the ſoules that were therin with the edge of the ſwearde, vtterly deſtroyng all: & nothyng yͭ breathed, was let remayne. And he burnt Hazor with fyre. And all the cyties of thoſe kynges, and all the kynges of them did Josua take, and ſmote them with the edge of yͤ sweard, and vtterlye deſtroyed them *as Moſes the ſeruaunte of the LORDE commaunded.

But Iſrael burnt none of the cyties that ſtode ſtyll in their ſtrength, ſaue Hazor onely that Josua burnt. And al the ſpoyle of the ſayde cities and yͤ catel, the children of Iſraell caught vnto them ſelues. But the men only they ſmote with the edge of the ſweard vntyll they had deſtroyed them, neyther lefte they ought that had breath. As yͤ LORDE commaunded Moſes his ſeruaunt, ſo dyd Moſes commaunde Joſua, and euen ſo dyd Joſua* ſo that he miniſhed no word of all that yͤ LORDE commaunded Moſes.

And ſo Joſua toke all the lande, the hylles and all the ſouth countrey, and all the land of Goſan, and the lowe cõtrey, and yͤ playne, and the mountaine of Iſrael, and the lowe countrey of the ſame, euen from the mount of parting, that goeth vp to Seir, vnto the playne of Gad in the valey of Libanon, vnder mount Hermon. And al the kynges of the ſame he toke, and ſmote them. And ſlewe them.

Joſua made warre long tyme with thoſe kynges: neyther was there anye cytie that made peace with the childrẽ of Iſraell, ſaue thoſe Hethites that enhabited Gibeon, and therefore al other they toke with battayle, for it came of the LORDE, whiche dyd harden theyr hertes that they ſhoulde come againſt Iſraell in battayle, and yͭ they ſhoulde deſtroy them vtterly, and ſhewe them no mercy, but to bring them to nought: As the LORDE commaunded Moſes.

And that ſame ceaſon came Joſua, and deſtroyed the Enakites out of the mountaynes: Namely out of Hebron, Dabir, Anab, and out of all the mountaynes of Juda, and out of al yͤ mountaynes of Iſraell. And Joſua deſtroyed them vtterly, with their cities. Ther was not one Enakite lefte in the lande of the children of Iſrael, onely in Aſah, *Geth, and Aſdod, there remayned of them.

And Joſua toke the whole land, accordyng to all that the LORDE ſayde vnto Moſes, and Joſua gaue it for a poſſeſſion vnto Iſraell *accordynge to their partes and trybes: and the lande reſted from warre.

¶ What kynges Joſua and the children of Iſrael kylled / whiche were in numbre.xxxi.

These are the kynges of the land, whiche the chyldren of Iſraell ſmote and poſſeſſed theyr lande, on the other ſyde Jordan eaſtwarde from the ryuer Arnon, vnto mounte Hermon, and all the playne eaſtward. *Sehon kynge of the Amorites, that dwelt in Heſbon, and ruled frõ Aroer, whiche is beſyde the ryuer of Arnon, & from the myddle of the riuer, and from halfe Gilead vnto the ryuer Jabok, whiche is the bordre of the children of Ammon. And from the playne vnto the ſea of Cinneroth Eaſteward, and vnto the ſea in the playne: euen yͤ ſalte ſea Eaſtewarde, the waye to Beth Jeſymoth, and from the ſouth vnder the ſprynges of the hyll.

And the coaſt of Og kyng of Baſan, whyche was of the remnaunt of yͤ gyauntes, and dwelte at Aſtaroth, & Edrai, and reygned in mounte Hermon, and in Salcah, and in all Baſan, vnto the bordre of the Geſurites, and yͤ Machathites, and halfe mount Gilead, vnto the borders of Sehon kyng of Heſbon. *Moſes the ſeruaunt of yͤ LORD, and the children of Iſrael ſmote them, *and Moſes the ſeruaunt of yͤ LORD, gaue their lande for a poſſeſſion vnto yͤ Rubenites, Gaddites, and halfe yͤ tribe of Manaſſes.

These are the kynges of the coũtrey whiche Joſua and the children of Iſraell ſmote on this ſyde Jordan, weſtwarde, from the playne of Gad, which is in the valey of Libanon: euen vnto the partyng mounte that goeth vp to Seir.

C Seir. Whiche lande Joſua gaue vnto the trybes of Iſrael to poſſeſſe, to euery man his parte: in the vpper lande, and nether lande, in playnes and hyl ſides, in the wyldernesse, and ſouthe countrey: the Hethytes, the Amorites, yͤ Cananites, the Pheresites, the Heuites, and the Jebuſites.

¶ The.xiii. Chapter.

Joſua is commaunded to deuide the land to the children of Iſrael.

A JOſua was olde, and ſtryken in yeres, and the LORDE ſayd vnto him: thou art olde and ſtriken in yeres, and there remaineth yet excedyng muche lande to be poſſeſſed. This is yͤ land that yet remayneth: al the regions of the Philiſtines: ⁊ all Geſuri: from Nilus which is on the outwarde parte of Egypte, vnto the borders of Akron northwarde: whiche lande is counted vnto Cananie, euen fyue lordſhyppes of the Philiſtines, the Aſathites, Aſdothites, Aſcalonites, Gethites Akaronites, and the Euytes. And frõ the ſouth: all the lande of the Cananites, and the caue that is beſyde yͤ Sydonianes, euen vnto Apphek, and to yͤ border of the Amorytes. And yͤ lande of the Giblytes, ⁊ al Libanon, toward the Sunne ryſyng, from the playne of Gad vnder mounte Hermon, vntyll a man come to Hemath: all the enhabitours of the hill countrey from Libanon vnto the whot waters: and all the B Sidonianes, will I caſt out from before the children of Iſrael: onely ſe that thou in any wyſe deuide it by lot vnto the Iſraelites, to enherite, as I haue commaunded thee. Nowe therfore deuyde this lande to enherite, vnto the nyne trybes and the halfe tribe of Manaſſes. For with the other halfe yͤ Rubenites and the Gaddites haue receyued their enheritaũce, *which Moſes Num.32.f Deut.3.b. gaue them beyonde Jordan eaſtward: euen as Moſes the ſeruaunte of the LORDE gaue them: from Aroer that lyeth on the brym of the ryuer Arnon, and from the cytie that is in the myddeſt of the ryuer. And all the playne of Medeba vnto Dibon, and al the cities of Sehõ kyng of the Amorites, which raygned in Heſbon, euen vnto the border of the children of Ammon: and Gilead, and the border of Geſuri ⁊ Machati, and all mounte Hermon, with all Baſan vnto Salecah: euen all the kyngdome of Og in Baſan, whiche reygned in Aſtharoth ⁊ Edrai: whiche ſame remayned yet of the reſt of yͤ Giauntes. Theſe dyd Moſes ſmyte, and caſt them out.

Neuertheleſſe, the children of Iſrael expelled not the Geſurites and yͤ Machathites: But the Geſurites and the Machathites dwell among the Iſraelites euen vntyll this daye. Onely vnto the trybe of Leui, he gaue none enherytaunce: *But the offerynge of the Num.28.c LORDE GOD of Iſraell is their enheritaunce, as he ſayde vnto them.

Moſes gaue vnto the trybe of the C chyldren of Ruben, enheritaunce, accordyng to theyr kynredes. And theyr coaſt was from Aroer that lyeth on yͤ bancke of the ryuer Arnon, and from the cytie that is in the myddeſt of the ryuer, and all the playne whiche is by Medeba, Heſbõ, with al theyr townes that lye in the playne: Dibon and yͤ hill places of Baal, and the houſe Baalmeõ: and Jahazah, and Kedemoth and Mephaah Kiriathaim, Sabamath, ⁊ Zarath zahar in the mounte of yͤ valley, the houſe of Peor, and yͤ ſprynges of the hylles: and Bethpheor, and the ſprynges of Phaſgah: ⁊ Bethieſimoth:

and all the cyties of the playne. And al the kyngdome of Sehon kynge of the Amorites, whiche reygned in Heſbon, Num.31.c whiche Moſes ſmote*with the lordes of Madian, Eui, Rekem, Zur and Hur ⁊ Reba, the whiche were dukes of Sehon, dwellyng in the countrey. And Balaam alſo, the ſonne of Beor the ſothſayer, dyd the chyldren of Iſraell ſlaye with the ſweard, among other of them that were ſlayne. And the border of the children of Ruben was Iordan, with the countrey that lyeth theron.
This was the enheritaunce of yͤ chyldren of Ruben after their kynreddes, cytyes ⁊ vyllages perteynyng thereto.

D And Moſes gaue enherytaunce vnto the trybe of Gad, euen vnto yͤ childrē of Gad he gaue by theyr kynredes. And their coaſtes were Iazer: and all yͤ cyties of Gilead, and halfe the land of the chyldren of Ammon vnto Aroer that lyeth before Rabba. And from Heſbon vnto Ramoth, Mazphah, ⁊ Betonim: and from Mahanaim vnto yͤ borders of Lidbir. And in yͤ valey they had Betharam Bethnimra, Socoth, and Zaphon, the reſt of the kyngdō of Sehon kynge of Heſbon, vnto Iordan and the coaſtes that lye theron euen vnto the edge of the ſee of Ceneroth, on yͤ other ſyde Iordan Eaſtewarde. This is the enherytaunce of the chyldren of Gad, after their kynredes, theyr cytyes and vyllages.

And Moſes gaue enheritaunce vnto the halfe trybe of Manaſſes. And this was the poſſeſſiō of the halfe tribe of Manaſſes by their kynredes. Their coaſte was from Mahanaim, euen all Baſan, ⁊ all the kyngdome of Og kyng of Baſan, and all the townes of Iair whiche lye in Baſan, euen threſcore cities, and halfe Gilead, Aſtaroth, and Edrai, cytyes of the kyngdome of Og Num.32.g in Baſan * whiche perteyne vnto the children of Machir the ſonne of Manaſſes, euen the halfe porcyon of the children of Machir by their kynredes.

These are the thynges whiche Moſes did diſtribute in the feldes of Maab on the other ſyde Iordan ouer agaynſt Ioſu.18.b Iericho eſtwarde. *But vnto the trybe of Leui, Moſes gaue none enheritaũce, for the LORD GOD of Iſrael Num.18.c is their enheritaũce, *as he ſayde vnto them.

The.xiiii. Chapter.

him / and Hebron was gyuen him.

A AND theſe are the coūtreyes which the children of Iſraell enherited in the lande of Canaan, *whiche Eleazer the prieſt, ⁊ Ioſua the ſon of Nun, and the auncient headeſ of the tribes of the children of Iſraell, diſtributed to them.

*By lot they receyued theyr poſſeſſions, as the LORDE commaunded, by the hand of Moſes, to geue vnto the nyne trybes, and vnto the halfe trybe.
For Moſes had gyuen enherytaunce vnto two trybes and an halfe, on the other ſyde Iordan. But vnto the Leuites he gaue none enheritaunce among them. *For the childrē of Ioſeph were two trybes. Manaſſes and Ephraim.
And therfore they gaue no parte vnto the Leuites in the lande, ſaue cities to Now therfore gyue me this moūtain whereof the LORD ſpake in yͤ daye, for thou

thou hardeſt in that daye, howe the Enakims are there, and the cityes great and walled. Peraduenture the LORD wil be wͭ me, & I ſhall be able to dryue them out, as the LORD ſaid: And Joſua bleſſed him, and gaue vnto Caleb the ſonne of Jephune, Hebron to enherit: And Hebron therfore became the enheritaunce of Caleb yͤ ſonne of Jephune the Keneſite, vnto this day: becauſe he folowed yͤ LORD GOD of Iſrael. And Joſu.15.c. the name of *Hebrõ was called in olde tymo, Kariah Arbe. For the ſame was a great man among the Enakims. And the lande ceaſed from warre.

The.xv. Chapter.

¶ The lotte of the children of Juda, and the names of the cyties and vyllages of the ſame.

A This was the lotte of the trybe of the childrẽ of Juda by their kynredes. Namely, towarde the border of Edom in the wilderneſſe of zin, ſouthwarde, euen from the vtmoſt part of the ſouth coaſte. 14.c. *And their ſouthe coaſte was from the brynke of the ſalt ſea, from a rocke yͭ leaneth ſouthward. And it wente out to the ſouth ſyde towarde the goyng vp to Acrabim, & wẽt a long to zinna, and aſcended vp on the ſouthſyde vnto Cades barne: and went along to Hezron, and went vp to Adar, and ſet a compaſſe to Karca. Frõ thence went it along to Azmon, and reached vnto the ryuer of Egipt and the ende of that coaſt was on the weſte ſyde. And this is their ſouth coaſt.

B Their eaſt coaſt is the ſalt ſea, euen vnto the edge of Jordan: And their border in the northe quarter was frõ the rocke of the ſea and from the edge of Jordan. And the ſame border went vp to Bethhagla, and went alonge by the northſyde of Betharabah, and vp from thence to the ſtone of Bohen the ſonne of Ruben. And againe, the ſame border went vp to Dabir from the valleye of Acor, and ſo northwarde, turnynge towarde Gilgal, yͭ lyeth before yͤ goynge vp to Adonim, whiche is of the ſouthe ſyde of the ryuer. And the ſame border went vp to the waters of the fountaine 1.b of the Sunne, and ended at the *wel of Rogel. And then went vp to the valeye of the ſonne of Hennon, euen vnto the ſouth ſyde of Jebuſi: the ſame is Jeruſalem. And then went vp to the toppe of the hylle that lyeth before the valey of Hennon weſtwarde, and by the edge of the valey of the Giauntes northwarde: And then it compaſſeth from the toppe of the hyll vnto the fountayne of yͤ water of Nephthoah, and goeth out at the cyties of mount Ephron: and draweth to Baala, which is Kiriathiarim, (That is a citye of woodes) and then it compaſſeth from Balah weſtwarde vnto mounte Seir, and then goeth a long vnto yͤ ſide of mount Jarim, whiche (is Cheſalon) on the north ſyde. And commeth downe C to Bethſames, & goeth to Thamnah, and goeth out againe vnto the ſyde of Akaron northwarde: And thẽ draweth to Secron and goeth a long to mount Balah, & goeth out at Jabnel: and the endes of the coaſtes leaue at yͤ weſt ſea. And the weſt border was the great ſea, & yͤ ſame coaſt was yͤ coaſt of yͤ children of Juda roũde about in their kinredes.

And vnto Caleb yͤ ſonne of Jephune did Joſua geue a parte among yͤ childrẽ of Juda, according to the mouth of the Joſu.14.d LORD, euen *Kiriatharbe of the father of Enock, whiche citye is Hebron. And Caleb droue thence the thre ſonnes of Enack, Seſai, and Ahman, and Thalmai, whiche were the ſonnes of Enack. And he went vp thence, to the enhabytoures of Dabir. And the name of Dabir in yͤ olde tyme was Kariath ſephar. (That is a cytie of letters.) And Caleb ſayd: Judic.1.c. 1.Reg.17.c *He that ſmyteth Kariath ſepher, & taketh it, to him wyll I geue Acſah my D doughter to wife. And Othniel, yͤ ſonne of Kenes, the brother of Caleb toke it. And he gaue him Acſah his doughter to wyfe: And as ſhe wente in vnto him, ſhe moued him, to aſke of her father a felde. And ſhe alyghted of her aſſe. And Caleb ſayde vnto her, what ayleth the? Who anſwered: geue me a bleſſynge: for thou haſt geuẽ me a ſouth (and drye) lãd: geue me alſo ſpringes of water. And he gaue her ſpringes of water, both aboue and beneth. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Juda, by their kynredes.

he Lotte or parte of Ephraim

And the lotte of the children of Joſeph felle from Jordã by Jericho, vnto the water of Jericho Eaſtewarde, and to yͤ wildernesſe that goeth vp from Jericho thorowe out mounte Bethel : and goeth out from Bethel to Lus,⁊ rũneth a long vnto yͤ borders of Arcimataroth: ⁊ goeth downe againe weſtwarde euen to the coaſte of Japhlethi, and vnto the coaſt of Bethron the nether,and to Gaſor, and the endes of their coaſtes leaue at the weſt ſea.And ſo the childrẽ of Joſeph Manaſſes and Ephraim toke their enheritaunce.
And the border of the children of Ephraim was by their kynredes. Their border on the eaſtſyde, was Ataroth, Ador, euen vnto Bethhoron yͤ vpper,⁊ went out weſtewarde to Machmathah on the Northſyde,and returneth Eeſtwarde vnto Thaanath Silo, and paſt it on the Eſtſide vnto Jonoah, ⁊ wente downe from Jonoah to Atharoth, and Naarath,⁊ came to Jericho , and went out at Jordan.And their border went from Thaphuah weſtwarde vnto yͤ riuer kanah,⁊ the endes were yͤ weſt ſea.
This is the enheritaunce of the tribe of the children of Ephraim by their kynredes.
And the ſeparate cyties for the children of Ephraim,were amonge the enheritaũce of yͤ childrẽ of Manaſſes: euen the cities with their villages:And they draue not out yͤ Cananites that dwelt in Gaſor: but yͤ Cananites dwel among the Ephraites vnto this daye, and ſerue vnder tribute.

¶ The.xvii.Chapter.

The lotte or porcion of the halfe trybe of Manaſſes.
The Cananites become tributaries to the Iſraelites. Manaſſes and Ephraim require a greater porcion of heritage

This was the lotte of the trybe of Manaſſes,which was the * Eldeſt ſonne of Joſeph . And Machir yͤ Eldeſt ſonne of Manaſſes which was the father of Gilead(and a mã of warre)had Gilead ⁊ Baſan.This was the poſſeſſion of the reſt of yͤ children of Manaſſes by their kynredes:Namely, of the children of Abiezer: yͤ children of Heleck:the children of Ariel:the childrẽ of Sichem , the children of Hepher:the children of Semida : for theſe wer the male childrẽ of Manaſſes the ſonne of Joſeph, by their kynredes.

But

Num.26.d *But zelaphead the ſonne of Hepher, 27.a. and yͤ ſonne of Gilead: yͤ ſonne of Machir, 36.a. the ſonne of Manaſſes, had no ſonnes B but daughters, whoſe names are theſe: Mahela, Noa, Hagla, Melcha ⁊ Thirza, which came before Eleazar yͤ preaſt, and before Joſua yͤ ſonne of Nun, and Num.27.a before the Lordes ſaying: *the LORD and.36.a commaunded Moſes to geue vs an en-heritaunce among our brethren. And therfore accordynge to the commaun-dement of yͤ LORD, he gaue thẽ an en-heritaũce amõg the brethrẽ of their father. And there fel ten porcions to Ma-naſſes, beſyde yͤ lande of Gilead ⁊ Baſã, which is on yͤ other ſyde Jordã, becauſe yͤ daughters of Manaſſes dyd enherit amonge his ſonnes. And Manaſſes other ſonnes, had the lande of Gilead.

And the coaſte of Manaſſes was frõ Aſer to Machmathath yͤ lyeth before Sichem, and went along on the righte hande, euen vnto the enhabiters of Entaphuah: and yͤ lande of Thaphuah, belõged to Manaſſes, which Thaphuah is beſyde the Border of Manaſſes, ⁊ beſyde the border of the children of Ephraim. And the coaſt deſcẽded vnto the riuer Canah ſouthward, euẽ to yͤ riuer of yͤ cities of Ephraim, ⁊ betwene yͤ cytyes of Manaſſes. The coaſte of Ma-C naſſes went alſo on the northſyde to yͤ riuer, ⁊ the endes of it go out at the ſea, ſo that yͤ ſouth pertayned to Ephraim, and the north to Manaſſes, ⁊ the ſea is his border. And they mette together in Aſer northwarde, and in Iſacar eaſte-warde. And Manaſſes had in Iſacar ⁊ in Aſer, Bethſean, and her townes: Jiblean, and her townes: and the enhabi-toures of Dor, with yͤ townes pertayning to the ſame: and the enhabitoures of Endor with the townes of the ſame: and the enhabitoures of Thaanath wͭ her townes: ⁊ the enhabitoures of Magedo with the townes of the ſame, euen thre contreyes. yet the children of Ma-naſſes coulde not ouercome thoſe cytyes. But yͤ Cananites preſumed to dwel in the ſame lande. Neuertheleſſe, aſſone as the children of Iſraell were waxed ſtronge, they put the Cananites vnder trybute, but expelled them not.

And the childrẽ of Joſeph ſpake vnto D Joſua ſaying: why haſt thou geuen me but one lot ⁊ one porcion to enherit, ſe-yng I am a great people, ⁊ for as much as the LORD hath bleſſed me hitherto?
And Joſua anſwered them: yf thou be muche people, then gette the vp to the wodde cõtrey, and prepare for thy ſelfe there in the lande of the Phereſites and of the Giauntes, yf mount Ephraim be to narowe for the. And the children of Joſeph ſayde: The hyll is not ynoughe for vs: and all the Cananites that dwel in the lowe contrey haue charrettes of yron, and ſo haue they that enhabite Bethſean, and the townes of the ſame, and they alſo that dwel in the valeye of Jezreel. And Joſua ſayde vnto yͤ houſe of Joſeph, Ephraim and Manaſſes: ye be much people, and haue great power, and ſhall not therfore haue one lotte.
Therfore the hyl ſhalbe youres, and ye ſhal cut downe the wod that is in it: ⁊ the endes of it ſhalbe youres, yf ye caſte out the Cananites whiche haue yron charrettes, and are very ſtrong.

The .xviii. Chapter.

Certen are ſent to deuide the lande to the other ſeuẽ trybes. The lotte of the children of BenJamin.

AND the whole congregacion of the A children of Iſraell came together at Silo, ⁊ ſet vp the tabernacle of witneſſe there, ⁊ the lande was in ſubieccion before them. And ther remained among yͤ children of Iſrael ſeuẽ tribes, which had not yet receaued their enhe-ritaunce. And Joſua ſaid vnto yͤ childrẽ of Iſrael: howe long are ye ſo ſlacke to come, and poſſeſſe the lande which the LORD GOD of your fathers hath geuẽ you? Geue out frõ amõg you for euery trybe thre men, that I may ſende them.
And that they may ryſe, and walke tho-rowe the lande and diſtribute it accordynge to the enheritaunce therof, and come againe to me.

And let them deuide it vnto them into B ſeuen partes. And Juda ſhall abyde in their coaſt on the ſouthe, and the houſe of Joſeph ſhal ſtande in their coaſtes on the north. Deſcribe ye yͤ lande therfore into the ſeuen partes, and brynge the deſcripcion hether to me and I ſhal caſt lottes for you here before yͤ LORD our GOD. *But the Leuites haue no Joſu.13. parte among you, for the preaſthode of nd.14.
the LORD is their enheritaunce. *And Joſu.12.
Gad, ⁊ Ruben ⁊ halfe the tribe of Ma-naſſes haue receaued their enheritaũce beyonde Jordã eaſtwarde, which Moſes the ſeruaũt of the LORD gaue thẽ.

And the men aroſe, and wente theyr waye. And Joſua charged them yͭ wēt to deſcribe yͤ lande, ſaying: departe, and go thorow the lande, ⁊ deſcrybe it, and come againe to me, yͭ I may here caſte lottes for you before yͤ LORD in Silo. C And the men departed, ⁊ walked thorowe the lande, ⁊ deſcribed it by cityes into ſeuē partes in a booke, and retourned to Joſua into yͤ hooſt at Silo. And Joſua caſt lottes for thē in Silo before the LORD, and there Joſua deuided the lande vnto the childrē of Iſrael, to eche theyr porcion. And the lotte of the tribe of the children of BenJamin came vp accordyng to their kynredes. And the coaſte of their lotte came betwene the children of Juda and the children of Joſeph. And their north coaſt was frō Jordan, ⁊ went vp to yͤ ſyde of Jericho on the northſyde, and went vp thorowe the mountaines weſtwarde, and they ended at the wilderneſſe of Bethauen: and wēt from thēce towarde Lus euen to the ſouthe ſyde of Lus (the ſame is Bethel) and deſcended againe to Atrothader, vnto the hyll that lyeth on the ſouthſyde of the neyther Bethhoron.

And the coaſt turneth thence and compaſſeth yͤ corner of the ſea ſouthwarde, euen from the hyll yͭ lyeth before Bethhoron ſouthwarde, ⁊ goeth out at Kiriathbaal whiche is Kiriath Jarim a cytie of the childrē of Juda: this is yͤ weſt quarter: ⁊ yͤ ſouth coaſt goeth from the D edge of Kiriath Jarim, and goeth out weſtwarde, and thence it turneth to yͤ water well of Nephthoah, ⁊ commeth downe againe to the edge of the hyll, that lyeth before the valeye of the ſonne of Hennon, euen in the valeye of yͤ Giauntes northward, and deſcendeth into the valeye of Hennon beſyde Jebuſy ſouthwarde, and goeth downe to yͤ wel of Rogell, and compaſeth from yͤ north, and goeth forthe to the well of yͤ ſonne, and departeth from thēce to the places of Geliloth, whyche are towarde the goyng vp vnto Adomim: ⁊ goeth downe to the ſtone of Bohan the ſonne of Ruben: and then goeth a long towarde the ſyde of the playne northwarde: and goeth downe into the feldes: and goeth along to the ſyde of Bethhaglah northwarde, and endeth at the poynte of the ſalte ſea northe there from, euen at the ſouthe ende of Jordan. This is the ſouthe coaſte.

And Jordan kepeth in this coaſte on the eaſtſide, and this is the enheritaūce of the childrē of Beniamin by their coaſtes rounde aboute thorowe out theyr kynredes. Theſe were the cityes of the trybes of the chyldren of Beniamin thorowoute their kinredes: Jericho, Bethaglah, and the playne of Kaziz, Betharabah, zamarim, and Bethel: Auim, Pharah, ⁊ Ophrah: Chepar, Ammona, Ophny, and Gabai, twelue cytyes wͭ their vyllages. Gibeō, Ramah, ⁊ Beroth: Mazphah, Caphairah, and Mozah: Reken, Jarephel, ⁊ Tharelah, zela, Eleph, and Jebuſi, which is Jeruſalem, Gibeath, and Kiriath, fourtene cyties with their vyllages. This is the enheritaunce of the children of Beniamin thorowout their kynredes.

The lottes or partes of zabulon / Iſachar / Aſer / Nephthali / Dan / and Joſua.

C AND the ſecōde lot came out for the tribe of the children of Simeon by their kynredes. And their enherytaunce was in the myddes of the enheritaunce of the children of Juda. And they had in their enheritaunce, Berſabe, Sabe, and Moladah, Hazorſual, Balah, and Azē, Eltholad, Bethul and Hormah, zikelag, Bethmarcaboth and Hazetſuſah Bethlebaoth, ⁊ Saruhen, thirtene cities with their vyllages. Aim, Remō, Ether, and Aſan, foure cities with their vyllages: ⁊ thereto al yͤ vyllages yͭ were roūde about theſe cities, euē vnto Balaath, Beor and Ramath, ſouthwarde. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Simeon thorow out their kinredes. Out of yͤ lot of the children of Juda, came yͤ enherytaunce of the children of Simeon. For the parte of the childrē of Juda was to muche for them: and therfore yͤ childrē of Simeon had their enheritaūce in the enheritaunce of them.

And the thirde lot aroſe for the children of zabulon thorowe out theyr kinredes. And the coaſtes of their enherytaunce came to Sarid, and went vp weſtwarde, ⁊ to Marialath, ⁊ reached to Dabaſeth, ⁊ came thence to the riuer that lyeth before Jokneuen: and turned from Sarid eaſtwarde towarde yͤ ſunne riſing vnto yͤ border of Chiſloth Thabor: ⁊ then goeth out to Dabereth.

and goeth vp to Japhia: ⁊ frõ thẽce goeth a long eaſtwarde, to Gethah. Jepher, Jthah and Jazin, and goeth to Remõ, Methoar, and Neoh. And compaſſeth it on the north ſyde to Nathan, and endeth in the valeye of Jephthahel. And Jatath, Nahalol, Semron, Jedalah, and Bethlehẽ: twelue cytyes with their villages. This is the enheritaũce of the children of zabulon thorowe out theyr kynredes, and theſe are the cities with theyr vyllages.

And the fourth lot came out for ẏ children of Jſachar by their kinredes. And their coaſt was Jeſraelah, Caſuloth, ⁊ Sunem, Hapharaim, Sion, and Anaharath, Harabith kyſiõ, and Abez, Rameth, Enganim, Enhadah, and Bethphazez. And his coaſt reacheth to Thabor, and Sahazimah and Bethſames, and endeth at Jordan: Syxtene cyties w their villages. This is ẏ enheritaũce of the trybe of the children of Jſachar by their kynredes. And theſe are the cyties with their vyllages.

C And the fyfte lot came out for ẏ trybe of the childrẽ of Aſer by their kynredes: And their coaſt was: Helkath, Hali, Beten and Achſap, Alamelech, Amaad and Miſeal: and came to Carmel weſtwarde, and to Sihor, Labanath, ⁊ turned towarde the ſonne riſinge to Bethdagon, and commeth to zabulon and to the valey of Jephthahel, towarde the northſide of Bethemek and Negel, and goeth out on ẏ lefte ſyde of Cabul: and to Hebron, Rohob, Ramon, and Kanah, euen vnto greate Sidon. And then the coaſt turneth to Ramah and to ẏ ſtrõg citie of zor, and turneth to Hozah, ⁊ endeth at the ſea, by the poſſeſſion of Achzibah: Amah alſo and Aphek ⁊ Rohob: Twentye and two cytyes with theyr vyllages. This is the enherytaunce of the children of Aſer by their kynredes: Theſe are the cytyes with theyr vyllages.

And the ſyxte lot came out for ẏ children of Nephthali by their kinredes. And their coaſt was from Heleph and frõ Elom to zaananim Adami, Nekeb and Jabneel, euen to Lakum, and doth go out at Jordã. And then ẏ coaſte turneth weſtwarde to Aſanoth Thabor, ⁊ then goeth out frõ thence to Hukokah, and reacheth to zabulon on the ſouthe ſyde, and goeth to Aſer on the weſtſyde, and to Juda vpon Jordan towarde the ſunne ryſynge. And their ſtrong cytyes are zidin, zer, Hamath, Racah and Cenereth, Adamah, Hermah and Hazor, Kedes, Edrai, ⁊ Enhazor: Jerõ, Magdelel: Horẽ, Bethanah and Bethſames: nyntene cyties with their vyllages. This is the enheritaunce of the tribe of the children of Nephthali by their kynredes: theſe alſo are the cytyes and theyr vyllages.

And the ſeuenth lot came out for the trybe of ẏ children of Dan by their kinredes: And ẏ coaſte of their enheritaũce was: zaraah, Eſthaol, *Jrſames, Saelabin, Aialon, Jethlah: Eglon ⁊ Thennathah, and Akarõ: Eltheke, Gibethõ and Baalath: Jehud Banebarak and Gathermõ, Meiericon ⁊ Aarcon, with the border ẏ lyeth before Japho. And the coaſtes of the children of Dan wẽt out frõ them. And the children of Dan went vp to fyght againſt Leſen, ⁊ toke it, ⁊ ſmote it with ẏ edge of ẏ ſwerde, and conquered it, and dwelt therin, and called it *Dan, after the name of Dan their father.

The cities geuen to the Leuites / in numbre.xlviii.

A AND thē came the principal fathers of ẏ Leuites vnto Eleazar ẏ preſt, and vnto Joſua ẏ ſonne of Nun, & vnto ẏ auncient fathers ẏ were ouer ẏ tribes of ẏ childrē of Iſrael, & ſpake vnto thē at Silo in the lande of Canaan, Num. 5. a ſaying: *ẏ LORD cōmaunded by Mo-Josu. 20. a. ſes, to geue vs cities to dwell in, with the Suburbes therof, for our catel. And ẏ children of Iſrael gaue vnto the Le-uites, oute of their enheritaunce at the byddynge of the LORDE, theſe cytyes folowynge with their Suburbes.

And the lotte came out for ẏ kynred of the Cahathites: & the chyldrē of Aarō the preaſte, which wer of the Leuites, had geuen them by lotte, oute of the trybe of Iuda, oute of the trybe of Simeon, and out of ẏ trybe of Beniamin: thirtene cyties. And the reſt of ẏ childrē of Cahath had by lot, out of ẏ kinredes of the trybe of Ephraim, out of ẏ trybe of Dan, and oute of the halfe trybe of Manaſſes: ten cities. And the childrē of Gerſon had by lot oute of the kynredes of the trybe of Iſachar, and oute of the trybe of Aſer, out of the tribe of Nephthali, and out of the other halfe tribe of Manaſſes in Baſan: thyrtene cyties.

B And ẏ children of Merari by their kinredes, had out of the trybe of Ruben, & out of the tribe of GAD, and out of tribe of zabulon, twelue cyties. And the children of Iſraell gaue by lotte vnto the Leuites theſe cities wᵗ their Suburbes, as ẏ LORD cōmaūded by Moſes. And they gaue out of the tribe of ẏ children of Iuda, and out of the trybe of the childrē of Simeō, theſe cities by name, which the children of Aaron beynge of the kinredes of the Cahathites, and of the childrē of Leui, obtayned: for theirs was the firſt lotte.

And they gaue them Kariathe Arbe of the father of Enack (which is Hebron) in the hyl contreye of Iuda, wᵗ ẏ Suburbes of the ſame rounde aboute it. But the lande that pertayned to ẏ cytie, and ẏ vyllages therof, gaue they to *Caleb the ſonne of Iephune, to be his poſſeſſion.

And thus they gaue to the children of Aaron the preaſt, a citie, to the whiche the ſlayer might flye: euen Hebrō with her Suburbes: Libna with her Suburbes: and Iathir with her Suburbes, and Eſtimoa with her Suburbes: Holō with her Suburbes: Dabir with her Suburbes: Ain with her Suburbes: Iutah with her Suburbes: Bethſames with her Suburbes: nyne cities out of thoſe two trybes. And out of the trybe of Beniamin, they gaue Gibeon with her Suburbes: Gaba with her Suburbes: Anatoth with her Suburbes: Almon with her Suburbes: foure cytyes. All theſe cytyes of the chyldren of Aaron prieſtes, were thirtene cytyes with theyr Suburbes. And the kynredes of the children of Cahath that were Leuites: that is to ſaye, the other children of Cahath, had cytyes geuen for theyr lotte, out of the trybe of Ephraim. For they gaue them the cytye that the

And out of the halfe trybe of Manaſſes, Thanach with her Suburbes: and Gathremon with her Suburbes: two cytyes. Al yͤ cities for yͤ other kinredes of the children of Cahath, were ten with their Suburbes.

And vnto the childrẽ of Gerſon which wer of the kinredes of yͤ Leuites, they gaue out of yͤ other halfe trybe of Manaſſes, yͤ citie of refuge for yͤ flear: Golan in Baſã wͭ her Suburbes: & Beeſterah with her Suburbes: two cyties. And out of the tribe of Jſachar, Kiſyon with her Suburbes: & Daberah with her Suburbes: and Jarimoth with her Suburbes: Enganim with her Suburbes: foure cytyes.

D And vnto the other kynredes of yͤ children of Merari, the reſt of the Leuites, they gaue out of the trybe of zabulon: Jecnam with her Suburbes: and Carthah wͭ her Suburbes: Damna with her Suburbes, and Nahalal with her Suburbes: foure cyties. And out of the tribe of Ruben, Bozor wͭ her Suburbes: and Jahelah with her Suburbes: Kedmoth with her Suburbes, and Maphaath with her Suburbes: foure cities. And out of the tribe of GAD, they gaue the citie for the flear to flee vnto: Ramoth in Gilead wͭ her Suburbes, and Mahanaim with her Suburbes: Heſbon with her Suburbes: and Jaſer with her Suburbes, foure cyties in al: ſo that all the cytyes of the chyldren of Merari thorowe oute theyr kynredes (whiche were the reſte of the kynredes of yͤ Leuites) were by their lot, twelue cyties. And al the cytyes that yͤ Leuites had among the poſſeſſiõ of the children of Jſraell were. xlviii. with their Suburbes. And theſe cities laye euery one ſeuerally, hauing their Suburbes rounde about them thorow out all the ſayde cyties. And the LORD gaue vnto Jſrael al the lande whiche * he ſware to geue vnto their fathers. And they cõquered it, and dwelt therin. And the LORDE gaue them reſt rounde about, accordyng to al yͤ he ſware vnto theyr fathers: and there ſtode not a man of al theyr enemyes before thẽ. The LORD alſo delyuered all their enemyes into their handes. *There ſkaped nothinge of al the good thinges, whiche yͤ LORD had ſaid vnto the houſe of Jſrael. But all came to paſſe.

The. xxii. Chapter.

Ruben/Gad/and the halfe tribe of Manaſſes are ſent againe to their poſſeſſions. They buylde an altare for a memoriall.

A Then Joſua called vnto the Rubenites, yͤ Gaddites, & to yͤ halfe tribe of Manaſſes, and ſaid vnto them: *ye haue kept al that Moſes the ſeruaunt of the LORD cõmaunded you, and haue obeyed my voyce in al that J commaunded you: ye haue not left your brethren of a long ſeaſon vnto this day, but haue kepte the commaundement of the LORDE your GOD.

And now that yͤ LORD hath geuẽ reſt vnto your brethren as he promiſed thẽ, therfore returne ye & go vnto your tentes, and vnto yͤ lande of your poſſeſſion, which Moſes the ſeruaunt of yͤ LORD gaue you on the other ſyde Jordan.

But in any wyſe take diligent hede, & do the commaundemẽt and law, which Moſes the ſeruaũt of the LORD charged you: *that ye loue the LORD youre GOD, & walke in al his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, & cleaue vnto him, and ſerue him with al your hertes and al your ſoules. And ſo Joſua bleſſed them and ſent them away. And they went vnto theyr tentes.

Deute.10.

B Unto yͤ one halfe of the trybe of Manaſſes Moſes gaue poſſeſſion in Baſan: and vnto the other halfe thereof gaue Joſua amonge theyr brethren on this ſyde Iordan weſtwarde. And Ioſua ſent them away alſo vnto their tentes, and bleſſed them, and ſaid vnto thē: retourne with muche riches vnto your tentes, and with a greate multitude of cattel, with ſyluer and golde with braſſe, and yron, and wͭ much raiment, and * deuyde the ſpoyle of your enemyes with your brethren.

And the childrē of Ruben, the childrē of Gad, ⁊ halfe the tribe of Manaſſes, returned, and departed from the children of Iſrael out of Silo (which is in the lande of Canaan) to go vnto yͤ contrey of Gilead to the lande of their poſſeſſion, which they had obtained, accordyng to the worde of the LORDE by the hande of Moſes. And when they came vnto the place of Geliloth beſyde Iordan (that is in the lãde of Canaã) there the childrē of Ruben, yͤ children of GAD and the halfe trybe of Manaſſes, buylt an altare faſt by Iordan, ⁊ that a great altare to ſe to. Which when yͤ childrē of Iſrael hearde of, they ſayde: behold, the children of Ruben, the children Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manaſſes haue buylt an altar in the forefronte of yͤ lãd of Canaan, euen in Geliloth beſide Iordan on the ſyde of yͤ children of Iſrael. And when the children of Iſrael hearde of it, the whole congregacion of yͤ children of Iſrael gathered them together to Silo, to make battell againſte them. And the children of Iſrael ſent vnto the children of Ruben, and to the chyldren of Gad, and to the halfe trybe of Manaſſes into the lande of Gilead, Phinehes the ſonne of Eleazar yͤ Preaſt, and with him ten Lordes, of euery chefe houſe a lorde, thorowe oute al yͤ trybes of Iſraell, whiche were heades of their fathers houſholdes among the thouſandes of Iſraell. And they went vnto the chyldren of Ruben, and to the children of Gad, and to the children of the halfe trybe of Manaſſes, vnto yͤ lãd of Gilead, ⁊ they ſpake wͭ them, ſaying.

Num.25.a

Thus ſaye the whole cõgregacion of the LORD * what tranſgreſſion is this that ye haue tranſgreſſed againſte the GOD of Iſrael, to turne away this day from the LORDE in that ye haue buylded you an altar for to rebelle this day againſt the LORDE? Is the * wycked dede of Peor to littel for vs, wher of we are not yet clenſed vnto this daye, and for the which there was in the congregaciõ of the people a plage of yͤ LORD? ye alſo are turned away this day from the LORDE. And ſeyng ye rebel to daye againſt the LORD, it wyl come to paſſe, that to morowe he ſhal be wroth wͭ all the congregacion of Iſraell. Notwithſtandynge yf ye thynke, that the lãde of your poſſeſſion is vncleane, then come ouer vnto the lande of the poſſeſſion of yͤ LORD, where in the lordes tabernacle dwelleth, and take poſſeſſion amonge vs. But tranſgreſſe not againſte the LORDE, nor prouoke vs, to buylde you any other aulter, ſaue the aulter of the LORDE our GOD. * Dyd not Acan the ſonne of zareth treſpaſſe in the excommunicate thinge, and wrathe fel on all the congregacion of Iſraell, whyche not withſtandynge that he was but one man, yet he alone peryſhed not for his wyckedneſſe?

Then the children of Ruben and the children of Gad, and halfe the trybe of Manaſſes anſwered, and ſaid vnto the heades ouer the thouſandes of Iſraell: The God of goddes, the LORD GOD of goddes, euen the LORD he knoweth, ⁊ alſo ſhall Iſrael know. yf it be to rebel, or to tranſgreſſe againſt yͤ LORD, then thou LORD ſaue vs not this daye. Or elles yf we haue buylte vs an aulter to turne from folowynge the LORD, or to offer theron burnt offring or meatofferynge, or to offer peaceoffringes theron: let the LORDE require it, (and iudge.) And yf we haue not rather done it of a carefulnes and of a ſure occaſion, ſayinge: In tyme to come youre children might ſaye vnto oures: what haue ye to do with the LORD GOD of Iſrael? the LORD hath made Iordan a border betwene vs and you (ye children of Rubē and of Gad) ye haue no part therfore in yͤ Lord: ⁊ ſo ſhal your childrē make our children ceaſſe from fearing the LORD.

Therfore we (toke better aduiſement / and) ſaid: We wil make vs an aulter, not for burntofferyng, nor for ſacrifice, but for a * witneſſe betwene vs and you, ⁊ our generacions after vs, that we ſhoulde ſerue the LORD, with oure offeringes, ſacrifices and peaceoffringes before him: and that your children ſhould not ſaye to oures in tyme to come: ye haue no parte in the LORDE.

Therfore ſaide we, that yf they ſhould ſo ſaye to vs or to our generacyons in tyme to come, yͭ we would ſay agayne: Beholde the faſhyon of the aulter of yͤ LORD, whiche our fathers made, neyther for burnt offeriges, nor ſacrifices, but for a witnes betwene vs and you, GOD forbid, yͭ we ſhould rebel againſt the LORD, ⁊ turne this day from after him, and buylde any other aulter for burnt offerynges, oblacions, or ſacryfyces, G ſaue the aulter of yͤ LORD oure GOD, that is before his tabernacle.

And when Phinehes the prieſt, and the Lordes of the congregacyon, and heades ouer the thouſandes of Iſraell which were with him, heard theſe wordes that the children of Ruben, and the children of Gad, and the childrē of Manaſſes ſpake, they were well content.
And Phinehes the ſonne of Eleazar the prieſt, ſayde vnto the childrē of Ruben, and to the children of Gad, and to the childrē of manaſſes: this day we perceyue, that the LORDE is amonge vs, becauſe ye haue not done this treſpaſſe agaynſt the LORD: Now ye haue rydde the children of Iſraell out of the hand of the LORD.

And Phinehes the ſonne of Eleazar the prieſt with the lordes, returned frō the children of Ruben, and from yͤ children of Gad, out of the land of Gilead, vnto the lande of Canaan, to the chyldren of Iſraell, and broughte thē thys worde agayne. And the ſaying pleaſed the children of Iſrael, and they bleſſed GOD, and dyd not entende to goe agaynſt them in battell, and to deſtroye the lande whiche the children of Rubē and Gad dwelte in. And the children of Ruben and the children of Gad called the aulter: Our wytnes, that yͤ LORD is GOD.

¶ The .xxiiii. Chapter.

¶ Joſua exhorteth the people to the kepyng of the lawe. He dyeth. The bones of Joſeph are buried. Eleazar dyeth.

A AND Joſua gathered all the tribes of Iſraell to Sichem, and called for the elders of Iſraell, and for theyr heades, iudges and officers, and they preſe̅ted them ſelues before God.
And Joſua ſayde vnto all the people: thus ſayeth the LORDE GOD of Iſraell: Gene.11.c *youre fathers dwelt on the other

Exod.14.c vnto the LORDE, the LORD put darkneſſe betwene you and the Egypciãs, and broughte the ſea vpon them, and couered them. And your eies haue ſene what I haue done to the Egypcians.
And ye dwelte in the wyldernesſe a lo̅g you: and I gaue them into your hand, that ye myght conquer their countrey.

And I deſtroyed them from oute of your ſyghte.

*Then Balak the ſonne of Ziphor, kynge of Moab aroſe, and warred agaynſt Iſrael, and ſent and called Balaam the ſon of Beor for to curſe you. But I would not herken vnto Balaã, and therfore he rather bleſſed you: And ſo I delyuered you oute of his hande. And ye wente ouer Jordan, and came vnto Jericho, and the men of Jericho fought agaynſt you: y̆ Amorites, Pheresites, Canaanites, Hethites, Girgoſites, Heuites, and Jebuſites, and I delyuered them into your hande.

And I ſent * hornettes before you, whiche caſte them oute of your ſyghte: euen the two kynges of the Amorites: but not with your owne ſweard, or w̅ your owne bowe. And I haue geuen you a land, in which ye did no laboure, and cytyes whyche ye buylte not, and which ye dwel in: vyneyardes alſo and olyue trees whiche ye planted not, and wherof ye do eate.

*Nowe therfore feare the LORDE, ⁊ ſerue him in perfectneſſe and truthe: And put away the goddes, which your fathers ſerued on the other ſyde of the floud, ⁊ in Egipt, and ſerue ye y̆ LDRD. And yf it ſeme euell vnto you to ſerue the LORDE, then choſe you this daye whome you will ſerue, whether the goddes whiche your fathers ſerued (y̆ were on the other ſyde of the floude) eyther the goddes of the Amorites, in whoſe lande ye dwell. As for me and my houſe, we wyl ſerue the LORDE.

The people aunſwered and ſayde: GOD forbyd, that we ſhoulde forſake the LORDE, and ſerue ſtraunge gods. For the LORDE our GOD, he it is that brought vs and our fathers out of the lande of Egipte, and from the houſe of bondage, and whiche dyd thoſe greate myracles in our ſyghte, and preſerued vs in all the waye that we wente, and among all the nacions which we came thorow. And the LORDE dyd caſte oute before vs all the nacyons, ſpecially the Amorites whiche dwelte in the lande. And therfore wyll we alſo ſerue the LORDE, for he is oure GOD.

And Joſua ſayd vnto the people. ye can not ſerue the LORDE: for he is an holy GOD, and a gelous GOD, and cannot beare your iniquitie and ſinne.

yf ye forſake the LORDE, and ſerue him: ſhewe vs the way into the citie, Ioſue.2.c. *and we wyll ſhewe the mercy. And whan he had ſhewed them the waie into the citie, they ſmote it with the edge of the ſwearde, but let the man and all his houſholde go free. And the mā wēt into the lande of the Hethites, & buylt a citie, and called the name therof Lus whiche is the name thereof vnto thys daye.

*Nether dyd Manaſſes expel Beth ſeam with her townes, Thaanach with her townes, the enhabitours of Dor wᵗ her townes, ẏ enhabitours of Jeblaā with her townes, neyther the enhabitours of Magedo wᵗ her townes, but ẏ Cananites were bolde to dwell in the land. But it came to paſſe, that as ſone as Iſraell was waxed myghtye, they put the Cananites to tribute, & expelled them not.

*In lyke maner Ephraim expelled not ẏ Cananites that dwelt in Gazer, but the Cananytes dwelte ſtyl in Gazer among them.

Neyther dyd Zabulon expell the enhabytours of Ketron, neyther the enhabytoures of Nahalol: But the Cananytes dwelte amonge them, and became trybutaryes.

Neyther dyd Aſer caſte oute the enhabitours of Acho, neither the enhabitoures of Zidon, and of Ahalab, Aczib, and Halbah, Aphek, nor of Rohob, but the Aſerites dwelte among the Cananites the enhabytours of the lande, for they myght not dryue them out.

Neyther dyd Nephthalim dryue out the enhabitours of Bethſames, nor the enhabytours of Bethanath, but dwelt amongeſt the Cananites the enhabytours of the lande. Neuertheleſſe ẏ enhabitours of Bethſames and of Bethanath became tributaries vnto thē.

And the Amorites troubled ẏ chyldren of Dan in the mountayne, & ſuffered them not to come downe to the valey. And the Amorites were content to dwell in mounte Heres (whiche is by interpretacion, a wytneſſing) in Hailon and in Salabim. And the hande of Joſeph preuayled, ſo that they became trybutaryes: and the coaſte of the Amorites was from the goynge vp to Acrabim, & from the rocke vpwarde.

The.ii. Chapter.

The Angel rebuketh the people, because they had made peace with the Cananites. Idolatres are puniſhed.

AND the Angell of the LORD came vp frō Gilgal to Bochim, & ſaid: I made you to come out of Egipte, & haue brought you vnto the land which I ſware vnto your fathers. * And I ſayde: I wil not breake myne appointment ment that I made with you. And ye alſo ſhall make no couenaunt with the enhabytoures of this lande, but ſhall breake downe their aultars: Neuertheleſſe ye haue not herkened vnto my voyce, why haue ye this done? Wherfore I haue lykewiſe determined, that I wil not caſt them out before you: but they ſhalbe thornes vnto you, and their goddes ſhalbe a ſnare vnto you. And when the angell of the LORDE ſpake theſe wordes vnto all the chyldren of Iſrael, the people cryed out and wept: And called the name of the ſayd place: *Bochim, and offered ſacrifices vnto the LORDE.

A place of ſuche as wepe.

And when Ioſua had ſente ỹ people awaye, the chyldren of Iſraell wente euerye man into his enheritaunce to poſſeſſe the lande. *And the people ſerued the LORDE al the dayes of Ioſua, and al the daies of the elders that outlyued Ioſua, and had ſene al the great workes of the LORDE that he dyd for Iſraell: and Ioſua the ſonne of Nun ỹ ſeruant of the LORDE *dyed, when he was an hundred and ten yeres olde: whom they buried in the coaſtes of his enheritaunce: euen in Thamnath Hares in mounte Ephraim on the northſyde of the hyll Gaas. And euen ſo all that generacyon were put vnto theyr fathers, and there aroſe another generacion after them which neither knew the LORDE, nor yet the workes which he had done for Iſrael.

Ioſ.24.g.

And then the chyldren of Iſrael *did wyckedly in the ſyght of the LORDE, & ſerued Baalim, and forſoke the LORD GOD of their fathers, which broughte thẽ out of the land of Egypt, & folowed ſtraunge goddes, euen of ỹ gods of the nacions that were rounde aboute thẽ, and bowed themſelues vnto them, and angred the LORDE. They forſoke the LORDE, and ſerued Baal & Aſtharoth, and the wrathe of the LORDE waxed hote agaynſt Iſraell, and he delyuered them into the handes of rauenérs, that ſpoyled them, and ſolde them into the handes of their enemyes round about them, ſo that they had no power anye longer to ſtande before theyr enemyes. But whytherſoeuer they went out, the hande of the LORDE was agaynſt thẽ with euell lucke, euen as the LORDE promyſed them, and as he ſware vnto them. And he puniſhed them ſore.

d. 4.a

Neuertheleſſe the LORDE raiſed vp Iudges, whiche delyuered them oute of the handes of theyr oppreſſers, and yet for all that they woulde not herken vnto their Iudges: But rather wente a whoryng after ſtraunge goddes, and bowed them ſelues vnto them, & turned quickely oute of the waye whiche theyr fathers walked in, obeying the commaundementes of the LORD: But they dyd not ſo.

And when the LORDE rayſed them vp Iudges, he was with the Iudge, & deliuered thẽ out of the handes of their enemies al the daies of the Iudge: *for the LORDE had compaſſion ouer their ſorowynges, whiche they had, by the reaſõ of them that oppreſſed them and vexed them: yet for all that *as ſone as the iudge was dead, they turned & did wurſe then theyr fathers, in folowyng ſtraunge goddes, and in ſeruyng thẽ, and ceaſed not from theyr owne inuencyons, nor from theyr maliciouſe way.

And the wrath of LORD was moued agaynſte Iſraell, and he ſayd: becauſe thys people hathe tranſgreſſed myne appoyntment whiche I commaunded theyr fathers, and haue not herkened vnto my voyce, I wyll hence forth not caſte oute before them one man of the nacyons, whiche Ioſua lefte when he dyed: that through them I may *proue Iſraell, whether they wyll kepe ỹ way of the LORDE, and walke therein, as their fathers dyd or not. And ſo the LORDE lefte thoſe nacyons, and droue them not out immediatly, neyther delyuered them into the hande of Ioſua.

Deut.13.a

¶ The .iii. Chapter.

¶ Othoniel delivereth Iſrael. Ahud kylleth king Eglon. Samgar kylleth the Phyliſtines.

These are the nacions which the LORD lefte, that he might proue Iſraell by them: euen as manye of Iſraell as had not knowen all the warres of Canaan: Onely for the lernynge of the generacyon of the childrẽ of Iſraell: that he alſo myghte teache them warre, in aſmuche as they that were before them, knew nothyng therof. Of thoſe whom he lefte, there were fyue lordes of the Philiſtines, and al ỹ Cananites, and ỹ Sodomites, and the Heuites that dwelt in mount Libanõ: euen from mounte Baal Hermon vnto Hemath. Thoſe remayned to proue Iſrael by, & to wete, whether they would herken vnto the commaundementes of the LORDE, whiche he commaunded their fathers by ẏ hand of Moſes.

And the children of Iſraell dwelte among the Cananites, Hethites, Amorytes, Phereſites, Heuites, and Deut.7.a. Jebuſites, *and toke the doughters of them to be theyr wyues, & gaue theyr owne doughters to their ſonnes, and ſerued their goddes. And the children of Iſraell dyd wyckedly in the ſyghte of the LORDE, and forgat the LORDE theyr GOD and ſerued Baalim and Aſeroth. B Therfore the LORD was angry wyth Iſraell, and delyuered them into the handes of Chuſan Riſathaim kynge of Meſopotamia, and the chyldren of Iſraell ſerued Chuſan Riſathaim .viii. yeres.

And when the chyldren of Iſraell cryed vnto the LORD, the LORDE ſtyred vp a ſauer, to the children of Iſrael and ſaued them: one Othoniel ẏ ſonne of Kenes, Calebs yonger brother. And the ſpirite of the LORD came vpō him. And he iudged Iſraell, and went oute to warre. And the LORDE delyuered Chuſan Riſathaim kynge of Meſopotamia into his hand, and his hand preuayled agaynſt Chuſan Riſathaim. 2.Par.15.a. And the lande had *reſt fortye yeres, and Othoniel the ſonne of Kenes died. And ẏ childrē of Iſrael went to again, and commytted wickednes in ẏ ſyghte of the LDRD. And ẏ LORD ſtrengthed Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, agaynſt the children of Iſraell, becauſe they had commytted wyckedneſſe before the LORDE. And this (Eglon) gathered vnto him the childrē of Ammō, and the Amalekites, and went & ſmote Iſrael, & conquered ẏ cytie of Paulme trees. And ſo the children of Iſrael ſerued Eglon the kynge of Moab .xviii. yeres. But when they cryed vnto the LORD, the LORD ſtyred them vp a ſauer. Ahud the ſonne of Gera the ſonne of Gemini, a man that coulde do nothinge handeſomlye with hys ryghte hande.

C And by hym the chyldren of Iſraell ſent a preſent vnto Eglon the kyng of Moab: but Ahud made hym a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte lengthe, & he did girde it vnto his garment vpon hys ryght thygh, & caryed the preſente vnto Eglon the kynge of Moab: And Eglon was a very fatte man. And it fortuned that when he had preſented the preſente, he ſente the people that bare it, awaye: but he him ſelfe turned againe (from the place of grauen ymages, that was by Gilgal) and ſayde: I haue a ſecret errande vnto the, O king. Whiche ſayde: kepe ſylence. And all that ſtode before him, went oute from him.

And Ahud came vnto him, and in a ſūmer parler, which he had, ſat he hym ſelfe alone, and Ahud ſayde: *I haue a meſſage vnto the from GOD. And he aroſe out of his ſeate. And Ahud put forth his lefte hande, & toke the dagger from his right thygh, and thruſt it into his bely, & ẏ haft went in after ẏ blade: And the fat cloſed the hafte ſo that he myght not drawe the dagger oute of his bely, but the dyrte came oute. Ahud gat him oute at a poſterne dore, & ſhut the dores of the parler about him, and locked them.

When he was gone out, his ſeruātes came, and whan they ſaw that ẏ dores of the parler were locked, they ſayde: peraduenture he couereth his fete in his ſūmer chamber. And they taryed tyl they were aſhamed: and beholde, ſeynge he opened not the dores of the parler, they toke a key, and opened thē. And beholde, their Lorde was fallen downe deade on the earth. And Ahud eſcaped (while they taryed) and was gone beyonde, to the place of the grauen ymages, & eſcaped into Seirath.

And when he was come *he blewe a trompet in mount Ephraim. And the children of Iſrael wente downe wyth him from the hyl, and he wente before them. And he ſayde vnto them, folowe me: for the LORD hath delyuered your enemyes ẏ Moabytes into your hādes. And they deſcended after him, and toke the paſſages of Jordā, toward Moab, and ſuffered not a man to paſſe ouer. And they ſlewe of the Moabites, the ſame tyme, vpon a ten thouſande men, which were al fatte, and men of warre, and there ſcaped not a man. *So Moab was ſubdued that daye, vnder the hande of Iſraell: and the land had reſt .lxxx. yeres.

After hym was Samgar the ſonne of Anath, which ſlew of the Philiſtines vi. hũdred men with an oxe goade, and delyuered Iſrael alſo.

¶ The.iiii. Chapter.

¶ Debora and Barak delyuer Iſarel: Siſara is kylled of Iael.

A AND the children of Iſraell began agayne to do wyckedly in yͤ ſyght of the LORDE when Ahud was dead. And the LORDE ſolde them into the hande of Iabin kynge of Canaan, that reigned in Hazor, whoſe captaine of warre was called Siſara, whiche dwelte in Haroſeth of the gentyles. And the children of Iſraell cried vnto the LORDE: for he had nyne hundred charrettes of yron, and twentye yeres he troubled the children of Iſraell very ſore.

And Debora a Prophetyſſe, the wife of Lapidoth iudged Iſraell the ſame tyme, and the ſame Debora dwelte vnder a paulme tree betwene Ramath & Bethel, in mounte Ephraim.

And the children of Iſraell came vp to her for iudgement. And ſhe ſent and called *Barak the ſon of Abinoam, out of Kedes Nephthalim, and ſayde vnto hym. Hath not the LORD GOD of Iſraell commaunded thee, to leade wyth fayre wordes men to mount Thabor, & take with thee ten thouſande men, of yͤ children of Nephthalim & of the childrē of Zabulon? And I wyll brynge vnto thee to the * ryuer kyſon, Siſara, the captayne of warre vnto Iabin, wyth hys charrettes, and his people, & wyll delyuer him into thine handes. And Barak ſayde vnto her: yf thou wylt go with me, I wyll go: But and yf thou wylt not come with me, I wyl not go: She ſayde: I wyll ſuerly go with the, but thys iourney that thou takeſt, ſhal not be for thine honour, for the LORD ſhal ſel Siſara into the hand of a woman. Debora went with Barak to Kedes. And Barak called Zabulon and Nephthalim to Kedes, and led after him ten thouſande men: and Debora went vp with him.

Iudi.5.b. B Psal.83.b.

But Haber the Kenite (whiche was of yͤ childrē of *Hobab yͤ father in lawe of Moſes) remoued from yͤ other Kenites, and pitched his tente vntyll the plaine of Zaanaim, which is by Kedes

Num.10.d

And they ſhewed Siſara, that Barak the ſonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mounte Thabor. And Siſara gathered together all hys charrettes euen. ix. hundred charrettes of yron, & al the people that were with him from of Haroſeth of the gentyles, vnto the ryuer of Kyſon. C And Debora ſaid vnto Barak: vp, for this is the day in which the LORD hath delyuered Siſara into thine hande: Is not the LORDE gone out before thee? And ſo Barak wente downe from mounte Thabor, and ten thouſande men after him.

But the LORDE deſtroyed Siſara and all his charrettes, and all his hoſt with the edge of the ſwearde, before Barak: ſo that Siſara lyghted downe of his charrette, and fled awaye on his fete. But Barak folowed after yͤ charrettes, and after the hooſte, euen vnto Haroſeth of the gentyles. And all the hoſt of Siſara fel vpon the edge of the ſweard, and there was not a man left. Howe be it Siſara fled awaye on hys fete to the tent of Iael the wife of Haber the kenite: for there was peace betwene Iabin the kynge of Hazor, and the houſholde of Haber the kenite.

And Iael wente out to mete Siſara, and ſayde vnto him: turne in my lorde, turne into me, feare not. And whan he had turned in vnto her into her tente, ſhe couered him with a mantel. D And he ſayde vnto her, geue me a litle water to drinke, for I am thyrſty. Iudi.5.b And ſhe opened *a bottle of milke, and gaue him drinke and couered him. And agayne he ſayde vnto her: ſtand in the dore of the tente, and whan anye man doth come and enquire of the, whether ther be any man here, thou ſhalte ſaye: naye.

Then Iael Habers wife toke a naile of the tente, and an hammer in her hād, and went ſoftely vnto him, and ſmote yͤ nayle into the temples of his head, and faſtened it into the grounde, for he ſlombred ſore, and was werye: And ſo he died.

And beholde, as Barak folowed after Siſara, Iael came out to mete him and ſayde vnto him: come, and I wyll ſhewe thee the man, whom thou ſekeſt. And when he came into her tente: Beholde, Siſara laye dead, and the nayle was in his temples. And ſo GOD brought Iaben the kynge of Canaan into ſubieccyon that daye before the children of Iſrael. And the hand of the children of Iſrael proſpered, and preuayled againſt Jaben the kyng of Canaan, vntyll they had broughte him to naughte.

¶ The .v. Chapter.

¶ The ſonge and thankes geuing of Debora and Barak after the victorye.

A Then Debora and Barak the ſon of Abinoam ſange the ſame day, ſayinge: Prayſe ye the LORDE, for the auengyng of Iſrael, and for the people that became ſo wyllyng. Heare O ye kinges, herken O ye prynces: I, euen I, wyl ſynge vnto the LORDE. I wyll prayſe the LORDE GOD of Iſraell.

Deut.4.b. LORD, *whan thou wenteſt out of Iudi.4.c. of Anath, in the dayes of *Jael the hye wayes were vnoccupied: And the runners of the pathes walked thorowe by wayes.

The inhabyters of the townes were gone, they were gone in Iſraell, vntyll I Debora came vp, whiche came vp a mother in Iſraell.

B They choſe newe Goddes, and then had they (the enemy) in ẏ gates, though there were ſhylde and ſpeare. There was not a ſhylde or ſpeare ſene among fourty thouſande of Iſraell.

My harte loueth the gouerners of Iſrael, and them that are wyllynge among the people. O prayſe ye ẏ LORD.

Speake ye that ryde on fayre aſſes, and that ſyt vppermoſte in iudgement, and walke by the waies.

At the cryinge of the archers amōge the drawers of water, there ſhall they ſpeake of the ryghteouſnes of ẏ LORD, his righteouſnes in ẏ vnfenced places of Iſraell: then ſhall the people of the LORDE go downe to the gates.

Up Debora vp, get thee vp, & ſynge Iudi.4.a a ſonge: *Aryſe Barak, and leade the captiuytie captyue, thou ſonne of Abinoam.

Then ſhal they that remayne, haue dominiō of ẏ proudeſt of the people (of Jabin:) The LORDE ſhall for my ſake haue dominion ouer the myghtie. Out of *Ephraim was there a rote of them agaynſt Ameleck, and after the Beniamin amonge thy people. Oute of Machir came rulers, and out of Zabulon they that gouerne the penne of the wryter.

And of Iſachar, there were prynces with Debora, Iſachar alſo and Barak were ſent on their fete into the valley, when in the departyng awaye of Ruben there were greate men, and wyſe of herte.

Why abodeſt thou among the ſhepe foldes, to heare the bleatynges of the flockes, and to ſeparate thy ſelfe away with great men and wyſe of herte?

Gilead alſo abode beyond Jordan: & why doth Dan remayne in ſhyppes?

Aſer contynued on the ſea ſhore, and taried in his decayed places.

But the people of Zabulon haue ieoperde theyr lyues euen vnto the death: like as did Nephthalim in ẏ hie places of the fielde.

The kynges came and fought, then fought the kynges of Canaan in Thanah, by the waters of Megiddo, and wanne no money.

They fought from heauen, euen the ſtarres in their courſes fought againſt Siſera.

The ryuer of Cyſon remoued them, that auncient ryuer, the ryuer Cyſon: My ſoule ſhall treade (hym) downe myghtely.

Then were the horſe hoffes ſmytten aſunder by the meanes of the praunſynges that theyr myghty men made.

Curſe ye the cytie of Meros (ſayde the angell of the LORDE) curſe the inhabytours thereof, becauſe they came not to helpe the LORDE, to helpe the LORDE with the myghtye.

Jael ẏ wife of Haber ẏ Kenite ſhalbe bleſſed aboue other wemē, bleſſed ſhall ſhe be aboue other wemē in the tente.

*He aſked water, and ſhe gaue hym mylke: ſhe broughte forth butter in a lordly dyſhe.

*She put her hande to the nayle, & her ryght hand to ẏ ſmythes hammer: with the hammer ſmote ſhe Siſera, & ſmote his head, wounded him, & pearſed his temples.

He bowed him downe at her fete, he fel downe and laye ſtyll: At her fete he bowed him downe ⁊ fel. And when he had ſoncke downe, he lay ſtyl deſolate.

The mother of Siſera loked out at a wyndowe, ⁊ cried thorowe the latteſſe: Why is his charret ſo long a comming? why tarye the wheles of his cartes?
All the wyſe ladies anſwered her, yea, ⁊ her owne wordes anſwered her ſelfe.
Surely they haue founde, they deuyde the ſpoyles: euery man hath a damſell whiche is mete for him that is chefe in all thyne enemyes, O LORDE: but they that loue him, let them be as yͤ Sunne when he ryſeth in his myght.

And the lande had reſt fortye yeares.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

¶ Iſrael is oppreſſed of the Madianites: Gedeon is ſent of God to be their delyuerer.

nc.4.8 A And the childrē of Iſrael * cōmitted wickednes in the ſight of yͤ LORD.
And yͤ LORD deliuered them into the handes of Madian ſeuen yeares.
And the hande of Madian preuailed against Iſrael, ⁊ becauſe of yͤ Madianites, yͤ childrē of Iſrael made thē dennes in the mountaines, ⁊ caues and ſtrong holdes. And when Iſraell had ſowen, the Madianites, the Amalechites and they of the eaſt countrey came vp together againſt them: ⁊ pytched their tentes againſt them, and deſtroyed the encreaſe of the earth, euen tyll thou come vnto Azah: and lefte no ſuſtinaunce for Iſraell, neyther ſhepe, oxe, or aſſe: for they went vp, they and their cattel, and came wᵗ their tentes as a multitude of their camels were without numbre.

B And they entred into yͤ lande to deſtroy it. And ſo was Iſrael excedingly impouerished in the ſight of yͤ Madianites, ⁊ cried vnto yͤ Lord. And whē yͤ childrē of Iſrael cried vnto yͤ Lord becauſe of yͤ Madianites, the LORD ſent vnto thē a prophet, which ſaid vnto them: Thus ſayeth the LORD GOD of Iſrael: I fet you from Egipte and brought you out out of the hande of the Egipcians, and out of yͤ hande of all that oppreſſed you

And his ſonne Gedeō preſſed out and ſaid: the LORDE is with the, thou mightye man of warre. And Gedeon aunſwered him: Oh my LORDE, yf the LORD be with vs, why is all this come vpon vs? yea, and where be al his miracles which our fathers tolde vs of, and ſaid: Did not yͤ LORD brynge vs out of Egipt? But now the LORDE hath forſaken vs, and delyuered vs into yͤ handes loked vpon him, and ſayde: Go hence in Iſrael out of yͤ hādes of yͤ Madianites: Haue not I ſent the? And he anſwered him: Oh LORDE, wherwith ſhal I ſaue Iſrael? Beholde, my kynred is poore in Manaſſes, ⁊ I am lytle in my fathers houſe. The LORDE ſayde vnto hym, I wil be wᵗ the: and thou ſhalte ſmite the Madianites, as they were but one mā.

And he aunſwered him: Oh, yf I haue founde grace in thy ſight, then ſhew me

D And he ſayde: I wyl tarye vntil thou made ready a kyd, and ſwete kakes of an Epha of floure, and put it with the

that it was an angel of the LORD, Exo. 33. d / Iudi. 13. d he ſaid: Alas, O LORD GOD,* haue I therfore ſene an angel of ẏ LORD face made an aultare there vnto the LORD, and called it: The LORD of peace. And vnto this day it is yet in Ephrath, that pertayneth vnto the father of ẏ Eſerites.

And it fortuned that ẏ ſame night the LORD ſayd vnto him: take a yonge cut downe. Then Gedeon toke ten men of his ſeruauntes, and dyd as the LORDE bad him. But becauſe he durſt not do it by day for feare of his fathers houſholde and of the men of the cytie, he dyd it by nyght.

And when the men of the cytie were who hathe done this thinge? and when they enquyred and aſked, they ſayde: Gedeon the ſonne of Ioas hath done this thinge. Then the men of the citie ſaid vnto Ioas: bryng out thy ſon, that he may dye, becauſe he hathe deſtroyed the aultar of Baal, ⁊ cut downe the groue ẏ was by it. And Ioas ſayde vnto al that ſtode by him: wyl ye pleade Baals cauſe? or wyl ye be his defēders? he that hath medled agaiſt him, let him dye or the mornynge. If he be a GOD let hym be auenged of hym that caſte downe hys aulter. And from that day was Gedeon called: Ierobaal, becauſe his father had ſayd: Let Baal be auēged of hym, that hathe broken downe hys aulter.

G All the Madianites therfore and the Amalekites and they of the eaſte, were gathered together, and went, ⁊ pitched in the valey of Ieſrael: but the ſprite of Num. 10. a the LORDE came vpon Gedeon. * And he blew a trompet, ⁊ called* Abiezer to folow him, and ſēt meſſengers thorow out al Manaſſes, and called thē: which alſo did folow him. And he ſent meſſengers vnto Aſer, Zabulon and Nephthalim, and they came to mete him.

And Gedeon ſayde vnto GOD: wilt thou ſaue Iſrael in my hande, as thou haſt ſaid: Beholde, I wyll put a flece of wolle in the threaſhing place. And yf ẏ dewe come on the flece onely, and it be C drye vpon al the earth beſyde, then ſhall I be ſure, ẏ thou wilte ſaue Iſraell by my hande, as thou ſaydeſt. And it came ſo to paſſe. For he roſe vp earlye on the morow, and thruſt the flece together, ⁊ wrong the dewe therout, and fylled a bowle of water: and Gedeon ſaid again vnto GOD: be not angry with me, that *I ſpeake once more. For I wil proue once againe by the flece. Let it be drye onely vpō the flece, and dewe vpon al ẏ groūde. And GOD dyd ſo ẏ ſame night: For it was drye vpon the flece only and there was dewe on al the grounde.

The .vii. Chapter.

Gedeon with thre hundred men ouercometh the Madianites, Oreb and Zeb are ſlayne.

THen* Ierobaal (otherwyſe called Gedeon) ⁊ al the people ẏ wer with him roſe vp early, ⁊ pitched beſyde the wel of Harad, ſo that the hoſt of ẏ Madianites were on ẏ Northſyde of ẏ rocke that boweth towarde ẏ valley.
And the LORD ſaide vnto Gedeon: D the people that are with the are to many for me to geue the Madianites into their handes, leſte Iſraell make their vaunte againſt me and ſay: myne owne hande hath ſaued me. Nowe therefore make a proclamaciō in the eares of the people, ⁊ ſaye: *yf any mā dread or be aferde, let him returne. And the people aroſe early. And there departed and returned of ẏ people which wer at moūt Gilead .xxii. thouſande, and there abode ten thouſande.

And the LORD ſaid vnto Gedeon: the people are yet to many, bring thē down vnto ẏ water, ⁊ I wil trye thē vnto the there. And of whō I ſaye vnto the, this ſhall go with the, the ſame ſhal go with E the. And of whome ſoeuer I ſaye vnto the, this ſhall not go with the, the ſame ſhall not go. So he brought downe the people vnto the water, and the LORD ſayde vnto Gedeon: as manye as lappe the water with their tonges as a dogge doth, them put by them ſelues, ⁊ ſo do them that knele downe vpõ their knees to dryncke. And the numbre of them that put their handes to their mouthes and lapped, were .iii. hundred men. But al the remnaunt of the people kneled downe vpon theyr knees to drincke water. And the LORD ſaid vnto Gedeon: By theſe thre hundred men that lapped watter, wil I ſaue you: and C deliuer the Madianites into thine hãd. And let all the other people go euerye man vnto his place.

They therfore of the people toke vytailes wᵗ them, ⁊ their trompettes. And he ſent al the reſt of Iſrael, euery man vnto his tente, ⁊ comforted thoſe thre hundred with him. And yͤ hoſte of Madian was beneth him in a valey. And it fortuned that the ſame night yͤ LORD ſayde vnto him: Aryſe, get the downe vnto the hoſte, for I haue delyuered it into thine hande. But ⁊ yf thou feare to go downe, then go thou ⁊ Pharah thy ladde downe to the hoſt, and thou ſhalt herkẽ what they ſay, ⁊ ſo ſhal thine hãdes be ſtrong, to go downe vnto yͤ hoſt.

Then went he downe and Pharah his ladde, euen harde vnto the men of armes that were in the hoſte. And the Madianites, the Amalekites ⁊ al they of the Eaſt, lay a long in the valey, lyke a multitude of graſhoppers, ⁊ their camelles were without numbre, euen as the ſande by the ſea ſyde in multitude. D And when GEDEON was come: Behold, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his neighbour, and ſaid: Beholde, I dreamed a dreame, ⁊ me thought that a loſe of barley breade, tombled into the hoſt of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and ſmote it that it felle, and ouertourned it, that the tente lay a long. And his felow anſwered and ſayde: this is nothing elles ſaue the ſwearde of Gedeon the ſonne of Ioas a man of Iſrael: for into his hande hathe GOD delyuered Madian and al the hoſt.

When Gedeõ hearde the telling of the dreame, ⁊ the interpretacion of yͤ ſame, he worſhipped, and returned vnto the hoſt of Iſrael, and ſaid: vp, for yͤ LORD hath delyuered into your hande yͤ hoſte E of Madian. And he deuided the thre hundred men into thre companyes, and gaue euery man a trompet in his hãde, with an empty pitcher, and lãpes therin, and ſaid vnto them: loke on me, and do lykewyſe, that when I come to yͤ ſide of yͤ hoſte, euen as I do, ſo do you: Whẽ I blowe with a trompet ⁊ all that are with me, blowe ye with trompettes alſo on euery ſyde of the hoſt, ⁊ ſay: here is the ſwearde of yͤ LORD ⁊ of Gedeon.

And ſo GEDEON and the thre hundred men yͤ wer with him, came vnto yͤ ſyde of the hoſt in the begynning of yͤ middle watche, ⁊ reyſed vp yͤ watche mẽ. And they blewe with their trompettes, and brake the pitchers that were in theyr handes. F And al yͤ thre companies blew with trompettes and brake yͤ pitchers, ⁊ helde yͤ lampes in their lefte handes, ⁊ the trompettes in their right to blow withal. And they cryed: the ſwearde of the LORDE and of Gedeon. And they ſtode ſtyll, euery man in his place roũde about the hoſt: And they within yͤ hoſt, ranne, and cryed, and fled. And the thre hundreth blewe with trompettes, ⁊ the LORDE ſet* euery mans ſwearde vpon his neighbour, thorow out all the hoſt. G And the hoſt fled to Bethſitah, to zererath, ⁊ to the edge of the playne of Meholah vnto Tabath. And the men of Iſrael being gathered together out of the tribe of Nephthalim, of Aſer, and of all Manaſſes folowed after yͤ Madianites. And Gedeon ſent meſſengers vnto al moũte Ephraim, ſaying: come downe againſt the Madianites, ⁊ take before them the waters vnto Bethbarath and to Iordan. Then al yͤ men of Ephraim gathered together and toke yͤ waters vnto Bethbarath, and to Iordan. And they toke two captaynes of the Madianites, Oreb and zeb, and ſlewe Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, and zeb at yͤ preſſe zeb, and folowed after Madian. And brought the heades of Oreb and zeb, to Gedeon on the other ſyde Iordan.

¶ The .viii. Chapter.

Ephraim maketh inſurreccion againſt Gedeon / but is ſone pacified.

A AND the men of Ephraim ſayd vnto him: why haſt yͧ ſerued vs thus, yͭ thou calledſt vs not, when thou wenteſt to fight with the Madianites: and they chode with him a good (and had almoſt done him violence.) And he ſayde vnto them: What dede haue I done lyke vnto youres: is not a cluſter of Ephraim better, then the wyne haruest of Abiezer? GOD hathe delyuered into youre handes the Lordes of Madian, Oreb and zeb. And what was I able to do lyke as you haue done? And then their ſpirites abaced from of him, B when he had ſayde that . And Gedeon came to Jordan to paſſe ouer, he and the thre hundred men that were wͭ him, very faynte, ⁊ yet folowed yͤ chace.

And he ſaid vnto yͤ mē of Socoth: geue I pray you kakes of breade vnto yͤ people that folow me: for they be fayntie, yͭ I may folow after zebath, and zalmona kinges of Madian. And the Lordes of Socoth ſaid: are the handes of zebath and zalmona nowe in thine handes, yͭ we ſhoulde geue breade vnto thyne army?
Gedeon ſaid, therfore whē yͤ LORD hath deliuered zebath and zalmona into myne hande, I wyl teare the fleſhe of you wͭ the thornes of yͤ wyldernes ⁊ with breers. And he went vp thence to Phanuel, ⁊ ſpake vnto thē lykewyſe.
And the mē of Phanuel anſwered him, as dyd the mē of Socoth. And he ſaied C alſo vnto the men of Phanuel: whē I come againe in peace, I wyll breake downe this towre. Zebath ⁊ zalmona were in Carkar, ⁊ their hoſtes wͭ them, vpon a .xv. thouſande men, which were al yͭ were lefte of al yͤ hooſtes of thē of the Eaſte: For there was ſlayne a hundred and twentye thouſande men, that drewe ſweardes.

D And Gedeō went thorow them that dwelt in tabernacles on yͤ Eaſt ſyde of Nobah ⁊ Jebahah, ⁊ ſmote the hoſt: for the hoſte did caſt no perylles. And whā zebath and zalmona fledde, he folowed after them, and toke the two kynges of Madian, zebath and zalmona, and diſcomforted al the hoſte.

And Gedeon the ſonne of Joas returned frō battel, afore yͤ ſunne was down, and caught a ladde of the men of Socoth, ⁊ enquired of him. And he wrote him of yͤ lordes and elders of Socoth. lxxvii. men. And he came vnto the men of Socoth, and ſayde: Beholde, here I haue zebath and Zalmona, with which ye dyd caſte me in the tethe, ſaying: are the handes of zebath and zalmona already in thyne hande, that we ſhoulde geue breade vnto thy faintye men? And he toke the elders of the citie, ⁊ thornes of the wilderneſſe and breers, and made the men of Socoth to fele them. And he brake downe the towre of *Phanuel, ⁊ ſlew the men of the citie.

And then ſaid he vnto zebath ⁊ Zalmona, what maner of men were they whom ye ſlew at Thabor? and they anſwered: the lykeneſſe of the and them is al one, euen after the faſſhion of yͤ chyldren of a kynge. And he ſayde: they wer my brethren, euen my mothers childrē.
As truly as the LORD lyueth yf ye had ſaued their liues, I would not ſley you.
And he ſaid vnto Jether his eldeſt ſon: vp and ſley them: But the lad drue not his ſwearde, for he feared, becauſe he was yet yonge. Then Zebath and Zalmona ſayde: Ryſe thou, and fal vpō vs: for as yͤ man is, ſo is his ſtrength. And Gedeō aroſe and ſlew Zebath and Zalmona, and toke away the ornamentes, that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Iſrael ſaid vnto Gedeon: Reigne thou ouer vs, bothe thou, thy ſonne ⁊ thy ſonnes ſon, for thou haſt deliuered vs out of yͤ hande of Madiā.
And Gedeō ſayd vnto them: I wyll not reigne ouer you, nether ſhall my chylde reigne ouer you, but the LORDE ſhall reigne ouer you.

And againe Gedeon ſayde vnto them:
I would deſyre a certen requeſt of you, euen yͭ you woulde geue me euery man the *earinges of his pray. For they had golden earinges becauſe they were Iſmaelites: and they anſwered: We wyll gyue thē. And they ſpred a mantel, and dyd caſt there in euery man yͤ earynges of his praye: and the weyght of yͤ goldē earinges that he required was a thouſande and ſeuen hundred ſycles of gold, beſyde cheynes, pommaūders ⁊ purple rayment yͭ was on the kynges of Madian, ⁊ beſyde the cheines, yͭ were about their camels neckes. And Gedeō made an Ephod therof, ⁊ put it in his cytie Ephrah. And al Iſraell went a *whoring after it, in the ſame place, which thing became a ruyne vnto Gedeon ⁊ to his houſe . Thus was Madian brought lowe before the children of Iſrael, ſo that they lyfte vp their heades no more. And the countrey was in quietnes forty yeres in yͤ dayes of Gedeō.

And Jerobaal the ſonne of Joas, wēt and dwelt in his owne houſe. And Gedeō had *.lxx. ſonnes of his body begotten, for he had many wiues. And his cō-cubine that was in Sichem, bare him a ſonne alſo, whoſe name he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the ſonne of Joas dyed, in a good age, ⁊ was buryed in the ſepulchre of Joas his father, euẽ in Ephrah, that perteyned vnto yͤ father of the Ezrites.

But it fortuned, that as ſone as Gedeon was dead, the children of Iſraell turned away, ⁊ went a whoryng after Baalim, and made a couenaũt wͭ Baal to be their GOD, and the children of Iſrael thought not on the LORDE theyr GOD, which had delyuered them out of yͤ handes of all their enemyes on euery ſyde. Neyther ſhewed they mercye on yͤ houſe of Jerobaal, otherwyſe called Gedeon, accordynge to al the goodnes whiche he had ſhewed vnto Iſrael.

The.ix. Chapter.

¶ Abymelech is made kynge.

A ABimelech yͤ ſonne of Jerobaal wẽt to Sichem, vnto his mothers brethrẽ, and comuned with them and with all his mothers fathers kynred, ſaying: ſay I pray you, in the eares of al the enhabitoures of Sichem: whether is better for you, that all the ſonnes of Jerobaal (whiche are .lxx. perſonnes) reigne ouer you, eyther that one reigne ouer you: Remẽbre, that I am of your bone, and of your fleſhe. And his mothers brethren ſpake of him in the audience of the mẽ of Sichem al theſe wordes, and their hartes were moued to folowe Abimelech. For they ſaide: he is our brother. And they gaue him .lxx. peces of ſyluer out of yͤ temple of Baal Berith, wherwith Abimelech hyred vayne and light perſons whiche went with him. And he wẽt vnto his fathers houſe at Ephrah* and ſlew al his brethren, yͤ ſonnes of Jerobaal: euen .lxx. perſons wͭ one ſtone. Notwithſtandig, yet Joatham yͤ yongeſt ſon of Jerobaal eſcaped, for he hyd him ſelfe. And all the mẽ of Sichem gathered togither, ⁊ al yͤ houſe of Mello, and came and made Abimelech kyng in the playne, where the great ſtone was by Sichem. Par.21.a

B And when they tolde it to Joatham, he went and ſtode in the toppe of mount Garizim, and lifte vp his voyce, ⁊ cryed, and ſaid vnto thẽ: Herken vnto me you men of Sichem, that GOD may herken vnto you. * The trees went forthe to anoynte a kyng ouer them, and ſaid vnto the Olyue tree: reygne thou ouer vs. But the olyue tree ſayd vnto thẽ: ſhuld I leaue my fattenes, whiche both goddes and men prayſe in me, and go to be promoted ouer the trees? And the trees ſayde to yͤ fygge tree: come thou, and be king ouer vs. The figge tree anſwered them: ſhuld I forſake my ſwetnes, and my good frute, and go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then ſayd the trees vnto the vyne: come thou and be king ouer vs. The vyne ſaid vnto them: ſhoulde I leaue my wyne, wherby I cheare both goddes and mẽ, and go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then ſaid al yͤ trees vnto yͤ fyrre buſſhe: come thou ⁊ reigne ouer vs. And yͤ fyrre buſſhe ſaid vnto the trees: yf it be true that ye wil anoynte me kyng ouer you, then come, and put your truſt vnder my ſhadow. yf no, the fyre come out of the fyrre buſſhe, and waſt the Cedre trees of Libanon. Eſdr.4

C Nowe therfore, yf ye do truly ⁊ vncorruptly, to make Abimelech kyng: and yf ye haue dealte wel with Jerobaal and his houſe, and haue done vnto him accordyng to the deſeruyng of his hãdes, iudge ye. For euen he (my father, fought for you, and aduentured his lyfe, and rydde you out of the hand of Madian. And ye are ryſen vp againſt my fathers houſe this daye, ⁊ haue ſlayne his children, euen .lxx. perſonnes wͭ one ſtone, and haue made Abimelech yͤ ſon of hys mayde ſeruaunt, king ouer the men of Sichem, becauſe he is your brother: yf ye thẽ haue dealt truly and purely with Jerobaal ⁊ with his houſe this day thẽ reioyce ye wͭ Abimelech, and let him reioyce with you. But yf you haue not dealt truly, then I pray GOD a fire may come out of Abimelech, ⁊ conſume the men of Sichem ⁊ the houſe of Mello. And that there may come a fire from amonge the men of Sichem, and out of the houſe of Mello, and conſume Abymelech. And Joathã ranne away, and fled, and went to Beer, and dwelt there for feare of Abimelech his brother.

Whẽ Abimelech had reigned thre yere, GOD ſent a ſprite of hate betwene Abimelech, and the men of Sichem. And the citizens of Sichem rayled vpõ Abimelech, and wyſſhed that the wickednes done to the .lxx. ſonnes of Jerobaal might come on him, and yͤ GOD would lay the bloude of them vnto Abimelech their brother which ſlew them, and vpon the other men of Sichem whiche ayded him in yͤ kyllyng of his brethren. And the citezens of Sichem ſet men to lay awayte for him in the toppe of the mountaynes: which men (whyle they taried for his commynge) robbed al that came alonge the waye by them. And it was tolde Abimelech.

D And Gaal the ſonne of Abed came wͭ his brethren, and they gat them to Sichem. And the men of Sichem put their confidence in him. And they went oute into the feldes, and gathered in their grapes, and trode them, & made mery: and wẽt into the houſe of their goddes, & did eate & drincke, and curſed Abimelech. And Gaal the ſonne of Abed ſaide: what is Abimelech, & what is Sichẽ, that we ſhoulde ſerue him? Is he not yͤ ſon of Ierobaal? & zebul is his offycer? Gen.34.a. Serue ſuche as come of* Hemor yͤ father of Sichem, for what reaſon is it yͭ we ſhould ſerue him? wolde GOD thys people were vnder my hande, thã wold I take Abimelech out of the way. And he ſpake agaiſt Abimelech: make thine hoſte greater: & go out. And whẽ zebul the ruler of yͤ citie hearde yͤ wordes of Gaal the ſonne of Abed, he was wroth, and ſent meſſengers vnto Abimelech priuely, ſaying: Beholde, Gaal yͤ ſonne of Abed & his brethren be come to Sichem: and beholde, they ſet the cytie againſt the. Now therfore vp by nyghte, thou and all yͤ people yͭ is with the, and lye in wayte in the felde. And ryſe early in the mornyng as ſoone as the ſunne is vp, and fal vpon the citie. And yf he and the people that is with him, come oute againſt the, do to him what thine hãdes ſhalbe able. And Abimelech roſe vp, & E al the people yͭ wer with him by night. And they laied await againſt Sichem in foure companies. And Gaal yͤ ſonne of Abed wẽt out, and ſtode in yͤ entring of the gate of the citie. And Abimelech roſe vp, & the folke that were wͭ him, from laying await. And whẽ Gaal ſaw the people, he ſayde to zebul: beholde, there come people downe from the top of the mountaines. And zebul ſayd vnto him: the ſhadowe of the hylles ſeme mẽ vnto the (and by that erroure arte thou diſceaued,) and Gaal anſwered againe, and ſaid: ſe, there come folke downe by the middel of yͤ lande, & another companye come along by yͤ plaine of yͤ charmars. Then ſayde zebul vnto him: where is now thy mouth that ſayde: what felow is Abimelech, yͭ we ſhuld ſerue him? Is not this the people yͭ thou haſt deſpiſed? Go out now and fight with them. And Gaal went out before yͤ citizens of Sichem, & fought wͭ Abimelech. And Abimelech chaſed him, yͭ he fled before him (and he droue him into the cytie) & many were ouerthrowen and wounded, euen vnto the entering of the gate. And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah.

And zebul thruſte out Gaal & his brethren yͭ they ſhould not dwel in Sichẽ (and ſuffered them not to tary therin.) And on the morow, it happened that the people went out into the felde. And they tolde Abimelech. And he toke yͤ people, & deuyded them into thre cõpanies & layed awayte in yͤ feldes, and loked, & behold, the people were come out of the cytie, & he ranne vpon them, and ſmote them.

And Abimelech, & the cõpanies that were wͭ him reached further, and ſtode in the entring of the gate of the cytye. And the two other cõpanies ranne vpon al yͤ people yͭ were in yͤ feldes, & ſlew them. And when Abimelech had fought againſt the citye al that day, he toke it, & ſlew the people that was therin, and deſtroyed the citie, and ſowed ſalte thorow it. And when al the men of yͤ towre of Sichem heard yͭ, they entred into a ſtrõg hold of yͤ houſe of their god Baal Berith, (where they made a bonde with him: and therof dyd the place take the name/ whiche place was exceadinge ſtrong.) And it was tolde Abimelech, that all yͤ men of the tower of Sichem were gathered together, & Abimelech gat him to mounte zelmon, both he and al yͤ people that were with him, and toke axes wͭ him & cut downe bowes of trees, and toke them and bare them on his ſhoulder, & ſayde vnto the folke that wer with him* what ye haue ſene me do, ſpede your ſelues, & do lykewyſe as I haue done. And al the men yͭ were among the people, cut downe bowes, and folowed Abimelech, & put thẽ into the holde, and ſet yͤ holde a fyer by them: ſo that (with ſmoke and fyre) al the mẽ of the tower of Sichem were ſlayne, vpon a thouſande men and wemen.

Then went Abimelech to Thebez, & beſieged it, and toke it. But there was a ſtrong towre within yͤ citye, & thither ranne

panne all the men and wemen, ⁊ all the chefe that were in the cytie, and ſhut it to them, ⁊ got thẽ vp (by the bulworkes) to the toppe of the towre. And Abimelech came vnto the towre and fought agaīſt it, and went harde vnto the dore of the towre to ſet it on fyre. And a certaine 2.Reg.11.b woman * caſte a pece of a mylſtone vpon his heade, and all to brake hys brayne panne.

Then Abimelech called haſtely vnto the young man yͭ bare his harneſſe, and 1.Reg.31.b ſaid vnto him: *drawe thy ſwearde and 1.para.10.a ſlee me, that men ſaye not of me: a woman ſlewe him. And his lad thruſt him thorowe, and he dyed.

And when the men of Iſrael ſaw that Abimelech was dead, they departed Iudi.9.c euery man vnto his owne houſe. And thus * yͤ wickednes of Abimelech which he did vnto his father, in ſleynge his ſeuentye brethren, and therto al the wyckedneſſe of the men of Sichem, dyd GOD bryng vpon their heades. And vpon them came the curſe of Ioathan the ſonne of Ierobaall.

¶ The.x.Chapter.

Thola and Iair are Iudges of Iſrael.

A AFter Abimelech there aroſe, to defende Iſrael, one Thola (the ſonne of Phuah) his vncles ſon, a mã of Iſakar which dwelt in Samir in moũt Ephraim. And he iudged Iſrael.xxiii. yeare ⁊ died, ⁊ was buryed in Samir. And after him aroſe Iair a Gileadite, ⁊ iudged Iſrael.xxii. yeare. And he had Iudi.12.b. thirtye ſonnes yͭ * rode on thirtye Aſſe coltes, and they had thirty cities, which are called the townes of Iair vnto this daye, ⁊ are in the lande of Gilead. And B Iair dyed and was buried in Kamon.

eg.2.b. 4.a 6.g 13.a. * And the children of Iſrael wrought wickedneſſe yet againe, in the ſight of yͤ LORD, and ſerued Baalim ⁊ Aſtaroth, and the goddes of Siria, the goddes of Sidon, ⁊ yͤ goddes of Moab, yͤ goddes of the children of Ammõ, ⁊ the goddes of the Philiſtines, and forſoke yͤ LORD and ſerued not him. And yͤ LORD was wroth wͭ Iſrael, ⁊ ſolde them into yͤ hãdes of yͤ Philiſtines, ⁊ into the hãdes of the children of Ammon: which frõ that yere forth, pylde ⁊ oppreſſed the childrẽ of Iſrael.xviii. yere al yͭ wer on yͤ other C ſide Iordã in yͤ lãd of yͤ Amorites which is in Gilead. Moreouer, the children of Ammon went ouer Iordan to fyghte againſt Iuda, Ben Iamin, ⁊ the houſe of Ephraim: ſo yͭ Iſrael was ſore combred. And yͤ children of Iſrael cried vnto yͤ LORD, ſayinge: we haue ſynned againſte the: for we haue forſaken oure owne God, ⁊ haue ſerued Baalim. And the LORD ſaid vnto yͤ childrẽ of Iſrael: Did not the Egipcians, yͤ Amorites, the children of Ammõ, yͤ Philiſtines, yͤ Sidonites, the Amalekites, and yͤ Maonites oppreſſe you: And ye cryed to me ⁊ I delyuered you out of their handes. And for al that ye haue forſaken me, ⁊ ſerued ſtraunge goddes, wherfore I wyll helpe you nomore. Go and crye vnto the goddes which ye haue choſen, ⁊ *let them ſaue you in the tyme of your Deu.32.c. tribulacion. Iere.2.c. And the children of Iſrael ſaid vnto yͤ LORD: D We haue ſinned: do yͭ vnto vs whatſoeuer pleaſe thee, delyuer vs onely this daye. And they put away the ſtraunge goddes from them and ſerued the LORDE. And his ſoule had pitie on the myſerye of Iſrael.

Then the children of Ammon gathered together, ⁊ pitched in Gilead. And the children of Iſrael gathered thẽ together, and pitched in Mizpa. And the lordes of Gilead ſayde eche to other: whoſoeuer wyll begynne the battel againſt the children of Ammon, yͤ ſame ſhalbe head ouer all the enhabiters of Gilead.

Iephthah deliuered Iſrael from the Ammonites.

A AND there was one Iephthah a Gileadite, a ſtrong man, the ſonne of an harlot: ⁊ Gilead begat Iephthah. And Gileads wyfe bare him ſonnes, which when they wer come to age thruſt out Iephthah, ⁊ ſayde vnto him, thou ſhalt not enherit in oure fathers houſe, for thou art yͤ ſonne of a ſtraũge woman. Then Iephthah fled from hys brethren, and dwelt in yͤ lande of Tob. And ther gathered ydle (and theuyſhe) mẽ to Iephthah, and went out with him. And it chaũced in proceſſe of tyme that the children of Ammon made warre againſt Iſrael. B And whan the childrẽ of Ammon fought thus againſt Iſrael, yͤ elders of Gilead went to fet Iephthah out of the lande of Tob (to helpe them) and ſayde vnto hym: come and be oure captayne, that we maye fyght with the children of Ammon. Iephthah anſwered the elders of Gilead: dyd not ye hate me ⁊ expell me out of my fathers houſe: how happeneth it then, that you come vnto me nowe in tyme of youre B tribulació? And yͤ elders of Gilead ſaid vnto Jephthah: Therfore we turne again to the nowe, that thou maieſt go wͭ vs, ⁊ fight againſt yͤ childrē of Ammō and be our head ouer al the enhabiters of Gilead. And Jephthah ſayd vnto the elders of Gilead: yf ye bryng me home againe to fight with the childrē of Ammon, then yf the LORDE delyuer them before me, ſhal I be your head? And the elders of Gilead ſaid to Jephthah: the LORDE be witneſſe betwene vs yf we do not accordynge to thy wordes. Then Jephthah wēt wͭ the elders of Gilead.

And the people made him head ⁊ ruler ouer thē. And Jephthah rehearſed all his wordes before the LORDE in Mizpa.

And Jephthah ſent meſſengers vnto the king of yͤ children of Ammō, ſaying: what haſt thou to do wͭ me, yͭ thou arte come againſt me, to fight in my lande?
The kynge of the children of Ammon anſwered vnto yͤ meſſengers of Jephthah: Becauſe Iſraell toke awaye my lande, whē they came out of Egipt: euē from Arnon vnto Jabok, ⁊ vnto Jordā.
Nowe therfore reſtore thoſe landes again wͭ fayre meanes. And Jephthah C ſent meſſengers againe vnto the kyng of yͤ children of Ammō: ⁊ ſaid vnto him: Deute.2.b thus ſaieth Jephthah: *Iſrael toke not away the lāde of Moab, nor the lāde of the children of Ammon. But when Iſrael came out of Egipte, and walked thorowe the wyldernesse, euen vnto the Nu.20.c. reed ſea, they came to Cades *and ſent meſſengers vnto yͤ kyng of Edom, ſaying: let me (I pray the) go thorowe thy lande. But the kynge of Edom woulde not agre therto. And in like maner they ſent vnto the kynge of Moab, but he woulde not conſent. And ſo Iſraell abode ſtil in Cades. And then they went a long thorow the wilderneſſe, ⁊ compaſſed the lande of Edom, and yͤ lāde of Moab, ⁊ came along by yͤ eaſtſyde of yͤ lād of Moab, ⁊ pitched on yͤ other ſyde of Arnon, ⁊ wold not come wͭin yͤ coaſt Num.21.c of Moab: *for Arnon was the vtmooſt Deu.2.d. border of Moab. And then Iſrael *ſēte D meſſēgers vnto Sehō, kyng of yͤ Amorites, ⁊ kyng of Heſbon, and ſayde vnto him: Let vs paſſe thorowe thy lād vnto our owne cōtrey. But Sehon conſented not to Iſrael, yͭ he ſhulde go thorow his coaſt: but gathered al his people together, ⁊ pitched in Jazah ⁊ foughte wͭ Iſrael. And the LORD GOD of Iſraell delyuered Sehon and al his folke into the handes of Iſrael. And ſo Iſrael ſmote them ⁊ conquered al yͤ lande of yͤ Amorites, the enhabiters of the ſayde countrey: And they conquered al yͤ coaſtes of the Amorites, from Arnon vnto Jabok, and from the wylderneſſe vnto Jordan. So now, ſeyng yͤ LORD GOD of Iſrael hath caſte oute the Amorites before his people Iſrael, ſhouldeſt thou poſſeſſe the lande? Naye, but what people Camos thy GOD dryueth out, yͤ lād poſſeſſe thou. Euē ſo whatſoeuer naciō the LORDE oure GOD expelleth, that lande ought we to enioye.

*And art thou better then Balac the ſonne of Zephor kyng of Moab? dyd he ſtryue wͭ Iſrael or fight againſt them, all the while Iſrael dwelt in Heſbon ⁊ her tounes, in Aroer, ⁊ her townes, ⁊ in al the cities that be a long by yͤ coaſtes of Arnon, thre hūdred yeres? why dyddeſt thou not recouer them in all that ſpace? Wherfore, I haue not ſynned againſt the. But thou doeſt me wrong to warre againſt me. The LORDE therfore which is a Judge, be Judge this day betwene the children of Iſrael, and the children of Ammon. Howbeit, the kyng of the children of Ammon, harkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah, whiche he ſent him.

Then the ſpirit of yͤ LORD came vpon Jephthath. And he paſſed ouer to Gilead and to Manaſſes, and came to Mazphah that lyeth in Gilead, ⁊ from thence vnto the children of Ammō. And Jephthah vowed a vowe vnto yͤ LORD and ſaid: *yf thou ſhalt delyuer yͤ children of Ammon into my hādes, thē that thing yͭ cometh out of the dores of my houſe againſt me, whē I come home in peace, frō the children of Ammon, ſhal be the Lordes: ⁊ I wyl offer it vp for a burnt offringe. And ſo Jephthah went vnto yͤ children of Ammon to fyght wͭ thē. And yͤ LORDE deliuered them into his handes. And he ſmote them from Aroer tyll thou come to Menith, euen xx. cytyes: and ſo forthe to the playne of the vyneyardes, with an exceadynge greate ſlaughter. And thus the children children of Ammon were brought vnder before the chyldren of Iſrael.

Whē Iephthah came to Mazphah vnto his houſe, ſe his doughter came oute againſte him, wͭ tymbrelles & daunſes, whiche was his onely child: ſo that beſyde her, he had neither ſon, nor doughter.
And when he ſawe her, he rent his clothes, and ſayde: Alas my doughter, G thou haſte broughte me lowe, and arte one of them that trouble me. For I haue opened my mouth vnto ẏ LORD and cannot goe backe. And ſhe ſayde vnto him: my father yf thou haue opened thy mouth vnto the LORDE, then do with me accordyng to it that proceded out of thy mouth, for as much as ẏ LORDE hath auenged thee (and geuen the vyctorie) of thine enemyes the chyldrē of Ammon. And ſhe ſayd vnto her father: do thys muche for me, let me alone two monethes, that I maye go downe to the mountaynes, and bewayle my virginitie, I and my felowes. And he ſayd go, and he ſet her awai two monethes.
And ſo ſhe wente with her companyons, and lamented her mayden heade vpon the mountaynes. And after the ende of two monethes ſhe turned agayne vnto her father, which dyd with her accordynge to hys vowe which he had vowed, and ſhe had knowen no mā. And it grew to a cuſtome in Iſrael.
The doughters of Iſrael came yere by yere to lament the doughter of Iephthah ẏ Gileadite .iiii. dayes in a yere.

The .xii. Chapter.

The batayle of Iephthah agaynſt Ephraim.
After the death of Iephthah ſuccedeth Elon.
After Elon Abdon.

A AND the mē of Ephraim gathered them ſelues together, and wente northward, & ſaid vnto Iephthah: 8.a *Wherfore wenteſt thou to fyghte wͭ the children of Ammon, and dydeſt not call vs to go with thee: we wyll therefore burne thine houſe vpon thee with fyre: And Iephthah ſayde vnto them: I and my people were at greate ſtryfe with the children of Ammon. And whē I called you, ye deliuered me not out of theyr handes. And when I ſawe that 22.c ye delyuered me not, *I put my lyfe in a.119.o my handes, and went vpon the childrē of Ammon. And the LORDE deliuered them into my handes. Wherefore then are ye come vpon me nowe, to fyght wͭ me: Iephthah therfore gathered together all the men of Gilead, and foughte with the Ephraites. And the men of B Gilead ſmote the Ephraites becauſe they ſayde: ye Gileadites are but runneagates of Ephraim, amonge the Ephraites and the Manaſſites. Moreouer, the men of Gilead toke the paſſages of Iordan before the Ephraites.
And when thoſe Ephraites that were eſcaped, ſayde: let vs go ouer, then the men of Gilead ſayde vnto them: Arte thou an Ephraite: they ſayd: nay. Thē ſayde they vnto hym: then ſay: Schibboleth (whiche is by interpretacion / an eare of C corne.) And he ſayde: Sybboleth: for he could not ſo pronounce. And then they toke him, and ſlewe hym at the paſſages of Iordan. And there were ouerthrowen at that time of the Ephraites xlii. M. And Iephthah iudged Iſrael vi. yeare, and dyed, and was buryed in one of the cyties of Gilead. After thys mā, iudged Iſrael one Abezā of Bethlehem, and he had .xxx. ſonnes and .xxx. doughters, whom he ſent out, and toke D xxx. other in, for his ſonnes. And when Abezan had Iudged Iſraell .vii. yeare, he dyed, and was buried at Bethlehē.

After him, Elon a zabulonite iudged Iſrael .x. yeare, and Elon ẏ zabulonite dyed, and was buried in Aialon, in the countrey of zabulon.

After him, Abdō the ſonne of Hellel a Pharathonite iudged Iſraell. And he had .xl. ſonnes, and thirty neuewes, that rode on .lxx. aſſe coltes. And when Abdon the ſonne of Hellel the Pharathonite had iudged Iſraell eyght yere he dyed, and was buryed in Pharthon in the lande of Ephraim, in the mount of the Amalekites.

The .xiii. Chapter.

Iſrael beyng an ydolater is oppreſſed of the Philiſtines.
The birth of Samſon. The facrifice of Samſons father

A AND the children of Iſraell began agayne to commytte wyckedneſſe Iudi.10.b. in the ſyghte of the LORDE. *And the LORDE delyuered them into the handes of the Philiſtines .xl. yere. And there was a man in Zaraah of the kinred of Dan, named Manoah, whoſe wyfe was barren, and bare not. And ẏ Aungell of the LORDE apeared vnto ẏ woman, and ſayde vnto her: Beholde, thou arte barren, and beareſt not: But thou ſhalte conceaue, and beare a ſon.

Nu.6.a And nowe beware*that thou drynke no wyne, nor ſtronge drynke, neither eate any vncleane thinge: for ſee, thou ſhalt conceaue and beare a ſonne. And 1.Reg.1.c. there may no*raſor come on his head.
For the lad ſhalbe an* abſtayner vnto Num.6.a. GOD, euē from his (infancy/ and from his) byrth. And he ſhal begynne to delyuer Iſraell out of the handes of the Philiſtines.

Then the wyfe came, and tolde her huſbande, ſaying: a man of GOD came vnto me, ⁊ the faſhion of hym was lyke the faſhiō an angel of GOD, exceadyng fearfull. But I aſked him not whence B he was, neyther tolde he me his name, Gen.16.c but ſayde vnto me: *behold, thou ſhalt Luke.1.c be with childe and beare a ſonne, and now drynke no wyne nor ſtrōg drink, neither eate anye vncleane thynge: for the ladde ſhalbe an abſtayner to GOD, euen from his (infancy and from his) byrth, to the daye of his death.

Then Manoah made interceſſyon to the LORDE, and ſayde: I praye thee my LORDE, let the man of GOD which thou ſendeſt, come once more vnto vs, and teache vs what we ſhall do vnto the lad, when he is borne. And GOD hearde the voyce of Manoah, and the aungell of GOD came againe vnto the wyfe as ſhe ſat in the felde. But Manoah her huſbande was not with her.
And the wyfe made haſte, and ranne, ⁊ ſhewed her huſbande, and ſayde vnto him: Behold, the man apered vnto me, that came vnto me to day.

And Manoah aroſe, and went after his wyfe, and came to the man, ⁊ ſayde vnto hym: arte thou the manne that ſpakeſt vnto my wyfe? And he ſaide: C I am. Manoah ſayde: nowe when thy ſayinge is come to paſſe: what ſhalbe yͤ maner of the childe, and what ſhall he do? And the aungell of the LORD ſayd vnto Manoah: thy wife muſt abſteyne from all that I ſayd vnto her: ſhe may eate of nothinge that cometh of yͤ vine tree, nor drinke wine or ſtrong drinke, nor eate anye vncleane thynge: But muſt obſerue all that I bad her. Manoah ſayde vnto the Aungell of the LORD: we wyll kepe thee ſtyll, vntyll Iud.12.b *we haue made redye a kyd, and haue ſet it before thee. And the Angel of the LORDE ſayde vnto Manoah: though thou make me abyde. *I wyll not eat of thy breade. And yf yͧ wylt offre a burnt offerynge, thou muſte offer it vnto the LORDE. For Manoah wiſt not, that it was an Angell of the LORDE. And Manoah ſayde agayne vnto the angel of the LORDE: what is thy name, that when thy ſayinge is come to paſſe, we may do thee ſome worſhyppe? And the angell of the LORDE ſayde vnto hym:
*why aſkeſt yͧ after my name, whiche is Secrete.

And ſo Manoah toke a kydde wyth a meate offerynge, and offered it vpon a rocke vnto the LORDE. And the angell dyd wonderouſly, Manoah ⁊ hys wyfe lokyng vpon. And when yͤ flame came vp towarde heauen from the altar, the angell of the LORDE aſcended vp in the flame of the altar. And Manoah and his wife loked vpon it, and fel flat on their faces vnto the ground.
But the angell of the LORDE dyd no more apeare vnto Manoah ⁊ his wife.
And then Manoah knew that it was an angell of the LORDE, and ſayd vnto his wyfe * we ſhall ſuerlye dye, because we haue ſene GOD. But his wife ſaid vnto him: yf yͤ LORD wold kyl vs, he would not haue receaued a burnte-offeryng and a meateofferyng of oure C handes, neyther woulde he haue ſhewed vs all theſe thinges, nor woulde nowe haue tolde vs anye ſuch. And the wyfe bare a ſon, and called his name Samſon. And the ladde grewe, and the LORDE bleſſed him. And the ſpirit of the LORDE began to moue him in yͤ hooſte of Dan, betwene Zaraah and Eſthaol.

¶ The.xiiii. Chapter.

The mariage of Samſon. He kylleth a lion. He propoundeth a ryddle. He kylleth thyrtie men.
His wyfe forſaketh him/ and taketh another.

SAmſon went downe to Thamnath, ⁊ ſawe a woman in Thānath of the doughters of yͤ Philiſtines, and he came vp, and tolde hys father ⁊ his mother, and ſayde: I haue ſene a woman in Thānath of yͤ doughters of the Philiſtines. And now geue me her to wyfe. Then his father ⁊ mother D ſayde vnto him: *Is there neuer a woman among the doughters of thy brethren, and amonge all my people, but that thou muſt go, and take a wife of the vncircumciſed Philiſtines? And Samſon

Samſon ſayde vnto his father: geue me thys woman, for ſhe pleaſeth me well. But his father and mother wyſt not that it was the LORDES doyng, & that he ſought an occaſion againſt the Philiſtines: for at that tyme the Philiſtines raygned ouer Iſrael.

Than went Samſon and his father and his mother downe to Thamnath, B and came to the vineyardes of Thamnath. And beholde, a yonge (wood) lyon roared vpon him. And the ſpirite of the LORDE came vpon him. And he tare him, as he would haue rent a kyd, and yet had nothyng in his hande, neyther tolde his father and mother what he had done. And he went down, & talked with the woman, which ſemed wel fauored in the ſyght of Samſon.

And within a ſhorte ſpace after as he wente thither agayne to take her to wyfe, he turned out of the waye to ſe yͤ carkaſſe of the lyon. And beholde, ther was a ſwarme of bees and hony in the carkaſſe of the lion. And he toke of the honye in his handes, and went eatyng, and came to his father and mother, & gaue them alſo. And they did eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken yͤ hony out of the carkaſſe of the lyon.

And ſo hys father came vnto the woman, and Samſon made there a C feaſt, for ſo vſed the yonge men to doe. And when they (the cyteſyns of that place) ſawe hym, they broughte .xxx. companyons to be with him. And Samſon ſayd vnto them: I wyl nowe put forth a ryddle vnto you: And yf you can declare it me within .vii. daies of yͤ feaſt, & fynde it out, I wyl geue you .xxx. ſhyrtes, and .xxx. chaunge of garmentes: But and yf you can not declare it me, then ſhall ye geue me .xxx. ſhyrtes and .xxx. chaunge of garmentes. And they anſwered him: put forth thy ridle, that we maye heare it. And he ſayde vnto them. Oute of yͤ eater came meate: and out of the ſtronge came ſwetenes. And they coulde not in .iii. dayes expound yͤ riddle: And when the ſeuenth day was come, they ſayde vnto Samſons wife: flatter thine huſbande (and perſwade him) D that he maye declare vs the riddle, leſt we burne thee and thy fathers houſe with fyre. Haue ye called vs hyther, to make vs beggers? And Sãſons wife wepte before hym (complayned) and ſayd: Surely thou hateſt me, and loueſt me not: for thou haſte put forthe a ryddle vnto the children of my folke and haſt not tolde it me. And he ſayde vnto her: Beholde, I haue not tolde it my father and my mother, and ſhall I tell it the?

And Samſons wyfe wepte before him .vii. dayes while the feaſt laſted. And the ſeuenth daye he tolde her, becauſe ſhe laye ſo ſore vpon him. And ſhe tolde it the childrẽ of her folke. And the men of the cytie ſayde vnto him the ſeuenth daye, before the Sunne went downe. What is ſweter then hony, and what is ſtronger then a Lyon? Then ſayd he vnto them: yf ye had not plowed with my calfe, ye had not found out my ryddle. And the ſpirite of yͤ LORDE came vpon him. And he went down to Aſkalon, and ſlewe thyrtye men of thẽ, and ſpoyled them, and gaue chaunge of garmentes vnto them whyche expounded the riddle. And he was wroth, and went vp to his fathers houſe. But Samſons wyfe was geuen to one of hys companyons, that he had taken vnto him.

¶ Samſon tyeth firebrandes to foxes tayles, With the iawe bone of an aſſe he kylleth a thouſande men. Out of a great toth in the iawe/god geueth him water.

A But it chaunced within a while after, euen in the tyme of whete herueſt, yͤ Samſon vyſited his wife with a kyd, ſaying: I wyl go in to my wyfe into the chamber: but her father woulde not ſuffre him to goe in. And her father ſayd: I thought yͤ thou hadſt hated her, & therfore gaue I her vnto one of thy companions. Is not her yonger ſiſter fairer then ſhe? Take her in ſtead of the other. Samſon ſayd vnto them: Now am I more blameles then the Philiſtines, and therfore wyll I do them diſpleaſure.

And Samſon went out, and caught thre hundred foxes, & toke fyrebrãdes, and faſtened tayle to tayle, and put a fyrebrand in the myddes betwene two tayles. And whan he had ſet the brandes on fyre, he ſent them oute, (that they myght runne abrode/whiche wente immediatly) into the ſtandyng corne of the Philiſtines, and burnt vp both the reped corne and alſo the ſtandynge, with the vyneyardes and oliues. B Then yͤ Philiſtines ſayd:who hath done this? And it was tolde them that Samſon the ſonne in lawe of ẏ Thamnite, becauſe he had taken his wyfe, and geuen her to hys companion. And the Philiſtines came vp and burnt her, and her father with fire.

And Samſon ſayde vnto thē: though ye haue done this, yet wyl I be auenged on you, and then I will ceaſe. And he ſmote them legge and thygh with a myghtie plage. And then he went and dwelte in the caue of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philiſtines came vp, and pytched in Iuda, and laye in/a place that was afterward called) Lehy (ẏ is a iawe bone/ where theyr hooſt was ſcatered abrod.) And ẏ men of Iuda ſayde, why are ye come vp vnto vs? They anſwered: to bynde Samſon are we come vp, and to do to C him as he hath done to vs. Then three thouſande men of Iuda wente downe to the caue of the rocke Etam, & ſayde to Samſon: wotteſt thou not that the Philiſtines are rulers ouer vs? Wherfore then haſt thou done thus vnto vs?
Leui.24.c Iudi.1.b. He anſwered them, *as they dyd vnto me, ſo haue I done vnto them.

And they ſayd vnto him agayne: we are come down to bynde the, and to delyuer thee into the hande of the Philiſtines. And Samſon ſayde vnto them: ſweare vnto me, (and promyſe me) that ye ſhal not fal vpon me your ſelues. They anſwered him, ſaying: No, but we wyl bynde thee and delyuer thee vnto their handes. But we wyl not kyl thee. And they bounde him with two newe cordes, and brought hym from the rocke. And when he came to Lehy, the Philiſtines ſhouted agaynſte him. And the ſpirite of the LORDE came vpon hym, and the cordes that were vpon his armes, became as flaxe that was burnte with fyre, for the bandes leuſed frō of his handes. And he founde a rotten iawebone of an aſſe, and put forth hys hande, and caughte it, and ſlue a thou-D ſande men therwith.

And Samſon ſayde: with the iawe of an aſſe haue I made heapes of them: with the iawe of an aſſe haue I ſlayne a thouſand men. And when he had left ſpeakyng: he caſt awaye the iawe bone oute of his hande, and called the place: Ramath Lehi. (That is by interpretacion/ the lyftyng vp of the iawbone). And he was ſore athyrſt, and called on the LORDE, and ſayde: thou haſt gyuen this greate victorye, in the hande of thy ſeruaunt. And nowe I muſt dye for thyrſte, and fall into the handes of the vncircumciſed. But GOD brake a great toth that was in the iawe, and there came water therout. And when he had dronke, hys ſpirite came agayne, & he was refreſhed, wherfore the name therof is called vnto this daye, the wel of the caller on, whiche came of the iawe. And he iudged Iſrael in the dayes of the Philiſtines twentye yeres.

¶ The.xvi.Chapter

¶ Samſon lyfteth vp the gates of Gaza. He was deceyued by Dalila. He pulleth down the houſe vpon the Philiſtines/ and dyeth with the

Then went Samſon to *Azath, & ſawe there an harlot, and wente in vnto her. And it was tolde the Azathites, ſayinge: Samſon is come hither: And they went about, and layd wayte for him there all night in ẏ gate of the citie, and were ſtyl all the night, ſaying: in the mornyng when it is daye we ſhall kyll him. And Samſon toke his reſt tyll mydnyghte, and aroſe at mydnight, and toke the dores of ẏ gate of the cytie, and the two ſyde poſtes, & rente them of, with the barre and all, & put them vpon his ſhoulders, and caried them vp to ẏ toppe of an hyl that is before Hebron.

And after this it fortuned, that by ẏ riuer of Sorek, he loued a woman called Dalila: vnto whō came the lordes of the Philiſtines, and ſayde vnto her: perſwade him, and ſe wherin his great ſtrength lyeth, and by what meane we may ouercome him, that we may binde hym, to brynge hym vnder: and euery one of vs ſhall gyue thee a leuen hundred ſyluerlinges.

And Dalila ſayde to Samſon: Oh, tell me where thy great ſtrength lyeth, and howe thou myghteſt be bounde, & brought vnder. Samſon anſwered vnto her: yf they bynde me with ſeuen grene wythes that were neuer dryed, I ſhal be weake as other men.

And then the lordes of the Philiſtines broughte her ſeuen wythes that were yet grene and neuer dryed, and ſhe bounde him therwith. Notwithſtanding ſhe had men lyinge in wayte wyth her in the chambre. And ſhe ſaid vnto him:the Philiſtines be vpon thee Samſō.And immediatly he brake the wythes as a ſtryng of towe(that is twyned)breaketh,when it feleth fire. And ſo his ſtrength was not knowen.

And Dalila ſayd vnto Samſon:Se, C thou haſt mocked me and told me lies. Nowe therfore tell me wherwith thou myghteſt be bounde. He anſwered her: yf they bynd me with newe ropes that neuer were occupyed,I ſhalbe weake, and as another man. Dalila therefore toke newe ropes,and bōnde him therwith,⁊ ſayde vnto him:the Philiſtines be vpon the Samſon. And there were lyers of wayte in the chambre , and he brake thē from of his armes,as they had bene but a threde.And Dalila ſaid to Samſon,hytherto thou haſt begiled me ⁊ told me lyes:yet tel me how thou myghteſt be bounde.He ſayd vnto her: yf thou platteddeſt the. vii. lockes of my head with an heere lace.And ſhe faſtened them with a nayle,and ſayd vnto him: the Philiſtines be vpon thee Samſon.And he awooke oute of hys ſlepe,and plucked away the nayle that was in the plattynge wyth the heere lace. And ſhe ſayde vnto him agayne: Howe canſt thou ſaye that thou loueſt me,when thyne herte is not wyth me: D Beholde, thou haſte mocked me this thre tymes,⁊ haſt not told me wherin thy great ſtrength lyeth.

And as ſhe laye vpon him wyth her wordes contynually vexing of him,his ſoule was encombred euen vnto the death.And ſo he tolde her all his hert, m.6.a. and ſayde vnto her:*there neuer came 13 b raſour vpō myne head,for I haue bene an abſtayner:(that is to ſay conſecrate) vnto GOD,euen frō my mothers wombe: therfore whē I am ſhauē my ſtrength wyl go from me,⁊ I ſhal waxe weake, and be lyke al other men. And when Dalila ſawe that he had tolde her all his herte,ſhe ſente, and called for the lordes of the Philiſtines, ſaying:come vp yet this once,for he hath ſhewed me all his herte.

Then the lordes of the Philiſtines came vp vnto her, and broughte the money in their handes. And ſhe made him ſlepe vpon her knees(and to laye hys head downe in her lap/)and ſhe ſente for a man,⁊ he dyd ſhaue of the ſeuen lockes of his head,and begā to vexe him, and his ſtrength was gone from him. And ſhe ſayde:the Philiſtines be vpon thee Samſon. And he awoke oute of his E ſlepe,and ſayde.I wyll go out now as at other times before,⁊ ſhake my ſelf:⁊ he wyſt not that the LORDE was departed from him. But the Philiſtines toke him,⁊ put out his eyes,⁊ brought him downe to*Azath, and bound hym Or Gaza. with two fetters of braſſe. And he dyd grynd in the pryſon houſe:howbeit the heere of his heade began to growe agayne after that he was ſhauen.

Then yͤ lordes of the Philiſtines gathered them togyther for to offer a F ſolempne offerynge vnto Dagon their god,and to reioyſe:for they ſayde : our god hath delyuered Samſō our enemy into our handes.And when the people ſawe him,they prayſed theyr god , for they ſayde:oure God hathe delyuered into oure handes oure enemye and deſtroyer of oure countrey, whiche ſlue many of vs. And when theyr hertes were mery,it fortuned, that they ſayd: ſende for Samſon,that he maye make vs laugh.

And they fet Samſon oute of the priſon houſe,and he played before thē, and they ſet him betwene the pyllers. And Samſon ſayde vnto the ladd that led him by yͤ hande:ſet me that I may touche the pyllers that yͤ houſe ſtande vpon,and that I maye leane to them. And the houſe was ful of men ⁊ womē. And there were al the lordes of yͤ Philiſtines.And there were vpon the rofe a thre thouſand men and women that behelde while Samſon played.

G And Samſon called vpō the LORD, and ſayde:O LORDE GOD thinke vpon me,and ſtrengthen me,at this time onely,O LORDE GOD,that I may be auenged of the Philiſtines for my two eyes. And Samſon taughte the two myddle pyllers on which yͤ houſe ſtode, and on whiche it was borne vp:the one in his right hande,and the other in his lefte,and ſayde:my ſoule ſhal dye with the Philiſtines,and bowed them with all his myght.And the houſe fell vpon the lordes and vpon all the people that were therein.And ſo the deade whiche he ſlue at his death were mo then they whiche he ſlue in his lyfe.And thē hys brethren and al the houſe of his father came downe ⁊ toke him vp,⁊ broughte

him and buried him betwene Zarah ⁊ Eſtahol, in the buryinge place of Manoah his father. And he iudged Iſrael twentye yeres.

¶ The.xvii.Chapter.

¶ Of Micah, whoſe mother made hym an ydoll of ſyluer.

A THere was a man in mounte Ephraim named Micah, and he ſayde vnto his mother: the leuen hundred ſyluerlynges that were takē from the, about whiche thou curſedeſt and ſpakeſt it in mine eares: Beholde, the ſyluer is with me, I toke it awaye.
And his mother ſayde: bleſſed be thou my ſonne in the LORDE. And when he had reſtored the leuen hundred ſyluerlynges to his mother agayne, his mother ſayde: I vowed the ſiluer to the LORDE of myne hand for thee my ſon, B that thou ſhouldeſt make a grauen ymage and an ymage of metall. Nowe therfore I wyll giue it thee agayne.
And when he reſtored the money vnto his mother, his mother toke two hundred ſiluerlynges, and gaue them to a goldeſmyth, which made therof a grauen ymage, and an image of metal, and it was in the houſe of Micah. And the man Micah had a temple of goddes, ⁊ made an Ephod and Theraphim: (that is to ſay a garment for the prieſt / and ydols.) C And fylled the hande of one of his ſons Iudi 19.a. and.21.c. which became his prieſt. * In thoſe dayes there was no kynge in Iſraell, but euerye man did that whiche was good in his owne eyes.

And there was a yonge man out of Bethlehem Iuda, of the kinred of Iuda: which yonge man was a Leuite, ⁊ ſoiourned there. And the mā departed oute of the citie of Bethlehem Iuda, to goe dwell where he coulde fynde a conueniēt place. And he came to moūt Ephrai to yͤ houſe of Micah as he iornied.
And Micah ſaid vnto him: Whēce commeſt thou? The Leuite anſwered D him: I am of Bethlehem Iuda, and go to dwel where I may finde a place (and where I may eſpye it to be for my profyte.) And Micah ſayde agayne vnto him: dwell with me and be vnto me a father and a prieſt. And I wyll geue thee ten ſyluerlynges by yeare, two garmentes, and thy meate and drynke.

And the Leuite was cōtent to dwel with the man, and was vnto him as one of his owne ſonnes. And Micah conſecrated the hande of the Leuite, ⁊ the yonge man became his prieſt, and was in the houſe of Micah. Then ſaid Micah: nowe I am ſure that yͤ LORD wyll be good vnto me: ſeinge I haue a Leuite to my prieſt.

¶ The.xviii.Chapter.

The children of Dan take the goddes and the prieſt of Micah awaye. They deſtroy Lais / and after buylde it agayne.

IN thoſe dayes * there was no kynge in Iſraell. And in thoſe daies yͤ trybe of Dā ſought thē an enheritaūce to dwel in, * for vnto yͤ tyme there fell none inheritaunce vnto them amonge the trybes of Iſrael.

D And the children of Dan ſente of theyr kynred, fiue actiue men in feates of warre out of their coaſtes, euen out of zaraah and Eſtahol, to vewe yͤ land, and ſearche it out, and ſayde vnto thē: go, and ſearche out the lande. Whiche when they came to mount Ephraim euen to the houſe of Micah, they lodged there. And whē they were in the houſe of Micah, they knewe the voyce of the yonge man the Leuite: and when they turned in thither, they ſayde vnto him: who brought the hyther? What makeſt thou in this place? and what haſt thou here? And he anſwered them: thus and thus dealed Micah with me, and hath hyred me, and I am become his prieſt.
And they ſayde vnto him agayne: Aſke counſayle nowe of GOD, that we may E knowe whether the way which we go ſhall be proſperous or no. And yͤ prieſt ſayde vnto them: go in peace, for the LORDE guydeth youre waye whiche ye go.

Then the fyue men departed, ⁊ came to Lais, and ſaw the people that were therein, howe they dwelte careleſſe, after the maner of yͤ Sidons, ſtyl, and without caſtinge of paryls: and that no mā made any trouble in the lande, or vſurped any dominion, but were farre from the Sidons, and had no buſineſſe with other men. And they came vnto theyr brethren to Zaraah and Eſtahol. And theyr brethren ſayde vnto them: what haue ye done? And they aunſwered: Ariſe, that we maye go vp agaynſt thē F * for we haue ſene the lande: ſurelye a very good one. And do ye ſit ſtyl? be not ſlouthful to departe. But come to conquere quer the land (it ſhalbe no laboure.) yf ye wyll go ye ſhall come vnto a people yͭ caſteth no parylles, and it is a verye large countrye: whiche GOD hath gyuen into your hādes. It is alſo a place whiche doth lacke nothynge that is in the worlde.

And there departed thence of the kynred of the Dannites, euen oute of Zaraah and Eſtahol, ſixe hūdred men appoynted wͭ inſtrumentes of warre.
And they went vp and pitched in Kariath Iarim whiche is in Iuda. Wherfore they called the place, yͤ hoſt of Dan vnto this daye: and it is on the backeſyde of Kariath Iarim. And they went D thence vnto mounte Ephraim, & came to the houſe of Micah. Then anſwered the fyue men that went to ſpye out the countrey of Lais, and ſayde vnto their brethren: wot ye not, that there is in theſe houſes an Ephod, Theraphim, a grauen ymage, and an ymage of metall?
Nowe therefore conſyder what ye haue to do.

And they turned thitherwarde and came to the houſe of the yonge man yͤ Leuite, euen vnto the houſe of Micah, and ſaluted him peaceably. And the .vi hundred men gyrded with weapons of warre whiche were of the chyldren of Dan, ſtode by the entryng of yͤ gate.
And yͤ fyue mē that went to ſpie out yͤ lande, wente in thyther, and toke the karued ymage and the Ephod, Theraphim, and the image of metal. And the E prieſt ſtode in the entrynge of the gate with the ſyxe hundred men that were armed vnto battayle, while the other wente into Micahs houſe, and fet the kerued ymage, the Ephod, Theraphī: and the ymage of metall. Then ſayde the prieſt vnto them: what do ye? They anſwered him, holde thy peace, laye thyne hande vpon thy mouth, & come wyth vs to be oure father and prieſt.
Is it better for thee to be a prieſt vnto the houſe of one manne, then to be a prieſt vnto a tribe or kynred in Iſrael?
And the prieſt was glad, and toke the Ephod and Theraphim, and the grauen ymage, and went with the people.
And they turned and departed, & put the children, the cattel, and their other F ſubſtaunce before them.

And when they were a good waye from the houſe of Micah, the men that were in the houſes, & in Micahs houſe made an outcrye, and folowed after yͤ children of Dan, and called vnto them.
And they turned their faces, and ſaide vnto Micah: what ayleth thee, yͭ thou makeſt an outcrye? And he ſayde: ye haue taken awaye my goddes whiche I made, and alſo the prieſt, and go your wayes with them. And what haue I more? howe then ſay ye vnto me: what ayleth thee? And the children of Dan ſayde vnto him: let not thy voyce be hearde amonge vs, leſt angry felowes runne vpon thee, and thou leſe thy lyfe wͭ the lyues of al thyne houſhold. And ſo the chyldren of Dan wente theyr wayes.

And when Micah ſawe that they were to ſtronge for hym, he turned, and wente backe vnto hys houſe agayne. G

And they toke the thynges whyche Micah had made, and the prieſt which he had, and came vnto Lais, euen vnto a people that were at reſt and without miſtruſt, and ſmote them with yͤ edge of the ſweard, and burnt the citie with fire. And there was no man to helpe, bycauſe Lais was farre from Sidon, and they had no meddlynge with anye other man. And the cytie ſtode in the valley that lyeth by Betherob.

And they buylte them there a cytie, and dwelte therein. * And called it Ioſu.19.d Dan after the name of Dan theyr father, whiche was borne vnto Iſraell.
Howbeit, in very dede the name of the cytie was Lais at the begynnynge.

And the children Dan ſet them vp yͤ grauen ymage. And Ionathan the ſon of Gerſon the ſonne of Manaſſes and his ſonnes were the prieſtes in the trybe of Dan * vntyll they were caried Iudi.19.g awaye out of the lande captyue.
And they ſet them vp the kerued image which Micah made, all the while that the houſe of GOD was in Silo.

¶ The.xix. Chapter.

¶ Of the Leuite whoſe wyfe was vilaynouſlye kylled in Gibea.

IT chaunſed in thoſe dayes, whē A there was no kynge in Iſraell, that a certayne Leuite ſoiournynge on the ſyde of mount Ephraim: toke to wyfe a concubyne out of Bethlehem Iuda, and his concubine played the whore by him, and went away frō him

him vnto her fathers houſe to Bethlehem Juda, and there continued four monethes. And her huſbande aroſe & went after her, to ſpeake frendely vnto her, and to brynge her home a gayne, hauing his lad with him: and a couple of aſſes.

And ſhe broughte him vnto her fathers houſe, and when the father of the damſell ſawe him, he reioyced of hys commynge. And his father in lawe the damſels father kepte him. And the Leuite abode with him three dayes, and ſo they dyd eate and drynke, and lodged there.

B The fourth daye when they aroſe erly in the mornyng, the man ſtode vp, to depart. And the damſels father ſaid vnto his ſonne in lawe: comforte thine Gene. 13.a herte with a morſel* of breade, and thē go your waye. And they ſat down, and dyd eate and drynke bothe of them together. And the damſels father ſayde vnto the man: Be content I pray the, and tarie al nyght, and let thine hert be mery. And when the man ſtode vp redy to departe, hys father in lawe compelled him to turne agayne, & to tarye all nyght there. And he aroſe vp early the fyfth daye to departe, and the damſels father ſayde: comforte thine herte: and they taryed vntyll after mydday. And they did eate both of them together.

C And when the man aroſe to departe with his concubine and his lad, his father in lawe the damſels father ſayde vnto him: beholde, the daye goeth faſte awaye and draweth toward euen, tarye all nyghte: at the leſtway tary thys daye here, that thyne herte maye be mery. And to morowe get you yearlye vpon your waye, that thou mayeſt get thee to thy tent. Neuerthelater, yͤ man woulde not tary, but aroſe and departed, and came as far as Jebus (which is Jeruſalem) and his two aſſes laden, and his concubine and his lad wᵗ him. And when they were faſt by Jebus the daye was ſore ſpente, and the yonge man ſayd vnto his maſter: come I praye thee, and let vs turne in, into this cytye of the Jebuſites, and lodge all nyght there. His maſter aunſwered D him: we wil not tourne into a ſtraunge citie that are not of the children of Iſraell: we wyll goe forth to Gibea. And he ſayde vnto his ladde: go forewarde, & we ſhall come to one of theſe places, to lodge al nyght either in Gibea or in Rama. And they went foreward vpon theyr waye, and the ſunne wente down vpon them, when they were faſt by Gibia whiche belongeth to them of BenJamin. And they turned thytherward to go in and lodge all nyght in Gibea. And when he came he ſat him downe in a ſtrete of the cytie, for there was no man yͭ toke thē to lodging. And behold, there came an old man frō his worke, out of the felde at euen, which was alſo of mounte Ephraim, and dwelt as a ſtraunger in Gibea. But the men of the place were the children of Jemini. And when he had lyfte vp his eyes, he ſawe a wayfaryng man in the ſtretes of the cytie. And the olde man ſayde: whither goeſt thou? And whence cameſt yͧ? He anſwered him: we came from Bethlehem Juda, towarde the ſyde of mount Ephraim: from thence am I, & I went to Bethlehem Juda, and goe nowe to the houſe of the LORDE. And there is no man that receyueth me to houſe. We haue ſtrawe and prouandre for our aſſes, and bread and wyne for me and thy handemayde, and for the ladde that is with thy ſeruaunt: and we lack nothing.

The olde man ſayde: peace be wyth thee, all that thou lackeſt ſhalte thou fynde with me: onelye abyde not in the ſtrete all nyght, and ſo he brought him into his houſe, and gaue foddre vnto his aſſes. And they waſhed their fete, and did eate and drynke. And as they were makyng their hertes mery, behold the men of the citie which were wicked, beſet the houſe rounde about, and thruſt at the dore, and ſpake to the man of the houſe, the olde man, ſaying: brynge forthe the man that came into thyne houſe that we maye knowe hym.

And* the man of the houſe, the olde man went oute, and ſayde vnto them: Oh nay my brethren do not ſo wickedly, ſeing yͭ this man is come into myne houſe: doe not ſo vnmete a thinge. Beholde, here is my doughter, a maiden, & this mans concubine, thē wyl I bring out now vnto you, and humble them, & do wᵗ thē what ſemeth you good: but vnto this man do not ſo abhominable a thing. But the mē would not herken to him. And the man toke his cõcubine, and brought her out vnto them, which knew her, & abuſed her al the night, euẽ vnto the mornyng. And when the daye began to ſpring, they let her go.

G And then came yͤ woman in yͤ dawning of the daye, and fell downe at the dore of the mans houſe where her Lord was tyl it was daye. And her Lorde aroſe vp in the mornynge, & opened yͤ dores of the houſe, & wente out to go hys way. And beholde, the woman, euẽ his concubyne laye along before yͤ dore of the houſe, and her handes ſtretched out vpon the threſſholde. And he (thinckynge her to haue bene a ſlepe) ſayde vnto her: vp & let vs be goyng. But ſhe anſwered not. Then yͤ man (perceyuyng that ſhe was dead) toke her vp vpõ an aſſe, & ſtode vp, & gat him vnto his owne home. And whẽ he was come to his houſe, he toke a knyfe & caught his concubyne & deuyded her with the bones into twelue peces, and ſent her into al quarters of Iſrael. And al that ſaw it, ſaid: there was no ſuche dede done or ſeene ſyns the chyldren of Iſrael came oute of Egipte vnto this daye, conſydre the matter, take auyſement and ſaye your myndes.

¶ The.xx. Chapter.

The battayle of the Iſraelites againſt the tribe of BenJamin/for yͤ Leuites wife which was killed.

A Then al yͤ children of Iſrael went out: and the congregacion, was gathered together as it had bene but one man, euen from Dan to Beerſeba, and vnto the lande of Gilead, vnto the LORD in Miſpa, and there ſtode folke out of all quarters and of all the trybes of Iſrael, in the congregaciõ of the people of GOD foure hũdred thouſande footemen that drewe ſweardes. And when the children of BenJamin hearde that the childrẽ of Iſrael were gone vp to Miſpa, and had ſayde: O ye children of Iſrael, tell vs howe this wickedneſſe happened. And the Leuite, the womans huſbãde that was ſlayne, anſwered and ſayde: I came into Gibea that is in BenJamin with my concubyne to lodge all nyght, and the men of Gibea aroſe againſt me, and beſet yͤ houſe rounde about vpon me by night, and thought to haue ſlayne me, & my concubyne haue they ſo forced, yͭ ſhe is dead. And I toke my concubyne, and cut her in peces, and ſente her thorowout al the landes of the enheritaũce of Iſrael. For they haue cõmitted abhominacion and foly in Iſrael. Beholde, ye are al childrẽ of Iſrael. Pondre this matter, & gyue your aduyſe in the caſe.

And all the people aroſe as it had ben one man, ſayinge: there ſhal not a man of vs go to his tent, neyther turne into his houſe. B But this ſhalbe it yͭ we wyll do to Gibea. We wil go vp by lot agaiſt it. And we wyl take ten men of the hundred thorowout al the trybes of Iſrael, and an hundred of the. M. and a thouſande out of. x. M. to fet vytayle for the people to make that they may go agaiſt Gibea BenJamin, bycauſe of al the abhominacion, that they haue wrought in Iſrael. And ſo al the men of Iſraell gathered together againſt yͤ citie, knyt together as it had bene but one man. And the tribes of Iſrael ſent men thorow al the tribe of BenJamin, ſaying: Joſue.22.b *what wickedneſſe is this yͭ is happened among you? Now therfore delyuer vs yͤ men, thoſe childrẽ of Belial which are in Gibea, that we may ſlaye them, & put away euyll from Iſrael.

Neuerthelater, the children of BenJamin wolde not herken vnto yͤ voyce of their brethren the children of Iſrael: but gathered thẽ ſelues together out of the cities vnto Gibea, to come out and fight againſt the children of Iſrael. And the children of BenJamin were numbred at that tyme out of the cities. xxvi. thouſande men yͭ drew ſweardes, beſide the inhabitours of Gibea, which wer numbred ſeuẽ hundred choſẽ men. And among al theſe folke wer ſeuẽ hũdred lefte handed men, which euery one coulde ſlyng ſtones at an heer breadth, and not myſſe. And the childrẽ of Iſrael beſyde BenJamin, wer numbred foure hundred thouſande men that drewe ſweardes, and were al men of warre.

C And the children of Iſrael aroſe, and went vp to Bethel, and aſked counſaile of GOD who ſhould begin the battaile againſt the childrẽ of BenJamin. And yͤ LORD ſaid: Juda ſhal begyn. And the children of Iſrael ſtode vp early & beſieged Gibea. And the men of Iſrael went out to battel againſte BenJamin, and the men of Iſrael put them ſelues in araye to fighte agaynſte them, beſyde Gibea. And the chyldren of Ben-Jamin came out of Gibea, ⁊ destroyed of the Israelites that daye .xxii. thousande men, ⁊ brought them to yͤ earthe.

And the folke of the children of Israel plucked vp their hertes, and went to againe, and made battel in yͤ same place where they dyd the firste daye. And the children of Israel went vp and wepte before the LORD vnto euen, ⁊ asked of D the LORD, saying: shal we go againe to battayle against the childrē of BenJamin our brethren? And the LDRD said: go vp against them. And the childrē of Israel came out against the childrē of BenJamin the seconde daye. And the children of BenJamin went againste them oute of Gibea, the seconde daye, and destroyed to the earth of the childrē of Israel once againe .xviii. thousande men that drewe sweardes euery mā of them. Then the children of Israel ⁊ al yͤ people went vp and came vnto Bethel, and wepte, and sat ther before yͤ LORD, and fasted the same daye vnto euen, ⁊ offered burnte offringes ⁊ peace offerynges before the LORD. And yͤ childrē of Israel asked yͤ LORD: for there was the arke of the appointment of GOD in those dayes. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron waiting vpon it at that tyme, sayde: shall I get me vp to go out any more to battell a-E gainst the children of BenJamin my brethren, or shal I cease? The LORDE said: go, for to morowe I wyl delyuer them into your handes. And Israel set lyers awayt rounde about Gibea. And the children of Israel went vp against the children of BenJamin the thyrde tyme, and put them selues in araye against Gibea, as twyse before. And the children of BenJamin came out against the people, and were drawen away from the cytie. And they began to smyte of the people dead (as twyse before, by two hye wayes of whiche one goeth vp to Bethel, ⁊ the other to Gi-bea thorow the fielde) vpon a thyrty mē of Israel. And the children of BenJamin sayde. They are fallen before vs, as at the first. But the childrē of Israel sayd: let vs flye and plucke them away from the citye, vnto the hye wayes.

And al the men of Israel rose vp out of their place, and put themselues in aray at Baal Thamar. And lykewyse yͤ lyers in wayte of Israel came forth out of their places, euen out of yͤ medowes that wer about Gibea, ⁊ came againste Gibea: ten thousande chosen men out of al Israel, ⁊ there was a sore battell.
But yͤ other wyst not that so great euil was so nye them. And yͤ LORD plaged BenJamin before Israel, ⁊ the childrē of Israel destroyed of yͤ Beniamites yͭ the same daye .xxv. thousande, ⁊ an hūdred men, yͭ drue sweardes euery one of them. And whan yͤ childrē of BēJamin saw that they wer put to the worse, the men of Israel gaue roume to the Ben-Jamites, because they trusted vnto the lyers in waite which they had layd besyde Gibea. And the lyers in wayte hasted, and ranne vpon Gibea, and went and smote al the citye with yͤ edge of yͤ swearde. And an appoyntment had the men of Israel from yͤ lyers in wayte yͭ they shoulde make a great smoke ryse vp out of the cytie. And when the men of Israel fled in the battel: BenJamin began to smyte dead of the children of Israel, about a thirtye personnes, and said: yͤ other are put to the worse before vs, as in the first battel. But whā ther began to aryse out of yͤ cytie a pyller of smoke, the Beniamites loked backe: ⁊ beholde, the wastyng of the hole cytye began to ascende vp to heauen.

When the men of Israel also turned againe, the men of BenJamin were abashed, for they saw yͤ euell approched them. And therfore they turned theyr backes before the men of Israel vnto yͤ way yͭ leadeth to the wyldernes, but yͤ mē of warre ouer toke thē. And besyde that, they which cam out of the citie, destroyed them in the myddle of thē. And thus they cōpassed the Beniamites about, ⁊ chased thē to Menuha, and ouer rāne thē to Gibea on yͤ eastsyde: ⁊ there wer slaine of BenJamin .xviii. thousād, which wer al men of warre. And they turned ⁊ fled to the wildernes warde, ⁊ vnto yͤ rocke of Rimmō. And the other slue by yͤ way of yͤ rest of thē, fyue thousande men, ⁊ sticked vnto thē, vntil they came to Gideom, and slue two thousād men of thē. So yͭ al yͭ wer slayne yͤ same daye of BenJamin were .xxv. thousāde men that drue sweardes, whiche were al men of war: onely .vi. hundred men turned ⁊ fled to yͤ wildernes, vnto the Rocke of Rimmō, ⁊ abode ther .iiii. monethes. And yͤ mē of Israel turned back again

againe vnto ẏ children of Ben Iamin, and ſmote them wͭ the edge of ẏ ſweard in the cities, both man and beaſt ⁊ all ẏ came to hande, and ſet on fyre al the cities that they coulde come by.

¶ The. xxi. Chapter.

The enhabitoures of Gilead are vtterly deſtroyed.

A And euery man of Iſrael ſware in Mizpa, ſaying: there ſhall none of vs geue his doughter to any of Bẽ Iamin to wyfe. And the people came to Bethel and abode there tyll euẽ before GOD, and lyfte vp their voyces, ⁊ wept ſore, ⁊ ſaid: O LORDE GOD of Iſraell, why is this chaunced in Iſrael, ẏ there ſhould be this daye one tribe lackynge in Iſrael? And on the morowe ẏ people roſe vp betyme, and made there an aultare, and offered burnt offeringes and peaceofferinges.

And the children of Iſrael aſked, who are they among al the trybes of Iſrael, that came not vp with the congregaciõ vnto the LORDE? for they had made a greate othe cõcernyng him ẏ came not vp to ẏ LORD to Mizpa, ſaying: he ſhal ſurely dye. And ẏ childrẽ of Iſrael had pitie on Ben Iamin their brethren, and ſaid: there is one trybe cut of frõ Iſrael this day: what ſhal we do vnto the remnaũt of them, ẏ they may haue wyues? we haue ſworne by ẏ LORD: ẏ we wyll B not geue them of our doughters to wynes.
And they ſaid: Is there any of the trybes of Iſraell, that came not vp to Mizpa to the LORD? And behold, ther came none of the enhabitours of Iabes Gilead vnto the hooſt and congregaciõ.
For the people wer vewed, and behold, there were none of ẏ enhabiters of Iabes Gilead there. And they ſent thither a multitude, euẽ. xii. thouſande men of ẏ ſtrongeſt of them, and cõmaunded thẽ, ſaying: go and ſmyte the enhabiters of Iabes Gilead wͭ the edge of ẏ ſwearde, 31.f. both wemen and childrẽ. * And this is it that ye ſhall do, vtterly deſtroy al the males ⁊ al the wemẽ that haue lyen by men. And they founde among the enhabyters of Iabes Gilead foure hundred damoſelles, virgins, that had knowen no man, by lyenge with any male. And they broughte them vnto the hooſte to C Silo, whiche is in the lande Canaan.

And the hole congregacion ſente and ſpake with the children of Ben Iamin ẏ were in the Rocke of Rymmon, ⁊ called peaceably vnto them: and Ben Iamin came againe at that tyme, ⁊ they gaue them wiues whiche they had ſaued alyue of the wemen of Iabes Gilead. But they ſuffiſed them not. And ẏ people had compaſſion on Ben Iamin, becauſe that GOD had made a gappe in ẏ trybes of Iſraell. And then the elders of the congregacion, ſaid: what ſhal we do to ẏ remnaunte of thẽ, to get thẽ wiues, ſeyng al the wyues of Ben Iamin are deſtroyed? And they ſayd: there muſt be an enheritaunce for them that be eſcaped of Ben Iamin, that a tribe be not deſtroyed out of Iſraell: howbeit, we may not geue thẽ wyues of our doughters. For the children of Iſraell had ſworne, ſaying: curſed be he, that geueth a wyfe to Ben Iamin.

D Then they ſayde: beholde, there is a feaſt of ẏ LORD yearly in Silo, which is on the northſide of Bethel, and on the eaſt ſyde of the way that goeth frõ Bethel to Sichem, and ſouth from Libanon. Therfore they commaũded ẏ children of Ben Iamin, ſaying: go and lye in wayte in the vineyardes. And whan ye ſe that the doughters of Silo come out to daunce in a rowe, then come ye out of the vyneyardes, and catche you euery man a wyfe of the doughters of Ben Iamin. And whã their fathers or brethren come vnto vs to complayne, we wyll ſay vnto them haue pitye on vs for their ſakes, becauſe we reſerued not to eche man his wyfe in tyme of warre. Neyther haue ye geuen vnto them, that ye ſhould ſynne at this tyme.

And the children of Ben Iamin dyd euen ſo: and toke them wyues accordig to the numbre of them that daunced, whom they caught. And they went, and returned vnto their enheritaunce, ⁊ repayred the cities and dwelt in them.

And the children of Iſrael departed thence at that tyme, ⁊ went euery man to his trybe, and to his kinred, and wẽt out from thence euery man to his enheritaunce. Iud.17.b.

The booke of Ruth.

The firſt Chapter.

Elimelec goeth with his wyfe and children into the lande of Moab

A IT fortuned that (in the dayes of a certaine Iudge) whẽ the iudges iudged, ther fel a dearth in the lãd, and a certen man of Bethlehẽ Iuda wẽt for to ſoiourne in the countrey of Moab: he and hys wife, and his two ſonnes. The name of the man was Elimelec, and the name of his wyfe, Naomi, and ẏ names of his two ſonnes were, Mahlon & Chilion, & they were Ephraites, out of Bethlehẽ Iuda. And when they came vnto ẏ land of Moab, they continued there. And Elimelec Naomies huſbande dyed, and ſhe remayned wt her two ſonnes which toke them wyues of the nacions of the Moabites: the ones name was Orpha, and the others Ruth: And they dwelled there about a ten yere. And Mahlon & Chilion dyed alſo euen both of thẽ, and the woman was lefte deſolate of her B two ſonnes, and of her huſbande. Then ſtode ſhe vp wt her doughters in law, & returned from the countrey of Moab: for ſhe had heard ſay in the countrey of Moab, howe ẏ the LORD had vyſyted his people, & geuen them breade. Wherfore ſhe departed out of the place wher ſhe was, and her two doughters wt her. And they went on their way to returne vnto ẏ lande of Iuda. And Naomi ſaid vnto her two doughters in lawe: go & returne eche of you vnto your mothers houſe: and the LORD deale as kindly wt you, as ye haue dealte wt the dead: and with me. And the LORD geue you, that you may fynde reſt, eyther of you in the houſe of her huſbande. And whan ſhe kyſſed them, they lyſt vp their voyce, & wepte, and ſaid vnto her: we wyll go wt the vnto thy folke. And Naomi ſayde: turne againe my doughters: for what cauſe wyl you go wt me? Are there any mo children in my wombe, to be youre huſbandes? Turne againe my doughters, & go: for I am to olde to haue an huſbande. And yf I ſaid, I haue hope, yf I toke a mã alſo this night: yea and C thoughe I had alreadye borne ſonnes, wolde ye tary after thẽ, tyl they wer of age? or wolde ye for thẽ ſo lõg refraine from takynge of huſbandes? Not ſo my doughters: for it greueth me muche for your ſakes that the hande of the LORD is gone out againſt me.

And they lyfte vp their voyces, & wept againe, & Orpha kyſſed her mother in lawe, but Ruth abode ſtyll by her. And Naomi ſaid: ſe, thy ſyſter in law is gone backe again vnto her people & vnto her goddes: returne ẏ after her. And Ruth anſwered: entreate me not to leaue the, & to returne frõ after the: for whyther thou goeſt, I wil go alſo, & where thou dwelleſt, there I wil dwel: thy people ſhalbe my people, & thy GOD my GOD. Where thou dyeſt there wil I dye, and ther wil I be buried. The LORD do ſo & ſo to me, yf ought but death onely departe the and me a ſondre.

When ſhe ſaw that ſhe was ſtedfaſtly mynded to go wt her, ſhe lefte ſpeaking vnto her. And ſo they wẽt both, vntyll they came to Bethlehẽ. And when they were come to Bethlehem, it was noiſed of thẽ thorow al the citie, & the wemen ſayde: is not this Naomi? And ſhe anſwered thẽ: cal me not Naomi (that is to ſay/bewtyful) but cal me Mara, (that is to ſay/bitter) for ẏ almighty hath made me very bytter. I went out ful & ẏ LORD hath brought me home againe empty: Why thẽ cal ye me Naomi, ſeyng ẏ lord hath humbled me, & ẏ almightye hathe brought me vnto aduerſytie? And ſo Naomi with Ruth the Moabiteſſe her doughter in lawe retourned oute of the countrey of Moab & came to Bethlehẽ, in the beginnyng of Barley harueſt.

The .ii. Chapter.

Ruth gathereth corne in the feldes of Booz.

AND Naomies huſbãde had a kinſman of ſtrength & might (whiche was of ẏ kinred of Elimelec) named Booz. And Ruth the Moabiteſſe ſaid vnto Naomi: let me go to ẏ felde, and gather eares of corne (ſuch as the reapers leaue) after any mã in whoſe ſight I fynde grace. And ſhe ſaide vnto her: go my doughter. And ſhe went and came to the felde, and gathered after ẏ reapers, and her chaunce was, that ẏ ſame felde perteyned vnto Booz, which was of the kinred of Elimelec. And behold, Booz came from Bethlehem, and ſayd vnto the reapers: the LORD be wͭ you. And they anſwered him: ẏ LORD bleſſe the. Then ſaid Booz vnto his yong mā that ſtode by ẏ reapers. Whoſe damoſell is this? And the yong mā that ſtode by ẏ reapers anſwered, and ſaid: it is ẏ Moabytiſhe damoſel, ẏ came wͭ Naomi out of the countrey of Moab, ⁊ ſhe ſaid vnto vs: Oh let me leaſe ⁊ gather after the reapers ẏ eares that remaine: and ſo ſhe came, ⁊ hathe contynued euē from the mornyng vnto now, ſaue that ſhe taried a lytle in the houſe.

Then ſayde Booz vnto Ruth: heareſt thou my doughter? go to no nother field to gather, neither go from hence: but abyde here by my maydens. Let thyne eyes be on the felde that they reape, and go thou after the maidens. Haue I not charged the yonge men, that they ſhal do the no hurte? Moreouer, when thou art athyrſt, go vnto ẏ veſſels and drinke of that whiche the laddes haue drawen. Then ſhe fell on her face and

Gene.33.a. *bowed her ſelfe to the grounde, ⁊ ſaid vnto him: how is it that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, and that thou ſhuldeſt know me, ſeyng I am an aliaunt?

C And Booz anſwered ⁊ ſaide vnto her: al is tolde ⁊ ſhewed me, that thou haſte done vnto thy mother in law, ſence the death of thine huſband, how thou haſte lefte thy father and thy mother, and the lāde where thou waſt borne, ⁊ art come vnto a nacion which thou kneweſt not in tyme paſſed. The LORDE quyte thy worcke, and a ful rewarde be geuen the of ẏ LORD God of Iſrael: vnder whoſe wynges thou art come to abyde. Then ſhe ſaid: let me finde fauour in thy ſight my LORDE, thou ẏ haſte comforted me, and ſpoken hartelye vnto thy mayde, which yet am not lyke vnto one of thy maydens. Booz ſayd vnto her agayne: in tyme of refeccion come thou hyther, and eate of the breade, and dyp thy ſop in the vyneger. And ſhe ſatte downe by

Joſua.5. the reapers, ⁊ he reached her* parched corne: of the whiche ſhe dyd eate, ⁊ was ſuffiſed, and lefte parte. And when ſhe was ryſen vp to gather, Booz cōmaūded his yonge men, ſayinge: let her gather euen amonge the heapes, and forbyd her not. And leaue her ſome of ẏ ſheues for the nonce and let it lye, that ſhe maye gather it vp, (without ſhame) ⁊ rebuke her not. And ſo ſhe gathered in the felde, vntil euen, ⁊ treſſhed ẏ ſhe had gathered, and it was in meaſure vpō an Epha (that is thre buſhels) of barley. And D ſhe toke it vp, and went into the cytye: and whan her mother in lawe had ſene what ſhe had gathered, ſhe plucked out alſo, and gaue to her ẏ ſhe had reſerued, when ſhe had eaten ynoughe. And her mother in law ſayde vnto her: where haſt thou gathered to daye? and where wroughteſt thou? bleſſed be he, ẏ knew the. And ſhe ſhewed her mother in law howe ſhe had wrought wͭ him, ⁊ ſaid: the mannes name with whome I wrought to day is Booz. And Naomi ſaid vnto her doughter in lawe: bleſſed be he of ẏ LORD, for he ceaſeth not to do Tobi.

*good to the lyuing and to the deade. And Naomi ſaid againe vnto her: the man is nye vnto vs, and of oure nexte kynne. And Ruth the Moabite ſaid: he ſayde vnto me alſo. Thou ſhalt be with my yong men, vntyl they haue ended al my harueſt: And Naomi anſwered vnto Ruth her doughter in law: it is beſt my doughter that thou go out with his maydens, that they fal not vpon the in any other felde. And ſo ſhe kepte her by ẏ maydens of Booz, to gather, vnto the ende of barley harueſt, ⁊ of wheate harueſt alſo: ⁊ dwelt wͭ her mother in law.

The.iii. Chapter.

Ruth ſleapeth at Booz fete / and is knowen his kynſwoman.

A THen Naomi her mother in lawe ſayde vnto her: my doughter ſhal I not ſeke reſte for the, ẏ thou mayeſt proſper? And is not Booz oure kynſman, with whoſe maydens thou waſt? Behold, he wenoweth barley to night in the threſſhyng floore: waſſhe thy ſelfe therfore, and anoynte the, and put thy rayment vpon the, and get thee downe to the barne. But let not a man know of thee, vntyll he haue leafte eatyng and drinckyng. And when he goeth to ſleape, marke ẏ place wheare he layeth him downe, ⁊ then go ⁊ lyfte vp ẏ clothes, ẏ are on his fete, and lay thee downe there, and ſo ſhal he tel the what thou ſhalt do. And ſhe anſwered her: al ẏ thou biddeſt me, I wil do. And ſo ſhe wēt downe vnto ẏ barne, ⁊ did accordig to al that her mother in lawe bade her. B

And when Booz had eaten ⁊ dronckē, ⁊ made him mery, ⁊ was gone in, to lye downe beſide ẏ heape of corne, ſhe came ſoftely, and lyfte vp the clothes of hys fete, ⁊ laid her downe. And at midnight the man was afrayde and groped. And beholde: a womã lay at his fete. And he ſaid: what art thou? ſhe anſwered: I am Ruth thyne handmayde ſpreade thy wyng ouer thine handmayde, for thou art the nexte of ẏ kynne. He ſaid: bleſſed be thou in the LORD my doughter, for thou haſt ſhewed more goodnes in the C later ende, thẽ at the beginnynge, in as much as thou folowedeſt not yong mẽ, whether they were pore or riche. And now my doughter feare not, I wil do to the al ẏ thou requireſt, for al the citie of my people doth know, ẏ thou art a woman of vertue. And it is true ẏ I am of thy next kynne, howbeit ther is one nerer than I. Tary this night. And when mornyng is come, yf he wil mary the, it is good, ſo let him do. But and yf he wil not haue the, as ſure as ẏ LORD lyueth I wil haue the: lye ſtyll vntyll the mornyng.

And ſo ſhe laye at his fete vntyll the mornyng. And ſhe aroſe vp before D one coulde know another. And he ſaid: let no man know, that there came anye woman into the barne. And he ſaide agayne: bryng the mantel that thou haſt vpon the, and holde it vp. And whan ſhe helde it vp, he mette in ſyxe meaſures of barley, and layde it on her. And ſhe gat her into the citie, ⁊ whan ſhe came in to her mother in law, ſhe ſaid: how is it wͭ the my doughter? And ſhe tolde her all that the man had done to her. And ſayd alſo: theſe ſyxe meaſures of Barleye gaue he me, ⁊ ſaid: thou ſhalte not come empty vnto thy mother in lawe. Than ſaid ſhe: my doughter, ſyt ſtyl, vntil thou know how ẏ matter wil chaũce. For ẏ man wil not be in reſt, vntil he haue finiſhed the thing this ſame daye.

❡ The.iiii.Chapter.

Booz taketh Ruth to wife, of whõ he begetteth Obed

Then went Booz vnto the gate, ⁊ ſat him downe there: and behold ẏ kynſman of which Booz ſpake, came by. Unto whom he ſaid: come and ſyt downe here, and called him by hys name. And he turned in, ⁊ ſat downe.
And he toke ten mẽ of ẏ elders of ẏ citie, ⁊ ſaid: ſit ye downe here. And they ſat downe. And he ſaid vnto the kinſman: Leui 25.d. Naomi ẏ is come again out of ẏ coũtrey do: but ⁊ yf thou wilt not purchaſe it, then tel me, ẏ I may know. For ther is none to chalenge it, ſaue thou, ⁊ I next the. And the other aunſwered, I wyll purchaſe it.

Then ſaid Booz, what day thou byeſt ẏ felde of ẏ hande of Naomi, thou muſt take alſo Ruth the Moabite ẏ * wyfe of ẏ dead, to ſtyre vp the name of ẏ dead vpõ his enheritaũce. The kynſman anſwered: I cannot purchaſe it, for marring of myne owne enheritaunce: take thou my right to the, for I cannot purchaſe it. Nowe this was the maner of olde tyme in Iſrael concerning purches and chaũging, for to ſtabliſhe al thing: ẏ a man muſt plucke of hys ſhooe ⁊ geue it hys neighbour, and this was a ſure

Therfore ẏ kynſmã ſaid to Booz: Bye it thou: ⁊ ſo drue of his ſhooe. And Booz ſaid vnto the elders ⁊ vnto al ẏ people: ye are wytneſſes this day, that I haue bought al that was Elimelecs, and all that was Chilions ⁊ Mahlons, of the hande of Naomy. And moreouer, Ruth ẏ Moabite ẏ wyfe of Mahlon, haue I purchaſed to be my wife, to ſtyre vp the name of the dead vpõ hys enheritaũce, and that his name be not put out frõ among his brethrẽ, ⁊ from ẏ gate of his

And al the people that were in ẏ gate, and ẏ elders ſaid: we are witneſſes: the LORD make ẏ woman that is come into thine houſe, lyke *Rahel and Lea, which twaine dyd builde ẏ houſe of Iſrael:

whiche the LORDE ſhall geue the of this yonge woman.
And ſo Booz toke Ruth, ⁊ ſhe was his wyfe. And whan he went in vnto her, ẏ B LORD gaue ẏ ſhe conceyued, and bare a ſonne. And the wemen ſaid vnto Naomi: bleſſed be the LORD, the whiche hath not left the without a kynſman, to haue a name in Iſraell, and that ſhall bryng thy lyfe againe, ⁊ cheryſhe thine olde age. For thy doughter in lawe whiche loueth the, hath borne vnto him:
and

and ſhe is better to the then ſeuen ſonnes.
And Naomi toke the childe, ⁊ layed it in her lappe, and became nourſe vnto it.And her neighbours gaue it a

And yf any man ſayde vnto him: let thẽ burne the fat accordyng to the day, and then take as muche as thyne herte deſyreth: The ladde woulde anſwer him, yea, thou ſhalt geue it me nowe: and yf thou wylt not, I wyl take it wͭ violẽce. And the ſynne of the yong men was very great before the LORD. For men abhorred the offring of the LORD.

But the childe Samuel miniſtred before the LORD, girded about wͭ a lynnẽ Ephod. Moreouer, his mother made him a lytle cote, and brought it to hym from yere to yere, when ſhe came vp wͭ her huſbande, to offre the offring in the ſolempne feaſtes: and Eli bleſſed Elkana and his wyfe, and ſayde: the LORDE geue the ſeed of this woman, for yͤ peticion that ſhe aſked of yͤ Lord. And they went vnto their owne home. And the LORD vyſited Hanna, ſo that ſhe conceyued, and bare thre ſonnes, and two doughters. And the chylde Samuel grew before the LORD.

Eli was very olde, and hearde all that his ſonnes did vnto al Iſrael, and howe they lay with the women that wayted at yͤ dore of the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and he ſaid vnto them: why do ye ſuche thinges? For of al theſe people, I heare euyl reportes of you. Oh, naye my ſonnes: for it is no good report yͭ I heare howe that ye make the Lordes people to treſpaſſe. If one man ſynne againſt an other, dayes men maye be iudges: but yf a man ſynne againſt the LORD, who wyll be his dayſeman? Notwithſtandynge, they hearkened not vnto the voyce of their father, because the

LORDE ſhoulde ſlaye them. The childe Samuel proſpyted* and grewe, & was 2.c in fauour both with the LORDE, and alſo with men.

F And there came a man of GOD vnto Eli, and ſayde vnto him: thus ſayeth the LORDE: Dyd not I apere vnto the houſe of thy father when they were in Egipte, ſubiecte vnto Pharaos houſe? And I choſe thy father oute of all the trybes of Iſraell to be my prieſt, to offre vpon myne aultar, and to burne incence, ut.10.b. and to weare an Ephod before ut.12.b me. And I gaue vnto the houſe of thy father all the burntofferynges of the children of Iſrael. Wherfore tread you downe my ſacrifice and myne offryng, whiche I commaunded to be made in the tabernacle, and honoureſt thy children aboue me, to make your ſelues fat of the fyrſt frutes of all the offerynges of Iſraell my people? Wherfore, the LORDE GOD of Iſraell ſayeth: I ſaid that thy houſe, and the houſe of thy father ſhoulde walke before me for euer. G But nowe the LORDE ſayeth: that be farre from me: for them that worſhyp me, I wyll worſhyppe, and they that diſpiſe me, ſhal come to ſhame. Behold, the dayes come, that I wyl cut of thine arme, & the arme of thy fathers houſe, ẏ ther ſhal not be an elder in thine houſe. And thou ſhalt ſee thine enemy in ẏ Tabernacle (of the LORDE) and in all the wealth which (GOD) ſhal gyue Iſrael, and there ſhall not be an elder in thyne houſe for euer. Neuertheleſſe, I wyl not deſtroye all the males that come of the fro myne altar. But to make thyne eies daſe, and to make thyne hert melt. And all they that be multyplyed in thyne 22.b. houſe ſhall dye if they be men.

And this ſhalbe a ſygne vnto thee, ẏ eg.2.g. ſhall come vpon thy two ſons * Hophny and Phinehes: euen in one day they ſhall dye both. And I will ſtire me vp a faythfull prieſt, that ſhall do accordyng to my herte and mynde. And I wyll buylde him a ſure houſe. And he ſhall walke before myne anoynted for euer. And they that are lefte in thyne houſe, ſhall come and crouche to him for a lytle pece of ſyluer, and a cake of breade, and ſhall ſaye: put me (I praye thee) in one offyce or other among the prieſtes, that I maye eate a morſell of breade.

¶ The .iii. Chapter.

The Lord calleth Samuell three tymes.

AND the chylde Samuell miniſtred vnto the LORDE before Eli: and ẏ A word of the LORD was precyous in thoſe dayes, nether was ther any open viſiō. And it chaunced at that tyme, that Eli laye in his place, and his* eyes Reg 4.c beganne to waxe dymme that he could not ſe. And yet the lampe of GOD went out, Samuel layed him downe to ſlepe in the temple of the LORDE, where the arke of GOD was. And the LORD called Samuel, and he ſayde, here I am, & he ran vnto Eli, and ſayde: Here am I, for thou calledſt me. And he ſayde: I called the not: go againe, and ſlepe. And he went and layd him downe to ſlepe. And the LORDE called once agayne: Samuel, and Samuel aroſe and went to Eli, and ſayde: I am here: for thou diddeſt cal me. And he anſwered: I called thee not my ſonne. Go agayne and take thy reſt: Samuell knewe not yet the LORDE, neyther was the worde of the LORDE yet opened vnto him. B And the LORDE went to and called Samuell the thyrde tyme. And he aroſe, and wente to Eli, and ſaide: I am here for thou haſt called me. And Eli perceaued that the LORDE had called the chylde. Therfore Eli ſayd vnto Samuell: goe, and lye down: and if he cal thee againe, then ſay: ſpeake on LORDE, for thy ſeruaunt heareth. So Samuel went, and layed him downe in his place. And the LORDE came, and ſtode, and called as before Samuel Samuel. Samuel anſwered: ſpeake on for thy ſeruaunt heareth. And the LORDE ſaid to Samuel: beholde, I will do a thynge in Iſraell, that both the eares of as many as heareth it, ſhall tyngle. In that daye I wil rayſe vp agaynſt Eli, al thinges which I haue ſpoken concernyng hys houſe, from the begynnynge to the endyng. I haue tolde him* that I wyll iudge his Reg.2.g houſe for euer. For the wyckedneſſe whiche he knoweth. For when the people curſed his ſonnes for the ſame wickednes, he hath not corrected them. And therefore I haue ſworne vnto the houſe of Eli, that ẏ wickednes of Elies houſe, ſhal not be purged with ſacrifice nor offerynge for euer. Samuel laye tyll the mornynge, and opened ẏ dores of the houſe of the LORD.

And Samuel feared to ſhewe Ely yͤ viſion. Then Eli called Samuel, and ſayde: Samuel my ſonne. And he aunſwered: here I am. He ſayde: what is it that the LORDE hath ſayde vnto thee? Ruth.1.c I praye thee hyde it not frõ me. *GOD do ſo, and ſo to thee, yf thou hyde anye thynge from me, of all that he ſayde vnto thee. And Samuell tolde him euery D whit, and hid nothinge from him. And he ſaid, it is the LORD, let him do what ſemeth him beſt.

And Samuel grewe, and the LORD was with him, and left none of his wordes vnperfourmed. And all Iſraell frõ Dan to Berſabe, wyſte that faythfull Samuel was made the LORDES prophete. And the LORDE apeared againe in Silo: for the LORDE opened himſelfe to Samuel in Silo, thorowe the word of the LORDE.

The.iiii. Chapter.

The arke of the Lorde is taken. Eli and his children dye.

A AND Samuel ſpake vnto al Iſrael. (And it fortuned that in thoſe dayes the Philiſtines came together to fyghte.) And Iſraell wente out againſt the Philiſtines 1.Reg.7.d to battayle & pytched beſide the *helpe ſtone. And the Philiſtines pitched in Aphek. And put themſelues in araye againſt Iſraell. And when they ioyned yͤ battel, Iſrael was put to the worſe before the Philiſtines. And the Philiſtines ſlue in araye along by the feldes aboute a foure thouſande men.

And when the people were come into theyr tentes, the elders of Iſrael ſayde: wherfore hath the LORD caſt vs downe this daye before the Philiſtines? let vs fetch the arke of the oppoyntmente of yͤ LORDE out of Silo vnto vs, that whẽ B it commeth amonge vs, it maye ſaue vs oute of the hande of our enemy. And ſo the people ſent to Silo, and fet frõ thẽce the arke of the appointment of yͤ LORD of hoſtes, whiche dwelleth betwene the Cherubyns. And there were the two ſons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehes wͭ the arke of the appoyntmente of GOD. And it fortuned, that when the arke of the appoyntment of the LORDE came into the hooſte, all Iſraell ſhowted a mighty ſhowte, ſo that the earth range agayne.

And when the Philiſtines hearde the noyſe of the ſhout, they ſayd: what meaneth the ſounde of this myghty ſhowte in the hooſte of the Ebrues? And they vnderſtode, howe that the arke of the LORDE was come into the hooſte. And the Philiſtines were afrayed, and ſaid: GOD is come into the hooſte. And they ſayde agayne: Wo vnto vs, for it was neuer ſo before this: Wo vnto vs who ſhal delyuer vs out of the hand of theſe myghtie Goddes? theſe are the Gods yͭ ſmote the Egipcians wͭ ſo many plages in the wilderneſſe. Be ſtrong and quite your ſelues lyke mẽ, O ye Philiſtines, that ye be no ſeruaũtes vnto yͤ Ebrues, *as they haue bene to you. Be of a mãly corage therfore and fyghte. And yͤ Phylſtines fought, and Iſraell was put to the worſe and fled euery man into his tent. And there was an exceding great ſlaughter, for there were ouerthrowen of Iſrael.xxx.M.fotemẽ. And the arke A of GOD was taken, and the two ſons of Eli, *Hophni, and Phinehes were dead. And there ran a man of BenIamin out of the araye, and came to Silo the ſame daye with his clothes rent, and earth vpon his head. And when he came, Eli ſat vpon a ſtole, and loked towarde the waye: for his hert feared for the arke of GOD. And when the man came into the cytye, and tolde it, all the cytie cryed.

And when Eli heard the noyſe of the cryeng, he ſayde: What meaneth thys noiſe of the rumor? And the man came in haſtely, and told Eli. Eli was.xcviii. B yeare olde, and *his ſyghte fayled hym that he coulde not ſe. And the man ſaid vnto Eli: I am he that came out of the araye, and fled thys daye out of yͤ hoſt. And he ſayde: what thinge is fortuned my ſonne? The meſſenger anſwered & ſayde. Iſraell is fled before the Philiſtines, and there is a greate ſlaughter chaunſed amonge the people, and thy two ſonnes, Hophni and Phinehes are dead, and the arke of GOD is taken. And it fortuned that when he made mencyon of the arke of GOD, Eli fell from of his ſtole backewarde vpon the threſholde of the gate, and his necke C brake, and he dyed: for he was an olde man and heuye, and iudged Iſrael fortye yeares.

And his doughter in lawe Phinehes wyfe was with childe and nye yͤ byrth. And when ſhe heard the tydinges that the arke of GOD was taken, and that her father in lawe, and her huſbande were dead, ſhe bowed her ſelfe, and traueled, for her paynes came vpon her.

And about the tyme of her death, the wemen that ſtode aboute her, ſayd vnto her: feare not, for thou haſte borne a ſon: but ſhe anſwered not, nor regarded it. And ſhe named the childe *Ichabod, ſaying: The glory is departed frō Iſrael. Becauſe the arke of GOD was taken, and becauſe of her father in lawe & her huſbande. And ſhe ſayde agayne: The glory is gone from Iſrael, for the arke of GOD is taken.

¶The.v.Chapter.

¶Dagon the God of the Philiſtines is caſt flat before the arke.

A AND the Philiſtines toke the arke of GOD and caryed it from the helpe ſtone vnto Aſdod, agayne ÿ Philiſtines toke the arke of GOD, and brought it into the houſe of Dagō, and ſet it by Dagon. And when they of Aſdod were vp in the nexte daye in the mornyng, beholde, Dagon laye vpon ÿ earth before the arke of the LORDE.

And they toke Dagon, & ſet him in hys place agayne. And when they were vp early in the nexte mornynge, beholde, Dagon laye vpon the grounde before ÿ arke of the LORDE, and his head, and his two handes cut of vpon the threſhholde, that only the ſhape of a fyſh was lefte on him. And therfore is it, that the B prieſtes of Dagon (nether any man that commeth into Dagons houſe) tread not on the threſholde of Dagon in Aſdod, vnto thys daye. But the hande of the LORDE was heuy vpon them of Aſdod, and he deſtroyed them, and ſmote them with emerodes, both Aſdod, and in all the coaſtes therof. (The villages alſo/and the feldes in the myddes of the countre were full/and there came vp mice/and there was a confuſyon of greate death in the citie.) And when the men of Aſdod ſawe that it was ſo, they ſaid: the arke of the GOD of Iſrael ſhal not abyde here with vs, for his hand is ſore vpon vs and vpon Dagon oure GOD.

C They ſent therfore and gathered al the lordes of the Philiſtines vnto them, & ſayde: what ſhall we do with the Arke of the GOD of Iſrael? They anſwered: let the arke of the GOD of Iſrael be caried aboute vnto Gath. And they caryed the arke of the GOD of Iſrael about. And it fortuned, that whē they had caryed it aboute, there was by the hande of the LORDE a myghtie great noyſe in the cytie, and he ſmote the men of ÿ cytye both ſmall and great, and they had ſecret diſeaſes. (And the Gethites toke counſel/and made themſelues preuy ſeates of ſkinnes.) D Therfore they ſent the arke of GOD to Akaron. And aſſone as ÿ arke of GOD, came to Akaron, the Akaronites cried out ſayinge: they haue brought ÿ Arke of the GOD of Iſrael to vs, to ſlee vs & our people.

And ſo they ſent, and gathered together all ÿ lordes of the Philiſtines, and ſayde: ſende away the arke of the GOD of Iſraell, to go agayne to his owne place, that it ſlee vs not and our people. For there was great lamentacion ouer the dead thorow out all the cytie, and ÿ hand of GOD was exceding ſore there. And the men that dyed not, were ſmytten with the Emerodes: and the crye of the cytye went vp to heauen.

The.vi.Chapter.

The kyne brynge home the arke with the rewardes.

A THE arke of the LORDE was in ÿ countrey of the Philiſtines ſeuen monethes, and the Philiſtines called for the prieſtes and the ſothſayers, ſayinge: what ſhall we do with the arke of the LORDE? tell vs wherewith we ſhall ſende it home agayne? They ſayd: yf you ſend the arke of ÿ GOD of Iſrael home agayne, ſend it not empty. But reward it with a treſpace offering: and then ye ſhalbe whole, and it ſhal be knowē to you, why his hand departeth not from you.

Then ſayde they: And what ſhalbe the treſpaſſe offerynge, whiche we ſhall reward him with. They anſwered: fiue golden arſſes, and.v.golden myce, accordyng to the numbre of the lordes of the Philiſtines. For it is one maner of plage on you all, and on youre lordes. Wherfore ye ſhall make ymages like to your arſſes, and ymages lyke to youre myce that corrupt the land, and ye ſhall geue glory vnto ÿ GOD of Iſraell: that he may take his hand from of you, and from of your goddes, and from of youre lande. B Wherfore do ye harden youre hertes as the Egiptians and Pharao hardened their hertes: which when he toke on agaynſte them, dyd they not let the people go, and they departed? Nowe therfore, make a newe carte, and take two melche kine: on whoſe necke there hath come no yocke. And tye the kyne to the carte, ⁊ bringe ỹ calues home frõ them. And take ỹ arke of the LORD, and laye it vpon the carte, ⁊ put the iewels of golde (whiche ye rewarde him wyth for a ſynne offeryng) in a cofre by ỹ ſide therof, and ſende it awaye, that it maye go. And yf ye ſe that he go vp by the way of his owne coaſt to Bethſames: then it is he that dyd vs thys greate euyll. yf no, we ſhall knowe then, that it is not his hande that ſmote vs: but it was a chaunce that happened vs. And the men dyd euen ſo: and toke two kine that gaue mylke, and tyed them to the C carte, and kepte the calues at home, and they layde the arke of the LORDE vpon the carte, ⁊ the cofer with ỹ myce of golde, and with the ymages of theyr arſſes. And the kyne toke the ſtreyghte waye to Bethſames, and wente on the ſtreyght waye: ⁊ as they wente, lowed, and turned neither to the righte hande nor to the lefte. And the lordes of the Philiſtines wente after them, vntil the borders of Bethſames.

And they of Bethſames were reaping theyr wheate harueſt in the valey.
And they lyfte vp theyr eyes, and ſpyed the arke. And reioyſed when they ſawe it. And the carte came into the felde of one Iehoſua a Bethſamite, ⁊ ſtode ſtyll there. There was alſo a greate ſtone.
And they claue the woode of the carte and offered the kyne a burntofferynge vnto the LORDE. And the Leuites toke downe the arke of the LORDE, and the coffer that was with it, wherein the iewels of golde were: and put them on ỹ great ſtone. And the men of Bethſames ſacrificed burntſacrifice, and offred offerynges D ỹ ſame day vnto the LORDE.
And when the fyue lordes of the Philiſtines had ſene it, they returned to Akaron the ſame daye. And theſe are the golden arſſes whiche the Philiſtines gaue to amẽdes for a treſpaceofferinge, Or A,3a. to the LORDE: for Aſdod one: for *Gaza one: for Aſkalon one: for Gath one: ⁊ for Akaron one: And golden myce, accordynge to the number of al the cyties of the Philiſtines, euen accordynge to ỹ fiue lordes, both of walled townes and of townes vnwalled: euẽ vnto ỹ great ſtone of lamentacion, whereon they ſet downe the arke of the LORDE: whiche ſtone remayneth vnto this daye in the felde of Iehoſua the Bethſamite. And he plaged ỹ men of Bethſames, becauſe they had ſene the arke of the LORDE.
And he ſlue amonge the people fyftye thouſande and three ſcore and ten men.
And the other people lamẽted, becauſe the LORDE had ſlayne the people with ſo greate a ſlaughter. Wherfore ỹ men of Bethſames ſayd: who is able to ſtãd before the LORDE ſo holy a GOD: and to whom ſhall he go from vs? And they ſent meſſengers to the enhabyters of Kariath Iarim, ſayinge: The Philiſtines haue brought agayne the arke of ỹ LORD: come ye downe therfore, and ſet it vp to you.

The. vii. Chapter.

The arke is brought to Kariathiarim.

AND ſo ỹ mẽ of Kariathiarim came, and ſet vp the arke of the LORDE: and *brought it into the houſe of Aminadab in Gibea, and ſanctified Eleazar his ſonne, to kepe the arke of the LORDE: and whyle the arke abode in Kariathiarim ỹ dayes multiplyed, and there paſſed ouer twenty yeres, and the houſe of Iſrael lamẽted after ỹ LORD.
And Samuell ſpake vnto all the houſe of Iſrael, ſaying: yf ye be come agayne vnto the LORDE with al youre hertes, then *put awaye the ſtraunge goddes and Aſtharoth from amonge you: and prepare your hertes vnto the LORDE, and ſerue him *onelye: for he ſhall ryd you out of the hande of the Philiſtines.
Then the children of Iſrael dyd put awaye Baalim ⁊ Aſtharoth, and ſerued the LORDE onely. And Samuel ſayde: gather all Iſrael to Mizpa, and I wyl praye for you vnto the LORDE. And they gathered together to Mizpa, and drewe water: and powred it out before the LORD, and faſted the ſame daye, ⁊ ſayd there: we haue ſynned agaynſt the LORDE. And Samuel iudged the children of Iſraell in Mizpa. When the Philiſtines hearde that the children of Iſrael were gathered together to Mizpa, the lordes of the Philiſtines wente vp agaynſt Iſraell. And when the children of Iſraell hearde that, they were afrayed

afrayed of yͤ Philiſtines, and yͤ children of Iſrael ſayd to Samuel: ceaſſe not to crye vnto the LORDE our GOD for vs, C that he maye ſaue vs oute of the hande l.46.b of the Philiſtines. *And Samuel toke a ſuckyng lambe, and offered it altogether for a burntofferig vnto the LORD, and cryed vnto the LORD for Iſraell, & the LORDE hearde him. And as Samuel offred the burntoffering, the Philiſtines came to fyght agaynſt Iſraell. But the LORD thondred a great thonder that ſame daye among the Philiſtines, and ſcattered them, that they fell before Iſraell. And the men of Iſrael went out to Miſpa, and purſued the Philiſtines, and folowed vpon them D vntyl the place that is vnder Bethcar.

.24.f And then Samuel *toke a ſtone and pitched it betwene Miſpa & the marke of the rocke, and called the name therof, eg.4.a the *ſtone of helpe, ſaying: Hytherto hath the LORDE helped vs. And ſo the Philiſtines were brought vnder, & they came nomore into the coaſtes of Iſrael: and the hand of yͤ LORD was agaynſt the Philiſtines all the dayes of Samuel. Therto the cities which the Philiſtines had taken from Iſraell, were reſtored agayne to Iſraell, euen from Acaron to Gath: with the coaſtes of yͤ ſame, and Iſraell plucked them out of the handes of the Philiſtines. And there was peace betwene Iſrael and yͤ Amorites. Samuel iudged Iſraell all the dayes of his lyfe, and wente aboute yeare by yeare to Bethel, Gilgal, and Miſpa, and iudged Iſraell in all thoſe places, and came agayne to Rama: for there was his houſe, and there he iudged Iſraell alſo, & there he buylt an alter vnto the LORDE.

¶The people require a kyng.

A WHē Samuel was olde, he made his ſonnes iudges ouer Iſrael. The name of his eldeſt ſon was Ioel, and the name of the ſecond Abia: & they were iudges in Beerſeba. And his ſonnes walked not in hys wayes: ut.16.c but turned aſyde after lucre, and *toke rewarde, and peruerted the right. Thē all the elders of Iſrael gathered them ut.17.c togyther, and came to Samuel vnto eg.12.f Rama, and ſayd vnto him: behold, thou e.13.c arte olde, and thy ſonnes walke not in 3.b thy wayes. Nowe therfore *make vs a kynge to iudge vs, as all other nacyons haue. B But the thynge diſpleaſed Samuel, when they ſayde: gyue vs a kyng to iudge vs. And Samuel prayed vnto the LORDE. And the LORDE ſayd vnto Samuel, heare the voyce of the people in all yͭ they ſay vnto the. For they haue not caſt the away, but me: that I ſhuld not raygne ouer thē. And as they haue euer done (ſins I brought them oute of Egipt vnto this daye: and haue forſakē me, and ſerued other Gods) euen ſo do they vnto thee. Nowe therefore herken vnto their voice: howe be it, yet teſtifie vnto them and ſhewe them *the autho- Deut.17.c rytie of the kynge that ſhall raygne ouer them. C And Samuell tolde all the wordes of the LORDE vnto the people that aſked a kynge of him, and he ſaide: this ſhalbe the authoritie of the kynge that ſhal raygne ouer you: *he wil take 3.Reg.9.d youre ſonnes and put them to his charettes, and make his horſemē of thē, to runne before his charet, and will make him of them, captaynes ouer thouſādes and ouer fyfties, and wyll ſet them to eare his grounde, and to gather in hys harueſt, and to make inſtrumentes of warre, and apparel for his charrettes. And he wyll take youre doughters and make thē apoticaries, cookes and bakers. And he ſhal take yͤ beſt of your feldes, *& of your vineyardes, & of your o- 3.Reg.21.a liue tres, & giue thē to his ſeruātes. And he ſhal take yͤ tenth of your ſeede, and of your vyneyardes, & gyue it to hys chāberlaynes: and to his ſeruauntes. And he ſhall take the beſt of youre men ſeruauntes, and maydeſeruauntes, & yong men, and of your aſſes, and put them to his worke. And he ſhall take the tenth D of your ſhepe, & ye ſhal be his ſeruātes. And ye ſhall crye out at that time vpon your kynge, whiche ye ſhal haue choſen you, and the LORD wyl not heare you at that daye.

Neuertheleſſe, the people would not heare the voyce of Samuel, but did ſaye: naye, not ſo. But there ſhalbe a kynge ouer vs, that we maye be like other nacions, and that oure kynge maye iudge vs, and go oute before vs, and fyghte oure battayles (for vs.) Therfore, when Samuel hearde all the wordes of the people, he rehearſed them in the eares of the LORDE. And the LORDE ſayde to Samuel: herken vnto theyr voyce, & make them a kynge: And Samuel ſayd vnto the men of Iſraell: go euery man vnto his cytie.

The.ix. Chapter.

Saule the ſonne of Cis is choſen kynge.

A 1.reg.14.g 1.Par.8.d

THere was a man of Ben Iamin named *Cis the ſonne of Abiel, yͤ ſonne of Zeroꝛ, the ſonne of Bechoꝛath, the ſonne of Aphiah, the ſonne of a man that was a Ieminite, a man of ſtrength and myghte: and the ſame had a ſonne called Saule, a goodlye yonge man and a fayꝛe: ſo that among the childꝛen of Iſrael there was none goodlier then he. Foꝛ from the ſhulders vpward, he was hier then all the other people.

And yͤ aſſes of this Cis, Sauls father, were loſt: and Cis ſayde to Saule hys ſonne: take one of the laddes with the, and goe vp, and ſeke the aſſes. And he went thoꝛowe mount Ephꝛaim, & thoꝛowe the lande of Saliſa: but they foūd them not. Then they went thoꝛowe the lande of Sali, and there they were not. When they went alſo thoꝛow the lande of Iemini, they founde them not. At the laſte when they were come to the lande of Zuph, Saule ſayde vnto his lad that was with him: come let vs returne, leſt my father leaue caring foꝛ yͤ aſſes, and take thought foꝛ vs. He ſaide vnto him: beholde, there is in this citie a man of GOD, and he is a woꝛſhypfull man, all that he ſayeth commeth ſurely to paſſe. Nowe then let vs go thyther: peraduēture he ſhall ſhewe vs what waye we maye goe. Then ſayde Saule to hys lad: yf we wyll go, what ſhall we bꝛing the man? Foꝛ our bꝛead is al ſpent out of our veſſels, and there is none other pꝛeſent to bꝛyng the man of GOD: what haue we? And the lad anſwered Saule agayne, and ſayd: I haue found aboute B me the fourth parte of a ſicle that wyll I gyue the man of GOD, to tell vs our waye.

Befoꝛe tyme in Iſraell whan a man went to ſeke an anſwere of GOD, thus wiſe he ſpake: come, and let vs go to the ſear. Foꝛ he that is nowe called a Pꝛophete was in the olde time called a ſear. Then ſayde Saule to his lad: wel ſaide of thee: come, let vs go. And ſo they went vnto the citie where the man of GOD was. And as they were goynge vp into the citie, they mette with damoſels that came out to dꝛawe water, and ſaid vnto them: is there here a ſear? And the maidens anſwered them: yea, (here is one) Beholde, he is befoꝛe you. Make haſte nowe, foꝛ he came this daye to the cytie, foꝛ there is an offerynge of the people this day in the hyll. When ye be come into the citie ye ſhal finde him ſtreyght waye yer he goe vp to the hyll to eate: foꝛ the people wyll not eate vntyll he come, bicauſe he doth bleſſe the offering. And then eate they that be bydden to yͤ feaſt. Now therfoꝛe get you vp, foꝛ this daye ſhall ye fynde him. And they went vp into the cytie. And when they were come into the myddes of the cytie: Beholde, Samuel came out againſt them, foꝛ to go vp to the hyl. *But the LORD had tolde Samuel in his eare (a day befoꝛe Saule came,) ſayinge: to moꝛowe this tyme I wyll ſende the a man oute of the lande of Ben Iamin, hym ſhalte thou annoynte to be captayne ouer my people Iſrael, that he may ſaue my people out of yͤ handes of yͤ Philiſtines: foꝛ I haue loked vpon my people, and their crye is come vnto me. When Samuel therfoꝛe ſawe Saule, the LORDE anſwered him: ſee, this is the man whom I ſpake to the of. This ſame ſhal raigne ouer my people.

Then went Saule to Samuel in yͤ myddle of the gate, and ſayde: tell me I pꝛaye thee where the ſears houſe is. Samuel anſwered Saul, and ſayde: I am the ſear, go vp befoꝛe me vnto yͤ hyl, foꝛ ye ſhall eate with me to day. And to moꝛowe I wyll let thee go, and wyl tell the al that is in thine herte. And as foꝛ thyne aſſes that were loſt thꝛe dayes agoe: care not foꝛ them, foꝛ they are foūd: And moꝛeouer whoſe ſhal the beautiful thynges of Iſrael be? Belonge they not to thee, and to al thy fathers houſe? But Saule anſwered and ſayde: am not I the ſonne of a Ieminite of the ſmalleſt trybe of Iſraell? and my kynred is the leeſt of all the kynredes of the trybe of Ben Iamin. Wherefoꝛe then ſpeakeſt thou ſo to me? And Samuel toke Saul and his lad, and bꝛought them into the parlour, and made thē ſyt in the chiefeſt place amonge them that were bydden: whiche were vpon a thyꝛtye parſons. And Samuel ſaid vnto the cooke: bꝛing foꝛth the poꝛcion whiche I gaue thee, & of whiche I ſayd vnto thee: kepe it with thee. And the cooke toke vp yͤ ſhoulder, and that whiche was vpon it: and ſet it before Saule. And Samuel ſayde: beholde, that whiche is left: put it before the and eate: for hitherto hathe it bene kepte for thee, of purpoſe, when I called the people. And ſo Saul did eat wᵗ Samuel that daye. And when they were come downe from the hyll into the cytie, Samuel communed with Saule vpon the toppe of the houſe: and when they aroſe early aboute the ſprynge of yͤ daye, Samuel called Saule vpon the toppe of the houſe, ſayinge: vp, that I maye ſende the away. And Saul aroſe.

And they went out at the dores, bothe he and Samuel. And when they were come almoſte out of the towne, Samuel ſaide to Saule: byd the ladde go before vs (and he went before) but ſtande thou ſtyll a while, that I may ſhew the what GOD ſaieth.

The.xii.Chapter.

The peeple renueth the kyngdom of Saule.

A Nahas the Ammonite came, and beſieged Iabes in Gilead. And all the men of Iabes ſayde vnto Nahas:make a couenaunt with vs,and we wil be thy ſeruauntes. And Nahas the Ammonite anſwered them:In this wyll I make a couenaunte with you, yf I maye thruſt out al your ryght eies, and bring that ſhame vpõ al Iſrael. To whome the elders of Iabes ſayd: gyue vs ſeuẽ dayes reſpite: that we may ſend meſſengers vnto all the coaſtes of Iſrael. And then yf there be no mã to help vs:we wyll come out to thee. Thẽ came the meſſengers to Gibea vnto Saule, and tolde this tidynges in the eares of B the people. And all the people lyfte vp theyr voyces and wepte. And beholde, Saule came folowyng the cattel oute of the felde,and Saul ſayd:what aileth this people,ỹ they wepe? And they tolde him the tydynges of the men of Iabes. B And the ſpirit of GOD came vpõ Saul, whẽ he hearde thoſe tydynges, and he was excedyng angry, ⁊ toke a yoke of oxen, and hewed them in peces,and ſent them thorowoute all the coaſtes of Iſraell by the handes of meſſengers, ſayinge:whoſoeuer commeth not forth after Saule and after Samuel,ſo ſhal his oxẽ be ſerued. And ỹ feare of ỹ LORD fell on the people,and they came out as it hadde bene but one man. And when he*numbred them in Bezeck, the chyldren of Iſrael were thre hundred thouſande men:and the men of Iuda thyrtye thouſande. And they ſayde vnto the meſſengers that came:ſo ſaye vnto the men of Iabes in Gilead:to morowe by that tyme ỹ ſunne be hote, ye ſhal haue helpe. And the meſſengers came ⁊ ſhewed the mẽ of Iabes,which were glad. Therefore the men of Iabes ſayde:to morowe we wyll come out vnto you, ⁊ ye ſhall do with vs al that pleaſeth you. And on the morowe it fortuned, that Saule put the people in thre partes,⁊ they came in vpon the hooſte in the mornynge watche,and ſlue the Ammonites vntyll ỹ heate of ỹ daye. And they that remayned, were ſcattered: ſo that two of them were not lefte togyther. And ỹ people ſayd vnto Samuel: what is he that dare ſaye:ſhall Saule raigne ouer vs? brynge thoſe mẽ,that we maye ſlaye them.

And Saule ſayde:there ſhall no man dye thys daye, for to daye the LORDE hath ſaued Iſraell. Then ſayd Samuel vnto the people:come, that we may go to Gilgal,and renue ỹ kyngdom there. And all the people went to Gilgall,and made Saule kynge there before the LORDE in Gilgal. And there they offered peaceoffrynges before the LORDE. And there Saule and al the men of Iſrael reioyſed excedyngly.

The.xii.Chapter.

Samuel declareth him ſelfe to be an innocẽt iudge.

Samuel ſayde vnto all Iſrael: beholde, I haue herkened vnto your voyce in all that ye ſayd vnto me, and haue made you a kynge. Nowe therfore,your king walketh before you. Then ſaid Ionathas: my father hathe troubled the lande: ſe howe myne eyes haue receyued ſight, bycauſe I taſted a lytle of this hony, how much more then to daye yf the people had eaten of the ſpoile of their enemies which they foūd: And had there not bene thē a muche greater ſlaughter amōg yͤ Philiſtines: And they layed on the Philiſtines that day, from Michmas to Aialō. And the people were excedynge faynte.

And the people gat them to yͤ ſpoyle, ⁊ E toke ſhepe, oxen, and calues, ⁊ ſlue them on yͤ groūde, ⁊ the people did eate them *with the bloude. Then mē told Saul, Le.7.c.d. and.19.f. ſaying: Behold, yͤ people ſyn againſte yͤ LORD, in yͭ they eate wͭ yͤ bloud. And he ſayde: ye haue treſpaſſed. And the people brought euery mã his oxe in his hande by night ⁊ ſlue them there. And Saul made an aultare vnto ỹ LORD. And that was ỹ firſt aultar ỹ he made vnto ỹ LORD. And Saul ſaid: let vs go downe after the Philiſtines by night, and ſpoile thẽ vntyl it be daye in the mornynge, ⁊ let vs not leaue one man of thẽ. And they ſaid: Do whatſoeuer thou thinkeſt beſt.

F Then ſaid ỹ preaſt: let vs come hyther vnto GOD. And Saul aſked of GOD: ſhal J go downe after ỹ Philiſtines? Wilt thou delyuer them into ỹ handes of Jſrael? But, he anſwered him not at that tyme. And Saul ſaid: let the people come hyther out of al quarters, and know ⁊ ſe by whõ this ſynne is chaũced this day: for as truly as ỹ LORD liueth which saueth Jſraell, thoughe it be in Jonathas my ſonne, he ſhall dye the death. But there was no man among al the people, that anſwered him.

Then he ſaid vnto al Jſrael: be ye on one ſyde, and J and Jonathas my ſon wyl be on the other ſyde. And the people ſaid vnto Saul: what thou thinkeſt beſt, ỹ do. Therfore Saul ſaid vnto ỹ Lord God of Jſrael: gyue a perfect lot. (Lorde God geue thou the iudgemẽt. How happeneth it/ that thou geueſt thy ſeruaunte no anſwere to day? And Saul ſaid: caſt lottes betwene me and Jonathas my ſonne. And Jonathas was caught. Then Saul ſaid to Jonathas: tel me what thou haſte done? And Jonathas tolde him, and ſayde: J taſted a lytle honye with the ende of the rod that was in myne hande: and lo, J muſte dye.

Saul aunſwered: *God do ſo and ſo

And then Saul departed vp frõ folowyng the Philiſtines. And the Philiſtines went to theyr owne place. And ſo Saul helde ỹ kingdome ouer Jſrael, and fought againſt al his enemyes on euery ſyde: againſte Moab: againſt the children of Ammon: againſt Edom: againſte the kynges of zoba, and againſt the Philiſtines. And whitherſoeuer he turned him ſelfe, ther he wan: and he gathered his hoſt together and ſmote the *Amalekites, ⁊ ryd Jſrael out of the handes of them that ſpoyled thẽ. The ſonnes of Saul were Jonathas, Jeſui, and Melchiſua. And his two doughters were thus named: the elder was called Merob, ⁊ ỹ yonger Michol. And the name of Sauls wyfe was Ahinoa the doughter of Ahimaaz. And the name of his chefe captaine was Abner ỹ ſon of Ner, Sauls vncle. And *Cis was Sauls father. And Ner the father of Abner was the ſon of Abiel. And there was ſore warre againſt the Philiſtines al the dayes of Saul. And whomſoeuer Saul ſaw to be a ſtrong man, and mete for ỹ war, he toke him vnto him.

The. xv. Chapter.

Saule is commaunded to ſley Amalek. He is diſobedient to the voyce of God. Samuel mourneth for Saul.

SAmuel ſayde vnto Saul: *the LORD ſent me to annoynte the, ⁊ to be king ouer his people Jſrael. Now therfore hearken thou vnto ỹ voice of ỹ wordes of ỹ Lord. Thus ſayeth the LORD of hooſtes: J remembre ỹ which Amalek did to Jſrael, howe they layed wait for them in ỹ way, as they came out of Egipt. Now therfore go, and ſmyte Amalek, and deſtroye ye al that pertayneth vnto them: ⁊ ſe thou haue no compaſſion on them (And coueт nothing that they haue) ſlaye both man and woman, infante and ſuckelynge, oxe ⁊ ſhepe, camell, and aſſe.

And Saul gathered the people together, and *numbred them in Telaim, two hundred thouſande fotemen, and ten thouſande mẽ of Juda. And Saul came to a cytie of Amalek, ⁊ ſet watch in the valleye. And Saul ſayde vnto the Kenites: go, and departe, and get you downe from amonge the Amalekites, leſt J deſtroye you with them: for ye ſhewed mercy to al ỹ childrẽ of Jſrael, whẽ they came out of Egipt. And ſo the Kenites departed from a monge the Amalekytes.

And Saule ſmote the Amalekites frō Heuila as thou cōmeſt to Sur, ẏ lieth before Egipt, ⁊ toke Agag ẏ kinge of the Amalekytes alyue, and vtterly deſtroyed all the people with the edge Nu.24.b. of ẏ ſwearde. *But Saul ⁊ the people ſpared Agag, and the better ſhepe, and the fatter oxen, ⁊ the lambes, and all ẏ was good, ⁊ would not deſtroye them.
But all ẏ was foule ⁊ nought worthe, C that they deſtroied vtterly. Then came the worde of the LORD vnto Samuel, Gene.6.c ſayinge: it *repenteth me that I haue made Saul kinge. For he is turned fro me, and hathe not perfourmed my cōmaundementes.
And Samuel was euyl apayed, and cryed vnto the LORDE al night. And when Samuel roſe early to mete Saul in the mornyng, it was told Samuel, that Saul was come to Carmel: and behold, he hath made him there a place, ⁊ is turned, and departed, and gone downe to Gilgal.
D And Samuel came to Saul, and (Saul offered burnt ſacrifice vnto the Lorde, of the firſt of ẏ ſpoiles which he had brought from Amalec: and when Samuel was come vnto Saul) Saul ſaid vnto him: Bleſſed be thou in ẏ LORD. I haue fulfilled ẏ commaundement of ẏ LORD. Samuel ſaid: what meaneth then the bleatyng of the ſhepe in myne eares, and the noyſe of the oxen which I heare? Saul anſwered: they haue brought them from the Amalekites.
For the people ſpared the beſt of ẏ ſhepe and of the oxen to ſacrifice them vnto the LORDE thy GOD. And the remnaunte haue we deſtroyed vtterly.
Samuel ſaid to Saul: let me tel the what ẏ LORDE hathe ſayde to me this

10.a. ſaid: *whē thou waſt litle in thine owne ſight, waſt thou not made ẏ head of the trybes of Iſrael? And the LORD anoynted the kyng ouer Iſraell. And ẏ LORD ſent the on a iourney, ⁊ ſaid: Go, and vtterly deſtroye thoſe ſynners the Amalekites, and fighte againſt thē, vntyl thou vtterly deſtroy thē. And wherfore haſte thou not herkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE, but haſte tourned to the praye, and haſt doone that which is wycked in the ſight of the LORD.
E And Saule ſayd vnto Samuel: yea, I haue herkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE, and haue gone the way which ẏ LORD ſent me vnto, ⁊ haue broughte Agag the kynge of Amalek, and haue vtterly deſtroyed the Amalekites. But ẏ people toke of the ſpoile, ſhepe, oxen, ⁊ the chefeſt of the thinges which ſhould haue bene deſtroyed, to offre vnto the LORDE thy GOD in Gilgal. And Samuel ſaid: hath ẏ LORD as great pleaſure in burnt ſacrifices and offringes, as when the voyce of the LORDE is obeyed?
Beholde, to obey is better then ſacrifice: ⁊ to herken is better then the fat of rammes. For rebellion is as ẏ ſin of *witchcraft, ⁊ ſtubburneſſe is as the Exo.22.c. wickedneſſe of ydolatry. Becauſe thou Deu.18.d.

F And Saul ſaid vnto Samuel: I haue ſynned, for I haue gone further thē the ſaying of ẏ Lord and thy wordes, becauſe I feared the people, and obeyed their voyce. Nowe therfore take away my ſynne, ⁊ turne againe with me, that I may worſhip the Lorde. And Samuel ſaid vnto Saul: I wil not returne wͭ the: for thou haſt caſt away ẏ worde of the LORD, and the LORD hathe caſt away the, ẏ thou ſhalt not be kinge ouer Iſraell. And as Samuel turned hym ſelfe to go away, he caught the lappe of his coate, and it rent. And Samuel ſaid vnto him: the LORD hath rent ẏ kyngdome of Iſrael from the this day, ⁊ hath geuen it to a neyghbour of thine, that is better thē thou. The ſtrength of Iſraell wyll not begyle nor repent: for he is not a man that can repent.
G He ſaid: I haue ſynned. But nowe honour me before the elders of my people, and before Iſrael, and turne again with me, that I maye worſhyppe the LDRDE thy GOD. And ſo Samuel tourned againe, and folowed Saul.
And Saul worſhipped the LORDE.
Then ſaid Samuel: Brynge ye hyther to me Agag the kynge of the Amalekites.
And Agag came vnto hym delicatelye.
And Agag ſayed: trulye thy bytter deathe commeth on. And Samuel ſayed: as thy ſwerde hath made womē aboue other women: And Samuel hewed Agag in peces before the departed to Rama. And Saull wente home to his houſe to Gibea Saul. And Samuel came no more to ſe Saul vntil ẏ day of his death. Neuertheleſſe Samuel mourned for Saul, ⁊ the LORDE repented, that he had made Saul kyng ouer Iſrael.

¶ The. xvi. Chapter.

¶ Dauid is annoynted kyng. An euyll ſprite commeth vpon Saul.

A THe LORDE ſayde vnto Samuel: How long wilt thou mourne for Saul, ſeyng I haue caſt him away from raynynge ouer Iſrael? Fyll thyne horne with oyntement, ⁊ come, ẏ I may ſēde the to Iſai ẏ Bethlehemite, for I haue prouyded me a kyng amōg his ſōnes. And Samuel ſaid: how can I go? For yf Saul heare it, he wyl kyl me. The Lord anſwered: Take an heyfer with the, and ſay: I am come to offre to the LORD. And cal Iſai to the offring, and I wyl ſhewe the, what thou ſhalt do: ⁊ thou ſhalt annoint him whō I name vnto the. And ſo Samuel dyd as ẏ LORD bad him, ⁊ came to Bethlehem, ⁊ the elders of the towne were aſtonyed at his cōming, ⁊ ſaid: * Cōmeſt (3.Reg.2.c.) B thou peaceably? He anſwered: yea, I am come to offre vnto the LORDE. Sanctifie * (Num.11.d Ioſu.3.b. and.7.c) your ſelues, ⁊ come wᵗ me to the offring. And he ſanctified Iſai ⁊ his ſonnes, and bad thē to the offringe. And when they wer come he loked on Eliab, and ſaide: Surely ẏ Lordes annoynted is before him. But the LORD ſaid vnto Samuel: loke not on his faſſion, or on the heigth of his ſtature, bycauſe I haue refuſed him: For GOD ſeeth not as manne ſeeth. For man loketh on the outwarde apperaunce: but GOD beholdeth the heart. Then Iſai called Abinadab, and made him come before Samuel. And he ſayde: neyther hath the LORDE choſen this. Then Iſai made Samma come, ⁊ he ſaid: neyther yet hath ẏ LORD choſe him. Again Iſai made ſeuē of his ſōnes to come before Samuel: ⁊ Samuel ſaid vnto Iſai: the LORD hath choſen none of theſe.

C And Samuel ſaid vnto Iſai: are here al thy children? He ſayde: there is yet a lytle one behinde ẏ kepeth ẏ ſhepe. And Samuel ſaid vnto Iſai: ſende ⁊ fet him, for we wil not ſit downe, tyl he be come hither. And he ſent, ⁊ brought him in. And he was browne, ⁊ of an excellent beauty, * ⁊ wel fauoured in ſight. And ẏ LORD ſaid: Aryſe, ⁊ annoint him for this is he. Therfore Samuel toke the horne with the oyntment, ⁊ annoynted him in the myddes of his brethren. And the ſpirit of ẏ LORD came vpō Dauid, from ẏ daye forewarde. And Samuel roſe vp, and went to Rama.

But the ſpirit of ẏ LORD departed from Saul, ⁊ an euil ſpirit ſente of the LORD vexed him. And Sauls ſeruaūtes ſaid vnto him: Beholde, an euil ſpirit ſent of GOD vexeth the, let our lord therfore commaunde his ſeruauntes (ẏ are before the) to ſeke a mā, ẏ is a connyng player wᵗ an harpe: ẏ when ẏ euil ſpirit ſent of GOD commeth vpon the, he maye playe wᵗ his hande, ⁊ thou ſhalt be eaſed. Saul ſaid vnto his ſeruaūtes: prouyde me a man then that can playe wel, and bryng him to me. Thē anſwered one of his ſeruaūtes, and ſaid: Beholde, D I haue ſene a ſon of Iſai ẏ Bethlehemyte, that can playe vpō inſtrumētes, and is an actyue felowe, and a mā of war and prudent in doyng of feates, and wel made, ⁊ the LORD is wᵗ him. Wherfore Saul ſent meſſengers vnto Iſai, ⁊ ſaid: ſende me Dauid thy ſonne, which is wᵗ ẏ ſhepe. And Iſai toke an aſſe laden with bred ⁊ a ſtacket of wine, and a kyd, ⁊ ſent them by Dauid his ſon vnto Saul. And Dauid came to Saul, and ſtode before him, and he loued him very wel, and he was made his harneſbearer. And Saul ſent to Iſai, ſaying: let Dauid remayne wᵗ me, for he hathe founde fauour in my ſight. And ſo it fortuned, that when the euil ſpirit ſent of GOD came vpon Saul, Dauid toke an harpe and played with his hande, ⁊ ſo Saul was refreſhed, and did amēd, and the euil ſpirite departed from him.

¶ The. xvii. Chapter.

Dauid ouercometh great Goliah.

THe Philiſtines gathered theyr hooſt to battail, ⁊ came together A to Socoth which is in Iuda, and pitched betwene Socoth ⁊ Azekah, in ẏ coaſt of Dammin: And Saul ⁊ the mē of Iſrael came together, and pytched in the ockevalley, ⁊ put them ſelues in araye to fight againſt the Philiſtines. And the Philiſtines ſtode on an hyll on the one ſyde, and Iſraell ſtode on an hyll on the other ſyde, and there was a valley betwene them. And there cam a man betwene them both, out of yͤ ten-tes of the Philiſtines, named Goliah Iosu. 11. d * of Gath. vi. cubytes & an hāde bredth hundred ſycles of yron. And one bearing a ſhylde went before him.

And he ſtode & cryed againſt yͤ hooſte of Iſrael, and ſaid vnto them: Why are ye come out in aray to battayle? am not I a Philiſtine and you ſeruauntes to Saul? choſe you a man from amōge B you, and let him come downe to me.
And yf he be hable to fight with me, & to beate me: thē wil we be your ſeruaū-tes. But yf I can ouercome him, and beate him, then ſhal ye be our ſeruauntes, and ſerue vs. And yͤ Philiſtine ſaid: I defye the hooſt of Iſrael this daye, geue me a man, that we may fighte together. When Saul & al Iſrael hearde thoſe wordes of yͤ Philiſtine, they were diſcouraged, and greatly afrayde. Da-uid was the ſonne of an Ephrathite (of whome mencion is made afore) of Bethlehem Iuda, named Iſai, whiche had eyght ſonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saul, and came to age among mē. And the thre eldeſt ſonnes of Iſai went, and folowed Saul to yͤ bat-tayle. And the names of his thre ſōnes yͭ went to battayle, wer Eliab yͤ eldeſt, and yͤ next Abinadab, & the thirde Sāma, & Dauid was the leeſt. And the thre eldeſt wēt after Saul. Dauid alſo wēt, and departed frō Saul to feede his fathers ſhepe at Bethlehem. And yͤ Phi-liſtine came forth in the mornynge, and euenynge, and continued forty dayes.

And Iſai ſaid vnto Dauid his ſonne: take for thy brethren an Epha of thys parched corne, and theſe ten loues, and bryng it vnto the hooſt to thy brethren.
And cary theſe. x. freſhe cheſes vnto the captaine, & loke howe thy brethrē fare, and fet out their pledge. And Saul and they, & al the men of Iſrael were in the C ocke valley, fyghtyng with the Philiſtines. And Dauid roſe vp early in yͤ mor-nynge, and lefte the ſhepe with a keper keper, and toke and went as Iſai had commaūded him, and came within the compaſſe of yͤ hooſt. And the hooſt went out in araye, and ſhouted in yͤ battaile: for Iſrael and the Philiſtines had put thē ſelues in araye, the one againſt yͤ other. And Dauid toke downe yͤ gear frō him, & put them vnder the handes of the keper of the veſſels, and ran into yͤ hoſt, and came: and ſaluted his brethrē. And as he talked wᵗ thē, Beholde, ther ſtode a man in the myddes (Goliah the Phi-liſtine by name, of Gath) out of yͤ araye of the Philiſtines, and ſpake of yͤ maner aboue rehearſed, that Dauid hearde it.
And al the men of Iſraell, when they ſawe the man, ran away from him, and were ſore afrayed. And euery man of Iſrael ſayde: Sawe ye this man come forth? euen to reuyle Iſrael is he come. Iosu. 15. c *And to him that beateth him wyll the kyng gyue great richeſſe, and wyl geue him his doughter therto: yea, and make his fathers houſe free in Iſrael. D

And Dauid ſpake to the men yͭ ſtode by, and ſaid: What ſhalbe done to yͤ mā that beateth this Philiſtine, & taketh awaye the ſhame frō Iſrael? And what is this vncircumciſed Philiſtine, yͭ he ſhould reuyle the hooſt of the lyuynge GOD? And the people anſwered hym (after this maner) ſaying: ſo ſhall it be done to the mā yͭ beateth him. And Eliab his eldeſt brother hearde when he ſpake vnto the men, & Eliab was angry wᵗ Dauid, and ſaid: why cameſt yͧ downe hither? & with whō haſt thou lefte thoſe fewe ſhepe in the wilderneſſe? I knowe thy pryde & the malyce of thine hearte, that thou art come downe to ſe yͤ bat-now done? is there not a worde? And he departed from him into the preſence of an other, and ſpake of the ſame maner: and the people anſwered him again as before.

And they that heard yͤ wordes which Dauid ſpake, rehearſed them before Saul, which cauſed him to be fet. And Dauid ſaid to Saul: Let no mās heart faile him becauſe of him. Thy ſeruaunt wyll go, and fyghte with yonder Phi-lyſtine. And Saul ſayde to Dauid againe: thou arte not able to go a-gainſt yonder Philiſtine to fyght with him: For thou arte but a chylde, but he is a man of warre, euen from his youthe? Dauid anſwered vnto Saul: Thy ſeruaunt kepte his fathers ſhepe, and there came a * lyon & lykewyſe a Bear, and toke a ſhepe out of ẏ flocke. And I went out after him and ſmote him, & toke it out of his mouthe. And whē he aroſe agaīſt me, I caught him by the bearde, and ſmote him, and ſlue him. And ſo thy ſeruaunt ſlue ẏ lyon, and ẏ Bear (alſo) hath thy ſeruaūte ſlayne. And truly this vncircumciſed Philiſtine ſhalbe as one of them (Nowe wyl I go/and take awaye the rebuke of the people/for what is this vncircumcyſed Philiſtine?) ſeyng he hath rayled on the hoſte of the lyuyng GOD. And Dauid ſpake moreouer: the LORD that delyuered me out of the hande of the lyon, and out of the hande of the Bear, he ſhall delyuer me alſo out of the hande of the Philiſtine.

And Saul ſaid vnto Dauid: go, and the LORD ſhal be wᵗ the. And Saul put his rayment vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of braſſe vpon his head, and put a coate of mayle vpon him, and gyrded Dauid with his owne ſwearde vpō his rayment. And he aſſayed to go. And becauſe he neuer proued it, Dauid ſayde vnto Saul: I cannot go with theſe, for I haue not vſed my ſelfe therto: And Dauid put them of him, and toke hys ſtaffe in his hande, and choſe him fyue ſmothe ſtones out of a brooke, and put thē in a ſhepheardes bag which he had, and in a ſlyng poke: & his ſlynge was in his hand, & he went to the Philiſtine.

And ẏ Philiſtine came and drue nere againſt Dauid, and the man ẏ bare the ſhylde went before him. And when the Philiſtine loked about and ſaw Dauid, he diſdayned him, for he was but yong, and well coloured, and goodly to loke vpon. And the Philiſtine ſaid vnto Dauid: am I a dogge, that thou commeſt to me with a ſtaffe? And the Philiſtine curſed Dauid in the name of his goddes. And the Philiſtine ſaid to Dauid: come to me, and I wyll gyue thy fleſhe vnto the foules of the ayre, and to the beaſtes of the felde. Then ſayd Dauid to the Philiſtine: thou commeſt to me wᵗ a ſwearde, a ſpeare and a ſhylde: But I come to the in the name of ẏ LORDE of hooſtes, the GOD of the hooſt of Iſrael, whome thou haſte rayled vpon. This daye ſhall the LORD delyuer the into my hande, and I ſhall ſmyte the and take thyne head from the, and wyll gyue ẏ carkaſſes of ẏ hoſt of ẏ Philiſtines this day vnto ẏ foules of the ayre, and to the beaſtes of the earth, ẏ al they which be in the world may knowe that ther is a GOD in Iſrael. And al this cōgregacion ſhall knowe: that the LORD ſaueth not with ſwearde & ſpeare. For the battayle is the LORDES, & he ſhall geue you into our handes.

And when ẏ Philiſtine aroſe to come and drawe nye vnto Dauid, Dauid haſted & ran into the battayle euen againſt the Philiſtine. And Dauid put his hād in his bag, & toke out a ſtone, and ſlang it, & ſmote ẏ Philiſtine in his foreheade, that ẏ ſtone ſonke in to his forehead, * & he fel grouelyng to ẏ earth. And ſo Dauid ouercame ẏ Philiſtine wᵗ a ſlynge & a ſtone, & ſmote the Philiſtine and ſlue him, euē whē Dauid had no ſwearde in his hād. But Dauid ranne, & ſtode vpō the Philiſtine, & toke his ſwearde and drue it out of his ſheeth, & ſlue him, and cut of his head therwith. And when the Philiſtines ſawe, that their champion was dead, * they fled. And ẏ men of Iſrael and Iuda aroſe, & ſhouted, & folowed after the Philiſtines, vntyl they came to the valley, and vnto the gates of Akaron. And ẏ Philiſtines fel downe wounded by ẏ way to Saarim, euē vnto Gath & Akarō. And ẏ children of Iſrael returned from chaſyng after the Philiſtines, & ſpoyled their tentes. And Dauid toke the head of the Philiſtine, and brought it to Ieruſalem: But he put his armour in his tent.

The. xviii. Chapter.

The bonde betwene Dauid and Ionathas: Saul goeth about to ſlaye Dauid.

AND when he had made an ende of ſpeakyng vnto Saule, the ſoule of Jonathas was knit with yͤ ſoule of Dauid, and Jonathas loued him as his owne ſoule. And Saule toke hym that day, and would let him go no more home to his fathers houſe. And Jonathas made a couenaunte with Dauid bycauſe he loued him as his owne ſoule. And Jonathas put of his owne coate yͭ was vpon him, and gaue it Dauid, and therto his cloke, his ſwearde, his bowe and his gyrdle. B And it happened as they went, when Dauid was retourned from yͤ ſlaughter of the Philiſtine, that women came out of al cyties of Iſrael, ſyngynge and daunſyng agaynſte kynge Saule, and with tymbrels, with ioye, and with inſtrumentes of muſyke. And the women anſwered one an other in their playe, & ſayde: * Saule hath ſlayne his thouſande, and Dauid his ten thouſande. reg.21.b. 29.b And Saule was excedynge wroth, and the ſaying diſpleaſed him, and he ſayde: they haue aſcribed vnto Dauid .x. M. & to me but a thouſande, and what can he more haue, ſaue the kyngdome? Wherfore Saule loked on ſide of Dauid frō yͭ day forward. C And it happened on yͤ morowe, that the euil ſpirite ſente of GOD came vpon Saule, and he prophecyed in the myddes of the houſe. And Dauid played with his hande lyke as at other tymes, and there was a iauelynge in Saules hande. And Saule toke the iauelyng, and ſayd: I wil nayle Dauid to the wall with it. And Dauid auoyded oute of his preſence two tymes. And Saule was afrayed of Dauid, bycauſe the LORD was with him, and was departed from Saule. Therefore Saule put him from him, and made him a captayne ouer a thouſande, and he wente oute and in before yͤ people. And Dauid D behaued him ſelfe wiſely in al his waies, and the LORDE was with him. Wherfore when Saule ſawe that he was ſo excedyng wyſe, he was afrayde of hym. But al Iſrael and Juda loued Dauid, bicauſe he went out and in before them. And Saule ſayd to Dauid: Behold, my eldeſt doughter Merob, her I wil giue thee to wife. Onely playe the man with me, & fyght the LORDE battayles. For Saule thoughte: myne hande ſhall not be vpon him, but the hande of the Philiſtines. And Dauid anſwered Saule: what am I? and what is my lyfe, or the E kynred of my father in Iſraell, that I ſhoulde be ſonne in lawe to the kynge? Howbeit when the time was come that Merob Sauls doughter ſhoulde haue bene geuen to Dauid, ſhe was geuē vnto Adreel a Meholothite, to wife. Howbeit, Michol Sauls doughter loued Dauid. And they ſhewed Saule: and yͤ thing diſpleaſed him not. And Saule ſayde: I wyl gyue him her that ſhe may be a ſnare to him, and that the hande of the Philiſtines maye be agaynſte hym. Wherfore Saule ſayde to Dauid: thou ſhalte this daye be my ſonne in lawe in the other doughter. And Saul commaunded his ſeruauntes to commen wͭ Dauid ſecretly, and to ſaye: Beholde, yͤ kynge hath a fauour to thee, and al hys ſeruantes loue thee, be nowe therefore the kynges ſonne in lawe.

And Sauls ſeruauntes ſpake theſe F wordes in the eares of Dauid. And Dauid ſayde: ſemeth it to you a lyght thyng to be a kynges ſonne in lawe? I am a pore man, and of ſmall reputacion. And the ſeruauntes brought Saule worde agayne, ſayinge: of this maner ſpake Dauid. And Saule ſayde: this wiſe ſhal ye ſaye to Dauid: the kyng careth for no nother dowrye, but for an hundred foreſkinnes of the Philiſtines to be auenged of the kynges enemyes. But Saule thought to make Dauid fall into yͤ handes of the Philiſtines. And when his ſeruauntes tolde Dauid theſe wordes, it G pleaſed Dauid well, to be the kynges ſon in law. And or the dayes were expired, Dauid aroſe wͭ his men, & wente & ſlue of the philiſtines, two hūdred mē: & Dauid brought theyr foreſkynnes, and ſatisfied the kyng thereof, to be his ſon 2.Reg.3.c. in lawe. * Wherefore Saule gaue hym Michol his doughter to wyfe. And Saule ſawe and vnderſtode how that the LORDE was with Dauid, and that Michol his doughter loued him, and he was the more afrayed of Dauid: & Saul became alwaye Dauids enemye. The lordes of yͤ Philiſtines vſed to go forth. And it fortuned, that when they wente forth, Dauid behaued him ſelfe wyſelyer then all the ſeruauntes of Saule: ſo that his name was muche ſet by.

A 1. reg. 18. a

SAul ſpake to Jonathas his ſon, and to all his ſeruauntes, that they ſhoulde kyll Dauid. *But Jonathas Sauls ſonne had a greate fauoure to Dauid, and Jonathas tolde Dauid, ſayinge: Saule my father goeth aboute to ſlaye thee. Nowe therfore, take hede to thy ſelfe vntyll yͤ morning, and abide in ſome ſecret place, and hyde thy ſelfe. And I wyl go oute & ſtande by my father in the felde where thou art, and wyll commune with my father of thee, and whatſoeuer I ſee, I wil tell thee.

Iudi. 12. a. Pſa. 119. d

And Jonathas ſpake good of Dauid, vnto Saule his father, and ſayde vnto him: let not the kynge ſynne agaynſte his ſeruaunte Dauid, for he hathe not ſynned agaynſt thee, and his workes haue bene to theewarde very good. For he did *put his life in his hand, and ſlue the philiſtine, and the LORDE brought to paſſe a greate health for all Iſraell. Thou ſaweſt it, and thou reioyſedeſt: wherfore then wylt thou ſynne againſt innocent bloud, and ſlaye Dauid without a cauſe? And Saule hearkened vnto the voyce of Jonathas, and ſware: as truely as the LORDE lyueth, he ſhal not dye. And Jonathas called Dauid, & ſhewed him all thoſe wordes, & brought Dauid to Saul. And he was in his preſence as in tymes paſt.

And the warre began agayne, and Dauid wente out and foughte with the Philiſtines, and ſlue them with a great ſlaughter, and they fled from him. And the euel ſpirite ſente of the LORD was vpon Saule as he ſat in his houſe hauynge a iauelyng in his hande, and Dauid played with his hande. And Saule entended to nayle Dauid to the wall wͭ the iaueling. But he rid himſelfe out of Sauls preſence, as he ſmote the ſpeare (with a vayne ſtroke) in to the wall. And Dauid fled, and was ſaued the ſame nyght. Saule alſo ſente meſſengers vnto Dauids houſe, to watche him, and to ſlaye C him in the mornynge. And Michol Dauids wife told it hĩ, ſaying: yf thou ſaue not thy ſelfe this nyght, to morow thou wilt be ſlaine. And ſo *Michol let Dauid downe thorowe a wyndowe, & he went and fled, and was ſaued. And then ſhe toke an ymage and layed it in the bed, and put a pyllowe ſtuffed with goates heere vnder the head of it, and couered it with a cloth. And when Saule ſente meſſengers to fetche Dauid, ſhe ſayde: he is ſycke. And Saule ſent the meſſengers agayne to ſe Dauid, ſayinge: bryng him to me, bed and all, that I may ſlaye him. And when the meſſengers were come in: Beholde, there laye an ymage in the bed, wͭ a pyllowe of goates heere vnder the head of it. And Saule ſayde vnto Michol: why haſt thou mocked me ſo, & ſente away myne enemy, that he is eſcaped? Michol anſwered Saule: for he ſayde vnto me: let me go, or els I wil kyll thee. And ſo Dauid fled, & eſcaped, & came to Samuel to Rama, and tolde him al that Saul had done to him. And he and Samuell wente and dwelte in Naioth. B

Io Act.

And one told Saule, ſaying: Behold, Dauid is at Naioth in Rama. And Saule ſente meſſengers to fet Dauid. And when they ſawe a company of prophetes prophecyinge, and Samuel ſtãdinge faſt by them, the ſprite of GOD fel vpon the meſſengers of Saul, and they propheced to. And when it was tolde Saule, he ſent other meſſengers, & they propheced lykewiſe. And Saule ſente meſſengers yet againe the thirde tyme, and they propheced alſo. Then wente he himſelfe to Rama, and came to a great well that is in Sechu, and he aſked and ſayd: where are Samuel and Dauid? And one ſayde: beholde, they be at Naioth in Rama, and he wente thyther, euen to Naioth in Rama, and the ſprite of GOD came vpon him alſo, and he went prophecyinge vntyl he came to Naioth in Rama. And he ſtrypte of hys clothes, & propheced before Samuel in lyke maner, and fell naked all yͤ daye & all that nyghte. *And therof it is, that they ſaye: is Saule alſo amonge the prophetes?

The .xx. Chapter.

❡Dauid complayneth vnto Jonathas.

AND Dauid fled frõ Naioth which is in Rama, & came & ſayd before Jonathas: What haue I done? Wherin am I faultie? what is the ſin yͭ I haue cõmytted before thy father, yͭ he ſeketh my my lyfe: He ſayde vnto him. GOD forbyd, thou ſhalte not dye. Beholde my father wyll do nothyng eyther greate or ſmall, but that he wyl ſhewe it me. And howe ſhoulde my father hide this thing fro me? He wyll not do it. And Dauid ſware agayne and ſayde: thy father knoweth that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, and therefore he ſayth: Jonathas ſhall not knowe it, leſt he be ſorye. And in very dede, euen as truely as the LORDE lyueth, and as truely as thy ſoule lyueth, there is but a ſtep betwene me and death. Then ſayde Jonathas vnto Dauid: whatſoeuer thy ſoule deſyreth, that I wil do vnto thee. And Dauid ſayde vnto Jonathas: Beholde, tomorowe is the begynnynge of the moneth, & I ſhoulde ſyt with the kynge at meate. But let me goe, that I may hide B my ſelfe in the feldes vnto yͤ thyrd daye at euen. yf thy father ſpeake of me, then ſay: Dauid aſked leaue of me, yͤ he might go to Bethlehem to his owne cytie, for there is holden a yerely feaſt for all the kynred. And yf he ſaye: it is well done, then thy ſeruaunte ſhall haue peace. But and yf he be angrye, then be ſure that wickedneſſe is vtterly concluded of hym. And then thou ſhalte ſhew mercy vnto thy ſeruaunt, *for thou haſt made w̄ me thy ſeruaunt a bonde in yͤ LORD. Notwithſtandynge, yf there be in me anye treſpaſſe: then ſlaye me thy ſelfe, & brynge me not to thy father. Reg.18.a. 23.c.

And Jonathas anſwered: GOD kepe yͤ frõ thee (neyther is't poſſible to come to paſſe) for yf I knewe that wyckedneſſe were concluded of my father to come vpon thee: thynkeſt thou, that I ſhoulde not tel it the? Then ſayde Dauid: who ſhall tell me if thy father anſwere cruelly? And Jonathas ſayd vnto Dauid, come, and let vs goe oute into the felde. And they wente oute bothe of them into the felde.

C And Jonathas ſayd vnto Dauid, the LORDE GOD of Iſraell loke on it, whẽ I haue groped my fathers mynde, one tyme or other w̄in this .iii. dayes that it ſtande well with Dauid: yf I then ſende not vnto thee, and ſhewe it thee, the LORD do ſo and ſo vnto Jonathas. But yf my father haue anye pleſure to do thee euyll, I wyll ſhewe thee alſo, & ſende thee awaye yͤ thou mayeſt goe in peace. And the LORDE be with thee as he hath bene with my father. And thou ſhalte perfourme vnto me the mercy of the LORDE, not onely while I liue, but euen when I am deade, and pluck not thy mercy awaye fro my houſe for euer: No, not when yͤ LORDE hath deſtroied the enemyes of Dauid, euerye one from the face of the earth.

And ſo Jonathas made a bonde w̄ the houſe of Dauid, deſyrynge that the LORDE ſhoulde ſeke it out by the hãdes of Dauids enemyes, (if it were broken.) And with other wordes did Jonathas ſweare vnto Dauid, bycauſe he loued hym. For he loued hym as hys owne ſoule.

D Then ſayde Jonathas to Dauid: tomorowe is the fyrſt daye of the moone. And thou ſhalte be miſſed, bycauſe the place where thou waſt wont to ſit ſhal be emptye. Therefore this daye three dayes, come downe in any wyſe vnto yͤ place where thou dyddeſt hyde thy ſelf, when the buſineſſe was in hande: euẽ by the ſtone Eſel. And I wyll ſhote three arowes by yͤ one ſyde therof, as though I ſhot them at a marke, & wil ſend a lad & byd hym go ſeke the arowes. And if I ſay vnto the lad: ſee, the arowes are on this ſyde thee, brynge them: then come thou: for it is peace & no hurt, as ſure as the LORDE lyueth. But & yf I ſay vnto the lad: behold, the arowes are beyonde thee, then go (in peace) for the LORD hath ſente thee away. And as touchinge this which thou & I haue ſpoken: behold, the LORDE be betwene thee & me for euer. And ſo Dauid hid him ſelfe in the felde. And when the newe moone was come, the kyng ſat hym downe to eate meate. And the kynge ſat him downe after the olde maner, in his ſeate by the wal. And E Jonathas aroſe, & Abner ſat by Sauls ſyde, & Dauids place was emptie. Neuertheleſſe, Saule ſayd nothyng at al yͤ daye. For he thoughte: ſome thynge hath chaunced him, yͤ he is not clene. But on the morowe whiche was the ſeconde day of the newe moone, it happened, yͤ Dauids place was emptie againe. And Saule ſayde vnto Jonathas his ſonne: Wherefore commeth not the ſon of Iſai to meate, neyther yeſterday nor to daye? And Jonathas anſwered vnto Saule: Dauid aſked lycence of me to go to Bethlehem, for he ſayde: let me go, I praye thee, for oure kynred doeth holde an offerynge in yͤ cytye, & my brother hath ſent for me. And therfore if I haue founde fauour in thine eies: let me go, & ſe my brethren. This is the cauſe that he commeth not vnto the kynges table. Then was Saule angrye with Jonathas, and ſayde vnto him: Thou F wicked rebel, do not I knowe, yͭ thou haſt choſen the ſonne of Iſai vnto thine owne rebuke, and vnto the rebuke and ſhame of thy mother? For as longe as yͤ ſonne of Iſai lyueth vpõ the earth, thou ſhalt not be ſtabliſhed, nor yet thy kingdome: wherefore nowe ſende & fet hym vnto me, *for he is the childe of death. 1.Reg.21.c 2.Reg.12.d

And Jonathas anſwered vnto Saul his father, and ſayde vnto him: Wherfore ſhoulde he dye? what hath he done? And Saule lyfte vp a ſpeare to hit him, wherby Jonathas wiſt wel that it was vtterly determyned of his father to ſlay Dauid. And ſo Jonathas aroſe from yͤ table in a greate anger, and dyd eate no meate at the ſeconde day of the moneth, for he was ſory for Dauid, bycauſe hys father had done him ſhame. On yͤ nexte mornyng Jonathas went out into the felde, at the tyme appoynted with Dauid, and a lytle ladde with hym. And he ſayde vnto his boy: runne, and ſeke oute myne arowes which I ſhote: and as the boye rãn he ſhot an arowe beyond him. And when the lad was come to yͤ place whither Jonathas had ſhotte yͤ arowe, Jonathas cried after the lad, and ſayd: G Is not the arowe beyonde thee? And Jonathas cryed after the lad agayne: make ſpede, and ſtande not ſtyll. And Jonathas lad gathered vp the arowes, and came to his maſter. But the ladde wyſt nothinge of the matter. Onely Jonathas and Dauid wiſt it. And Jonathas gaue his weapons vnto the lad that was with hym, & ſayde vnto hym: go and carye them to the towne. And aſſone as yͤ lad was gone, Dauid aroſe oute of a place that was towarde the ſouth, & fel on his face to the grounde, & worſhypped thre tymes. And they kiſſed eyther other, and wepte togyther ſo longe, tyll Dauid exceaded in wepynge. And Jonathas ſayde to Dauid: go in peace. And the thinges whiche we haue ſworne bothe of vs in the name of the LORDE, ſayinge: the LORDE be betwene thee and me, & betwene thy ſeede & myne, let them ſtãde for euer. And he aroſe & departed. And Jonathas wente into the towne.

¶ The. xxi. Chapter.

Dauid flieth into Nob to Ahimlech the prieſte / and getteth of him the ſhewbred to ſatisfye his hunger. Afterward he flieth to kyng Achis, and there fayneth himſelfe to be mad.

THen came Dauid to Nob, to Ahimelech the prieſt. And Ahimelech was aſtonied at the ſodaine commynge of Dauid, and ſayde vnto hym: Why arte thou alone, and noman with thee? And Dauid ſayde to Ahimelech yͤ prieſt: the kynge hath commaunded me to do a certayne thyng, and hathe ſayde vnto me: let noman knowe wherabout I ſende thee, & what I haue commaunded the to do. And I haue appointed my ſeruauntes to ſuch & ſuch places. Now therfore yf thou haſt ought vnder thine hande, * geue me. v. loues of breade, or what commeth to hande.

And the prieſt anſwered Dauid, and ſayde: there is no commen brede vnder myne hande, but here is halowed bred, yf the younge men haue kepte themſelues from vncleane thynges, eſpecyallye women. Dauid anſwered the pryeſte, & ſayde vnto him: of a truth women haue bene locked vp from vs aboute thre daies when I came out, and the veſſels of the yong men were holy. Howbeit, this waye is vnpure, and howe muche more ſhall there be holyneſſe in the veſſel? *And ſo yͤ prieſt gaue hym halowed breade, for there was none other brede there, ſaue the ſhewebreddes that were taken from before the LORDE, to putte freſh bred there, the day that it was taken away.

And ther was there the ſame daye a certayne man of the ſeruaũtes of Saul abydynge before the LORDE, named Doeg an Edomite, the chefeſt of Sauls herdemen,

And Dauid ſade vnto Ahimelech: is not here vnder thine hand either ſpeare or ſwerde, for I haue neither broughte my ſwearde nor my harneſſe wyth me, bycauſe the kynges buſineſſe required haſte. And the prieſt ſayde: the ſwearde of Goliath yͤ Philiſtine whõ thou ſlueſt in yͤ ocke valley: behold, it is here wrapt in a cloth behynde the Ephod. If thou wylt take that, take it: for there is none other ſaue that here. And Dauid ſayde: there is none to that, geue it me.

And Dauid aroſe and fled the ſame daye from the preſence of Saule, & went to Achis the kynge of Geth. And the ſeruauntes of Achis ſaide of him: is not this Dauid the kynge of the lande? Dyd they not ſynge vnto hym in daunces, ſayinge: *Saule hath ſlayne his thouſande, and Dauid his ten thouſande.

And Dauid put thoſe wordes into his herte, and was ſore afrayd of Achis, the kynge of Geth. And he chaunged hys ſpeache before them, & fayned him ſelfe mad in their handes, and ſcrabled on yͤ dores of the gate, and let his ſpettle fall downe vpon his beerde.

Then ſaid Achis vnto his ſeruaūtes: Lo: ye ſe that thys man is beſyde hym ſelfe, wherfore thē haue ye brought him to me: haue I nede of mad mē, yͭ ye haue brought this felowe to plaie the madde man in my preſence? Shal he come into my houſe?

The.xxii. Chapter.

¶ Doeg betrayeth Dauid. Ahimelech is accuſed of traſon and ſlayne / and .lxxxiiii. prieſtes mo with him / bycauſe they receyued Dauid. Nob is deſtroyed of Saule. Abiathar flyeth to Dauid.

A DAuid therfore departed thence, & eſcaped, and came vnto the caue Odollam. When his brethren alſo and al his fathers houſe hearde it, they went downe thither to him: And there gathered vnto hym all men that were in combraunce, & in det, and troubled in their myndes, & he became a captayne ouer them.

And there were with him vpon a four hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Miſpa in the lande of Moab: & ſayde vnto the kynge of Moab: Let my father and my mother (I pray the) come forth vnto you, tyll I knowe what GOD wil do for me. And he brought them before the kynge of Moab. And they dwelt wͭ him all the while that Dauid kepte him ſelfe in holde. And yͤ prophete Gad ſaid vnto Dauid: abyde not in holde, but departe and go into the lande of Iuda.

Then Dauid departed and came into yͤ foreſt of Hareth. And Saule hearde yͭ B Dauid was come abrode, and alſo yͤ mē that were with him. And Saule ſat in Gibea vnder a tre in Rama, hauing his ſpere in his hād, & al his mē ſtode about him. And Saul ſaid vnto his ſeruaūtes yͭ ſtode about him. Heare I praye you ye ſons of Iemini: wil the ſon of Iſai geue euerye one of you feldes & vyneyardes, and make you al captaynes ouer thouſandes, & ouer hundredes: that ye haue alſo conſpired agaynſt me, and there is none that telleth it me in myne eare? *And where as my ſonne hath made a bonde with the ſonne of Iſai, there is none of you that mourneth for me, or ſheweth it in myne eare: beholde, my ſon hath ſtyrred vp my ſeruaūt to lye await againſt me this ſame day.

1.Reg.18.a and.20.d

Then anſwered Doeg the Edomite whiche alſo ſtode by the ſeruauntes of Saul, and ſayd: I ſaw the ſonne of Iſai when he came to Nob, to Ahimelech the ſonne of Ahitob, whiche aſked counſaile of the LORDE for him, & gaue hym vytayles, and the ſwearde of Goliah the Philiſtine alſo. Then the kynge ſente & called for Ahimelech the prieſt, the ſon of Ahitob, & all his fathers houſe: that is to ſay: the prieſtes that were in Nob.

And they came all to the kynge. And C Saul ſayd: heare now yͤ ſon of Ahitob. He anſwered: here I am my lord. And Saule ſayde vnto him: why haue ye cōſpired agaynſte me, thou and the ſonne of Iſai, in that thou haſt gyuen him vytayle, & a ſweard, and haſt aſked counſayle of GOD for him, that he ſhoulde aryſe agaynſt me, and lye awayt for me this daye? Ahimelech anſwered yͤ kyng, and ſayde: who is ſo faythfull among al thy ſeruauntes as Dauid, and thereto yͤ kynges ſonne in lawe, and goeth at thy byddyng, and is had in honour in thine houſe: haue I this day fyrſt begonne to aſke counſayle at GOD for him? That be far fro me (yf I had knowē it) let not the kynge put ſuche a thynge vnto hys ſeruaunt, in all the houſe of my father. For thy ſeruaunt knewe nothing of all this, eyther leſſe, or more. The kynge ſayde: thou ſhalt ſurely dye Ahimelech, thou, and all thy fathers houſe. And the kynge ſayde vnto the fote menne that ſtode aboute him: tourne, and ſlaye the prieſtes of the LORD, both bycauſe their hande is with Dauid, and bicauſe they knewe when Dauid fled, and ſhewed it not to me. But the ſeruauntes of the kynge woulde not moue theyr handes to fall vpon the Preſtes of the LORDE.

D And the kynge ſayde to Doeg: turne thou, and fall vpon the prieſtes. And Doeg the Edomite tourned, and ranne vpon the vpon yͤ pꝛiestes, and slue that ſame daye foure ſcoꝛe and fyue perſonnes yͭ dyd weare a lynen Ephod. And Nob yͤ cytie of the pꝛiestes ſmote he with the edge of the ſwearde, bothe men and women, childꝛen and ſucklynges, oxen, aſſes, and ſhepe.

And one of the ſonnes of Ahimelech, the ſonne of Ahitob (named Abiathar) eſcaped and fledde to DAUID. And Abiathar ſhewed DAUID, howe that Saule had ſlayne the LORDES pꝛeiſtes. And DAUID ſayd vnto Abiathar: I wyſt it the ſame day, when DOEG the Edomite was there, that he would tel Saul.

And I am cauſe of the death of al the ſoules of thy fathers houſe. Abyde thou wͭ me, and feare not. Foꝛ yf any mã ſeke my ſoule, he ſhall ſeke thyne alſo, wyth me thou ſhalt be in ſauegarde.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

David flyeth into the wildernesse of ziph.

A Then they tolde Dauid, ſayinge: Beholde, the Philiſtines fyght agaynſte Keilah, and ſpoyle yͤ barnes. Therfoꝛe DAUID aſked yͤ LORDES aduice, ſaying: ſhal I go and ſmite theſe Philiſtines? And the LORDE anſwered vnto DAUID: go and ſmyte the Philiſtines, and ſaue Keilah. And DAUIDS men that were with him, ſayde vnto him: ſee, we be afrayed here in Iuda: how much moꝛe then if we come to Keilah agaynſt the hoſt of the Philiſtines? Then DAUID aſked the LORDE agayne.

And the LORDE anſwered him, and ſaide: Aryſe, and go downe to Keila, foꝛ I wil delyuer the Philiſtines into thine hande.

And ſo Dauid and his men went to Keilah, and foughte with yͤ Philiſtines, and dꝛoue awaye their cattell, ⁊ ſmote them with a greate ſlaughter. And ſo Dauid ſaued the enhabitours of Keila. And it chaunced when Abiathar yͤ ſon of Ahimelech fledde to Dauid to Keila, that he bꝛought an Ephod with him in his hande.

B And it was tolde Saule that Dauid was come to Keila. And Saule ſayde: GOD hath delyuered hym into myne hande. Foꝛ he is ſhut in nowe that he is come into a towne that hath gates and barres. And Saule called al the people together to warre, foꝛ to go downe to Keila, and to beſiege DAUID and his mẽ. And DAUID hauing knowledge yͭ Saul ymagined myſchefe agaynſt him, ſayde to Abiathar the pꝛieſt. * Bꝛynge the Ephod. Then ſayde DAUID: O LORDE GOD of Iſrael, thy ſeruãt hath heard, that Saule is aboute to come agaynſte Keila to deſtroye the citye foꝛ my ſake: wyll the men of Keila delyuer me into his hande? And will Saul come downe as thy ſeruaunte hath hearde ſaye? O LORDE GOD of Iſrael, tel thy ſeruaũt. And the LORDE ſayde: he wyll come downe. Then ſayde Dauid: wyl yͤ men of Keila delyuer me, and the men yͭ are with me into the hande of Saule? ⁊ the LORDE ſayde: they wyl betray you.

Then DAUID and his men which were vpon a. vi. hundꝛed, aroſe, and departed oute of Keila, and wente whyther they coulde. And it was tolde Saul yͭ DAUID was fled from Keila, ⁊ he let the iourney alone. DAUID abode in the wyldernes in ſtrong holdes, and remayned in a mountayne in the wildernesse of Ziph. And Saule ſought him euery day, but GOD delyuered him not into his hande. And DAUID ſawe that Saule was come out to ſeke his lyfe. And DAUID was in the wildernes of Ziph in a thycket. And Ionathas Sauls ſonne aroſe ⁊ went to DAUID into the thicket, ⁊ confoꝛted hys hande in GOD, ⁊ ſayde vnto him: feare not, foꝛ the hande of Saule my father ſhal not fynde thee, and thou ſhalte be kynge ouer Iſraell, ⁊ I muſte be nexte vnto thee. And that doeth Saule my father knowe. * And they made a bonde both of thẽ together befoꝛe the LORDE. And DAUID taried ſtil in yͤ thicket, ⁊ Ionathas went to his houſe. Then came the Ziphites to Saul to Gibea, ſaying: doth not DAUID hyde hym ſelfe faſte by vs in ſtronge holdes, in a thicket that is by the hyll of Hachila, on the right ſyde of the wildernesse? Now therfoꝛe king, thou mayeſt come downe accoꝛdyng to all the luſte of thy ſoule: come downe, and oure parte ſhalbe to delyuer hym into the kynges hande. And Saul ſaid: Bleſſed are ye in the LORD: foꝛ ye haue compaſſion on me. Go, I pꝛaye you, and oꝛder the matter well, knowe and ſe his haunte, where hys fote hathe ben, and who hath ſene hym there, foꝛ it is tolde me that he is very ſubtyle, and woꝛketh craftely. Se therfoꝛe, and know all the lurkyng places where he hydeth hymſelfe, and come ye agayne to me with the

And they aroſe and went to Ziph before Saule. But Dauid and his men were in the wilderneſſe of Maon, in the playne that is on the right hande of Ieſimon. Saule alſo and his men went to ſeke, and they told Dauid. Wherfore he went vnto a rocke, ⁊ abode in the wylderneſſe of Maon. And when Saule hearde that, he folowed after Dauid in the wildernes of Maon. And Saule ⁊ hys men wente on the one ſyde of the mountayne, and Dauid and his mē on the other ſide. And Dauid toke thought howe to get from Saule. For Saule ⁊ his men compaſſed Dauid and his mē, rounde aboute, to take them. But there came a meſſenger to Saule, ſaying: haſt thee, and come, for the Philiſtines are come into the lande. Wherefore Saule retourned from perſecutynge Dauid, ⁊ went againſt the Philiſtines. And therfore is it, that they called the place: the rocke of ſeparacion. And Dauid wente thence, and dwelte in ſtronge holdes at Engaddi.

¶ Dauid flyeth vnto Engaddi, and there hideth him in a caue. Saul commeth in thyther to do his eaſement.

WHen Saule was come agayne
A from folowynge after ẏ Philiſtines, it fortuned that there were whiche tolde him, ſaying: behold, Dauid is in the wilderneſſe of Engaddi. Then Saul toke thre thouſand choſen men out of all Iſraell, and wente to ſeke Dauid and his men in the heygth of the rockes, where wylde goates remayne.

And he came to the flockes of ſhepe in the waye. And Saule wente into a caue to couer his fete. And Dauid ⁊ his men remayned in the inwarde partes of the caue.

And the men of Dauid ſaid vnto him: ſee, the daye is come, of which ẏ LORD ſayde vnto thee. And beholde, I wyl deliuer thyne enemie into thyne hande, ⁊ thou ſhalte do to him, as it ſhal ſeme good in thy ſyghte. Then Dauid aroſe ⁊ cut of a lappe of Sauls garment priuely. And immediatlye Dauids herte ſmote hym bycauſe he hadde cut of a lap of Sauls B garment. And he ſayde vnto hys men: ẏ LORDE kepe me from doynge ẏ thynge vnto my maſter the LORDES anointed, to laye myne hande vpon hym, ſeynge he is the annoynted of the LORDE. (For as truely as the Lord lyueth, excepte the Lord ſmite him/or excepte his daye come/or if he go not downe to warre and peryſhe/the Lorde be mercyfull vnto me/that I laye not myne hande vpon the Lordes annointed.) And ſo Dauid kept of his ſeruauntes with theſe wordes, ⁊ ſuffered them not to ryſe agaynſte Saule.

But Saule roſe vp out of the caue, ⁊ went awaye: Dauid alſo aroſe, and wēt out of the caue, ⁊ cried after Saul, ſayinge: My lorde kynge. And when Saul loked behynde him: Dauid ſtouped to ẏ earth, and bowed himſelfe and ſaide to Saul: wherfore gyueſt thou an eare to mennes wordes that ſay: Dauid ſeketh euyll agaynſte thee? Beholde, this daye thyne eyes haue ſene, howe that the LORDE hath delyuered the this day into mine hand in the caue. And ſome bad C me kyll thee, but I had compaſſyon on thee, and ſayd: I wyl not laye myne hādes on my maſter, for he is ẏ LORDES annoynted. And moreouer my father: behold, and ſee yet the lappe of thy garment in my hande, in as muche as I killed the not, when I cut of the lap of thy garment. Underſtande therfore and ſe, that there is neyther euyl nor wyckedneſſe in me, and that I haue not ſynned agaynſt the. And yet thou hunteſt after my ſoule to take it. The LORDE be iudge betwene thee and me, and the LORDE auenge me of thee. But myne hande be not vpon the. Accordynge as the olde prouerbe ſayeth: wyckedneſſe proceadeth from the wicked. But myne hande be not vpon thee. After whom is the kynge of Iſraell come oute? After whom doeſt thou moue perſecucion? after a dead dogge, and after a flie. The LORDE be Iudge, and Iudge betwene thee and me, and ſee, and pleate my cauſe, and auenge me of thyne hād.

wepte, ⁊ ſayed to Dauyd: thou art ryghteouſer then I, for thou haſt rewarded me with good, wher as I haue rewarded the with euyll. And thou haſt ſhewed thys daye, howe that thou haſt dealt louinglye with me, foraſmuche as whẽ the LORDE had locked me in thine handes, thou kylledſt me not. For who ſhal fynde his enemye, and let hym departe into a good way: Wherfore the LORDE rewarde thee with good, for that thou haſt done vnto me this daye. And nowe behold, I wot wel yͭ thou ſhalt be king, and that the kyngdome of Iſraell ſhalbe ſtablyſhed in thine hande.

Sweare nowe therfore vnto me by yͤ LORD, that thou ſhalte not deſtroye my ſeed after me, ⁊ that thou ſhalte not put my name out of my fathers houſe. And Dauid ſware vnto Saule: and Saule went home. But Dauid and his mẽ gat them vp vnto an holde.

The.xxv. Chapter.

Samuel dyeth, Dauid flieth into the wildernes of Pharan.

A 1.Reg.28.a AND* Samuel dyed, and all the Iſraelites gathered togyther, and lamented him, and buried him in hys owne houſe at Rama.

And Dauid aroſe, and gat him to the wyldernes of Pharan. And there was a man in Maon, whoſe poſſeſſyon was in Carmel, and the man was excedynge myghtie, and had thre thouſande ſhepe, and a thouſande goates. And he was ſheryng his ſhepe in Carmel.

The name of the man was Nabal, ⁊ the name of his wife was Abigail, ⁊ ſhe was a woman of ſinguler wiſedom, and beautifull. But the man was churlyſh, and of ſhreude condicions, and was of the kinred of Caleb. And Dauid heard in

B the wylderneſſe that Nabal dyd ſhere his ſhepe. And Dauid ſent out.x. yonge men, and ſayde vnto them: Get you vp to Carmel, ⁊ go to Nabal, ⁊ grete him in my name. And thus ſhall you ſaye: peace be to thee, peace be to thy houſe, ⁊ peace be vnto al that thou haſt. Behold, I haue heard ſaye, yͭ thou haſte ſherers. Nowe thy ſhepherdes were with vs (in the wildernes,) and we dyd them no ſpyte, nether was there ought (of the flocke) miſſynge vnto them al the whyle they were in Carmel; aſke thy laddes and they wil ſhewe thee. Wherefore let theſe yonge men fynde fauour in thine eyes (for we

.reg.21.b come in a good ſeaſon,) ⁊* gyue I praye thee, whatſoeuer commeth to thine hãd vnto thy ſeruauntes, and to thy ſonne Dauid.

And when Dauids yonge men came, they tolde Nabal all thoſe wordes in yͤ name of Dauid, ⁊ then helde their peace. And Nabal anſwered Dauids ſeruãtes, and ſayde: what is Dauid: and what is the ſonne of Iſai: there is plentie of ſeruauntes nowe a dayes, that breake awaye euery man from his maſter. Shal I then take my bread, my water, ⁊ my fleſhe that I haue killed for my ſherers, and gyue it vnto men whom I wot not whence they be: And ſo Dauids ſeruañtes turned theyr way, and went againe, and came and tolde him all thoſe thinges. And Dauid ſayde vnto his mẽ: gird euery man his ſwerde aboute him: And they girded euerye man his ſwearde aboute him: and Dauid was girded with his ſwearde. And there folowed Dauid vpon a foure hundred men, and two hũdred abode by the ſtuffe. But one of the laddes tolde Abigail Nabals wife, ſaying: Beholde, Dauid ſente meſſengers vnto our maſter out of the wylderneſſe to ſalute him, and he rayled on thẽ. And yet the men are very good vnto vs, and dyd vs no diſpleaſure, nether myſſed we any thynge as longe as we were conuerſaunte with them, when we were in the feldes. They were a wall of defence vnto vs both by nyghte and daye, al the while we were with thẽ kepyng ſhepe: Now therfore take hede, ⁊ ſe what thou haſt to do, for there is an occaſyon of euyll gyuen agaynſt oure maſter and all his houſhold, ſeyng he is a ſonne of Belial vngracyous to ſpeake to. Then Abigail made haſt, and toke two hundred loues, and two bottels of wyne, ⁊ fyue ſhepe redy dreſſed, and fiue meaſures of parched corne, and an hundred frayles of reyſynges, and two hundred topnettes of fygges, and laded them on aſſes, ⁊ ſayde vnto her yonge men: go ye before me. Beholde, I come after you. But ſhe tolde her huſband Nabal nothing therof. And as ſhe rode on her aſſe, ſhe came priuely downe the ſyde of the hyll, and beholde, Dauid ⁊ hys men came downe agaynſt her, and ſhe met them.

And Dauid ſayde: in vayne haue I kepte all that this felowe hath in yͤ wilderneſſe, ſo that nought was myſſed of all that perteyned vnto him. And he hath quit me euell for good. So and ſo do GOD vnto the enemyes of Dauid, yf I leue of all that perteyneth to him, by the dawnyng of the day, any thing that pyſſeth againſt the wal. And when Abigail ſaw Dauid, ſhe haſted ⁊ lighted of her aſſe, and fel before Dauid on her face, and bowed her ſelfe to ẏ grounde, and fell at his fete, ⁊ ſaid: Let this vnhappy dede be counted myne, my lord: and let thyne handemayde ſpeake in thine audiẽce, and heare the wordes of thyne handmayde. Let not my Lorde (the kyng) regarde this vnthriftye man Nabal: for as his name is, ſo is he: Nabal is his name, and foly is with him. But I thyne handmayde ſawe not the yongmen of my lorde whom thou ſenteſt. Nowe therefore my Lorde, as ſure as the Lorde lyueth, ⁊ as thy ſoule lyueth, the Lord hath withholden the frõ commyng to ſhed bloude, ⁊ withdrawe thou thiue hãde from bloud ſhed. Now I praye GOD, ẏ thine enemyes ⁊ they that intende to do my lord euil, may be E as Nabal. And now this is the bleſſig which thine handmaide hath brought vnto my lorde, ⁊ let it be geuen vnto the yongmen, that folow my lord. Forgeue the treſpaſſe of thyne handmayde, for ẏ Lorde wyl make my lorde a ſure houſe, becauſe my lorde fighteth the battailes of ẏ Lorde, and there coulde no euel be founde in the in al thy dayes. And yf any man ryſe to perſecute the, ⁊ to ſeke thy ſoule, the ſoule of my lorde ſhalbe bounde as in the bondel of ẏ lyuinge wͭ the LORD thy GOD. And the ſoules of thine enemyes ſhal GOD caſt out, euen as out of the mydle of a ſlyng. And whẽ the Lorde ſhall haue done to my lorde al the good ẏ he hath promyſed the, and ſhal haue made the ruler ouer Iſrael: then ſhal it be no decaye vnto the, nor diſcourage of hert vnto my lorde, that thou haſte not ſhedde bloude cauſeleſſe, nor auenged thy ſelfe.

F But when ẏ LORD ſhal haue dealt wel with my lord, thẽ thincke on thine hãdmaide. And Dauid ſaid to Abigail: bleſſed be the LORDE GOD of Iſraell, whiche ſent the this day to mete me. Bleſſed is thy ſaying, and bleſſed arte thou, whiche haſt kept me this day frõ commynge to ſhed bloude, and from auengynge my ſelfe with myne owne hande. For in very dede, as ſure as the LORD GOD of Iſrael lyueth, whiche hathe kepte me backe from hurtynge the, except thou haddeſt haſted and met me, thynckeſt thou there had bene left vnto Nabal by the dawnynge of the day, a pyſſer againſt ẏ wal: And ſo Dauid receyued of her hande that whiche ſhe had brought him, and ſaid to her: go vp in peace to thine houſe. Beholde, I haue hearde thy voyce, and haue accepted thy perſon.

And Abigail came to Nabal: and beholde, he helde a feaſt in his houſe, lyke the feaſt of a kyng, ⁊ Nabals hert was mery within him, for he was very dronken. Wherfore ſhe tolde him nothinge, neyther leſſe nor more, vntyl ẏ morow daye. But in the mornynge when the G wine was gone out of Nabal, his wife tolde him thoſe wordes, and his hearte dyed wͭin him, ⁊ he became as a ſtone. And vpon a ten dayes after, the LORD ſmote Nabal, that he dyed. And when Dauid hearde that Nabal was deade, he ſaid: Bleſſed be the Lord that hathe iudged the cauſe of my rebuke of ẏ hãd of Nabal, and hath kept his ſeruaunte from euyl, ⁊ hath recompenſed the wickedneſſe of Nabal, vpõ his owne head. And Dauid ſent to commune with Abigail: to thintente to take her to his wyfe. And when the ſeruauntes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel, they ſpake vnto her, ſaying: Dauid ſent vs vnto the, to take the to his wife. And ſhe aroſe, ⁊ bowed her ſelfe on her face to the earth, ⁊ ſaid: behold, let thy handmayde be a ſeruaunt, to waſhe ẏ feet of the ſeruauntes of my lord. And Abigail haſted, and aroſe, and gat her vp vpõ an aſſe, with fyue dameſels of hers, ẏ went at her feet, and ſhe wẽt after the meſſẽgers of Dauid, and became his wyfe. Dauid alſo toke Ahinoam of Iezrael, and they were bothe his wyues. But Saul gaue * Michol his doughter Dauids wyfe, to Phalti the ſonne of Lais, which was of Gallim. 2. Reg. 3.

Saul ſlepeth in his tent/ and Dauid taketh away his ſpeare/ ⁊ a cruſe of water ẏ ſtode at his head.

A THe ziphites came vnto Saule to Gibea, ſayinge: Doth not Dauid hyde him ſelfe in the hil of Achua whiche is before Ieſymon: Saul aroſe, ⁊ went downe to the wyldernes of ziph, hauyng thre thouſande choſen men of Iſraell with hym for to ſeke Dauid in the wyldernes of ziph. And Saule pytched in the hyll of Achila, which lyeth before Jeſimon by yͤ wayes ſyde: But Dauid dwelt in the wilderneſſe. And he ſawe that Saule came after him into the wilderneſſe. Dauid therfore ſent out ſpies, ⁊ vnderſtode, yͤ Saul was come in very dede.

And Dauid aroſe and came to yͤ place where Saul had pitched, and Dauid behelde the place where Saul lay, and Abner yͤ ſonne of Ner whiche was his chefe captayne. Saul lay within, and the people and the hooſt rounde about him. Then anſwered Dauid, and ſpake to Ahimelech yͤ Hethite, and to Abiſai the ſonne of zaruia, ⁊ brother to Joab, ſaying: who wil go downe with me to Saul to the hooſt? And Abiſai ſaide: J wyll go downe with the.

B And ſo Dauid ⁊ Abiſai came downe to the people by nighte. And beholde, Saul lay ſleping within the hooſt, and his ſpeare ſtacke in the grounde at his head. But Abner and the people laye rounde about him. Then ſaid Abiſai to Dauid: GOD hath deliuered thyne enemye into thine hande this daye. Nowe therfore, let me ſmyte him ones with my ſpeare to the earth, and J wyll not ſmyte him the ſeconde tyme. And Dauid ſaid to Abiſai: deſtroy him not. For who can laye his hande on the lordes annointed, and be giltleſſe? And Dauid ſaid furthermore: as ſure as yͤ LORD lyueth: the LORD ſhal ſmite him, or his day ſhal come, to dye: or he ſhal deſcēde into battayle, and there peryſhe.

C The LORD kepe me frō laying myne hande vpon the Lordes annoynted. But take thou now yͤ ſpeare that is at his head, and the cruſe of water, and let vs go. And ſo Dauid toke the ſpeare ⁊ the cruſe of water from Sauls head, and they gat them awaye, and noman ſaw it, or marked it, or awaked. For they wer al a ſlepe, becauſe the LORD had ſent a deade ſlepe vpon them. Then Dauid went ouer to the other ſyde, and ſtode on yͤ toppe of an hyl a farre of (a great ſpace being betwene them) and Dauid cryed to the people, ⁊ to Abner the ſonne of Ner, ſaying: Heareſt thou not Abner? Abner anſwered, and ſayd: What arte thou that cryeſt to yͤ kynge? And Dauid ſaid to Abner: art not thou a man? and who is lyke the in Jſrael? Wherfore then haſt thou not kept thy Lord the kyng? For there came one of the folke in to deſtroy yͤ kyng thy lord. It is not good that thou haſt done. As truly as the LORD lyueth, *ye are worthy to dye, becauſe ye haue not kept your maſter, the Lordes annoynted. And now ſe wher yͤ kinges ſpeare is, ⁊ the cruſe of water yͤ was at his heade. 1.Re

D And Saul knew Dauids voice, and ſayde: *is this thy voice my ſon Dauid? ⁊ Dauid ſaid: it is my voice, my lord, O kyng. 1.Re And he ſaid: wherfore dothe my lorde thus perſecute his ſeruaunt? for what haue J done? or what euyll is in myne hande? Nowe therfore let my lorde the kyng heare the wordes of his ſeruaūt. Yf the LORD haue ſtyrred the vp againſt me, let him ſmel the ſauoure of a ſacrifice. But and yf they be yͤ children of men, curſed are they before the LORD. For they haue caſt me out this day frō abyding in the enheritaunce of the LORDE, ſaying: hence, ⁊ go ſerue other goddes. Now therfore let not my bloude fal to the earthe before the face of the LORDE. For yͤ kyng of Jſrael is come out to hunte a flye, as when one doth hunt a partrige in yͤ mountaines. Then ſaid Saul: J haue ſynned: come againe my ſonne Dauid, for J wyll do the nomore harme, becauſe my ſoule was precious in thyne eyes this daye. Behold, J haue plaied the foole, ⁊ haue erred excedigly. And Dauid anſwered, and ſaid: Beholde the kynges ſpeare, let one of yͤ yongmen come ouer, and fet it. The LORD rewarde euery man accordyng to his righteouſneſſe ⁊ fayth: for the LORDE delyuered the into my hande this daye, but J woulde not lay myne hande vpon yͤ Lordes annoynted. And beholde, lyke as thy lyfe was muche ſet by this day in myne eyes: ſo be my lyfe ſet by in yͤ eyes of yͤ LORD, that he delyuer me out of al tribulaciō. Then Saul ſaid to Dauid: Bleſſed art thou my ſonne Dauid, for thou ſhalt be a doer, and preuayle.

And ſo Dauid went his waye, and Saul turned to his place againe.

The.xxvii. Chapter.

Dauid flyeth to Achis king of Geth.

A AND Dauid ſaid in his hert: J ſhall peryſhe one day or other by yͤ hād of Saul. Therfore is there nothīg better for me, thē to flye ⁊ ſaue my ſelfe in yͤ lande of the Philiſtines, and Saul ſhall ceaſſe, and ſeke me nomore in all the coaſtes of Iſrael, and ſo ſhall I eſcape out of his hande. And Dauid aroſe, and he and the ſyxe hundred men that were with him went vnto Achis yͤ ſonne of Macho, kyng of Geth. And Dauid dwelt with Achis at Geth, both he and his men, euerye man with hys houſholde, and Dauid with his two wyues, Ahinoam the Iezrahelite, and Abigail Nabals wyfe of Carmel.

B And it was tolde Saul that Dauid was fled to Geth, ⁊ he ſought nomore for him. And Dauid ſaid vnto Achis: yf I haue now foũde grace in thine eyes, let thẽ geue me a place in ſome towne in the feldes, that I maye dwel there. For why ſhoulde thy ſeruaunt dwel in the head cytie of the kyngdome wͭ the? Then Achis gaue him zikleg yͤ ſame day, for whiche cauſe zikleg perteineth vnto the kinges of Iuda vnto this day.
C And the tyme that Dauid dwelt in the countrye of the Philiſtines, was foure moonethes and certayne dayes. And Dauid and his men wente vp, and ran vpon the Geſurites, the Gerzites and the Amalekites: For thoſe naciõs wer from the begynnynge the enhabitours of the lande, as men go to Sur, vnto yͤ lande of Egipte. And Dauid ſmote the lande, ⁊ left neither man nor woman alyue, and droue away yͤ ſhepe, yͤ oxen, the aſſes, camels, and clothes ⁊ returned ⁊ came to Achis. And Achis ſaide: where haue ye bene a rouyng this day?
D And Dauid anſwered: Towarde the ſouth of Iuda, and towarde the ſouth of the Iezrahelites, and towarde the ſouth of the Kenites. And Dauid ſaued neither man nor woman alyue, nor ſuffred them to come to Geth, for feare (ſayeth he) leſt they ſhoulde tel on vs, ſaying: ſo dyd Dauid, and ſo wyl be his maner al the whyle he dwelleth in the countrye of the Philiſtines. And Achis beleued Dauid, ſayinge: He abhorreth his people of Iſraell, and therfore he ſhalbe my ſeruaunte for euer.

And Saule gathered al Iſrael together, and they pitched in Gilboa: And when Saul ſaw the hooſt of the Philiſtines, he was afrayed, ⁊ his hert was ſore aſtonyed. And when Saul aſked counſayle of the LORD: yͤ LORD aunſwered him not, neyther by dreames nor by Vrim, nor yet by prophetes. Then ſaid Saul vnto his ſeruauntes: *ſeke me a woman that hath a ſpirit of prophecye, that I maye go to her, and aſke of her. And his ſeruaũtes ſaid to him: Beholde, there is a woman yͤ hath a ſpirit of prophecye at Endor.

And the womã ſaid vnto him: Behold, thou knoweſt what Saul hath doone, how he hath deſtroyed the women that had prophecying ſpirites, ⁊ the ſorcerers out of the lande. Wherfore then ſekeſt thou an occaſiõ agaiſt my ſoule, that he maye kylme? And Saul ſware to her by the LORD, ſaying: As ſurelye as yͤ LORD lyueth, there ſhal no harme chaunce the for this thing. Then ſayde the woman: whome ſhall I fet vp vnto the? He aunſwered: Bryng me vp Samuel. When the woman ſaw Samuel, ſhe cryed with a loude voice, and ſpake to Saul: ſaying: why haſt thou diſceyued me? for thou art Saul. And yͤ king ſayde vnto her: be not afrayed. What ſeeſt thou? The womã ſaid vnto Saul: I ſe goddes aſcendynge vp oute of the earth. He ſaid vnto her againe: what faſſion is he of? She anſwered: there cõmeth vp an olde man wͭ a mãtel vpõ him. aduerſarye to vs. For wherwith could he better obtaine the fauour of his maſter, then with the heades of theſe mẽ?
Is not this DAUID, to whom they ſang in daunces: *Saul ſlue his thouſãde, and Dauid his ten thouſande? Then Achis called Dauid, & ſaid vnto him: C As ſure as the LORD lyueth, thou haſt ben honeſt and good in my ſight, when thou wenteſt out and in with me, in yͤ hooſt: neither haue I founde euil with the ſyns thou cameſt to me vnto this day: Neuertheles the lordes of yͤ Philiſtines fauour the not. Wherfore now retourne, and go in peace, yͭ thou dyſpleaſe not the lordes of yͤ Philiſtines.
And Dauid ſayde vnto Achis: And what haue I done? what haſte thou founde in thy ſeruaunt as longe as I haue bene with the vnto this day: that I maye not go fighte againſte the enemies of my lorde the kyng?

Achis anſwered, and ſaid to Dauid: D I know that thou art good, and art in my ſight, as an Aungel of GOD. Notwithſtanding, the lordes of the Philyſtines haue ſaid: Let him not go vp wᵗ vs to battayle. Wherfore now, ryſe vp earlye in the mornyng wᵗ thy maſters ſeruauntes that are come to the: and whẽ ye be vp early (as ſone as ye haue lyght) depart. And ſo Dauid and hys men roſe vp earlye to departe in the mornyng, and to retourne into yͤ lande of the Philiſtines. And the Philiſtines wente vp to Ieſrahel.

The.xxx.Chapter.

Dauid returnyng from kynge Achis / fyndeth ziklegburnt.

A BUt when Dauid and his men were come to zikleg the thyrde daye, the Amalechites had rusſhed in vpon the ſouth, and vpō zikleg, and had ſmitten zikleg, and burnt it wͭ fyre, and had taken the women (that were therin) priſoners, both ſmal and great: but ſlue not a man, ſaue caryed them with them, and went their wayes.
So Dauid and his mē came to the cytie: and beholde, it was burnt wͭ fire, and their wiues, their ſonnes & theyr doughters were caried away. Then Dauid and the people that was with him, lyfte vp theyr voyces and wepte, B vntyll they coulde wepe nomore. And Dauids two wyues were taken priſoners alſo: Ahinoam the Iezrahelite, & Abigail the wyfe of Nabal ẏ Carmelyte.
And Dauid was in a ſhreude combraunce: for ẏ people entended to ſtone him, becauſe the hertes of al the people were vexed for their ſonnes and theyr doughters.

C But Dauid toke a good courage to Re.23.k. him in the LORD his GOD, and * ſaid to Abiathar ẏ prieſt Ahimeleches ſon: I praye the bryng me the Ephod. And Abiathar brought the Ephod to Dauid.
And Dauid aſked counſayle at the LORD, ſayinge: Shall I folowe after this companye? and ſhall I ouertake them? And he anſwered him: folow, for thou ſhalt ouertake them, and recouer the praye.

C So Dauid and the ſyxe hundred men that were with him, wente, and came to the ryuer Beſor, where a part of thē abode. But Dauid and foure hundred men folowed: For two hundred abode D behinde, beyng to werye to go ouer the ryuer Beſor. And they founde an Egipcian in the felde, and broughte hym 20.25.c. to Dauid, *and gaue him bread to eate, and water to drynke, and gaue him a fewe fygges, and two clusters of reyſynges.
And whē he had eaten, his ſpirit came againe to him: for he had eatē no bread, nor dronke any water in thre dayes, and thre nightes. And Dauid ſaid vnto him: To whō belongeſt thou? and whence art thou? he ſayde. I am a yongman of Egipte, and ſeruaunte to an Amalechite: and my maſter left me behynde, becauſe it is thre dayes agone D that I fel ſycke: we came a rouyng vpon ẏ ſouth of Chretus, and agaiſt Iuda, and towarde ẏ ſouth of Caleb. And we burnt ziklegwith fyre. And Dauid ſaide to him: canſt thou brynge me to this companye? And he ſayde: ſweare vnto me by GOD, that thou wylt neyther kyl me, nor delyuer me into ẏ handes of my maſter, and I wyll bring the to the companye. And when he had brought him thither, beholde, they lay ſcattered abrode vpon the earth, eatīg and drinkynge, and daunſyng, becauſe of the plenteous and great pray ẏ they had caried awaye oute of the lande of the Philiſtines, and oute of the lande of Iuda.

And Dauid layed vpon them from E the euen vntyll the twylyght on ẏ morowe: ſo that there eſcaped not a mā of them, ſaue foure hundred yongmen, whiche rode awaye vpon camels, and fledde. And Dauid recouered all that the Amalekites had caried awaye, and Dauid reſcued his two wyues: ſo that there was no perſone of them lacking, ſmal or great, ſonne or doughter, or of the ſpoyle of all that they had taken awaye: Dauid recouered them al againe.
And Dauid toke all the ſhepe, and the oxen: and they draue them before hys cattel, and ſaid: this is Dauids praye.
And Dauid came to the two hundred men that were to werye for to folowe Dauid, whom they had made alſo to abyde at ẏ ryuer Beſor. And they came to mete Dauid, and the people that wer with him. And whē Dauid came to the F people, he ſaluted them. Then anſwered al the wicked and the vnthriftes (of the men that went with Dauid,) & ſayde: becauſe they went not with vs, therfore wyl we geue them none of the pray, that we haue recouered. But let euery man take his wyfe and his children: Thoſe let them carye awaye and be walkynge.

Then ſaid Dauid: ye ſhall not doe ſo (my brethrē) with that which ẏ LORD hath geuen vs, and hath preſerued vs, and delyuered the company that came againſt vs, into our handes. For who ſhould hearken vnto you in this matter?
* But as his parte is that goeth Iosu.22.e downe and fyghteth, ſo ſhall his parte be that taryeth by the ſtuffe, that it maye be parted a lyke. And ſo from that day forewarde was that made a ſtatute and a lawe in Iſrael, vntil this daye. When Dauid therfore came to Zikleg, he ſent (gyftes) of the praye vnto the elders of Juda, and to his frendes, ſaying: ſe, there is a bleſſing for you, of the ſpoyle of the enemyes of yͤ LORD. He ſent to them of Bethel: to them of ſouth Ramoth: to thē of Jathir: to thē of Aroer: to them of Sephamoth: to thē of Eſthemoa: to them of Rachel: to them of yͤ cities of Jerahmeel: to them of the cityes of the Kenytes: to them of Horma: to them of Boraſan: to them of Athach: to them that are in Hebron, and in al places where Dauid and his men were wont to haunt.

The.xxxi. Chapter.

Saul kylleth him ſelfe: and his children are ſlayne in the battayle.

1.Par.10.a
The* Philiſtines fought againſte Iſrael, and the mē of Iſrael fled away from the Philiſtines, and fell downe wounded in mount Gilboa. And the Philiſtines preaſed ſore vpon Saul and his ſonnes, and ſlue Jonathas and Abinadab and Melchiſua Saules ſonnes. And whē the battayle went ſore againſt Saul, the archers wᵗ bowes founde him, and he was ſore afrayed of the archers.

1.Par.10.a
Then ſaid Saul vnto his harneſbearer: *draw out thy ſwarde, and thruſte me thorowe therwith: leſt theſe vncircūciſed come and thruſt me thorow, and make a mocking ſtocke of me. But his harneſbearer wold not, for he was ſore afraied. And Saul toke a ſwearde and fel vpon it. And when his harneſbearer ſaw that Saul was deade, he fel lykewyſe vpon his ſwearde, and dyed with him.

And ſo Saul dyed, and his thre ſonnes, and his harneſbearer, and all his men, that ſame daye together.

And when the men of Iſrael yͭ were on the other ſyde of the valley, and they of the otherſyde Jordan hearde that the men of Iſrael were put to flighte, and that Saul and his ſonnes were dead, they left the cyties, and ranne away: and the Philiſtines came, ⁊ dwelt in them. * On the morowe when the Philiſtines were come to ſpoyle them that were ſlayne, they foūde Saul and his thre ſonnes lying in moūt Gilboa. And they cut of his head, and ſtrypped him out of his harneſſe, ⁊ ſent into the lande of the Philiſtines on euery ſyde, that they ſhould publyſhe it in the temple of their ydols, and among the people: and they layed vp his harneſſe in the houſe of Aſtharoth, but they hāged vp his bodye on the wall of Bethſan.

*When the enhabitours of Jabes in Gilead hearde therof, what the Philiſtines hadde done to Saule, they aroſe (as many as were ſtrong men) and went all nyght, and toke the bodye of Saul, and the bodyes of his ſonnes, from the wal of Bethſan, and came to Jabes, ⁊ *burnt them there, and toke their bones ⁊ buried them vnder a tree at Jabes, and faſted ſeuen dayes.

¶ The firſt Chapter.

The lamentacion of Dauid for Saul & Ionathas.

A After the deathe of Saul, whē Dauid was returned frō the*ſlaughter of ẏ Amalekites, & had ben two dayes in ziklег: Beholde, ther came a man ẏ thirde day out of the hoſt frō Saule, w his clothes rent, and earthe vpon hys heade. And when he came to Dauid, he fel to the earthe, and dyd obeyſaunce. Dauid ſayed vnto him: whence commeſt thou? He ſayed vnto hym: Out of the hoſte of Iſrael I am eſcaped. And Dauyd ſayed vnto hym: And what is chaunced? tel me. He ſaid: the people is fled from the battaile, and manye of the people are ouerthrowē, & dead, & Saul and Ionathas his ſonne are dead alſo: 1.Re.30.c.

B And Dauid ſaid vnto the yongmā, ẏ tolde him theſe tidinges: how knoweſt thou that Saul and Ionathas his ſon be dead? The yong mā that tolde hym, anſwered: I came by chaunce to mōut Gilboa. And beholde, Saul leaned vpō his ſpeare. For the charrettes and cōpanies of horſemē folowed hard after him. And when he loked backe he ſaw me, & called me. And I anſwered: here am I. And he ſayd vnto me: what art thou? I anſwered him: I am an Amalekite. He ſayde vnto me againe. Stande vpon me, and ſlaye me. For anguyſſhe is come vpon me, though my lyfe be yet al in me. And ſo I ſtode vpon him, & ſlue him, for I was ſure that he coulde not lyue, after ẏ he had fallen. And I toke the crowne that was vpō his heade, & the bracelet that was on his arme and haue broughte them hyther vnto my LORDE.

Then Dauid toke holde on his clothes*and rent them, and ſo dyd al the men that were with him. And they mourned and wepte, and faſted vntyll euen, for Saul & Ionathas his ſonne, and for the people of the LORDE, and for the houſe of Iſraell, becauſe they wer ouerthrowen with the ſwearde. Reg.3.f. d.13.f.

C And Dauid ſayde vnto the yong mā that brought him theſe tidiges: Whēce art thou? And he anſwered: I am ẏ ſon of an aleaunt an Amalekite. And Dauid ſaid vnto him: How is it that thou waſt not afrayed, to laye thine hande on the Lordes annoynted, to deſtroye him. And Dauid called one of his yong men, & ſaid: Go to, and runne vpō him. And he ſmote him that he dyed. Then ſaid Dauid vnto him: thy bloude be vpō thyne owne head. * For thine owne mouthe hathe teſtifyed againſte thee, ſayinge: I haue ſlayne the Lordes annoynted. Mat.12.c. Luke.19.d

And Dauid mourned with this lamentacion ouer Saul and ouer Ionathas his ſonne, and bad teache the children of Iſrael the vſe of the bowe. And beholde, it is wrytten in the boke of the righteous. (And he ſaid: Conſydre, O Iſrael/ theſe that be dead and woūded vpon thy hie hilles) O noble Iſrael the wounded are ſlaine vpon thy hylles: Oh how are ẏ mighty ouerthrowen? *Tel it not in Gath, nor publyſſhe it in the ſtretes of Aſkalon: leſt the doughters of the Philiſtines reioyſe, and leſt the doughters of the vncircumciſed, triumphe. Miche.1.b. D Ye mountaines of Gilboa, vpon you be neyther dewe nor rayne, nor vpon the feldes of offriges. For there the ſhylde of ẏ mighty is caſt downe: ẏ ſhilde of Saul, as though he had not ben annoynted with oyle. The bow of Ionathas and ẏ ſwerd of Saul turned neuer backe againe empty, from the bloude of the ſlayne, and from the fatte of the mightye warriours.

Saul and Ionathas were louelye and pleaſaunt in their lyues, & in their deathes they were not deuyded. They were ſwyfter then Egles, and ſtrōger thē lyons. ye doughters of Iſrael wepe ouer Saul, whiche clothed you in purple, with pleaſures, and hanged ornamentes of golde vpon your apparel. How were ẏ mighty ſlayne in battaile? Ionathas is dead on the hye hylles. Wo is me for the (my brother Ionathas) verye kynde haſte thou ben vnto me. Thy loue to me was wondrefull, paſſynge the loue of women.

(As a mother loued her onely childe/euen ſo did I loue the.) O howe are the mighty ouerthrowen, and the weapons of warre deſtroyed?

The. ii. Chapter.

Dauid is annointed in Hebron. The battaile of the ſeruauntes of Dauid and Iſboſeth.

A 1.Reg.23.a 2.Re.5.c. AFter this it fortuned, that Dauid *aſked counſayle at the LORDE, ſaying: ſhal I go vp into any of ẏ cities of Iuda? And the LORDE ſayde vnto him: go. And Dauid ſayd agaiue: Whither ſhal I go? He anſwered: Unto Hebron. And ſo Dauid went thither w his two wyues, Ahinoam ẏ Jeſrahelite, and Abigail Nabals wyfe the Carmelite. And the men that wer with him, dyd Dauid cary vp alſo, euery mã with his houſhold. And they dwelte in the townes of Hebron. And the men of Iuda came, and there they annoynted Dauid kyng ouer the houſe of Iuda.
1,Reg.30.c And they tolde Dauid, ſaying: It is* ẏ B men of Iabes in Gilead that buryed Saul. And Dauid ſent meſſengers vnto the men of Iabes in Gilead, and ſaid vnto them: bleſſed are ye vnto ẏ Lord, that ye haue ſhewed ſuch kindneſſe vnto your Lorde Saul, and haue buried him. And nowe the LORD ſhew mercy and truthe vnto you. And I wyll do you alſo ſuche kyndneſſe as ye haue done in this thing: Therfore nowe let your handes be ſtrong, and play ye the men: For your maſter Saul is deade.
And they that are of the houſe of Iuda haue anoynted me king ouer thẽ. But Abner the ſonne of Ner that was captaine of Sauls hooſt, toke Iſboſeth ẏ ſonne of Saul, and broughte him to Mahanaim, and made him kinge ouer Gilead, and ouer the Aſſurites, ⁊ ouer Jeſrahel, Ephraim, BenIamin, ⁊ ouer C al Iſrael. And Iſboſeth Saules ſonne was fourty yere olde when he begã to raygne ouer Iſrael, and raigned two

2,Reg.5.a Dauid. *And the tyme whiche Dauid reigned in Hebron ouer the houſe of Iuda was ſeuẽ yere ⁊ ſyxe monethes.
And Abner the ſonne of Ner, and ẏ ſeruaũtes of Iſboſeth the ſonne of Saul went out of Mahanaim, to Gibeon.
And Ioab the ſonne of zaruia and the ſeruauntes of Dauid went oute, and met them by the poole of Gibeon. And they ſate downe, the one on the one ſide of the poole, and the other on the other ſyde. And Abner ſayde to Ioab: let the yong men aryſe, and playe before vs: And Ioab ſaid: Let them aryſe. Then there aroſe and went ouer, twelue of D BenIamin by numbre, which pertayned to Iſboſeth the ſonne of Saul, and twelue of the ſeruaũtes of Dauid. And euery one caught his felowe (that cam againſt him) by the head, and thruſt his ſwearde in his ſyde, ⁊ ſo they fel downe together. Wherfore ẏ place was called:
The felde of the mighty. And it is in Gibeon. And there began an exceding cruel battayle that ſame day. For Abner and the men of Iſrael, fell before the ſeruauntes of Dauid.

And there wer thre ſonnes of zaruiah ther: Ioab, Abiſai, ⁊ Aſahel. And Aſahel was as light of foote as a wylde roo, ⁊ Aſahel folowed after Abner, ⁊ *tourned neither to ẏ right hãde nor to ẏ left, from Abner. Then Abner loked behind him, and ſaid: art thou Aſahel? He aunſwered: yea, that I am. Abner ſayed: turne the eyther to the ryghte hande or to the lefte, and catche one of the yong men, ⁊ take the his weapons. But Aſahel would not depart from him. And Abner ſayed againe to Aſahel: departe fro me. Wherefore ſhulde I ſmyte the to the grounde, and not be hable to holde vp my face to Ioab thy brother?
Howbeit, whẽ he wolde in nowyſe departe, Abner with the hyndre ende of the speare ſmote hym vnder* the ſhort rybbes, that ẏ ſpeare came out behinde him: that he fel down in the ſame place, and dyed there. And as many as came to the place where Aſahel fell downe and dyed, ſtode ſtyll. Ioab alſo and Abiſai folowed Abner. And the ſunne went downe, when they wer come to ẏ hil Ama that lyeth before Giah, by the waye that goeth thorowe the wyldernesſe of Gibeon. And the chyldrẽ of BẽIamin gathered themſelues together on an heape, to Abner, and ſtode on the toppe of an hyl. Then Abner called to Ioab, and ſaid: ſhal ẏ ſwearde deuour ſtyl for euer? Knoweſt thou not, that it wil be bytterneſſe in the latter ende? howe long ſhal it be, or thou byd ẏ people returne frõ folowing their brethrẽ?
And Ioab ſaid: as truely as GOD lyueth, yf thou haddeſt not ſpoken in the mornyng,

morning, the people had bene departed euery one from persecutynge hys brother.
2.Re.20.g And so *Ioab blewe a trompet, & all the people stoode styll, and pursued after Iſraell nomore, neyther foughte they any more. And Abner and his men D walked all that night thorow ẏ playne: and wente ouer Iordan, and paſte thorowe all Bethhoron tyll they came to Mahanaim.

And Ioab returned from perſecuting Abner. And when he had gathered al ẏ people togither, ther lacked of Dauids ſeruauntes nynetene men, and Aſahel.
But the ſeruauntes of Dauid had ſlaine of Ben Iamin, and of Abners men, thre hundred and threſcore men. And they toke vp Aſahel, and buryed him in ẏ sepulchre of his father in Bethlehem. And Ioab and his men went all nyght, vntil the dawnynge of the daye, and came to Hebron.

¶ The .iii. Chapter.

¶ Abner commeth to Dauid/and bryngeth him his wife Michol, Ioab kylleth Abner.

A THere was longe warre betwene the houſe of Saul, and the houſe of Dauid. But Dauid waxed ſtrōger and ſtronger, and the houſe of Saul Par.3.c waxed weaker and weaker. *And vnto Dauid were (ſyxe) childrē borne in Hebrō: his eldeſt ſon alſo was Ammō, of Ahinoam the Iezrahelite, the ſecond Cheleab of Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite: the thyrde Abſalom, the ſonne of Maachah the doughter of Thalmai, ẏ kynge of Geſſur: the fourth, Adonai the ſonne of Hagith: the fyfth, Sephatia ẏ ſonne of Abital: the ſyxth, Iethream, by Egla Dauids wife. Theſe were borne to Dauid in Hebron. And it fortuned, that while there was war betwene ẏ houſe of Saul, and the houſe of Dauid, Abner helde vp the houſe of Saul. And Saul B had a cōcubine named Rizpa, ẏ doughter of Ahia. And Iſboſeth ſayed to Abner: Wherfore haſte thou gone in to my fathers concubine? Then was Abner verye wroth for ẏ wordes of Iſboſeth, Reg.17.f and ſayde: Am I not a *dogges heade, whiche agaynſte Iuda do ſhewe mercy this daye vnto the houſe of Saule thy father, and to his brethren and frendes, and haue not delyuered the into ẏ hāde of Dauid: and thou fyndeſt a faulte in Ruth.1.c me this day for this woman? *So and ſo do GOD to Abner. For as the LORD hath ſworne to Dauid, ſo wyll I be on his ſyde, to brynge the kyngdome from the houſe of Saule, that the throne of Dauid may be ſtablyſhed ouer Iſrael, & ouer Iuda, euē from Dan to Beerſeba.
And he could giue Abner neuer a word and came wepyng behynde her, til they came to Bahurim. Then ſaid Abner vnto him: go and returne. And he returned.

And Abner had comunicacion with the elders of Iſrael, ſaying: ye ſoughte for Dauid in tymes paſt, that he myght be your kynge. Nowe then do it: for the LORDE hath ſayde of Dauid: By ẏ hāde of my ſeruaunt Dauid I wyll ſaue my people Iſraell out of the handes of the Philiſtines, and out of the hande of all theyr enemyes. And Abner ſpake in the eares of Ben Iamin, and went to tel in the eares of Dauid in Hebron, all ẏ Iſraell was contente with, and the whole houſe of Ben Iamin. And ſo Abner came to Dauid to Hebron, hauynge twentie men with him, and Dauid made hym and the men that were with hym a feaſt. And Abner ſayde vnto Dauid: I wyll vp and go gather all Iſraell vnto my lord ẏ kyng, that they may make an appoyntment with thee: and that thou mayeſt commaunde all, as thyne herte deſyreth. And when Dauid had let Abner departe, he went in peace.

And beholde, the ſeruauntes of Dauid and Ioab came from chaſynge the robbers, & brought a great praye wyth them. But Abner was not with Dauid in Hebron: for he had ſent him awaye to departe in peace. When Ioab and all ẏ hoſt that was with him were come, me tolde Joab ſaying: Abner the ſonne of Ner came to the kynge, and he hath ſent him awaye, that he is gone in peace.

Then Joab came to the kynge, & ſayde: what haſt thou done? Beholde, Abner came vnto the, & why haſt thou ſent him E away, that he ſhould eſcape quit? Thou knoweſt Abner the ſonne of Ner, for he came to diſceyue thee, and to know thy outgoing and ingoinge, and to knowe all that thou doeſt. And whē Joab was come out from Dauid, he ſente meſſengers after Abner, whiche brought hym againe from the well of Sira vnknowynge to DAUYD. And when Abner was come againe to Hebron, Joab toke him Iudi.3.c a ſyde in the gate *to ſpeake with hym ſecretlye, & ſmote hym vnder the ſhorte his brother. And when afterwarde it came to Dauids eare, he ſaid: F I and my kyngdome are gyltleſſe before the LORDE for euer concernynge the bloude of Abner the ſonne of Ner.

Let the bloude remayne on the head of Joab, and on all his fathers houſe, that the houſe of Joab be neuer without one or other that hath runnyng iſſues or lepre, & that leaneth on a ſtaffe, and that doth fal on the ſweard, & lacketh bread.
And the cauſe why Joab & Abiſai ſlue .Reg.2.f Abner, was, yͤ Abner had *ſlayne theyr brother Aſahel at Gibeon in battayle.
And DAUID ſayd to Joab, and to all the 2.Reg.1.b people that were with him. *Rent your clothes, & put on ſackeclothe, & mourne before Abner. And kynge Dauid him ſelfe folowed the coorſe. And when they buried Abner in Hebron, the kynge lyft vp his voyce, and wepte beſyde yͤ ſepulchre of Abner, and ſo did all the people.
And the kynge lamented ouer Abner, & ſayde: dyed Abner as a foole dyeth? thy handes were not bounde, nor thy feete brought into cheines: but as a man falleth before wycked children, ſo felleſt thou. And all they that were of yͤ people wept yet more ouer him.

G And when al the people came to eate meate with Dauid, while it was yet day, Dauid ſware, ſayinge: So and ſo doe GOD to me, yf I taſt bread, or ought els tyll the ſunne be downe. And the people wyſte it, and it pleaſed them. And what ſoeuer the kynge dyd, it pleaſed all the people. For all the people and al Iſrael vnderſtode that daye, howe that it was not the kynges dede that Abner the ſon of Ner was ſlayne. And the kynge ſayde vnto his ſeruauntes: know ye not, how that there is a lorde and a greate man fallen this daye in Iſraell? And I am this daye tendre and annoynted kynge.
And theſe men the ſonnes of Zaruia be to harde for me. The LORDE rewarde the doer of euyll accordyng to hys wickedneſſe.

¶ The.iiii.Chapter

¶ Baanah and Rechab ſlaye Iſboſeth the ſonne of Saule.

WHen Sauls ſonne hearde that Abner was dead in Hebron, his handes were feble, and all the Iſraelites were afrayed: and Sauls ſonne had two men yͤ were captaynes ouer the ſouldiers: the one called Baanah, and the other Rechab, the ſonnes of Rimmon a Berothite of the children of BenJamin: for Beroth was reckened to BēJamin. And theſe Berothites fled to Gitthaim, & ſoiourned there vntil yͤ ſame tyme. * And Jonathas Sauls ſonne had a ſon that was lame on hys feete. And he was fyue yere olde when the tydynges came of Saul and Jonathas out of Jeſrahel. And his nurſe toke him vp, and fledde awaye. And as ſhe made haſt to flye, the chylde fel, and began to halte, and his name was Miphiboſeth.
And the ſonnes of Rimmon the Berothite, Rechab and Baanah wente, & came in the heate of yͤ day to the houſe of Iſboſeth, whiche ſlepte on a bed at noone. (And the woman that was the keper of the dore/and clenſed the wheate/was a ſlepe.) And they came into the myddes of the houſe as though they woulde haue fetched wheate: and Rechab and Baanah hys brother ſmote him vnder the ſhorte ribbes, and fled. For when they came into the houſe, he ſlept on his bed in his reſtyng chambre, and they ſmote him, and ſlue him, and beheded him, and toke his heade, and gatte them awaye thorowe the playne all the nyghte. And they broughte the heade of Iſboſeth vnto Dauid, to Hebron, and ſayde to yͤ kyng: Beholde, there is the heade of Iſboſeth Sauls ſon, thyne enemye which ſought after thy lyfe. And the LORDE hathe auenged my lorde the kynge thys day, of Saule and of his ſeede.

And Dauid aunſwered Rechab and Baanah his brother, yͤ ſonnes of Rimmon mon the Berothite, and ſaide vnto thē: Reg.8.1 *as ſurely as the LORDE liueth, which hath deliuered my ſoule out of al aduerſities: 2.Reg.1.c. when one*tolde me, and ſayd that Saule was deade, thynkynge to haue brought good tydynges, I caught him, and ſlue him in Zikleg: whiche thought that I woulde haue geuen him a rewarde for his tydynges bringynge.

How much more whē wicked mē haue ſlayne a ryghteous perſon, in his owne houſe, ⁊ vpō his bed: Shal I not require his bloude of your hande, and take you from the earth: And Dauid commaunded his yonge men, and they ſlue them, and cutte of their handes and fete, and hanged them vp ouer the poole in Hebron: But they toke yͤ head of Iſboſeth, Reg.3.f. and buried it in the ſepulchre of*Abner in Hebron.

The.v.Chapter

¶ Dauid is yet agayne annoynted kynge, and taketh the arke from Syon.

A Then came al the trybes of Iſrael a.10,a *to Dauid vnto Hebron, and said: Beholde, we are of thy bone and of thy fleſhe. And in time paſte when Saule was our kyng, thou leddeſt Iſrael in and oute. And the LORDE hathe ſayde to thee: thou ſhalt fede my people Iſrael, ⁊ thou ſhalte be a captaine ouer Iſrael. And ſo all the elders of Iſrael, came to the*kyng to Hebron. And king Reg.2.f. Dauid made a couenaunt with them in Hebron before the LORDE. And they annoynted Dauid kynge ouer Iſraell.
Dauid was thirtie yere old when he began to raigne, and he raygned fourtye yere. In Hebron he raygned ouer Iuda ſeuen yere, and ſyxe monethes. And in Ieruſalem he raygned thyrtye and three yeares ouer all Iſrael and Iuda.

The kynge alſo and hys menne went to Ieruſalem vnto the Iebuſites, the B enhabytours of the lande. Whiche ſpake vnto Dauid, ſayinge: except thou take away the blynd and the lame, thou ſhalt not come in hyther. For they ſayd: Thou art not able to come in hither. Neuertheleſſe, Dauid toke yͤ ſtrong hold of Sion. The ſame is yͤ citie of Dauid. And Dauid ſayd yͤ ſame day: whoſoeuer ſmyteth yͤ Iebuſites, ⁊ getteth vp to yͤ gutters of yͤ houſes ⁊ ſmiteth yͤ lame ⁊ blind uel.21.c yͭ hate Dauids ſoule.* Wherfore, they said: yͤ blind ⁊ the lame ſhal not come in yͤ houſe, And ſo Dauid dwelt in yͤ towre, ⁊ called it the cytye of Dauid, and buylte rounde aboute it from Millo inwarde.
And Dauid proſpered and grewe, and the LORDE GOD of hooſtes was with hym. And Hiram kynge of Tyre ſente meſſengers to Dauid, and Cedar trees, and Carpenters, and Maſons for walles: and they buylte Dauid an houſe.
And Dauid perceyued, that the LORD C had ſtablyſhed him kynge ouer Iſraell, and that he had exalted his kyngdome for his people Iſraels ſake. And Dauid toke hym mo concubynes and wyues oute of Ieruſalem, after he was come from Hebron, and mo ſonnes ⁊ doughters were yet borne to Dauid. * And 1.Par.3.b theſe be the names of the ſonnes that were borne vnto hym in Ieruſalem.
Sammua, Sobab, Nathan, and Salomon, Iibhar alſo, and Eliſua, Nepheg, ⁊ Iaphia, Eliſama, Eliada, ⁊ Eliaphelet.

But when the Philiſtines heard that they had annoynted Dauid kynge ouer Iſraell, they came all vp to ſeke Dauid.
And as ſoone as Dauid hearde of it, he gate hym to an holde. And when the Philiſtines came, they layed them alonge in the valleye of Raphaim.
* And Dauid aſked counſayle of the reg.23.a LORDE, ſayinge: Shall I goe vp to the 2.reg.2.a Philiſtines? wylte thou delyuer them into myne handes? And the LORDE aunſwered vnto Dauid: go vp, for I wyll doubteleſſe delyuer the Philiſtines into thyne handes. And Dauid came to the playne of Perazim, and ſmote them there, and ſayde: the LORD hath deuyded myne enemyes aſondre before me, as waters be deuided a ſondre.
And therfore the name of the place was called: The playne of Perazim.
And there they lefte their ymages, and Dauid and his men toke them vp. And the Philiſtines came yet agayne, and layed them ſelues in the valleye of Rephaim.
And when Dauid aſked at the LORDE: (Shal I go vp against the Philiſtines? and wilt thou delyuer them into myne hande?) He aunſwered: Thou ſhalte not go vp, but compaſſe them on the backſide, and come vpon them ouer agaynſt the peretrees.
And when thou heareſt the noiſe of a thynge goynge in the toppe of the peretrees, then remoue. For then ſhall the LORDE go out before thee, to ſmyte the hooſt of the Philiſtines. And Dauid did as the LORD had commaunded him
and

and ſmote the Philiſtines from Gibea, vntyll thou come to Gazer.

The.vi. Chapter.

The arke is brought forthe of the houſe of Abinadab. Vza is ſtrycken/and dieth. Dauid daunceth before it/and is therfore deſpyſed of his wife Michel.

A AGayne, Dauid gathered togyther all the choſen men of Iſraell, euen thirtye thouſande, and aroſe and went with all the folke that were with hym of the men of Iuda to fet away frõ thence the arke of GOD, whoſe name is called, the name of the LORDE of hoſtes that dwelleth vpon it, betwene the cherubins. And they putte the Arke of GOD vpon a newe carte, and brought 1.Reg.7.a. it oute * of the houſe of Abinadab that was at Gibea. And Vza and Ahio the ſonnes of Abinadab draue the new carte. And when they broughte it out of the houſe of Abinadab that was at Gibea with the arke of GOD: Ahio wente before the arke. And Dauid and all the houſe of Iſrael played before yͤ LORDE in ſondry inſtrumentes made of Cedre woode, with harpes, pſalteryes, tymbrels, fedles, and ſymbals.

B And when they came to Nachons threſſhyng floure: Vza put his hande to the arke of GOD, and helde it, for yͤ oxen ſtombled. And the LORDE was wroth with Vza, and GOD ſmote hym in the ſame place for his faulte, and there he dyed before yͤ arke of GOD: And Dauid was diſpleaſed, bicauſe the LORDE had ſmytten Vza. And the name of the place was called Perez: The renting of Vza, vntyll thys daye. And Dauid was then afrayed of the LORDE, and ſayde: howe ſhal the arke of the LORDE come to me? And ſo Dauid woulde not brynge yͤ arke of the LORDE vnto him into the cytye of Dauid. But Dauid caryed it into the houſe of ObethEdom, a Gethite. And yͤ arke of the LORDE cõtinued in yͤ houſe 1.Pa.16, a of * ObethEdom the Gethite, thre monethes: and the LORDE bleſſed ObethEdom, ⁊ al his houſhold. And one tolde kyng Dauid how yͭ the LORD had bleſſed yͤ houſe of ObethEdom ⁊ all yͭ per-
C teyned vnto him, bycauſe of the arke of GOD. And Dauid wente and broughte the arke of GOD from the houſe of ObethEdom, into yͤ cytie of Dauid with gladneſſe. (And there was with Dauid ſeuen ſortes of dauncers/and calues for ſacrifice.) And when they that bare the arke of the LORDE had gone ſyxe ſpaces, he offred an oxe and a fat ſhepe. And Dauid (played on harpe ſtrynges/and) daunced before the LORDE with all his myghte, and was gyrded with a lynnen Ephod. So Dauid and all the houſe of Iſraell, brought the arke (of the couenaunt) of the LORDE, wͭ ſhoutyng and trompet blowynge.

And it fortuned, that as the arke of yͤ LORDE came into the cytie of Dauid, Michol Sauls doughter loked thorow a wyndow, and ſaw kyng Dauid ſpring and daunce before the LORDE: and ſhe deſpiſed him in her herte. And when they broughte in the arke of the LORD, they ſet it in his place, euen in the middes of the tabernacle that Dauid hadde pytched for it. And Dauid offred burntoffrynges and peaceoffrynges before yͤ LORDE. And as ſoone as Dauid hadde made an ende of offring burntoffringes and peaceofferynges, he bleſſed the people in the name of the LORD of hooſtes, and gaue amonge all the folke, euen amonge the whole multitude of Iſraell, as well to the women as men, to euery one a cake of bread, and a pece of fleſhe, and a flacket of drynke. And ſo all the people departed euery one to his houſe.

Then Dauid returned to bleſſe his houſholde, and Michol the doughter of Saule came out to mete Dauid, ⁊ ſayd: O how gloryous was the kynge of Iſraell this daye, which was vncouered to daye, in the eyes of the maydens of hys ſeruauntes, as yf it had bene a lyghte brayned felowe vncouered: And Dauid ſayde vnto Michol: I thought to dãce before the LORDE, whiche choſe me rather then thy father, and all his kyn, ⁊ commaunded me to be ruler ouer al the people of the LORDE, euen ouer Iſrael. And therefore wyll I playe before the LORDE. And will be yet more vyle then ſo, and wyl be meke in mine owne ſight: and of the very ſame maide ſeruauntes, whiche thou haſte ſpoken of, ſhall I be had in honoure. Therefore Michol the doughter of Saul had no child, vnto the daye of her death.

Dauid woulde buyld God an houſe/but is forbidden of God.

IT fortuned, that as the kinge ſat in his houſe (after that yͤ LORD had giuen him reſt rounde about from all his enemies) he ſayd vnto Nathan the prophete, behold, I dwel now in an houſe of Cedar trees: but the arke of GOD dwelleth within the curtayne. And Nathan ſayde vnto the kynge: go, and doe al that is in thine herte, for the LORDE is with thee.

And it fortuned the ſame nyght, that the worde of the LORD came vnto Nathan, ſaying: go, and tell my ſeruaunte Dauid, thus ſaieth the LORDE: ſhalte thou buylde me an houſe to dwell in? For I haue not dwelte in anye houſe ſynce the tyme that I brought ẏ childrẽ of Iſrael out of Egipte vnto this daye: but haue walked in a tent and tabernacle. In all ẏ places wherin I haue walked with al the children of Iſrael, ſpake I one worde with anye of the trybes of Iſrael (ſince I commaunded the iudges to fede my people Iſrael) ſayinge: why buylde ye not me an houſe of Cedar trees? Nowe therfore, ſo ſaye vnto my ſeruaunte Dauid: thus ſayeth ẏ LORD B of hooſtes. 16.c. *I toke thee from the ſhepe coote (as thou waſt folowynge ſhepe) ẏ thou myghteſt be ruler ouer my people Iſraell. And I was with thee in al that thou wenteſt to, and haue deſtroyed all thine enemyes out of thy ſyghte, & haue made thee a greate name, lyke vnto the name of the greate men that are in the worlde. And therfore I wyll appoynt a place for my people Iſraell, & wil plant it, that they may dwel in a place of theyr owne, and moue nomore, neyther ſhall wycked people trouble them any more as they dyd at the begynnyng: ſyns the tyme that I ſet iudges ouer my people Iſrael. And I wyll gyue the reſte from all thine enemyes. And the LORDE telleth the, that he wil make the an houſe.

And whẽ thy dayes be fulfylled, thou ſhalt ſlepe with thy fathers, and I wyl ſet vp thy ſeede after the, whiche ſhall procede out of thy bodye, and wyll ſtablyſhe his kyngdome. 5.a *He ſhall buylde an houſe for my name, 132.b and I wyll ſtablyſhe the ſeate of his kyngdome for euer, C 1.b *I wil be his father, and he ſhal be my ſonne: 11.c 89.a. *yf he ſynne I wyll chaſten hym with ſuche a rodde as men be chaſtened with, and with ſuche plages as the children of mẽ be plaged with. But my mercy ſhall not depart awaye from him, as I toke it frõ Saul, whom I put downe before thee. And thyne houſe & thy kyngdome ſhal endure without end after thee, Jere.33.c *and thy ſeate ſhalbe ſtabliſhed for euer. According to all theſe wordes, & accordyng to all this viſyon, dyd Nathan ſpeake vnto Dauid. Then wente Dauid in, & ſet him downe before the LORD, & ſayd: what am I, O LORD GOD? & what is my houſe? ẏ thou ſhouldeſt haue broughte me this farre forth? And this was yet a ſmall thinge in thy ſyghte, O LORDE GOD, but thou haſte ſpoken alſo of thy ſeruauntes houſe for a great whyle to come: For this is the vſe of man, O LORDE GOD. And what can Dauid ſaye more vnto the? for thou, LORD GOD knoweſt thy ſeruaunt. Euen for thy wordes ſake, and according to thyne owne herte haſt thou done all theſe great thynges, to make thẽ knowen vnto thy ſeruaunt.

Wherfore thou arte great, O LORD GOD: for there is none lyke thee: Deut.7.c. *neyther is there anye god ſaue thou, accordyng to all that we haue hearde ẇ our eares. Deut.4.a. *And what one people in ẏ erth is lyke thy people Iſraell? D whoſe GOD wente and delyuered them, that they myght be his people, and that he myght make him a name, and to ſhewe greate and terryble thynges in the earthe, for thy people Exod.14. *which ẏ redemeſt to the out of Egypte: euen the people with theyr goddes. For thou haſte ordeyned thy people Iſrael to be thy people for euer. And thou LORDE arte become theyr GOD: And nowe (LORD GOD) ẏ word that thou haſt ſpoken concernynge thy ſeruaũt and his houſe, make it good for euer, and do as thou haſt ſayde. For ſo ſhall thy name be magnified for euer, of men that ſhall ſaye: the LORDE of hooſtes is the GOD of Iſraell: and ẏ houſe of thy ſeruaunt ſhalbe ſtabliſhed before thee. For thou O LORD of hoſtes, GOD of Iſraell, haſte tolde in the eare of thy ſeruaunte, ſayinge: I wyll buylde the an houſe.

And therfore hath thy ſeruaũt foũd in his hert, to praye this prayer vnto thee. Deut.32.c *Therfore now LORDE GOD, thou art GOD, & thy wordes muſt be true, thou ẏ haſte tolde this goodneſſe vnto thy ſeruaũt. And nowe go to and bleſſe ẏ houſe of thy ſeruaunte, that it maye contynue for euer before the, for thou LORD God haſt ſpoken it: and ẇ thy bleſſyng ſhal ẏ houſe of thy ſeruaũt be bleſſed for euer.

Dauid ouercommeth the Philiſtines.

A After this it fortuned, that Dauid ſmote the Philiſtines, and ſubdued them, and tooke the brydle of bondage out of the hand of the Philiſtines.
Num. 24. c *And he ſmote the Moabites, and mea-ſured them with a lyne, and caſte them downe to the grounde. Euen with two lynes meaſured he them whom he ſlue, and the length of one lyne ſaued he a-lyue. And ſo became the Moabytes Dauids ſeruauntes, and payed tribute.
Dauid ſmote alſo Hadarezer the ſonne of Rehob kynge of Zoba, as he went to recouer his borders at the riuer Pherah.
And Dauid toke a thouſande and ſeuen hundred horſemen of his hooſt, and. xx. thouſande fotemen, and cut of the hoſe B of all his charethorſes, reſeruyng onlye one hundred charettes. And when the Syrians of Damaſcon came to ſuccour Hadarezer kynge of Zoba, Dauid ſlue of the Sirians two and twentye thouſande men, and put ſouldiars in Siria Damaſcon. And the Sirians became ſeruauntes to Dauid, payinge trybute.
And thus the LORD ſaued Dauid, in all that he went vnto. And Dauid toke the ſhyldes of gold that belonged to the ſeruauntes of Hadarezer, and brought thẽ to Jeruſalem. And out of Beta, and Berothi (cyties of Hadarezer) did Dauid brynge exceadynge muche braſſe: (wher-of Salomon made all the braſen veſſell in the temple / and the braſen lauatorye / and the pyllers / and C the aultare.)
1. par. 19. c. *When Thoi kynge of Hamath herd howe Dauid had ſmytten all the hooſte of Hadarezer, he ſente Joram his ſonne vnto kynge Dauid, to ſalute him wyth peace, and to bleſſe him bycauſe he had foughte agaynſt Gadarezer, and beatẽ him: for Thoi had great war with Ha-darezer: whiche (Joram) brought with him veſſels of ſiluer, veſſels of golde, & veſſels of braſſe. Whiche braſſe kynge Dauid dyd dedicate vnto the LORDE, with the ſyluer and golde that he hadde conſecrated of all nacyons, whyche he ſubdued: of Siria, of the Moabites, and D of the children of Ammon, of the Phili-ſtines, and of Hamalecke, and of yͤ ſpoile of Hadarezer ſonne of Rehob kynge of Zoba. And Dauid gat him a name after that he returned, and had ſmytten of the Sirians in yͤ valley of Salte, eyghtene thouſande men. *And he put kepers in Edom: euen thorowout all Edom put he ſouldiers, and all they of Edom became Dauids ſeruauntes. And yͤ LORD kepte Dauid whatſoeuer he toke in hãd.
And Dauid raigned ouer all Iſrael, and executed ryghte and iuſtice vnto all hys people. And *Joab the ſonne of Zarua was ouer the hooſte, and Jehoſaphat yͤ ſonne of Ahilud was recorder. And Sa-dok the ſonne of Ahitob, and Ahimelech the ſonne of Abiathar were the prieſtes, and Saraia was the ſcribe. And Banaiahu the ſonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Crethites and the Phelethites: and Dauids ſonnes were chiefe rulers.

The. ix. Chapter.

Dauid reſtoreth all the feldes of Saule / to Miphi-boſeth the ſonne of Jonathas.

And Dauid ſayde: is there yet anye man left in the houſe of Saul? for I wyll ſhewe him mercye for Jonathas ſake.

And there was of yͤ houſhold of Saul, a ſeruaunte whoſe name was ziba, and when they had called him vnto Dauid, yͤ kynge ſayde vnto hym: arte thou ziba?
He ſayde: Thy ſeruaunte is he. And the kynge ſayde: remayneth there yet anye man of the houſe of Saul, whom I may ſhewe the mercy of GOD vpon? ziba anſwered the kynge: *Jonathas hath yet a ſonne whiche is lame of his feete. The kynge ſayde vnto him: where is he? ziba ſayde vnto the kynge: beholde, he is in yͤ houſe of Machir the ſonne of Amiel of Lodeber. Then kynge Dauid ſente, and fet him oute of the houſe of Machir the ſonne of Amiel out of Lodeber. Nowe when Miphiboſeth the ſonne of Jona-thas, the ſonne of Saul, was come vnto Dauid, he fell on his face, and dyd re-uerence. And the kinge ſayd: Miphiboſeth? He anſwered: Beholde thy ſeruãt.
Dauid ſayde vnto him: feare not, for I wyll ſurely ſhewe thee kyndneſſe, for Jonathas thy fathers ſake, and wil re-ſtore thee all the feldes of Saule thy father, and thou ſhalte eate breade on myne owne table continuallye. And he bowed him ſelfe, and ſayde: What is thy ſeruaunte that thou ſhouldeſte vouchſafe to looke vpon ſuche a dead dogge as I am?

Then yͤ kyng called vnto ziba Sauls yonge man, and ſayde vnto him: I haue gyuen vnto thy maſters ſonne, all that pertained

pertayned to Saul, and to all his houſe.
Se therfore that thou and thy ſonnes, ⁊ thy ſeruauntes tyl the lande, and bring in, that*thy maſters ſonne maye haue foode to eate. But Miphiboſeth thy maſters ſonne ſhall eate breade alwaye D vpon my table. For ziba had fiftene ſonnes, and twenty ſeruauntes. Then ſayd ziba vnto the kynge: Accordynge to all that my lorde the kynge hath commaũded his ſeruaunte, ſo ſhall thy ſeruaunt do. Well (ſayd the kyng,) Miphiboſeth ſhall eate vpon my table, as one of the kynges ſonnes. Miphiboſeth had a ſon that was yonge, named Micha, and all that dwelled in the houſe of Ziba were ſeruauntes vnto Miphiboſeth. And Miphiboſeth dwelte in Ieruſalem, for he dyd eate euer at the kynges table:*⁊ was lame on both his fete.

¶The.x.Chapter.

The meſſengers of Dauid are vilaynouſlye entreated of the kynge of Moab.

A It happened after this, that the kynge of the children of Ammon dyed, and Hanon his ſonne raigned in his ſtede. Then ſaid Dauid: I wil ſhewe kindneſſe vnto Hanon the ſonne of Nahas, as his father ſhewed kyndeneſſe vnto me. And Dauid ſent to cõfort him by the hande of his ſeruauntes, ouer (the death of) his father. And Dauids ſeruãtes came into the lãd of the childrẽ of Ammon, ⁊ the lordes of the children of Ammon ſayd vnto Hanon theyr lord: thynkeſt thou that Dauid doth honour thy father, that he hath ſent cõfortours to thee? Hath not Dauid rather ſent his ſeruaũtes vnto the, to ſearche the citie, and to ſpye it oute, and to ouerthrow it?
Wherefore Hanon toke Dauids ſeruauntes, and ſhaued of the halfe of euery mannes bearde, and cutte of their garmentes in the myddle, euen hard to the buttockes of them, and ſente them awaye. When they tolde it vnto Dauid, he ſent to mete them (for they were men excedyngly aſhamed) and the kyng ſaid: B tarie at Iericho vntyll your beerdes be growen, and then returne. And when the children of Ammon ſawe, that they ſtanke in the ſyght of Dauid, they ſente and hyred the Syrians of the houſe of Rehob, and the Sirians of zoba twenty thouſande fotemen, and of kynge Maacha a thouſande men, and of Iſtob.xii. thouſande men. And when Dauid heard of it, he ſente Ioab and all the hooſte of ſtrong men. And the children of Ammõ came out, and waged battayle at yͤ entryng in of the gate, and the Sirians of zobah, of Rehob, Iſtob, ⁊ Maacah were by them ſelues in the felde.
When Ioab ſawe that the fronte of the battayle was agaynſt him, before ⁊ after, he choſe of all the freſhe yong men of Iſraell, and put them in aray againſt the Syrians. And the reſt of the people he delyuered into the hãde of Abiſai hys brother, that he myghte put them in araye againſt the chyldren of Ammon.
And he ſaid: yf the Sirians be ſtronger then I, thou ſhalte helpe me. But yf the children of Ammon be to ſtrong for the, I wyll come and ſuccoure thee. Therfore C quite the lyke a manne, and let vs ſtande ſtyffe for our people, and for the cytyes of our GOD. And the LORD doe that whiche is good in his owne eyes.
And Ioab proceded forth, and yͤ people that was with hym to fyghte wyth the Sirians. But they fled before him. And when the children of Ammon ſawe that the Sirians were fled, then fled they alſo before Abiſai, and entred into yͤ cytye.
And ſo Ioab returned from the childrẽ of Ammõ, and came to Ieruſalem. And when the Sirians ſawe that they were put to the worſe before Iſrael, they gathered them togyther, and Hadarezer ſent, and brought out the Sirians that were beyonde the riuer, And they came with theyr armye, and Sobah the captayne of the hooſte of Hadarezer wente before them. D And when it was ſhewed Dauid, he gathered all Iſrael togyther, and paſſed ouer Iordan and came to Helam: And the Sirians ſet themſelues in aray agaynſte Dauid, and foughte with him: and the Sirians fled before Iſrael. And Dauid deſtroyed.vii.hũdred charrettes of the Sirians, and fourtye thouſande horſemẽ, and ſmote Sobah the captain of their hooſte, whiche alſo dyed there.
And when all the kynges (that wer ſeruauntes to Hadarezer) ſawe that they were put to the worſe before Iſraell, they made peace with them, and ſerued them. And ſo the Siriãs feared to helpe the children of Ammon any more.

¶The.xi.Chapter

¶The aduoutrye of Dauid with Bethſabe the wife of Vrias.

A And it came to paſſe that (after the yere was expired) in the time when kynges vſe to go forth to battayle, Dauid ſente Joab and his ſeruauntes with hym, and all Iſraell, whyche * deſtroyed the chyldren of Ammon, and beſieged Raba. But Dauid taryed ſtyll at Jeruſalem. And it chaunced in an euenynge ẏ Dauid aroſe oute of his bed, and walked vpon the roofe of the kynges palace, and from the roofe he ſawe a woman * waſhynge her ſelfe: and the woman was very beautifull to loke vpon. And he ſente to enquire what womã it ſhoulde be, ſayinge: is it not Bethſabe the doughter of Eliam, and wyfe to Urias the Hethite? And Dauid ſente meſſengers, & fet her. And ſhe came in vnto him, * & he lay with her. And (immediatly) ſhe was purified from her vnclenneſſe, and returned vnto her houſe. And the woman conceyued, and ſent & tolde Dauid, & ſaid: I am with child. B And Dauid ſent to Joab (ſaying:) ſend me Urias the Hethite. And Joab ſẽt Urias to Dauid. And whẽ Urias was come vnto him, Dauid demaũded of him, how Joab did, & how the people fared, & how ẏ mẽ of warre proſpered. And Dauid ſaid to Urias: go downe to thine houſe, and waſhe thy fete. And Urias departed out of the kynges palace, and there folowed him a ſeruice frõ the kynges table. But Urias ſlepte at the doore of the kynges palace: with al the ſeruaũtes of his lorde, & went not down to his houſe.

1.par.20.c
Leuit.18.c

Whiche when they had tolde Dauid, (ſaying: Urias went not downe into his houſe,) Dauid ſayd vnto Urias: Cameſt thou not frõ thy iourney? why dyddeſt thou not go down thẽ vnto thine houſe? Urias anſwered Dauid. The arke and Iſrael and Juda dwell in pauilions: & my lord Joab and the ſeruauntes of my lorde lye vpon the flat earth: and ſhal I then go into myne houſe, to eate & drink, and lye with my wife? * By thy lyfe, and and by the lyfe of thy ſoule, I wyll not do this thinge. And Dauid ſayde vnto Urias: * tarye here this daye alſo, and tomorow I wil let the depart. C And ſo Urias abode in Jeruſalem that day, & the morowe. And when Dauid had called him, he did eate & drinke before him, and he made him dronke. And at euen he wente oute to lye on his couche with the ſeruauntes of hys lorde, but wente not downe to hys houſe. On the morowe Dauid wrote a letter to Joab and ſent it by the hande of Urias. And he wrote thus in ẏ letter, ſaying: put Urias in the fore front of the ſharper battayle, and come ye backe from him, that he maye be ſmytten, and dye. So when Joab beſieged the cytie, he aſſigned Urias vnto a place, where he wyſte that ſtronge men were. And the men of the cytie came oute, and foughte with Joab. And there were certayne ouerthrowen of the people, and of the ſeruaũtes of Dauid, & Urias the Hethite died alſo.

2.Reg.14.e
Judi.19.c

Then Joab ſente, and tolde Dauid al the thinges concernyng the warre, and charged the meſſenger, ſayinge: when thou haſt made an end of tellyng ẏ matters of the warre vnto the kynge, yf he begynne to fume, and ſaye vnto thee: Wherfore approched ye ſo nye vnto the cytie, when ye dyd fyghte? wyſte ye not that they woulde hurle and ſhote from the wall? Who ſmote Abimelech ſonne of Jeruboſeth? * Dyd not a woman caſte a peece of a mylſtone vpon him from of the wal, & he dyed in Thebes? Why wẽt you nie the wal? Then ſay thou: thy ſeruaunt Urias the Hethite is dead alſo.

So the meſſenger wente, & came and ſhewed Dauid all ẏ Joab had ſent him for: and the meſſenger ſaid vnto Dauid: the men preuayled agaynſte vs, & came oute vnto vs into the fielde, & we (wyth violence) ſtacke vnto them, euen vnto the entryng of the gate. And ẏ ſhoters ſhot from the walles vpon thy ſeruauntes, & ſome of the kynges ſeruauntes be dead. And thy ſeruaunte Urias the Hethite is dead alſo. And Dauid ſayde vnto the meſſenger: thus ſhalte thou ſaye vnto Joab: let not ẏ thynge trouble the. For (the chaunce of warre is diuers/and) the ſwerd deuoureth one as wel as another: make thy battayle more ſtronge agaynſte the cytie to ouerthrowe it, and ſe that thou courage Joab. And when the wife of Urias heard ẏ her huſbande was dead, ſhe mourned for him. And when the mournyng was paſt, Dauid ſent and fet her to his houſe, & ſhe became his wife, and bare him a ſonne. But this thynge that Dauid did, diſpleaſed the LORDE.

The.xii. Chapter.

And it happened the ſeuẽth day, that Dauyd ſeing hys ſeruauntes whyſperinge, perceyued that the chylde was is the childe deade? They ſaid: yea.

And Dauid aroſe from the earthe, and waſhed & annoynted hym ſelfe, & chaũged his apparel, and came into yͤ houſe of the LORD, and worſhypped, and afterwarde came to his owne houſe, and bad that they ſhould ſet breade before

And it was ſet on Dauids head: and he brought out the ſpoile of ẏ citie in exceding great aboundaunce. And he caried out the people that was therin, ⁊ put them vpon ſawes and vpon yron harowes, and vpon axes of yrō, and thruſt them into the tyle kel. Thus dyd he with al the cities of the children of Ammon. And ſo Dauid and all the people returned vnto Ieruſalem.

¶The. xiii. Chapter.

Ammon Dauids ſonne defyleth his ſyſter Thamar, Abſalom therfore killeth Ammon.

A After this, it chaūced, that Abſalō ẏ ſon of Dauid had a fayre ſyſter, named Thamar, whom Ammon ẏ ſon of Dauid loued: And he was ſo ſore vexed that he fell ſycke for ẏ loue of his ſyſter Thamar: for ſhe was a virgin, ⁊ he thoughte it harde for him, to haue his purpoſe of her. But Ammon had a frende called Ionadab, ẏ ſonne of Simeah Dauids brother: ⁊ Ionadab was a very wyſe mā. And he ſaid vnto him: how cōmeth it, ẏ thou being ẏ kynges ſonne arte thus conſumed euery daye? Wylt thou not tel me? Ammon anſwered him: I loue Thamar my brother Abſaloms ſyſter. Ionadab ſayde vnto him: laye the downe on thy bedde, and make thy ſelfe ſicke. And when thy father is come to ſe the, ſaye vnto him: Oh, let my ſyſter Thamar come, and geue me meate, ⁊ dreſſe it in my ſight, ẏ I may ſe it, and eate it of her hande.

B And ſo Ammon laye downe, ⁊ made him ſelfe ſycke. And when the kynge was come to ſe him, Ammon ſaid vnto him: Oh let Thamar my ſyſter come, ⁊ make me a couple of frytters in my ſight, that I maye eate of her hande. Then Dauid ſente home to Thamar, ſayinge: go nowe to thy brother Ammons houſe, and dreſſe him meate. So Thamar went to her brother Ammons houſe, and he was laied downe. And ſhe toke floure, and made paſte, and dreſſed fritters in his ſight, ⁊ dyd bake them, and toke a platter, ⁊ poured them out before him: but he would not eate. And Ammon ſaid: Haue out al mē fro me. And they went al out from him. And Ammō ſaid vnto Thamar: bring the meate into ẏ chamber, that I maye eate of thine hande. And Thamar toke the frytters, whiche ſhe had made, and brought them into the chambre to Ammon her brother: And when ſhe had ſet them before him to eate, he toke her, ⁊ ſaid vnto her: come lye with me my ſyſter. And ſhe aunſwered him: naye my brother, doe not force me, for there hath no ſuche thing be done in Iſrael: do not thou this abhominacion. For whither ſhal I be able to go with my ſhame? And thou ſhalte be as one of the foles in Iſrael. O ſpeake vnto the kyng, and he ſhal not denye me vnto the.

Howbeit, he would not hearken vnto her voice, but toke her, and *forced her, and lay with her. And then Ammō hated her excedynglye: ſo that the hate wherwith he hated her, was greater then the loue, with which he before loued her. And Ammon ſaid vnto her: vp, and get the hence. She anſwered him: thou haſt no cauſe. This euil that thou putteſt me awaye, is greater then ẏ other, that thou diddeſt vnto me. Neuertheleſſe, he woulde not heare her, but called his boye that ſerued him, ⁊ ſayd: put away this woman fro me, and bolt the dore after her. And ſhe had a kyrtle of dyuers colours vpon her: for w̄ ſuch were the kynges doughters (that wer virgins) appareled. Then his ſeruaunt brought her out, and locked ẏ dore after her. And Thamar toke, ⁊ put aſhes on her head and rent her gaye kyrtle ẏ was on her, and layed her hande on her head, and ſo went: and as ſhe went, cried. And Abſalom her brother ſayde vnto her: hath Ammō thy brother bene with the? Nowe yet be ſtyl my ſyſter: he is thy brother. Let not this thinge greue thyne heart. And ſo Thamar remayned deſolate in her brother Abſaloms houſe. But when kynge Dauid hearde of al theſe thinges, he was very wrothe. (And he woulde not vexe the ſpirite of Ammon his ſonne for he loued him/ becauſe he was his firſte borne.) And Abſalom ſayde vnto his brother Ammon neyther good nor bad. Howbeit, Abſalom hated Ammon, because he had forced his ſyſter Thamar.

E And it happened after two yere, that en.31.c.1 Abſalō had *ſhepeſherers in yͤ plaine e.38.d of Hazor, beſyde the trybe of Ephraim, and bad al the kynges ſonnes, ⁊ came to the kyng and ſaid: beholde, thy ſeruaunt hath ſhepeſherers, let the kynge with his ſeruauntes come to thy ſeruaunt: The king anſwered Abſalō: nay my ſonne. We wil not go al, nor be chargeable vnto the. And Abſalom lay ſore vpon him: howbeit, he woulde not go, but bleſſed him. Then ſaid Abſalom: yf thou wylt not come, then let my brother Ammon go with vs. And yͤ kynge anſwered hym: What nedeth it, that he goe with thee? But Abſalom made ſuche inſtaunce, that he let Ammon and al the kynges children go with hym.

Now had Abſalom commaūded his yongmen ſaying: marke when Ammōs herte is mery with wyne, and when I byd you ſmyte Ammon, then kyl him: ⁊ ſeare not: haue not I bydden you? be bolde therfore, and playe the men. And the yong men of Abſalō dyd vnto Ammon, euen as Abſalō had commaūded.
F And al the kinges ſonnes aroſe, ⁊ euery man gat him vp vpon his mule, ⁊ fled: And it fortuned, that whyle they were yet in the way, tidinges came to Dauid, ſaying: Abſalō hath ſlaine all yͤ kynges ſonnes, and there is none lefte alyue. reg.1.b Then Dauid aroſe, and *tare his gar-o.3.f mentes, and lay along on the earthe, ⁊ al his ſeruauntes ſtode by with theyr clothes rente. And Jonadab the ſon of Simeach Dauids brother anſwered ⁊ ſayd: let not my lorde ſuppoſe that they haue ſlayne al the yongmen yͤ kynges ſonnes, ſaue Ammon onely is deade. For that hath bene determined in Abſaloms mynde, ſyns he forced his ſiſter Thamar. Nowe therfore let not my lorde the kynge take the thinge ſo greuouſlye, to thincke that all the kinges ſonnes are dead, ſaue Ammon onely is deade.

G But Abſalom fled. And the yong mā that kept the watche lyfte vp his eyes, ⁊ loked. And beholde, there came much people by a waye, along by the hynder parte on an hilles ſyde. And Jonadab ſaid vnto the kyng: beholde, the kinges ſonnes come. As thy ſeruaunt ſaide, ſo it is. And as ſoone as he had lefte ſpeakyng, behold, the kinges ſonnes came, ⁊ lift vp their voices, ⁊ wept. The king alſo ⁊ al his ſeruaūtes wept excedingly. But Abſalom eſcaped and wente to Thalmai the ſonne of Amihur kyng of Geſur. And Dauid mourned for his ſon euery day. And ſo Abſalom eſcaped ⁊ went to Geſur, and was there thre yeres. And king Dauid deſired to go forth vnto Abſalom: For where as Ammon was deade, he was cōforted ouer him.

By the wyſdome of the woman of Thekoa/ Abſalom is called againe.

A Joab the ſonne of zaruia perceiued, yͤ the kynges herte was towarde Abſalom, and he ſente to Thekoa, ⁊ fette thence a wyſe woman, and ſaid vnto her: faine thy ſelfe to be a mourner, and put on mournynge apparel. And annoynte not thy ſelfe wͭ oyle. But be as a woman that had lōg time mourned for ſome dead bodye. And come to the kynge, and ſpeake of thys maner vnto him. And ſo Joab taughte her what ſhe ſhoulde ſaye.

B And when the womā of Thekoa had fallen on her face to the grounde, and done obeyſaunce, ſhe ſayd vnto yͤ king: helpe me, O kynge.

The kyng ſaid vnto her: what aileth the? She anſwered: I am a wyddowe, and my huſbāde is dead. And thy hādmayde had two ſonnes, and they two fought together in the felde (wher was no man to go betwene them) but yͤ one ſmote the other, and ſlue him. And beholde, the hole kinred is ryſen againſte thine hādmaide, and they ſaid: *deliuer Deu.19.b vs him, that ſmote his brother: that we maye kyl him, for the ſoule of his brother whom he ſlue. We wil deſtroye the heyre alſo. And ſo they ſhal quenche my ſparkle whiche is lefte, that he ſhal ſtyrre vp (to my huſbāde) neither name nor iſſue vpon the earthe. And yͤ kynge ſaid vnto the woman: go home to thine houſe, I wil geue a charge for the. And C the womā of Thekoa ſaid vnto yͤ king: My lorde, O kyng, this treſpaſſe be on me, and on my fathers houſe, ⁊ yͤ kyng and his ſeate be giltleſſe. And the king ſayde: yf any man ſaye ought vnto the: bryng him to me, and he ſhal hurte the nomore. Then ſayde ſhe: Let the kyng remembre his LORDE GOD, that the auenger of ẏ bloude gather not on heapes together to deſtroye, and that they ſlaye not my ſonne. And he aunſwered: 2.Re.14.g as ſure as the LORD liueth,*there ſhal not one heere of thy ſon fal to ẏ earth.

D The woman ſaid: let thine handmaide ſpeake one worde more with my LORD the kyng. And he ſaid: ſaye on. The woman ſaid: wherfore then haſt thou determyned ſuche a thynge agaynſte the people of GOD? For the kynge dothe ſpeake this thinge as one whiche is fautye, that he ſhoulde not fet home againe his baniſhed. For we muſt nedes dye, and peryſhe as water ſpylt on the grounde, which cannot be gathered vp againe. Neyther doth GOD ſpare any ſoule. Let the kynge therfore finde the meanes, ẏ his banniſhed be not vtterly expelled from him. Now therfore am I come, to ſpeake of this thing vnto the kyng my Lorde. For they ẏ be of ẏ people haue feared me. And thy hādmaide ſaid. Now wil I ſpeake vnto the kyng, peraduenture the kyng wyl perfourme E the requeſt of his handmayde. And the kyng ſhal heare his handemaide, to deliuer her out of the hande of the mā that would haue deſtroyed me, and alſo my ſonne, out of the enheritaunce of GOD. And thine handmayde ſaide: the worde of my Lorde the king ſhal now be comfortable. For my lord the kyng is as an aungel of GOD in hearing of good and bad: therfore the LORDE thy God be with thee.

Then the kyng anſwered, and ſayde vnto the womā: hide not fro me (I pray the) the thing that I ſhal aſke the: And the woman ſaid: let my lorde the kynge now ſaye on. And ẏ kyng ſaid: Is not the hande of Ioab with the in all thys matter? The woman anſwered, & ſaid: 2.Reg.11.b *as ſure as thy ſoule lyueth my lorde kyng there is els noman (on the righte hande nor on the left) but as my Lorde the kyng hath ſpoken, thy ſeruaūt Ioab he bad me, and he put al theſe wordes in the mouth of thyne handmayde. For to the intent that I ſhoulde aulter my communicacion, hath thy ſeruaunt Ioab done this thing. And my lorde is wyſe euē as an Aungel of GOD to vnderſtāde al thinges that are in ẏ earth. And the kyng ſaid vnto Ioab: beholde, I am content to do this thing. Go and fet home the childe Abſalom agayne.

And Ioab fell to the grounde on hys F face, and bowed him ſelfe, and bleſſed ẏ king. And Ioab ſaid: now thy ſeruaunt knoweth, that I haue founde grace in thy ſight (my lorde, O kyng) in that the kyng hath fulfylled the requeſt of hys ſeruaunte. And ſo Ioab aroſe, and wēt to Geſur, and brought Abſalom to Ieruſalem. And the kynge ſayde: let him turne to his owne houſe, and not ſe my face. And ſo Abſalom retourned to hys owne houſe, & ſaw not the kynges face.

But in al Iſrael there was not ſo goodly a man as Abſalom, for he was very beautyful: inſomuche that from ẏ ſoule of his foote to the top of his head, there was no blemiſh in him. And whē he ſhaued his head (for at euery yeares ende he ſhaued it, becauſe ẏ heere was heuy on him, and muſt neades ſhaue it) the heere of his head weyed two hundred ſycles after the kynges weyghte.
And this Abſalō had thre ſonnes borne G him, & one doughter named Thamar: which was a fayre woman to loke vpon. So Abſalom dwelt two yere in Ieruſalem, and ſaw not the kynges face. Therfore Abſalō ſēt for Ioab, to haue ſent him to the king. But he would not come to him. And when he ſent againe, he would not come. Therfore he ſayde vnto his ſeruauntes: beholde, Ioab hath a parcel of lande faſt by my place, & hath barly therin: GO, & ſet it on fire. And Abſaloms ſeruaūtes ſet it on fire.

Then Ioab aroſe, and came to Abſalom vnto his houſe, & ſaid vnto hym: wherfore haue thy ſeruauntes burnte my felde with fyre? And Abſalom aunſwered Ioab: beholde, I ſente for the, deſiring the to come, becauſe I would haue ſent the to the kynge, for to ſaye: wherfore am I come from Geſur? It had bene better for me to haue bene there ſtyll. Nowe therfore woulde I ſe the kynges face. And yf there be any treſpaſſe in me, kyl thou me. And ſo Ioab came to the kynge, and tolde him: whiche when he had ſent for Abſalom, he came to the kynge, and fell to the grounde on his face before him. And the kyng kyſſed Abſalom.

¶ The. xv. Chapter.

Abſalom maketh inſurreccion againſt his father. Dauid is fayne to flye for feare of him.

A After this it fortuned, that Abſalō gat him charretes and horſes, and fifty mē to runne before him. And he aroſe vp early in yͤ mornynges, and ſtode in the place of the entringe in of C But Abſalom ſent ſpies thorowout al the trybes of Iſrael, ſaying: as ſoone ſayde the kynge to * Ithai the Gethite: 2.reg.18.b

DAuid the kyng ſaid to Ithai: come thē, the children that were with him. And al the countreye wepte with a loude forth. The kyng alſo him ſelfe paſſed ouer E the brooke Kydron. And al the people went towarde the way that leadeth to the wylderneſſe. And Sadock and al the Leuites were with him, ⁊ bare yͤ arke of the appoyntment of GOD. And there they ſet downe the arke of GOD: And Abiathar went vp, vntill yͤ people were al come ouer, out of the cytie. And the kyng ſaid vnto Sadock: Carye the arke of GOD againe into the cytie. Yf I ſhal fynde fauour in the eyes of the me both it and the tabernacle therof.

But and yf the LORD thus ſay: I haue no luſt vnto the, beholde, here am I: let him do with me, what ſemeth good in his eyes.

F The kyng ſaid alſo vnto Sadok the prieſt: Art not thou a *ſear? Returne into the citye in peace: and take youre two ſonnes wᵗ you, Ahimaaz thy ſonne, and Jonathas the ſonne of Abiathar. Beholde, I wil tarye in the feldes of ẏ wyldernesſe, vntyll there come ſome worde frō you to be tolde me. Sadok therfore and Abiathar caryed the arke of GOD againe to Jeruſalem, and they taryed there. And Dauid went vpon mount Oliuete, and wept as he wēt, & had his head couered, and went barefoote. And al the people that was with him had euery man his head couered, & as they went vp, they wepte alſo. And one tolde Dauid, ſaying: Ahithophel is one of them ẏ haue conſpired wᵗ Abſalō. And Dauid ſaid: O Lorde turne the coūſail of Ahithophel into fooliſhnesſe. 1.Reg.9.b

G When Dauid was come to the toppe of ẏ moūt, he worſhipped GOD: and beholde, Huſai the Arachite came againſt him with his coate torne, and hauynge earth vpon his head. Unto whom Dauid ſaid: yf thou go with me, thou ſhalt be a burthen vnto me. But yf thou returne to the citye, and ſay vnto Abſalō: I wyl be thy ſeruaunt, O kyng: (as I haue this lōg bene thy fathers ſeruaūt, ſo am I now thy ſeruaunt) thou maieſt for my ſake deſtroye ẏ counſail of *Ahithophel. And thou haſte there with the Sadok and Abiathar the prieſtes, vnto whom thou ſhalte ſhewe all that thou canſt heare out of the kynges houſe. And beholde, they haue there with thē their two ſonnes: Ahimaaz Sadoks ſonne, and Jonathas Abiathars ſon: by them alſo ſhal ye ſende me al that ye can heare. And ſo *Huſai Dauids frēde gat him to the citie. And Abſalom alſo entred into Jeruſalem. 2. Regum. 17.a.b.c. 2.Re.17.d.

The .xvi. Chapter.

¶ Ziba bryngyng preſentes to Dauid / doth falſely accuſe Miphiboſeth. Semei curſeth Dauid / and hurleth ſtones at him. Abſalom (by ẏ counſail of Ahithophel) lyeth with his fathers concubynes.

AND when Dauid was a litle paſte the toppe of the hil, beholde, Ziba ẏ ſeruaunt of Miphiboſeth came to mete him, with a couple of aſſes ſadled, and vpon them two hūdred loues, & one hundred bonches of reyſynges, & an hundred frayles of dryed fygges, & a bottel of wyne. And the kynge ſayde vnto Ziba: what meaneſt thou wᵗ theſe? D And Ziba ſaid: They be aſſes for ẏ kynges houſholde to ryde on, and bread & frute for the yong men to eate: & wyne, that ſuche as be fainte in ẏ wildernesſe maye drinke. And the kyng ſaid: where is thy maſters ſonne? Ziba aunſwered vnto the kyng: beholde, he tarieth ſtyll at Jeruſalem. For he ſaid: this day ſhal the houſe of Iſrael reſtore me ẏ kyngedome of my father: then ſayd ẏ kynge to Ziba: beholde, thyne are all that pertained vnto *Miphiboſeth. And Ziba ſaid: I do homage to the: I beſeche the, that I maye fynde grace in thy ſyghte, my Lorde, O kynge.

B And when kyng Dauid came to Bahurim, beholde, thēce came out a mā of the kinred of the houſe of Saul, named *Semei, the ſonne of Gera, & he came out curſynge. And he caſt ſtones at Dauid, and at al ẏ ſeruaūtes of kyng Dauid. And al the people alſo, and al ẏ mē of war were on his right hande, and on his left. And thus ſayde *Semei when he curſed: come for the, come forth thou bloudſhedder, and thou man of Belial. The LORD hath broughte vpon the al the bloude of ẏ houſe of Saul, in whoſe ſteade thou haſt raygned, and ẏ LORD hath delyuered the kyngdome into the hande of Abſalō thy ſonne. And behold, thou art come to thy miſchefe, becauſe thou art a bloudſhedder. 2.Re.15.d. and.20.f.

C Then ſaid Abiſay the ſonne of Zaruia vnto ẏ kynge: why doeth this dead dogge curſe my lorde the kyng? let me go now and take of the head of him. And the kynge ſaid: what haue I to do with you, ye ſonnes of Zaruia? let hym curſe: for the Lorde hathe bydden him curſe Dauid. Who darre then ſaye: wherfore haſt thou done ſo? And Dauid ſaid to Abiſai, and to al his ſeruaūtes: beholde, my ſonne which came of myne owne bodye, ſeketh my lyfe. How much more then maye this ſonne of Jemini doe it? Suffre him to curſe, *for ẏ lord hathe bydden him: haply the LORDE wyl loke on my weping eyes and wretchednesſe, and do me good for his curſynge this daye. And as Dauid and his men went by the way, Semei went along on ẏ hilles ſyde ouer againſt him, and curſed as he went, & threwe ſtones at him, and caſt duſt. And the kyng and al that were with hym came wery, and refreſhed them ſelues *there.

D And Abſalom and all the people of the men of Iſraell came to Jeruſalem, and Ahithophel was with him.
And as ſoone as Huſai the Arachite Dauids frende was come vnto Abſalom, he ſaid vnto him: GOD ſaue the kyng, GOD ſaue the kyng. And Abſalõ ſaid againe to Huſi: is this the kyndneſſe thou oweſt to thy frende? Why wenteſt thou not with him? Huſai anſwered vnto Abſalom: naye not ſo: but whome the LORD and this people and al the men of Iſrael choſe, his wyll I be, and with him wyl I dwel. Moreouer, vnto whom ſhal I do ſeruice, but euen to his ſonne? And as I was a ſeruaunt before wͭ thy father, euen ſo ſhal I be with the. Then ſpake Abſalom to Ahithophel: geue counſail what is beſt for vs to do. And Ahithophel ſayd vnto 2.Re.15.d. Abſalõ, get the in vnto thy fathers *cõcubines,

And ſo they pitched Abſalõ a tent vpõ the toppe of the houſe. And he wente in vnto his fathers concubynes in the ſighte of all Iſrael.

C And the counſail of Ahithophel which he counſayled in thoſe dayes, was as a man had aſked counſayle of GOD: euẽ ſo was al the counſayle of Ahithophel, both with Dauid and with Abſalom.

¶ The. xvii. Chapter.

Ahithophel ſeing his counſayle dyſalowed of Huſai / and forſaken / hangeth him ſelfe.

A Ahithophel ſaid to Abſalom: let me choſe out nowe twelue thouſande men. And I wyl vp ⁊ folowe after Dauid this night. And I wil come vpon him whyle he is werye and weake handed, and wil feare him. And all the people yͭ are with him ſhal flye. And ſo I wyl ſmite yͤ kyng onely, ⁊ wil bryng againe al the people vnto the, euen as eaſely as yf I would bryng anye other thing. And when I haue ſlayne yͤ man whõ thou ſekeſt, al the people ſhal haue reſt. And the ſayinge pleaſed Abſalom wel, and al the elders of Iſraell. Then ſaid Abſalõ: cal alſo Huſai yͤ Arachite, and let vs heare his counſayle. When Huſai was come to Abſalõ, Abſalom ſpake vnto him, ſayig: Ahithophel hath geuen ſuch counſayl: Shal we do after his ſaying, or no? tell thou.

B Huſai anſwered vnto Abſalõ, yͭ the counſayle that Ahithophel hath geuẽ, is not good at this time: For (ſaid Huſai) thou knoweſt thy father, and his mẽ, how yͭ they be ſtronge. And they be chaſed in their myndes, and are euen as a *beere Pro.17.a.

and maketh no taryíng with yͤ people.
Beholde, he lurketh now in ſome caue, or in ſome other, (ſtronge) place. And thoughe ſome of his men be ouerthrowen at the firſt brunt: yet they yͭ heare it, wyl ſay: The people that folow Abſalom be put to yͤ worſe. And the beſt men thou haſt, whoſe hertes are as the hertes of lions, ſhal ſhrinke therat. For al Iſrael knoweth, that thy father is a myghtye man, and they which be with hym, are all men of warre.

C Therfore my counſail is, that al Iſrael be gathered vnto the, frõ Dan to Beerſeba (whiche are as the ſande of yͤ ſea in numbre) ⁊ yͭ thou go to battail in thyne owne perſõ. For ſo ſhal we come vpon him in one place or other, where we ſhal finde him, ⁊ we wil fall vpon him euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on yͤ groũde. And of al the mẽ yͭ are wͭ him, we ſhal not leaue him one. Moreouer, yf he be gotten in to a towne, then ſhal al the men of Iſrael bring ropes to that citie, ⁊ we wil draw it into the ryuer, vntyl there be not one ſtone founde there. And Abſalom ⁊ al yͤ men of Iſrael ſaid: the counſayle of Huſai yͤ Arachite is better, then the counſail of Ahithophel. *For it was euẽ yͤ Lordes Eſa.19.c of this and yͭ maner dyd Ahithophel ⁊ the elders of Iſrael coũſayl Abſalom.

And thus ⁊ thus haue I counſaylled.
Now therfore ſende quickly, and ſhew Dauid, ſaying: tary not al night in the leſt yͤ kyng be deuoured ⁊ al yͤ people abode by the well Rogel: (for they might not be ſene to come into the

And they went ⁊ ſhewed king Dauid.

Neuertheleſſe, a lad ſawe them, and tolde it to Abſalom. But they wente bothe of them away quickly, and came

E to a mans houſe in Bahurim, whiche had a wel in his yarde, into the which they went downe. And a womã toke ⁊ ſpred a couerlet ouer yͤ welles mouth, and ſtrawed fourmenty corne theron.
And the thinge was not eſpyed.
And when Abſalons ſeruauntes came to the wyfe, to yͤ houſe, they ſaid: Where is Ahimaaz ⁊ Jonathas? The woman anſwered them: they be gone ouer the lytle brooke of water. And when they had ſought them, and coulde not fynde them, they retourned to Jeruſalem.
And as ſoone as they were departed, yͤ other came out of the well, and went ⁊ tolde kyng Dauid, and ſaid vnto hym:
vp, and get you quickly ouer yͤ water, for ſuche coũſail hath Ahithophel geuẽ the people that were with him, ⁊ they wer come ouer Jordan by that it was that was not come ouer Jordan. And when Ahithophel ſaw, that his coũſail was not folowed, he ſadled his aſſe, ⁊ aroſe, and gat him home to his owne his houſholde in ordre, and hanged him ſelfe, and dyed: and was buryed in the ſepulchre of his father.

G Then Dauid came to Mahenaim.
And Abſalom paſſed ouer Jordan, he ⁊ al the men of Jſrael with him. And Abſalom made Amaſa captaine of the hoſt

The.xviii.Chapter.

Abſalom is ouercome in battayle. He hangeth by the heere in an oke. He is killed and put in a diche. Dauid is ſo ſorowful for the deathe of Abſalom/ that he wepeth.

AND Dauid numbred yͤ people that a

And ſo yͤ people wente out into yͤ felde

And Abſalom came before the ſeruaũtes

The man ſaid vnto Joab: thoughe thou wouldeſt lay a thouſande ſycles when the kynge charged the, & Abiſai, & Ithai, ſayinge: Beware, ỹ none touche the yong man Abſalom. Moreouer, if I had done it, I ſhould haue done againſt myne owne lyfe: for there is no matter hyd from the kynge: yea, and thou thy ſelfe wouldeſt haue bene agaynſte me. Then ſayde Ioab: I maye not ſtande thus taryinge with thee.

D And he toke thre ſpeares in his hãd, and thruſt them thorow Abſalom, while he was yet alyue on the body of ỹ tree. And ten ſeruauntes that bare Ioabs weapons, turned and ſmote Abſalom, and ſlue him. And when Ioab blewe the trompet, the people returned from folowyng Iſrael. For Ioab ſpared the people. And they toke Abſalom, and caſt him into a great pyt in the woode, and layed a myghtye greate heape of ſtones vpon him. And all Iſraell fled to theyr tentes. And this Abſalom yet in his lyfe time*toke counſaile: and reared vp a pyller, whiche is in kynges Dale. For he ſayde: I haue no ſonne. And therfore, to kepe my name in remembraunce do I it. And he called the pyller after hys owne name. And it is called vnto thys day: Abſaloms pyller.

*2.Reg.15.c

E Then ſayde Ahimaaz the ſonne of Sadok: let me runne nowe, and beare the kynge tydynges howe that the LORDE hathe iudged hym quite of the hande of his enemyes. And Ioab ſaide vnto him: thou art no man to beare good tidinges to daye: thou ſhalte beare tydynges an other time, but to daye thou ſhalt beare none: bycauſe the kinges ſonne is dead. Then ſayde Ioab to Chuſi: goe, and tel the kynge, what thou haſt ſene. And Chuſi bowed himſelfe vnto Ioab, and ranne. Then ſayde Ahimaaz the ſonne of Sadoc agayne to Ioab: come what come wyl, let me alſo runne after Chuſi. And Ioab ſayd: Wherfore wylt thou runne my ſonne? ſeynge that for the tydynges thou ſhalt haue no reward: wel (ſayde he) come what wyl, let me runne. He ſayd vnto him: runne. Then Ahimaaz ranne by the playne waye, and came before Chuſi. And Dauid ſat betwene the two gates. And the watchemanne F wente vp to the roofe ouer the gate vnto the wall, and lifte vp his eies, & ſaw, and behold, there came a man running alone. And the watcheman cryed, & told the kynge. And the kynge ſayde: yf he be alone, there is good tydynges in hys mouth. And he came, and drew nie. And the watcheman ſawe another man runnyng, and he called vnto the porter, and ſaide: beholde, there commeth an other man runnyng alone. And the king ſaid: he is alſo a tydynges brynger. And the watchman ſayde: me thynketh the runnyng of the formoſt is lyke the running of Ahimaaz the ſonne of Sadok. The kynge ſayde: he is a good man, & cõmeth with good tydinges. And Ahimaaz called, & ſayd vnto the kyng: good tidinges, & he fel downe flat to the earth vpon his face before the kyng, & ſaide: bleſſed be ỹ LORDE thy GOD, whiche hath ſhut vp the men ỹ lyfte vp their hãdes agaynſte my lorde the kynge. And the kyng ſayd: is the yong mã Abſalom ſafe? Ahimaaz anſwered: when Ioab ſente (Chuſi) the kynges ſeruaunt, & me thy ſeruaunt, I ſawe muche ado: But I wot not what it was: And the kynge ſayde vnto hym: turne, & ſtande here. And he turned, and ſtoode ſtyll.

G And beholde, Chuſi came alſo, & ſayd: Good tydynges my lorde the kynge, for the LORDE hath quite thee this day out of the hande of all them ỹ roſe agaynſte thee. And the kyng ſayd vnto Chuſi: Is the yonge man Abſalom ſafe? Chuſi anſwered: The enemyes of my lorde the kynge, & all that ryſe againſt thee, to do the hurte, be as that yonge mã is. And the kynge was moued, & wente vp to a chambre ouer the gate, & wepte. And as he went, thus he ſayde: O my ſonne Abſalom, my ſon, my ſon Abſalom, woulde GOD I had dyed for thee: O Abſalom my ſonne, my ſonne.

¶ The.xix. Chapter.

¶ Dauid is reſtored to his kyngdom/ and broughte agayne to Ieruſalem.

A And it was tolde Ioab: Behold, the kynge mourneth and wepeth for Abſalom. And the victorie of ỹ day was turned into mournynge vnto all the people. For the people hearde ſaye ỹ daye howe the kynge ſorowed for hys ſonne. And the people ſtale awaye ỹ day from goinge into the citie, as people cõfounded ſteale awaye when they flye in battayle. But the kynge hid his face, & cryed with a loude voyce: O my ſonne Abſalom, O Abſalõ my ſonne, my ſon.

And Ioab came into the houſe to the kynge, and ſayd: thou haſt ſhamed thys whiche this day haue ſaued thy lyfe, ⁊ the lyues of thy ſonnes ⁊ of thy doughters, and the lyues of thy wyues, and of thy concubynes, in ẏ thou loueſt thine enemies, and hateſt thy frẽdes. For thou haſt declared this day, that thou regardeſt neither thy lordes nor ſeruauntes.

And this day I doe perceyue, ẏ yf Abſalom B had lyued, and al we had dyed this daye, that had pleaſed the well. Nowe therfore vp, ⁊ come out, and ſpeake kindly vnto thy ſeruauntes: For I ſweare by the LORDE, excepte thou come oute, there wyll not tarye one man with the this night. And that will be worſe vnto thee, then all the euil ẏ fell on the frõ thy youth vnto this houre. Then the kynge aroſe, and ſat downe in the gate. And they tolde vnto all the people, ſayinge: Behold, the kynge doth ſyt in the gate.
And al the people came before the kyng, But Iſraell fled euery man to his tent.

And it fortuned, that all the people were at ſtryfe thorow out al the trybes of Iſrael, ſaying: the kyng ſaued vs out vs out of the hande of the Philiſtines, and nowe he is fled out of ẏ land for Abſalom. But Abſalom whom we anoynted ouer vs is dead in battayle.

Therfore why are ye ſo ſtyll, ẏ ye bryng C not the kynge agayne? And kyng DAUID ſent to Sadok ⁊ Abiathar the prieſtes, ſayinge: ſpeake vnto the elders of Iuda and ſaye: why are ye behynde to bringe the kynge agayne to hys houſe, ſeynge that ſuche tydynges is come from all Iſrael vnto the kyng, euen to his houſe?
(For the kynge had ſayed. Thus ſhall ye ſaye vnto the kyng: Returne thou with al thy ſeruauntes.

So the kynge returned, and came to Iordan. And Iuda came to LORDES anoynted? And Dauid ſayde: what matter is betwene you and me, ye ſonnes of Zeruia? For this daye ye be aduerſaryes vnto me. Shall there any man dye this daye in Iſrael? Do not I knowe, that I am this daye kynge ouer Iſrael? And therefore the kynge ſayde vnto Semei: thou ſhalt not die, and the kyng ſware vnto him.

C And Miphiboſeth the ſonne of Saul came alſo to mete the kynge, and hadde neyther waſhed his fete, nor ſhauen his bearde, nor waſhed his clothes from the tyme the kynge departed, vntyl he came againe in peace. And it fortuned ẏ whẽ he was come to Ieruſalẽ, ⁊ met ẏ kyng, ẏ king ſayd vnto him: wherfore wenteſt not thou wͭ me Miphiboſeth? He aunſwered: my lord, O king, my ſeruaũt deceiued me. For thy ſeruaũt ſayd: I wold haue myne aſſe ſadled to ryde thereon, for to go to the kynge, bycauſe thy ſeruaunte is lame. And Ziba hath falſelye reported of thy ſeruaunt vnto my lorde the kyng. And my lord the king is as an angel of GOD: do therfore what ſemeth good in thyne eyes. For all my fathers houſe were but deade menne before my lorde the kyng, and yet diddeſt thou put thy ſeruaunt among them that did eate at thine owne table. What ryghte therfore haue I yet, to crye anye more vnto the kynge. And the kynge ſayde vnto

him: why ſpeakeſt thou yet in thine own cauſe? (It is determined/that) I haue ſayd: thou ⁊ Ziba deuide the landes betwene you. And Miphiboſeth ſayde vnto the kynge: yea, let him take all: for ſo muche as my lorde the kyng is come againe in peace vnto his owne houſe.

F And Berſelai yͤ Giliadite came down from Roglim, and wente ouer Iordan with the kyng, to conuey him ouer Iordan. Berſelai was a very aged man, euē fourescore yere olde, and prouyded the kynge of ſuſtenaunce, while he laye at Mahanaim: for he was a man of verye greate ſubſtaunce. And the kynge ſayde vnto Berſelai: come thou with me, and I wyl feede thee with me in Ieruſalem.

Reg.17.g And *Berſelai ſaid vnto the king: I am thus olde, and howe am I hable to goe vp with the kynge vnto Ieruſalem? I am this daye fourescore yere olde: ⁊ can I decerne betwene good ⁊ euyll? Hath thy ſeruaunt any taſte in that he eateth or drynketh? Can he heare any more the voyce of ſyngynge men and women? Wherfore then ſhoulde thy ſeruaunt be yet a burthen vnto my lorde the kynge? Thy ſeruaunte wyll go a lytle waye ouer Iordan with the king, and why wil the kynge recompence it me with ſuche a reward? O let thy ſeruaūt turne back againe, that I maye dye in myne owne cytye, and (be buried) in the graue of my father and of my mother: Beholde, here is thy ſeruaunt Chimeam, let him go wͭ my lorde the kynge, and do to him what ſhall pleaſe the.

G And the kynge anſwered: Chimeam ſhall goe with me. And I wyl do to him that thou ſhalte be content with. And what ſoeuer thou ſhalte require of me, that ſame will I doe for thee. And all yͤ people wente ouer Iordan. And when the king was come ouer Iordā, he kiſſed Berſelai, and bleſſed him, and he wente backe againe vnto his owne place. And then the kynge wente to Gilgal, and Chimeam went with him, and ſo dyd al the people of Iuda, and broughte ouer the kynge, and there were but halfe the men of Iſraell.

And beholde, all the men of Iſraell came to the kyng, and ſayde vnto hym: why haue our brethren the men of Iuda ſtolen thee away, and haue brought the kinge and his houſholde, and al Dauids men with him ouer Iordan? And all the men of Iuda anſwered the men of Iſrael: the kyng is nere of kyn to vs: wherefore be ye angrye for the matter? thynke ye that we eate of yͤ kynges coſt, or that we take vs any gyftes? And the men of Iſrael anſwered the men of Iuda, and ſayde: we haue ten partes in the kynge, and haue therto more ryghte to Dauid then ye. Why then dyd ye diſpiſe vs, that our aduiſe ſhoulde not be fyrſte had, in reſtorynge oure kynge agayne? And the wordes of the menne of Iuda were fearcer then the wordes of the men of Iſraell.

¶ The.xx.Chapter.

¶ Seba the ſonne of Bichri rayſeth Iſrael againſt Dauid/Ioab kylleth Amaſa traytouſly. The heade of Seba is delyuered to Ioab/ Dauids receyuers are numbred.

When there came thither a certain man of Belial (named Seba, the ſonne of Bichri, a mā of Gemini) he blewe a trompet, and ſayde: we haue no part in Dauid, nether haue we enheritaunce in the ſonne of Iſai, let the mē of Iſrael depart vnto their tentes. And ſo euery man of Iſraell wente from Dauid and folowed Seba the ſonne of Bichri. But the men of Iuda claue faſt vnto theyr kynge, from Iordan vnto Ieruſalem. A

And Dauid came to his houſe to Ieruſalem, *and toke the ten women hys concubines, that he had left behynd him to kepe yͤ houſe, and put them in ward, and fedde them: but laye no more with them. And ſo they were encloſed vnto the daye of their death, lyuynge in wydowehoode. 2.reg.16. and.21.b

B Then ſayde the kynge vnto Amaſa: call me yͤ men of Iuda togyther againſt the thirde daye, and be thou here alſo. And ſo Amaſa went to gather the men of Iuda togyther: but taried longer thē the time whiche he had appoynted him. And Dauid ſayde to Abiſai: nowe ſhall Seba the ſonne of Bichri do vs more harme, then did Abſalom. Take thou therfore thy lordes ſeruauntes and folowe after him, leſte he get him walled cyties, and eſcape vs. And there wente oute after him Ioabs men, and the Crethites and the Phelethites, and all the myghtieſt men. And Ioab returned to Ieruſalē vnto yͤ king.

Ioab was ouer al the hoſt of Iſraell. And Banaia the ſonne of Iehoiada was ouer the Crethites ⁊ Phelethites. And Aduram was ouer the tribute.And Iehoſaphat yͤ ſonne of Ahilud was recorder.Seua was ſcrybe. And Sadock ⁊ Abiathar were yͤ prieſtes.And Ira the Iairite was Dauids prieſt.

¶ The.xxi.Chapter.

Thre deare yēres.The vengeaunce of the ſinnes of Saul lighteth on his.vii ſonnes which are hanged, Foure great battayles whiche Dauid had againſte the Philiſtines.

THen there fel an hūgre in yͤ dayes of Dauid, three yeares togyther. And Dauid enquired of yͤ LORD. And yͤ LORD anſwered:it is for Saul, and yͤ houſe of bloud, bicauſe he ſlue the *Gibaonites.And the kynge called the Gibaonites,and ſayd vnto them:(Now the Gibaonites were not of the*childrē of Iſrael,but a remnaunte of the Amorites,and the children of Iſraell ſware vnto them:And Saule ſoughte to ſlaye them:for a zele that he had to the childrē of Iſrael and of Iuda.) Wherfore Dauid ſayde vnto them:what ſhal I do for you,and wherwith ſhal I make the attonemente that ye may bleſſe yͤ enherytaunce of the LORDE?

The Gibaonites anſwered him:We wyll haue no ſyluer nor golde,of Saul, nor of his houſe:neyther is it our minde that thou ſhouldeſt kyll any man in Iſrael.He ſayde:what ſaye ye then that I ſhal do for you?They anſwered the king the man that conſumed vs and ymagined to brynge vs to noughte, hym wyll we deſtroy,that nought of him continue in any of the coaſtes of Iſrael.Let ſeuen mē of his ſonnes be delyuered vnto vs, and we wyll hange them vp vnto the LORDE,in Gibeah of Saule,whom the LORDE dyd choſe.And the kynge ſayd: I wyll gyue them you.

B But the kyng had compaſſion on Mi-phiboſeth the ſonne of Jonathas, the ſon of Saule, bycauſe of the LORDES othe, that was betwene them: euen betwene Dauid and Jonathas the ſon of Saul.
But he toke the two ſonnes of Rizpa yͤ doughter of Aia (whome ſhe bare vnto Saule) euen Armoni and Miphiboſeth, and yͤ fyue ſonnes of Michol (yͤ dough-ter of Saule) whom ſhe bare to Adriel the ſonne of Berſilai, the Meholathite.
And he deliuered them vnto the handes of the Gibeonites, whiche hanged them in the hyll before the LORDE. And they fel al ſeuen togyther, and were ſlayne in the dayes of harueſt: euē in yͤ firſt daies, and in the begynnyng of barley harueſt.

And Rizpa the doughter of Aia toke ſackcloth and hanged it vp for them vpō des of the ayre to fall on them by daye, nor beaſtes of the felde by nyghte. And it was told Dauid what Rizpa yͤ dough C ter of Aia the concubine of Saule had done: and Dauid went and toke the bones of Saul and of Jonathas his ſonne frō the men of Jabes in Gilead (whiche had ſtollē them from the ſtrete of Bethſan where the Philiſtines had hanged them, whē the Philiſtines had ſlayne Saul in Gilboa.) And he brought thēce the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathas his ſonne, and they toke vp the bones of them that were hanged. And yͤ bones of Saule and Jonathas his ſon, buried they in the countrye of Ben Jamin in Zela, in the ſepulchre of Cis hys father. And when they had perfourmed all that the kynge commaunded, GOD was then at one with the lande.

It fortuned, that the Philiſtines had yet war againe with Iſraell. And Da-uid went downe, and his ſeruauntes wͭ him, and fought againſt the Philiſtines.
And Dauid waxed fayntye, and Jeſ-

The .xxii. Chapter.

The ſonge of Dauid for his deliueraunce from his enemyes.

AND Dauid ſpake the wordes of this A ſong vnto the LORDE, what tyme the LORDE had delyuered him out of the hand of all his enemyes, and out of the hand of Saule.

And he ſayde: the LORDE is my rocke and my caſtell, and my delyuerer. GOD is my ſtrength, in him wyll I truſte: he is my ſhylde, and the horne of my ſaluacyon: my worſhyppe and my refuge: my ſauiour, yͭ ſhalt ſaue me from wronge.
*I wyl call on the LORDE whiche is Pſa.18. prayſe worthy, and ſo ſhall I be ſaued from myne enemyes. For the corrupcy-ons of death cloſed me about: yͤ floudes of Belial put me in feare. The ſorowes of hell compaſſed me aboute: the ſnares of death ouertoke me. In my tribulaciō wyll I call vpon the LORDE, and crye to my GOD. And he ſhal heare my voice out of his tēple, ⁊ my crye ſhall enter in to his eares. The earth trembled ⁊ quaked: the foundacyons of heauen moued, and ſhuke, when he was angry.

Smoke wente vp in his wrath, and B cōſumyng fyre out of his mouth, cooles were kyndled therof. And he bowed he-uen, and came downe, and there was darkenes vnder his fete. And he ſat vpō Cherub and did flye, he was ſene caried vpon the winges of the winde. He made him.

him, with waters gathered together in thycke cloudes. Thorowe the bryghtnes of his preſence were the fyre coales kyndled.

GOD thondred from heauen, and he that is moſt hye, doth put out his voice. He ſhot arowes, and ſcatered them: he hurled lyghtnynge, and ouerthrew thẽ. The flowinges of the ſea appeared, and the foundaciõs of the world were ſene, by the reaſon of the rebukynge of the LORDE, and thorowe the blaſtynge of yͤ breath of his noſtrelles. He ſhall ſende from heauen, and fet me, he ſhall plucke me out of many waters. He ſhal delyuer me from my myghty aduerſary, and frõ myne enemyes, for they are to ſtronge for me. When they had ouertaken me in the daye of my calamitie, the LORDE ſtayed me vp. For he brought me out into roumth, he delyuered me, becauſe he had a loue vnto me.

C Roma.2.b * The LORDE wyll rewarde me acordynge to my ryghtwyſeneſſe: acordynge to the purenes of my handes wyl he recompence me. For I haue kept the wayes of the LORDE, and done no wickednes againſte my GOD. For all his lawes are in my ſyght, and his ſtatutes wil not I put away fro me. In his ſight alſo haue I bene vndefyled, ⁊ haue kept me fro myne own iniquitie.

And the LORDE dyd to me agayne, acordynge to my ryghteouſneſſe, euen after my purenes in his eye ſyght. With the godly thou ſhalt be godly, and with the man that is vncorrupt, thou ſhalt be vncorrupte. With the pure thou ſhalte be pure, and wͭ the frowarde thou ſhalt be frowarde. And the poore people that are in aduerſite, thou ſhalte helpe. And on the proude ſhalt thou caſt thyne eies. Thou art my light O LORDE: yͤ LORD ſhall lyght my darkeneſſe.

For with thy helpe I wyll runne thorowe an hooſte of men, and in my GOD wyll I ſpringe ouer a wal. GOD is vncorrupte in his waye: the worde of the LORDE is tryed in the fyre: he is yͤ defender of all them that truſt in him.

For who is a GOD ſaue the LORDE? and who is myghtye, ſaue oure GOD? GOD ſtrengtheth me with power, and ryddeth the waye in battayle cleare before me. He maketh my fete lyke hartes fete, and ſetteth me faſte vpon my hye holde.

* He teacheth my handes to fight, that euen a bowe of ſtele is to weake for myne armes. D pſa.1

Thou haſt gyuen me the ſhylde of thy ſaluaciõ, and with thy louyng mekenes thou doeſt multiplye me. Thou ſhalte make me ſpace to walke in, and my legges ſhal not fayle me. I wyll folowe vp on myne enemyes and deſtroye them, and turne not againe vntyll I haue cõſumed them.

I wil waſte thẽ and ſmyte them, that they ſhall not be able to ariſe: yea, they ſhal fal vnder my fete.

Thou haſte gyrded me aboute with myghte to battayle, and them that aroſe agaiſt me, haſt thou ſubdued vnder me.

And thou madeſt myne enemyes, (and them yͭ hated me) to turne their backes to me, that I myght deſtroye thẽ. They loke for helpe, but there is none to ſaue them: yea, euen vnto the LORD do they crye, but he heareth them not.

I wyll beate them as ſmall as the duſte of the earth: I wyll ſtampe them as the dyrte of the ſtrete, and wil ſpread them abrode.

Thou ſhalt delyuer me from the dyſſencyon of my people: thou ſhalte kepe me to be a heade ouer nacyons: the people whiche I knewe not, ſhal ſerue me.

Straunge chyldren diſſemble with me: At the hearynge of the eare they obeye me.

Straunge children wyll ſhryncke awaye, and they ſhalbe ſmittẽ with feare, in their priuye chambre. GOD is alyue, and bleſſed be my maker: magnyfyed be GOD, my moſt ſtronge ſaluacyon. It is GOD that auengeth me, and bryngeth downe the people vnder me. He delyuereth me from myne enemyes, thou alſo ſhalte lyfte me vp on hye from thẽ that ryſe agaynſt me, thou ſhalt delyuer me from the wicked men.

And therfore I wyll prayſe thee (O LORDE) amonge the nacyons, and wyll ſynge vnto thy name. Whyche ſheweth greate ſaluacion for his kyng, and deleth mercyfully with hys anoynted: euẽ with Dauid, and wyth hys ſeede for euermore.

¶ The .xxiii. Chapter.

The laſt comunicacion of Dauid / and the deſcripcion of the mightie men to him belongyng.

Theſe

A These be the laſt ſayinges of Dauid. Dauid the ſonne of Iſai ſaid: And the man (which was made, the annoynted of the GOD of Jacob, ⁊ the noble Pſalmiſt of Iſrael) ſayde: the ſprite of the LORDE ſpake by me, ⁊ his worde was in my tonge. The GOD of Iſrael ſpake of me, euē the moſt mighty of Iſrael, ſaid: he that beareth rule ouer men, ought to rule iuſtely in the feare of GOD. And as the mornyng lyght when the Sunne is vp, a mornyng in whiche are no cloudes to let the bryghtnes, and as the graſſe of the earth is by the vertue of the raine: Shall not my houſe be ſo with GOD. 2.reg.7.c *For he hath made wͭ me an euerlaſtinge couenaunt, parfyte and ſure in al pointes: and this is truely al my health and al my deſyre, yͭ it grow, but not as graſſe. But the vngodly man of Belial ſhalbe as a thorne clean pluckt vp, whiche can not be taken with handes: But the manne that ſhall touche them, muſt haue yron, or a long helue. 1.Par.12.b *Or elles muſt they be burnt with fyre B in the ſame place.

These be the names of the mighty mē whom Dauid had: one that ſat in yͤ ſeate of wiſdome, beynge chiefeſt among thre, pleaſaunte was he and ſtronge: he ſlue, viii. hundred at one time. After him was Eliazar the ſonne of Dodi the ſonne of Ahohi, one of the thre worthyes with Dauid, which defied yͤ Philiſtines that were there gathered together to battel: when the men of Iſrael were gone vp. He aroſe ⁊ layed on the Philiſtines vntil his hande was wery, and claue vnto yͤ ſwearde. And the LORDE gaue greate victorie the ſame daye. And the people (which had fled) returned, and wente after him to runne to the ſpoyle. After him was Samma the ſonne of Age the Hararite: and the Philiſtines gathered togyther beſyde a towne, (where was a parcell of lande full of rice) and the people fledde from the Philiſtines. But he ſtode in the myddes of the grounde, and defended it, and ſlue the Philiſtines. And the LORDE gaue great victory.

1.Par.12.b * These three (whiche were of the thirtie chiefe captaines) went downe to Dauid in the harueſt tyme vnto yͤ caue C of Adullam, and the hooſte of the Philiſtines abode in the valley of gyauntes. And DAUID was then in an holde. And the ſouldiers of the Philiſtines were in Bethleem. And DAUID longed and ſaid: Oh, that I had of the water that is in yͤ well by the gate of Bethlehem, for to drinke. And the thre myghty brake thorowe the hoſt of the Philiſtines, and fet water out of the wel of Bethlehem that was by the gate, and toke and broughte it to Dauid. Neuertheles he would not drink therof, but offred it vnto yͤ LORD, and ſayde: the LORDE forbyd yͭ I ſhuld do ſo. Is not this the bloude of the men that went in ieopardy of their lyues? ⁊ therfore he would not drink it. And theſe thinges did theſe thre mighty men. *Abiſai 1.reg.21. the brother of Joab, the ſonne of Saruiah, was chefe amonge the three, and he lyfte vp his ſpeare againſt three hundred, and ſlue them, and hadde the name among the thre. For he was nobler man then the three, and was theyr captayne. Howbeit he attayned not vnto (the firſt) three.

And Banaiahu yͤ ſonne of Jehoiada, (the ſon of a myghtie man) valyaunte in actes, of Kabzeel ſlue two ſtrong lyōs, euē lions of Moab. He went downe alſo, and ſlue a lyon in a pit in tyme of ſnowe. And he ſlue an Egypciā a goodly bygge man, whiche had a ſpeare in his hande. But he went down to him with a ſtaffe, and plucked the ſpeare out of the Egipcians hande, and ſlue him with his own ſpeare. These thinges dyd Banaiahu yͤ D ſonne of Jehoiada, and had the name amonge the three worthyes. He was honorable amonge thyrtie, but he attayned not to the (fyrſt) three. And Dauid made him of his councell. Aſahel yͤ brother of Joab alſo was one of the thirty. Then Elhanā the ſon of Dodo of bethlehem: Samma the Haronite: Elica the Harodite: Helez yͤ Paltite: Ira yͤ ſonne of Akes the Thekoite: Abiezer of Anathoth, Meobnai the Huſathite: Zelmon an Ahohite: Mahari, the Netophatite: Heleb the ſon of Baanah an Netophatite: Ithai the ſonne of Ribai out of a hil of the children of Beniamin: Banaiahu the Phiratonite: Hedai of the riuer of Gaas: Abialbon the Arbathite: Aſmaueth a Barhumite: Elihaba a Saalbonite: and the ſonnes of Jaſen: Jonathas, Samma the Hararite. Ahian the ſon of Sarar an Hararite. Eliphelet the ſonne of Aaſbai the ſonne of a Maachathite: Eliam the ſon of Ahithophel the Gilonite: Hezrai the Carmelite Paarai the Arbite: Igal yͤ ſon of Nathā of Zoba: Bani yͤ Gadite: Zelec an Amonite: Naharai a Berothite, whiche was the harneſbearer of Ioab the ſonne of Zeruia: Ira the Iethrite: Gareb the Iethrite: Uria the Hethite, thyrtye and ſeuen in al.

B hoſt, went out frō the preſence of yͤ king, to numbre the people of Iſraell. And they paſſed ouer Iordan, and pitched in Aroer on the ryghte ſyde of the cytye that lyeth in the myddes of the valleye of Gad ouer againſte Iazer. And then they came to Gilead, and to the nether lande, where was a newe habitacyon, ⁊ from thence they came to Dan Iaan about to Sidō, ⁊ came to the ſtrong hold of Tyre, ⁊ to all the cyties of yͤ Heuites and of the Cananites, and then wente out to the South of Iuda euē to Beerſeba. And ſo, when they had bene abrod thorowe out all the land, they returned to Ieruſalem againe, after the ende of nyne monethes and twenty daies. And Ioab delyuered vp the nūbre and ſūme of the people vnto the kynge. And there were in Iſraell eyght hundred thouſād men of myghte that drewe ſweardes. And the men of Iuda were fyue hundred thouſande men.

And Dauids herte ſmote hym, after that he had nūbred the people. And Dauid ſaid vnto yͤ LORDE: I haue ſynned excedyngly in that I haue done. And nowe LORDE take awaye the treſpace of thy ſeruaunte, for I haue done very foolyſhly. And when Dauid was vp in a mornynge, the worde of yͤ LORD came vnto the prophete Gad, Dauids ſear, ſayinge: go and ſaye vnto Dauid, thus ſayeth the LORDE: I offre the thre thynges, choſe the which of them I ſhal do vnto thee.

C So Gad came to Dauid, and ſhewed him, and ſayd vnto him. Wylt thou haue ſeuen yeres honger to come in thy land, or wilte thou flee three monethes before thine enemyes, they folowynge thee, or that there be three dayes peſtilence in thy lande? Nowe therfore aduyſe thee, and ſee what aunſwere I ſhall gyue to him that ſent me. And Dauid ſaide vnto Eccle. Gad: I am in extreme trouble. *We wil fall nowe into the hande of the LORDE, for much is his mercy, and let me not fal into the hande of man.

And ſo the LORDE ſent a peſtilence in Iſrael from the mornynge vnto yͤ tyme appoynted. And there died of the people from Dan to Beerſeba, ſeuenty thouſād men. And when the angell ſtretched out his hande vpon Ieruſalem to deſtroye it, the LORD had compaſſyon to do that euell, and ſayde to the angell that deſtroyed the people: it is nowe ſufficient, holde thyne hande. And the angel of the LORDE was by the threſhynge place of Arefna the Iebuſite. And Dauid ſpake vnto the LORDE (when he ſawe the angell that ſmote the people) and ſaid: lo, it is I that haue ſynned, ⁊ I that haue done wickedly. But theſe ſhepe, what haue they done? let thine hande (I pray thee) be againſt me, and agaynſte my fathers houſe.

And Gad came the ſame daye to Dauid, and ſayde vnto him: go vp and rear an altar vnto yͤ LORDE in the threſhing flowre of Arefna the Iebuſyte. And Dauid (according to the ſaying of GAD) wēt vp, as the LORDE commaunded. And Arefna loked, and ſawe the kynge and his ſeruauntes commyng toward him. And Arefna went out: and bowed hym ſelfe before the kyng, flatte on his face vpon the grounde, and Arefna ſayde: wherfore is my lorde the kynge come to hys ſeruaunt? Dauid anſwered: to bye the threſhynge floore of thee, and to make an aultar vnto the LORD, that the plage maye ceaſe from the people.

And Arefna sayd vnto Dauid: let my lord the king take & offre what ſemeth hym good in hys eyes: Beholde here be oxen for burnt ſacrifice, & ſleades, & the other inſtrumentes of yͤ oxen for wood. All theſe thinges dyd Arefna geue vnto the kinge, and ſayed moreouer vnto the kinge: the LORD thy GOD accepte the. And the kinge ſaied vnto Arefna: not ſo but I wyl bye it of the at a price, and wil not offre ſacrifice vnto yͤ LORD my GOD of that whiche doth coſte me nothing. And ſo Dauid bought yͤ threſhing floure, and the oxen for fyfty ſycles of ſiluer. And Dauid built there an aultare vnto the LORDE, and offered burntſacryfices, and peace offeringes. And ſo the LORDE was intreated for the lande. And the plage ceaſed from Iſraell.

¶ The fyrſte Chapter.

The yonge vyrgyne Abiſag kepeth Dauid in his extreme age. Adonia occupieth the realme vnwittinge to hys father. Salomon is annoynted kinge/and ſo Adonia getteth him awaye.

A AND kynge Dauyd was olde & ſtryken in yeares: ſo yͤ whē they couered him wͭ clothes, he caught no heate: wherfore his ſeruauntes ſaid vnto him: let there bee ſought for my lorde the kynge a yonge mayden, to ſtande before the kyng, and to cheryſhe hym. And let her lye in thy boſome, that my lorde the kynge maye get-heate. And ſo they ſought for a fayre damoſell thorowe out al the coaſtes of Iſrael, and founde on Abiſag a Sunamite, and brought her to the king. And the damoſel was exceding fayre, and cheriſhed the king, and miniſtred to hym. But the kinge knew her not.

And Adonia the ſonne of Hagith exalted hym ſelfe, ſayinge: I wilbe king: And he gat hym charrettes & horſemē, & fyftye men to runne before hym. And hys father woulde not diſpleaſe hym at any tyme, nor ſaid ſo much to hi, as, why doeſt thou ſo? And he was a goodly mā, & his mother bare him nexte after Abſalom. And he toke counſel at Ioab yͤ ſonne of zaruia, and at Abiathar the prieſt. And they helped Adonia. But Sadock yͤ prieſt, Banaiahu yͤ ſonne of Jehoiada, Nathan the prophete, Se- B mei and Rei, and all the men of myght whiche were with Dauid, fauoured not Adonia. And Adonia ſacrifyced ſhepe & oxen, & fat catell, by the ſtone of zoheleth, which is faſt* by yͤ wel of Ro- Jesu. 15. b gel, & called all hys brethren the kinges ſonnes, and the men of Juda yͤ kinges ſeruaūtes. But Nathan the Prophet, and Banaiahu, and the other mightye menne, and Salomon hys brother he called not.

Wherfore Nathā ſpake vnto Bethſabe the mother of Salomon, ſayinge: haſt yͤ not heard howe yͤ Adonia yͤ ſōne of Hagith doth raigne, & Dauid oure lorde knoweth it not? Now therefore come, & I will giue the councel, how to ſaue thine owne life, & yͤ life of thy ſōne Salomon. Go & get the in vnto kynge Dauid, and ſaye vnto hym: diddeſt not thou (my lorde O kynge) ſweare vnto thy handmayde, ſayinge: Salomon thy ſonne ſhal raigne after me, & he ſhal ſyt vpon my ſeate: why is then Adonia king? Beholde, while thou yet talkeſt there with the kinge, I wyl come in after the, and confirme thy wordes.

C And Bethſabe went in vnto the king into yͤ chamber. And the kinge was very olde, & Abiſag the Sunamite miniſtred vnto yͤ king. And Bethſabe ſtouped & made obeyſaūce vnto the kinge. And the king ſayd: what is the matter? She anſwered him: my lord, thou ſwareſt by the LORD thy GOD vnto thine handmayde: Salomon thy ſonne ſhall raigne after me, and he ſhal ſit vpō my ſeate. And beholde, nowe is Adonia kinge, and my lorde the kynge wotteth not of it. And he hath offred oxen, fat cattel, & many ſhepe, & hath called all yͤ ſonnes of the kynge, and Abiathar the prieſt, ⁊ Ioab the captayne of the hooſt. But Salomon thy ſeruaũt hath he not bydden. And nowe my LORD (O king) ẏ eyes of al Iſrael waite on the, ẏ thou ſhuldeſt tell them, who ought to ſyt on the ſeate of my lord the king after him. For els when my lorde the kynge ſhall ſlepe with his fathers, I and my ſonne Salomon ſhalbe ſynners.

And whyle ſhe yet talked with the kinge, Nathã ẏ prophet came alſo. And they told the kinge ſaying: behold, here commeth Nathã ẏ prophet. And when he was come in to the kyng he made obeyſaunce before the kinge vpon hys face on the ground, ⁊ Nathã ſayd: My lorde (O king) haſt yͧ ſaid, Adonia ſhall raigne after me, ⁊ he ſhall ſit vpon my D ſeate? For he is gone downe this day, ⁊ hath ſlayne many oxen, and fat ſhepe, and hath called al the kinges ſonnes, ⁊ the captaines of the hooſt, ⁊ Abiathar the prieſt. And behold they eat ⁊ drinke byfore him, ⁊ ſay: GOD ſaue ẏ king Adonia. But me thy ſeruaũt, ⁊ Sadocke the preiſte, and Banaiahu the ſonne of Iehoiada, and thy ſeruaunt Salomõ hath he not called. Is thys thyng done of my lord the kinge, and thou haſt not ſhewed it vnto thy ſeruaunt, who ſhuld ſyt on the ſeate of my lord the kyng after hym?

Then king Dauid anſwered, ⁊ ſayd: cal me Bethſabe. And ſhe came in to ẏ kinges preſence, and ſtode before him. And the kinge ſware, ſayinge: As truely as the LORD lyueth (that hathe ryd my ſoule out of all aduerſitie) euen as I ſware vnto the by the LORD GOD of Iſrael, ſaying: Salomon thy ſonne ſhall raigne after me, ⁊ he ſhall ſit vpon my ſeate for me, ſo wil I do thys daye. Then Bethſabe bowed on her face to ẏ earth, and did reuerence vnto ẏ kinge, and ſayd: I pray GOD ẏ my lord kyng Dauid may lyue euer. And king Dauid E ſaid: call me Sadocke ẏ prieſt, ⁊ Nathã the prophete, and Banaiahu ẏ ſonne of Iehoiada. And they came before the king. The kynge alſo ſayd vnto them, take wͭ you the ſeruaũtes of your lord, ⁊ ſet Salomõ my ſõne vpon mine owne mule, ⁊ cary him downe to Gihon. And let Sadocke ẏ preiſt, and Nathan the prophet annoynte hym there, kynge ouer Iſraell. And blowe ye with trompettes, and ſaye: GOD ſaue kinge Salomon. And then come vp after hym, ẏ he maye come ⁊ ſyt vpõ my ſeat. For he ſhalbe king in my ſtead. And I will cõmaũd him to be captaine ouer Iſrael ⁊ Iuda. And Banaiahu ẏ ſonne of Iehoiada anſwered the kinge, ⁊ ſayd: Amẽ. I praye GOD ẏ the LORD GOD of my lord the kinge, ſaye ſo to. And as GOD hathe ben with my lord ẏ king, euen ſo be he with Salomon alſo, ⁊ make his ſeat greater, then the ſeate of my lorde kinge Dauid hathe bene.

And ſo Sadocke the preiſt, ⁊ Nathã the prophet, ⁊ Banaiahu the ſonne of Iehoiada, ⁊ the Crethites and Phelethites wente downe, and ſet Salomon vpon kynge Dauids Mule, ⁊ brought him to Gihon. And Sadock the prieſt F toke an horne of oyle out of the tabernacle, ⁊ anointed Salomõ. And al they of the people blewe trompettes, ⁊ ſayd: GOD ſaue king Salomõ. And al ẏ people came vp after him, pyppynge with pipes, and reioyſynge greatlye, ſo that the earth rang with the ſound of them.

And Adonia and al the geſtes that he had called vnto him, herd it, euẽ as they had made an ende of eating. And when Ioab heard the ſoũd of the trompet, he ſayd: howe happeneth it that there is ſuche a noyſe in the cytye? And as he yet ſpake: behold, Ionathas the ſõne of Abiathar ẏ prieſt, came. And Adonia ſaid vnto hym: come in, for thou arte a valyaunt man, and bringeſt good tidinges. And Ionathas anſwered ⁊ ſaid to Adonia: Verely our lord king Dauid hath made Salomõ king. And ẏ kinge hath ſente with him, Sadock ẏ prieſt, ⁊ Nathã the prophet, ⁊ Banaiahu the ſonne of Iehoiada ⁊ the Crethites, ⁊ the Phelethites, and they haue ſet hym vpõ the kĩges mule. And Sadock ẏ prieſt, ⁊ Nathan the prophet, haue anoynted hym king in Gihõ. And they cam vp againe, ⁊ reioyſed, ẏ the cytye did ſoũde againe. And that is ẏ noiſe that ye haue heard. G And Salomon ſitteth on the ſeate of the kingdome. And moreouer ẏ kinges ſeruaũtes came to bleſſe our lord king Dauid, ſayinge: thy GOD make the name of Salomon more honorable then thy name, ⁊ make hys ſeate greater thẽ thy ſeate. And ẏ kĩg bowed him ſelfe vpon the bedde. And thus ſayde the kynge: Bleſſed be the LORD GOD of Iſraell:which hath made one to ſyt on my ſeate this day, myne eye ſeing it.

And al the geſtes that were with Adonia were afrayd, & roſe vp, & wente euery man his waye. And Adonia fearyng the preſence of Salomon, aroſe, & wente (into the tabernacle of the Lorde) and caught holde on the hornes of the altare.
And one tolde Salomon, ſayinge: Beholde, Adonia doth fear kynge Salomon: Exod.21.b for he hath*caught hold on the hornes of the altare, ſaying:let kynge Salomon ſweare vnto me thys daye that he wyll not ſlaye hys ſeruaunte

And Salomon ſayed, yf he wylbee a childe of vertue, there ſhal not an heere of hym fal to yͤ earthe: But & if wickednes be founde in hym, he ſhal dye. And ſo kinge Salomō ſent, & they brought him from the altare. And he came and dyd obeyſaunce vnto kinge Salomon.
And Salomon ſayd vnto hym, get thee to thyne houſe, the ſunamite to wyfe. And Bethſabe ſaied:well, I wyll ſpeake for the vnto the kinge.

Bethſabe therfore went vnto kinge D Salomon, to ſpeake vnto him for Adonia.
And the king roſe vp to mete her & bowed him ſelfe vnto her, and ſat hym downe on hys ſeate. And there was a ſeate ſet for yͤ kinges mother, & ſhe ſate on his right ſide. Then ſhe ſaid: I deſire a lytell peticion of the, I praye the ſaye me not nay. And the kynge ſayed vnto her: Aſke on my mother, for I wyl not ſaye the naye. She ſayd: let Abiſag the Sunamite be geuē to Adonia thy brother to wife. And king Salomō anſwered & ſayd vnto hys mother: why doeſt thou aſke Abiſag the Sunamit for Adonia: aſke for him the kingdome alſo: for he is myne elder brother, and hathe for hym Abiathar the preiſte, & Ioab ẏ ſonne of zaruia. Then kynge Salomon ſware by the LORD, ſaying: GOD do ſo, and ſo to me, if Adonia hath not ſpoken thys worde agaynſt hys owne life. Now therfore as truly as ẏ LORD lyueth, whiche hathe ordeyned me, and ſet me on the ſeat of Dauyd my father, and made me an houſe, as he promiſed, Adonia ſhal dye this daye. And kynge Salomon ſent by the hande of Banaiahu ẏ ſonne of Iehoiada, and he ſmote E hym that he dyed.

And vnto Abiathar the preiſt, ſayd ẏ king: get ẏ to Anatoth vnto thine own feldes: For thou art worthy of deathe: but I wyl not at this tyme kyll the, becauſe thou bareſt the arke of the LORD GOD before Dauyd my father, and becauſe thou haſt ſuffered with my father in al his afflicciōs. And ſo Salomō put awaye Abiathar from beynge preſt vnto the LORDE: ẏ he myght fulfyll the wordes of the LORD which he ſpake ouer ẏ houſe of Eli in Silo. Thē tydynges came alſo to Ioab: for Ioab had turned after Adonia though he turned not after Abſalō. And Ioab fled vnto the tabernacle of the LORD, & caught holde on the hornes of the altare. And it was tolde kynge Salomon, howe ẏ Ioab fled vnto ẏ tabernacle of ẏ LORD & ſtode by the altare. Then Salomon ſent Banaiahu the ſonne of Iehoiada, ſaying: go and fall vpon hym.

And Banaiahu came to the Tabernacle of the LORD, and ſayd vnto hym. Thus ſayeth the kyng: come out. And he ſayd: naye, but I wyl dye euen here. And Banaiahu brought the king worde agayne, ſayinge: thus ſayd Ioab, and thus he anſwered me.

F And the kynge ſayed. Do euen as he hathe ſaid: ſmite hym, & bury him, that thou mayeſt take away ẏ bloud which Ioab ſhed cauſeles, from me, and from the houſe of my father. And the LORD ſhall brynge hys bloude vpon hys owne head, for he ſmote two men rightewiſer & better thē he, & ſlue them with ẏ ſwearde, my father Dauyd not knowinge thereof: euē Abner ẏ ſonne of Ner, captain of ẏ hooſte of Iſrael, & Amaſa ẏ ſonne of Iether captayne of the hooſte of Iuda. Theyr bloud ſhal therfore returne vpon the heade of Ioab, & on the heade of his ſede for euer. But vpō Dauyd, & vpon his ſede, & vpon hys houſe, & vpon his ſeat, ſhall there be peace for euer of the LORDE. So Banaiahu the ſōne of Iehoiada went vp, & ſmote him, & ſlue him, and buryed him in his owne houſe in ẏ wildernes. And the king put Banaiahu ẏ ſonne of Iehoiada in hys rowme ouer the hoſt, & put Sadock the preiſt in the roume of Abiathar.

And the kynge ſente and called Semei, & ſaid vnto him: build the an houſe in Ieruſalē, and dwel there: and ſe that thou go not forth thence any whether: For bee thou ſure, that the daye that thou goeſt out, and paſſeſt ouer the ryuer of Cedron, thou ſhalt dye that daye, and thy bloude ſhalbe vpon thine owne heade. And Semei ſayd vnto ẏ kynge: This is a good thinge: as my lorde the the kynge hath ſayd, ſo wyl his ſeruaūt do. And Semei dwelte in Ieruſalē many a daye. And it chaunced after thre yeares, that two of the ſeruauntes of Semei ranne away vnto Achis, ſonne of Maacha kynge of Geth. And they tolde Semei, ſayig: beholde, thy ſeruaūtes be in Geth. And Semei ſtode vp, & ſadled his Aſſe, and gat him to Geth to Achis, to ſeke his ſeruauntes, & returned, and broughte hys ſeruauntes againe from Geth.

And it was tolde Salomō, how that Semei had gone from Ieruſalem to Geth, & was come againe. And ẏ kynge ſent and called Semei, and ſayde vnto him: Did I not charge the by ẏ LORDE with an othe, and teſtified vnto the, ſayinge: be ſure, that whē ſoeuer thou goeſt out, & walkeſt abroad any whither, thou ſhalt dye the death: And thou ſaideſt vnto me: it is good tydynges that I haue heard. Why then haſt thou not kept the othe of ẏ LORD, & the cōmaūdement that I charged the withall:

The kyng ſayd moreouer to Semei: *thou remembreſt all the wyckednes whiche thyne hearte knoweth, that thou dyddeſt to Dauid my father. The LORD alſo ſhal bring thy wyckedneſſe vpon thyne owne heade: and kyng Salomon ſhalbe bleſſed, and the ſeate of Dauyd ſtablyſhed before the LORDE for euer. So the kynge commaunded Banaiahu yͤ ſonne of Jehoiada: which went out and ſmote him that he dyed. And the kyngdome was ſtablyſhed in the hande of Salomon.

LORDE

¶ The.iii.Chapter.

Salomon taketh Pharaos doughter to wyfe. The Lord appeareth to him and geueth him wiſedom. The pleatyng of the two harlottes who ſhoulde owe the lyuyng childe. and Salomons ſentence therin.

A SAlomon made affinitie wͭ Pharao kyng of Egipt, ⁊ toke Pharaos doughter, and brought her into yͤ citie of Dauid, vntil he had made an ende of buylding hys owne houſe, ⁊ the houſe of the LORD, and the wall of Jeruſalem rounde about. Only yͤ people ſacrifyced in altars made on hilles, becauſe ther was no houſe built vnto yͤ name of the LORD, vntyl thoſe dayes. And Salomon loued yͤ LORDE, ⁊ walked in the ordinaunces of Dauid his father, ſaue only that he ſacrificed and offered incenſe vpon altares in hylles.

1.a *And the kinge wẽt to Gibeõ, to offer there for yͭ was a ſpeciall offrynge place. And a thouſand burnt offringes dyd Salomõ offre vpõ that altare: ⁊ in Gibeon the LORD appeared to Salomõ in a dreame by night. And God ſaid: aſke what thou wylt that J may geue it the. And Salomõ ſaid: yͧ haſt ſhewed vnto thy ſeruaũt Dauyd my father great mercy, whẽ he walked before the in trueth, in righteouſnes, and in playnes of hearte with the. And yͧ haſt kept for hym this great mercye, yͭ thou haſte gyuen him a ſonne, to ſyt on his ſeat: as

1.b it is come to paſſe this day. *And now,

B O LORD my GOD, it is thou that haſt

9.c. *Geue therefore vnto thy ſeruaunt an vnderſtanding herte, to iudge thy people, that J may decerne betwene good and bad. For who is able to iudge this, thy ſo myghty a people?

And thys pleaſed the LORDE well, yͭ Salomon had deſyred this thyng. And GOD ſayde vnto him: becauſe thou haſt aſked thys thinge, and haſte not aſked longe lyfe, neyther haſte aſked ryches, nor the ſoule of thyne enemies, but haſt aſked vnderſtãdyng ⁊ dyſcreciõ in iudgemẽt. Behold, J haue done according to thy peticiõ. For J haue geuen the a wiſe ⁊ an vnderſtãdynge hert, ſo yͭ ther was none lyke the before yͤ, neither after the ſhall any aryſe lyke vnto thee. C

And J haue alſo geuen the, that which thou haſt not aſked, euẽ riches and honour, ſo that there ſhalbe no kyng lyke vnto the al thy daies. And if thou wilte walke in my wayes, to kepe mine ordinaunces and my commaundementes, *as thy father Dauid did walke, J wyl lengthen thy dayes. When Salomõ awoke, beholde it was a dreame. *And he came to Jeruſalem and ſtode before the arke of the teſtamẽt of the LORDE, and offred burnt offrynges ⁊ peace offrynges, ⁊ made a feaſt to al his ſeruauntes.

3.Reg.15.a

1.Para.1.b

Then came there two wemen, that wer harlottes, vnto the king, an d ſtode before him. And yͤ one woman ſaid: Oh my LORDE: J and thys woman dwell in one houſe. And J was delyuered of a child with her in yͤ houſe. And the third daye after that J was delyuered, ſhe was delyuered alſo: and we were together, and no ſtraunger with vs in the houſe, ſaue we two.

And this wiues child died in yͤ night, for ſhe ſmothered it. And ſhe roſe at midnight, ⁊ toke my ſonne frõ my ſyde, while thine handmaide ſlept, ⁊ layde it in her boſome, and put her dead child in my boſome. And whẽ J roſe vp to geue my childe ſucke, beholde, it was dead. But when J had loked vpon it in the mornyng, behold, it was not my ſonne, whiche J dyd beare.

D The other woman ſaied: it is not ſo: but my ſonne liueth, ⁊ thy ſõne is dead. And ſhe ſaied againe: No, but thy ſonne is dead and mine is alyue. And thus they pleated before the kynge. Then ſayed the kynge: the one ſayeth, thys that is alyue is my ſonne, and the dead is thine. And the other ſaieth, naye: but thy ſonne is dead, and the lyuynge child is myne. And the kynge ſayed: brynge me a ſwearde. And they broughte out a ſwearde before the kyng. And the kyng ſaid: Deuyde the lyuynge chylde in two, and geue the one halfe to yͤ one, and the other to the other.

Then ſpake the woman whoſe yͤ lyuyng childe was, vnto the kinge: for her bowels yerned vpō her ſonne, and ſaid: I beſeche the my lorde, geue her the liuing childe, and in no wyſe ſlaye it. But the other ſaid, let it be nether myne nor thyne, but deuyde it. Then the kynge Luke.7:c anſwered, and ſayde: *geue her the lyuynge childe, and ſlaye it not: for ſhe is the mother therof. And al they of Iſrael hearde of the iudgement, whiche the kynge had iudged, and feared yͤ kynge: for they ſawe that the wyſedom of God was in him to do iuſtice.

The princes and rulers vnder Salomon. The purueyaunce for his vitailles. The numbre of his horſes and of his parables.

A And ſo kyng Salomon was kyng ouer al Iſrael. And theſe wer hys lordes. Azariahu the ſonne of Sadocke the prieſt, Elihoreph and Ahiah yͤ ſonnes of Siſa, ſcribes. And Salomon had twelue officers ouer al Iſrael, which prouided vitailes for the kynge and his houſholde: eche man his moneth in a yeare, made prouiſion for neceſſarie thinges. And theſe are their names: the ſonne of Hur in mount Ephraim: the ſonne of Dekar in Makaz and in Saalbin ⁊ Bethſames, Elon and Bethanan: yͤ ſonne of Heſed B in Aruboth, to whom perteyned Socho and al the lande of Hepher: the ſonne of Abinadab in al the regiō of Dor, which had Tapheth the doughter of Salomō to wyfe. Baana yͤ ſonne of Ahilud was ouer Thaanach and Magiddo, ⁊ ouer al Bethſan, whiche is by zarthana beneth Ieſraell, from Bethſan, to the plaine of Mehola, euen vnto the place that is ouer agaiſt Iechmeā: the ſonne of Gaber had Ramoth Gilead, and his were the townes of Iair: the ſonne of Manaſſe, whiche are in Gilead, ⁊ vnder him was the regiō of Argob which is in Baſan thre ſcore great cities with walles and barres of braſſe.

Ahinadab the ſonne of Hiddo had Mahenaim. Ahimaaz was in Nephthalim, and he toke Baſmath yͤ doughter of Salomon to wyfe. Baana yͤ ſon of Huſai was in Aſer ⁊ in Aloth. Iehoſaphat the ſonne of Paruah was in Iſachar. Semei the ſonne of Ela was in BenIamin. Gaber the ſonne of Vrye was in the countrey of Gilead, yͤ lande of Sehon kynge of the Amorites, and of Og kyng of Baſan, ⁊ was officer alone in the lande. And Iuda ⁊ Iſraell were manye, euen as the ſande of yͤ ſea in number, eating, driking and making mery. *And Salomō raigned ouer all kingdoms, from the*ryuer vnto yͤ lāde of the Philiſtines: euē vnto the border of Egipt: and they brought preſentes, ⁊ ſerued Salomon al yͤ dayes of his lyfe.

And Salomons breade for one daye was.xxx. quarters of manchet floure, ⁊ thre ſcore quarters of meale: tē ſtalled oxen, ⁊ .xx. out of the paſtures, and an hundred ſhepe, beſyde hertes buckes, ⁊ wylde goates, and capons. For he ruled in al yͤ region on the other ſide Euphrates, from Thiphſah to*Aſa, ouer al the kinges on the other ſyde yͤ ryuer. And he had peace with al his ſeruauntes on euery ſyde. And Iuda and Iſrael dwelte withoute feare, euery man vnder his vine and vnder his figge tre, from Dan to Berſeba, all the dayes of Salomon. And Salomō*had fourtie.M. ſtalles of horſes for charettes, and.xii. M. horſemen. And the officers prouided vitaile for kyng Salomon, ⁊ for al yͤ came out of any place to kynge Salomons table, euery man his moneth ſo that ther lacked nothing. Barly alſo and ſtrawe for the horſes ⁊ mules, brought they vnto the place where the officers were, euery man in his office.

*And GOD gaue Salomon wyſedome and vnderſtandynge exceadinge muche, and a large herte, euen as the ſande that is one the ſea ſhore: and Salomons wyſedome excelled the wyſedome of all the children of the Eaſte countreye, and all the wyſedome of Egypte. For he was wyſer then all menne, yea then Ethan the Ezrahite, and Heman, Chalcol, and Darda the ſonnes of Mahol. And hys name was ſpoken of thorow out al naciõs on euery ſide. And Salomõ ſpake thre thouſand prouerbes. And his ſonges were a thouſand and fyue. And he ſpake of trees, euen from yͤ Cedar tree that groweth in Libanon, vnto the Iſope that ſpringeth out of the wal. He ſpake alſo of beaſtes, of foules, of wormes, and of fyſhes. And there came of all nacions to heare the wyſedome of Salomon, and from all kynges of the earth, which had herde of hys wiſedõe.

But now the LORDE my GOD hathe geuẽ me reſt on euery ſide, ſo that there is neyther aduerſary, nor 3.Reg.7.b. any euel plage. And behold, *I am determined to buylde an houſe vnto the name of yͤ LORD my GOD, as yͤ LORD ſpake vnto Dauyd my father, ſayinge: thy ſonne whome I wyll ſet vpon thy ſeat for the, he ſhal buylde an houſe vnto my name. And my ſeruauntes, ſhalbe with thine, ⁊ vnto the wil I geue the hyre for thy ſeruaũtes, according to al ſuch thynges as thou ſhalt apoynte: for thou knoweſt that there are not amonge vs, that can ſkyll to hewe tymber, lyke vnto the Sidones.

When Hirã heard yͤ wordes of Salomõ, he reioyced greatly, and ſaid: Bleſſed be yͤ LORD this day which hath geuẽ vnto Dauyd a wyſe ſonne ouer thys mighty people. And Hirã ſent to Salomon, ſayinge: I haue conſidered the thynges whiche thou ſenteſt to me for, and wyll accomplyſhe al thy deſyre, cõcernyng timber of Cedar trees ⁊ fyrre. My ſeruaũtes ſhall brynge them from Libanon to the ſea. And thou ſhalte do me a pleaſure againe, yf thou miniſter fode for myne houſe. And ſo Hirã gaue Salomon Cedar trees, and fyrre trees, according to al his deſire. And Salomon gaue Hiram .xx. thouſande quarters of wheate for foode to his houſholde, and twẽty buttes of pure oyle. Thus much gaue Salomõ to Hirã yeare by yeare.

And the LORD gaue Salomõ wyſedom as he promyſed him. And there was peace betwene Hiram and Salomon, and they two wer confederate together. And kynge Salomon rayſed D a ſumme oute of al Iſraell. And the ſumme was thirtye thouſande menne, whome he ſente to Libanon, ten thouſande a moneth by courſe, ſo that when they had bene one moneth in Libanon, they abode two monethes at home.

3.Re.4.a. And*Adoniram was ouer the ſũme. And Salomon had thre ſcore and ten thouſande that bare burthens, ⁊ fourſcore thouſande maſons in the mountaynes: beſydes the Lordes, whõ Salomon appoynted to ouerſe the worke, euen thre thouſande and thre hũdred, whiche ruled the people (and them) that wrought in the worke. And the kynge commaunded them to bryng great ſtones, fre ſtones, and hewed ſtones for yͤ foundacion of yͤ houſe. And Salomõs maſons and the maſons of Hiram, dyd hewe them wͭ the workemẽ of the corners. And ſo they prepared bothe timber ⁊ ſtones for yͤ buyldyng of yͤ houſe.

euen in ẏ forefronte of the houſe. And in the houſe he made windowes broade without, and narowe within.

And in the wal of the houſe, he made chaumbers rounde about, (euen in the walles of the houſe) rounde about the temple and the queer, and made ſydes rounde aboute. The nethermoſt chamber was fiue cubites broade, ⁊ the middle, was ſyxe cubites broade: the thirde was ſeuē cubites broade. For without in the wal of the houſe, he layed beames rounde aboute, that the beames of the chambers ſhould not be faſtened in the walles of the houſe. And ẏ houſe was buylt of ſtone, made perfyte alredy before it was broughte thither, ſo ẏ there was nether hammer nor axe, ether any tole of yron heard in the houſe, while it was in buyldynge.

B The dore of the middel chamber was in the right ſide of the houſe: ⁊ men wēt vp with winding ſteares into the middle chamber, and out of the myddle, into the thirde. And ſo he buylt the houſe, ⁊ finiſhed it, ⁊ rouft it with beames of Cedar tymber. And then he buylt chābers to all the temple of fyue cubytes heygth, ⁊ they were ioyned to ẏ houſe with beames of Cedar.

And the worde of ẏ LORDE came to Salomon ſaying: concerning the houſe whiche thou art in buyldynge, yf thou wylt walke in myne ordinaunces, and execute my lawes, and kepe al my commaundementes, to walke in them: then wil I make good vnto the, my promes *which I promiſed Dauid thy father. *And I wil dwel among the childrē of Iſrael, and wyll not forſake my people Iſrael. Salomō therfore built ẏ houſe, and finiſhed it, and ſyled the walles of the houſe within with bordes of Cedar tre: euen from the pauement of ẏ houſe vnto the roofe dyd he ſyle the walles of it within, with Cedar tre, and borded ẏ floore of the houſe wͭ planckes of fyrre.

Exo.25.b.

And he ſyled twenty cubytes in ẏ ſydes of ẏ queer of the temple, both floore ⁊ walles, with bordes of Cedar, ⁊ dreſſed it within in the ſecrete place of ẏ tēple, euen in the moſt holy. And the firſte houſe, that is to ſay, ẏ body of the temple without was fourty cubites longe. C And the Cedar of ẏ houſe within, was kerued with knoppes, and grauen with floures, and al was Cedar tymber, ſo ẏ no ſtone was ſene. And the queer that was wͭin the temple, he prepared to ſet there the arke of the appointment of the LORDE. And the queer before, was twenty cubites long, and .xx. cubites in bredth, ⁊ twentie cubites in heygth. And he ſyled it with pure golde, and borded the aultar with Cedar.

And Salomon alſo ſyled the houſe wͭin, with pure golde. And he made goldē barres runne along the queer, which he had couered with gold. And ẏ whole houſe, he ouerlayde with golde, vntyl he had ended it. And the aulter that was in the queer, he ouerlayde with golde alſo.

And within the queer he made two *Cherubins of olyue tree, ten cubytes hie. Fyue cubytes longe was a wing of ẏ one Cherub, ⁊ fiue cubites lōg was a wyng of ẏ other Cherub: ſo ẏ frō the vttermoſt part of one wyng vnto ẏ vttermoſt parte of the other, were ten cubytes. And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hie alſo: ſo that both the Cherubs were of one meaſure and one ſyſe: For the heigth of the one Cherub was ten cubites, and ſo was it of the other. And he put the Cherubs within the inner houſe. *And the Cherubs ſtretched out their wynges, ſo that the one wynge of the one touched the one wall, and the one wynge of the other touched the other wall. And the other two wynges of them touched one another in the myddes of the houſe. And he ouer laide the Cherubs with golde.

And in al the walles of the houſe roūd aboute, he made fygures of carued and ſiled worke: as namely pictures of Cherubs, and Paulme trees, and grauen flowers, bothe within in the queer, and withoute in the temple. And the floore of the houſe he couered wyth gold, both wythin in the queer, and wythoute in the temple. And in the entrynge of the queer he made two dores of olyue tree: And both the vpper and two ſyde poſtes were fyue ſquare. The two doores alſo were of olyue tree, and he graued them with grauyng of Cherubs, and paulme trees: and grauen flowers, and couered them with golde, and layde thynne plates of gold vpon the Cherubs ⁊ paulme trees. And in lyke maner dyd he in the dore of ẏ temple, ſauyng that the poſtes were of olyue tree, foure ſquare. The two dores wer of fyrre tree, and eyther dore with two folding leues: he graued therō Cherubs, paulme trees, & flowers, couered them with golde, whiche was layed thynne vpon the carued worke.

And he buylte the inner courte with thre rowes of hewed ſtone, & one rowe of Cedar woode.

In the fourth yeare was the foundacyon of the houſe of the LORDE, layd: euen in the moneth Zif: And in the leuēth yeare, in the moneth Bull (which is the viii. moneth) was the houſe ful finiſhed thorowout all the partes therof, accordyng to all the faſhion of it, and ſo was he ſeuen yeare in buyldyng it.

The. vii. Chapter.

The buildyng of the houſe of Salomon. The houſe of Pharaos doughter. The fourme of the pyllers of braſſe / of the braſen ſea. etc.

A BUt Salomon was buildyng his owne houſe thirtene yeare, and fynyſhed it all. And he buylt the houſe in the woode of Libanon, an hūdred cubytes longe, and fyftie cubites brode, and thyrtie cubites hye. And (it ſtode) vpon foure rowes of Cedar pyllers, and Ceder beames were layed vpō yͤ pillers. And yͤ roofe was cedar aboue vpon the beames that laye on the pillers, euen. xlv. beames in fyftene rowes. And there were wyndowes in thre rowes, and the wyndowes were one agaynſte another, thre folde. And the dores with the ſyde poſtes, and yͤ vpper poſte, were foure ſquare, and had wyndowes one agaynſt an other thre folde.

And he made a porche by the pyllers (that bare vp the houſe) fyftye cubites long, & . xxx. cubites brode, & that porche was before thoſe, and the other pyllers. For there was a thicke tree ſette before them. Then he made a porche to ſyt and iudge in, ſyled with Cedar thorowoute al the pauementes. And his own houſe (that he kepte reſidence in: and yͭ was in an other court without the porche) was made of the ſame worke. And then Salomon made an houſe for Pharaoes

Reg.3.a. doughter* (whom he had takē to wife) lyke vnto the faſhion of that porche.

B And all theſe were of the beſt ſtones, hewed after a meaſure, and ſawed with ſawes, within and withoute, from the foundacion vnto the beames (that laye aboue, after the meaſure) and euē ſo on the outſyde towarde the greate courte. And the foundacyon was layde vpon ryche ſtones, & that very greate ſtones, wherof ſome were ten cubites, and ſome eyghte cubites. And aboue were good ſtones, ſquared after a certayne rule, & couered with Cedar. And the greate court rounde aboute was with thre rowes of hewed ſtones, and one rowe of Cedar plankes, after the maner of the inner courte of the houſe of the LORDE, and of the porche of the temple. * And

2.par.2.a kynge Salomon ſente, and ſet one Hirā out of Tyre, a wyddowes ſonne of the trybe of Nephthalim, his father beynge a man of Tyre. Whiche Hiram was a

C eyther of them aboute. And he made two head peces of molten braſſe (after the faſhyon of a crowne) to ſette on the toppes of the pyllers. The heygth of the one headpece contayned fyue cubites, & the heygth of the other headpece contayned fyue cubites alſo: he made alſo net worke, & garlandes of chaine worke vpon the head peces that were on yͤ top of the pyllers, euen ſeuen (rowes) vpon the one headpece, and ſeuen on yͤ other. And ſo he made the pillers, and two rowes rounde aboute, in the one wrethen worke to couer the headpeces that wer vpon yͤ pomgranates. And thus dyd he alſo for the other headpece. And yͤ headpeces that were on the toppes of yͤ pyllers couered he aboue, with a curyous worke of roſes towarde the palace by yͤ ſpace of foure cubytes. Lykewiſe vnder the headpeces in thoſe two pyllers beneth, ouer againſt the myddes, & before the networke: And vpon yͤ ſeconde head pece were there two hundred pomgranates in two rowes rounde about. And he ſet vp the pyllers in the porche of the D temple. And when he had ſet vp yͤ right

Stedfaſtneſſe. pyller, he called the name therof * Ioachin: and when he hadde ſet vp the lefte

Strength pyller, he called the name thereof* Boaz. And in the toppe of the pyllers was a worke of roſes, and ſo was the workmanſhyp of the pyllers finiſhed.

And he made a molten lauatory, ten cubites wide from brym to brym, rōude in compaſſe, and fyue cubytes hye. And a ſtryng of thyrtye cubites did compaſſe it aboute, and vnder the brym of it there were knoppes rounde aboute, ten in one cubite: and they compaſſed the lauatory rounde aboute. And the knoppes were caſt with it, in two rowes, when it was caſte. And it ſtode on twelue oxen: of whiche thre loked towarde the northe, thre towarde the weſte, thre towarde the ſouth, and thre towarde the eaſt, & the lauatory ſtode vpon them, & al their hynderpartes were inward. It was an hande breadth thicke, and the brimme wrought lyke the brymme of a cup with flowers of lylyes. And it conteined two thouſande Bates.

And he made ten ſokettes of braſſe, foure cubites longe, and foure cubites broade a pece, and thre cubites hye. And the worke of the ſokettes was on thys maner: They had ſydes, and the ſydes were betwene the ledges. And on the ſydes that were betwene the ledges, were lyons, oxen, and Cherubs. And lyke wyſe vpon the ledges that were aboue: and beneth the lions and oxē, were C certayne addycyons made of thynne worke. And vnder euerye ſokette were foure braſen wheles, and bordes of braſſe. And in the foure corners therof, were vnderſetters (vnder the lauatory) caſt eche ouer agaynſt hys felow.

And the ſtalke of the lauatorye was in the myddle of it, (where it is ſene on the out ſyde) one cubyte hye, & a cubite & an halfe round, & in the heigth of it were grauen workes whoſe ſides were made foure ſquare, and not rounde. And vnder the ſydes were foure wheles, and the axeltrees ioyned faſte to the bottome. And the heigth of euery whele was a cubite & a halfe. And the workemanſhyp of the wheles was lyke the worke of a charet whele. And yͤ axeltres, yͤ nauelles, ſpokes & ſhaftes were almolten. And there were foure vnderſetters in the foure corners of one ſocket: and the vnderſetters were of the very bottome ſelfe.

And in the heygth of the bottom was ther a round cōpaſſe of half a cubite hie: and in that heygth of the botom, there proceaded both ledges and ſydes out of the ſame. For in the bordes of yͤ ledges, and on the ſides he had grauē pyctures of Cherubins, lyons and paulmetrees, one by another rounde aboute. Thus made he the ten ſockettes after this maner: And they had all one faſhyon of caſtynge, one meaſure, and one ſyce. Than made he ten lauers of braſſe, one lauer contaynyng fourty Bates: and one lauer was foure cubites, and vpō euery one of the ten ſokettes, he put one lauer. And he put fyue of thoſe ſokettes on the ryght ſide of the houſe, and other fiue on the left. And he ſet the lauatorye on the ryght ſide of the houſe eaſtward, and towarde the ſouth.

And Hiram made pottes, ſhouelles & baſens, & ſo fyniſhed all the worke that he made kynge Salomon for the houſe of the LORD: that is to ſay, two pillers, and two round headpeces that were to be ſet on the toppes of the two pyllers. Two net workes to couer yͤ two roũde headpeces, ſet vpon the toppes of yͤ pyllers, & four hundred pōgranates for the two net workes, (euen two rowes of pomgranates in one net worke) to couer the two head peces that were to be ſet on the toppes of the pyllers: And the ten ſokettes, and ten lauers on the ſokettes. The lauatory, and twelue oxen vnder it, and pottes, ſhouelles and baſens. And all theſe veſſelles whiche Hiram made to kynge Salomon for the houſe of the LORDE, were of bryght braſſe. In the playne of Iordā did yͤ kyng caſt thē: euen in the thycke claye betwene Socoh & Zarthā. And Salomō lefte all the veſſelles vnwayed, becauſe they were ſo exceadyng many, neyther found they out the weyght of the braſſe.

And ſo Salomon made all the veſſelles that perteyned vnto the houſe of the LORDE: the golden aultar, and the golden table wheron the ſhew breade was: And fyue candelſtickes, for the ryghte ſyde, and fyue for the lefte, before the queer of pure golde: with flowers, lampes, and ſnoffers of golde: and boulles, flat peces, baſens, ſpones, and maſours of pure golde: and hyndges made he of golde, both for the dores of yͤ queer (the place moſte holy) and for yͤ dores of the temple alſo.

And ſo was ended all the worke that kynge Salomon made for the houſe of the LORD. And *Salomon brought in yͤ thynges which Dauid his father had dedicated: euen the ſyluer, gold, and veſſelles, and layed thē vp among the treaſures of the houſe of the LORDE.

The .viii. Chapter.

¶The arke is borne into the temple. A cloude fil-keth the temple, The temple is bleſſed.

A. 2.Par.5.a Then* Salomon gathered together the elders of Iſrael, al ẏ heddes of the trybes, (and them that were captaines amonge the fathers of the children of Iſraell) vnto him in Jeruſalem, that they myght brynge vp the arke of the appointment of the LORDE 2.Reg.6.d *out of the cytie of Dauid, whiche is Sion. And all the men of Iſrael aſſembled vnto kynge Salomon, to the feaſte that falleth in ẏ moneth Ethani, which is the ſeuenth moneth. And al the elders of Iſrael were come, & the prieſtes toke vp the arke. They bare the arke of the LORDE, into the tabernacle of witneſſe: and all the holy veſſelles that were in ẏ tabernacle, thoſe dyd the prieſtes and Leuites beare. And kyng Salomō, and all the congregaciō of Iſrael, that were aſſembled vnto him (& wente with hym before the arke) did offre ſhepe and oxē, that coulde not be tolde nor numbred for multitude.

¶ And ſo the prieſtes brought the arke of the appoyntment of the LORDE vnto his place: euen in the queer of the temple, and place moſte holy, vnder ẏ wynges of the Cherubs. For the Cherubs ſtretched out their winges ouer ẏ place of the arke, and couered bothe it and alſo the ſtaues thereof a hye vpon it. And they drewe out the ſtaues, that the endes of them might appeare out of the holy place within ẏ queer, but they were not ſene without. And there they haue B bene vnto this daye, and there was no-Deut.10.a thinge in the arke, *ſaue the two tables of ſtone which Moſes put there at Horeb, in the whiche (tables) the LORDE made an appoynment with the children of Iſrael, whan he brought them out of the lande of Egipte.

And it fortuned that when ẏ prieſtes were come out of the holy place, ẏ cloud fylled the houſe of the LORDE, that the prieſtes coulde not ſtande and miniſter, because of the cloude, for the glory of the LORD had fylled the houſe of ẏ LORD. Leui.16.a. Then ſpake Salomon: the LORD *ſayd that he would dwell in the darke cloud. I haue buylte the an houſe to dwell in, an habitacyon for thee to abide in for euer. And the kynge turned his face, and bleſſed all the congregacion of Iſrael, & al the congregacion of Iſrael ſtode ſtil, and he ſaid:

Bleſſed be the LORDE GOD of Iſrael, whiche ſpake wyth hys mouthe vnto Dauid my father, *and hathe wyth hys 2.Reg.7 1.par.6 hande fulfylled it, ſaying: Sence ẏ daye that I brought my people Iſraell oute of Egypte, I choſe no cytie of all ẏ trybes of Iſraell, to buylde an houſe that my name myght be therin: But I haue choſen *Dauid, to be ruler ouer my people Iſrael. 1.Re.16.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buylde an houſe for the name of the LORDE GOD of Iſraell. And the LORDE ſayde vnto DAUID my father: Where as it was in thine herte to build an houſe vnto my name, thou dyddeſt well, that thou was ſo mynded: Neuertheleſſe thou ſhalte not buyld the houſe, but thy ſonne that ſhall come out of thy loynes, he ſhall buyld the houſe vnto my name. And the LORDE hath made good his worde that he ſpake. And I am ryſen vp in the rowme of Dauid my father, and ſyt on the ſeat of Iſrael, as ẏ LORD promyſed, and haue buylte an houſe for the name of the LORD GOD of Iſraell. C And I haue prepared therin a place for the arke, wherein is the couenaunte of ẏ LORDE, whiche he made with oure fathers, when he brought them out of the lande of Egypte. Salomon ſtode before the altar of ẏ LORD in the ſyght of al ẏ congregacyon of Iſraell, and ſtretched out his handes towarde heauen, & ſaid: 2.Par.6 * LORDE GOD of Iſraell, there is no GOD lyke the in heauen aboue, or in the earth beneth, thou that kepeſt couenaūt and mercy for thy ſeruauntes ẏ walke before thee with al theyr hert: thou that haſte kept with thy ſeruaunt Dauid my father, that thou promyſedſt him. Thou ſpakeſt alſo with thy mouth, and haſte fulfylled it with thine hād, as it is come to paſſe this day. Therfore, now LORD GOD of Iſrael, kepe with thy ſeruaunt Dauid my father, that thou promyſedſt him, ſayinge: *Thou ſhalt not be with- 2.Reg.7 out a man in my ſyghte to ſyt on ẏ ſeate of Iſrael: ſo that thy childrē take hede to their waye, that they walke before me, as thou haſt walked in my ſyghte. And nowe (O GOD) of Iſrael, let thy worde be verified, which thou ſpakeſt vnto thy ſeruaunt DAUID my father.

a ſtryng of thyrtye cubites did compaſſe it aboute, and vnder the brym of it there were knoppes rounde aboute, ten in one cubite: and they compaſſed the lauatory rounde aboute. And the knoppes were caſt with it, in two rowes, when it was caſte. And it ſtode on twelue oxen: of whiche thre loked towarde the northe, thre towarde the weſte, thre towarde the ſouth, and thre towarde the eaſt, ⁊ the lauatory ſtode vpon them, ⁊ al their hynderpartes were inward. It was an hande breadth thicke, and the brimme wrought lyke the brymme of a cup with flowers of lylyes. And it conteined two thouſande Bates.

And he made ten ſokettes of braſſe, foure cubites longe, and foure cubites broade a pece, and thre cubites hye. And the worke of the ſokettes was on thys maner: They had ſydes, and the ſydes were betwene the ledges. And on the ſydes that were betwene the ledges, were lyons, oxen, and Cherubs. And lykewyſe vpon the ledges that were aboue: and beneth the lions and oxẽ, were C certayne addycyons made of thynne worke. And vnder euerye ſokette were foure braſen wheles, and bordes of braſſe. And in the foure corners therof, were vnderſetters (vnder the lauatory) caſt eche ouer agaynſt hys felow.

And the ſtalke of the lauatorye was in the myddle of it, (where it is ſene on the out ſyde) one cubyte hye, ⁊ a cubite ⁊ an halfe round, ⁊ in the heigth of it were grauen workes whoſe ſides were made foureſquare, and not rounde. And vnder the ſydes were foure wheles, and the axeltrees ioyned faſte to the bottome. And the heigth of euery whele was a cubite ⁊ a halfe. And the workemanſhyp of the wheles was lyke the worke of a charet whele. And yͤ axeltres, yͤ nauelles, ſpokes ⁊ ſhaftes were al molten. And there were foure vnderſetters in the foure corners of one ſocket: and the vnderſetters were of the very bottome ſelfe.

And in the heygth of the bottom was ther a round cõpaſſe of half a cubite hie: and in that heygth of the botom, there proceaded both ledges and ſydes out of the ſame. For in the bordes of yͤ ledges, and on the ſides he had grauẽ pyctures of Cherubins, lyons and paulmetrees, one by another rounde aboute. Thus made he the ten ſockettes after this maner: And they had all one faſhyon of caſtynge, one meaſure, and one ſyce. Than made he ten lauers of braſſe, one lauer contaynyng fourty Bates: and one lauer was foure cubites, and vpõ euery one of the ten ſokettes, he put one lauer. And he put fyue of thoſe ſokettes on the ryght ſide of the houſe, and other fiue on the left. And he ſet the lauatorye on the ryght ſide of the houſe eaſtward, and towarde the ſouth.

And Hiram made pottes, ſhouelles ⁊ baſens, ⁊ ſo fyniſhed all the worke that he made kynge Salomon for the houſe of the LORD: that is to ſay, two pillers, and two round headpeces that were to be ſet on the toppes of the two pyllers. Two net workes to couer yͤ two roũde headpeces, ſet vpon the toppes of yͤ pyllers, ⁊ four hundred põgranates for the two net workes, (euen two rowes of pomgranates in one net worke) to couer the two head peces that were to be ſet on the toppes of the pyllers: And the ten ſokettes, and ten lauers on the ſokettes. The lauatory, and twelue oxen vnder it, and pottes, ſhouelles and baſens. And all theſe veſſelles whiche Hiram made to kynge Salomon for the houſe of the LORDE, were of bryght braſſe. In the playne of Iordã did yͤ kyng caſt thẽ: euen in the thycke claye betwene Socoh ⁊ Zarthã. And Salomõ lefte all the veſſelles vnwayed, becauſe they were ſo exceadyng many, neyther found they out the weyght of the braſſe.

And ſo Salomon made all the veſſelles that perteyned vnto the houſe of the LORDE: the golden aultar, and the golden table wheron the ſhewbreade was: And fyue candelſtickes, for the ryghte ſyde, and fyue for the lefte, before the queer of pure golde: with flowers, lampes, and ſnoffers of golde: and boulles, flat peces, baſens, ſpones, and maſours of pure golde: and hyndges made he of golde, both for the dores of yͤ queer (the place moſte holy) and for yͤ dores of the temple alſo.

And ſo was ended all the worke that kynge Salomon made for the houſe of the LORD. And * Salomon brought in, yͤ thynges which Dauid his father had dedicated: euen the ſyluer, gold, and veſſelles, and layed thẽ vp among the treaſures of the houſe of the LORDE.

The.viii.Chapter.

¶The arke is borne into the temple. A cloude filleth the temple, The temple is bleſſed.

A. 2.Par.5.a THen* Salomon gathered together the elders of Iſrael, al yͤ heddes of the trybes, (and them that were captaines amonge the fathers of the children of Iſraell) vnto him in Ieruſalem, that they myght brynge vp the arke of the appointment of the LORDE 2.Reg.6.d *out of the cytie of Dauid, whiche is Sion. And all the men of Iſrael aſſembled vnto kynge Salomon, to the feaſte that falleth in yͤ moneth Ethani, which is the ſeuenth moneth. And al the elders of Iſrael were come, ⁊ the prieſtes toke vp the arke. They bare the arke of the LORDE, into the tabernacle of witneſſe: and all the holy veſſelles that were in yͤ tabernacle, thoſe dyd the prieſtes and Leuites beare. And kyng Salomō, and all the congregaciō of Iſrael, that were aſſembled vnto him (⁊ wente with hym before the arke) did offre ſhepe and oxē, that coulde not be tolde nor numbred for multitude.

¶ And ſo the prieſtes brought the arke of the appoyntment of the LORDE vnto his place: euen in the queer of the temple, and place moſte holy, vnder yͤ wynges of the Cherubs. For the Cherubs ſtretched out their winges ouer yͤ place of the arke, and couered bothe it and alſo the ſtaues thereof a hye vpon it. And they drewe out the ſtaues, that the endes of them might appeare out of the holy place within yͤ queer, but they were not ſene without. And there they haue B bene vnto this daye, and there was nothinge Deut.10.a in the arke, *ſaue the two tables of ſtone which Moſes put there at Horeb, in the whiche (tables) the LORDE made an appoynment with the children of Iſrael, whan he brought them out of the lande of Egipte.

And it fortuned that when yͤ prieſtes were come out of the holy place, yͤ cloud fylled the houſe of the LORDE, that the prieſtes coulde not ſtands and miniſter, becauſe of the cloude, for the glory of the LORD had fylled the houſe of yͤ LORD. Leui.16.a. Then ſpake Salomon: the LORD *ſayd that he would dwell in the darke cloud. I haue buylte the an houſe to dwell in, an habitacyon for thee to abide in for euer. And the kynge turned his face, and bleſſed all the congregacion of Iſrael, ⁊ al the congregacion of Iſrael ſtode ſtil, and he ſaid:

Bleſſed be the LORDE GOD of Iſrael, whiche ſpake wyth hys mouthe vnto Dauid my father, *and hathe wyth hys 2.Reg.7 1.par.6 hande fulfylled it, ſaying: Sence yͤ daye that I brought my people Iſraell oute of Egypte, I choſe no cytie of all yͤ trybes of Iſraell, to buylde an houſe that my name myght be therin: But I haue 1.Re.16. choſen *Dauid, to be ruler ouer my people Iſrael.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buylde an houſe for the name of the LORDE GOD of Iſraell. And the LORDE ſayde vnto Dauid my father: Where as it was in thine herte to build an houſe vnto my name, thou dyddeſt well, that thou was ſo mynded: Neuertheleſſe thou ſhalte not buyld the houſe, but thy ſonne that ſhall come out of thy loynes, he ſhall buyld the houſe vnto my name. And the LORDE hath made good his worde that he ſpake. And I am ryſen vp in the rowme of Dauid my father, and ſyt on the ſeat of Iſrael, as yͤ LORD promyſed, and haue buylte an houſe for the name of the LORD GOD of Iſraell. C And I haue prepared therin a place for the arke, wherein is the couenaunte of yͤ LORDE, whiche he made with oure fathers, when he brought them out of the lande of Egypte. Salomon ſtode before the altar of yͤ LORD in the ſyght of al yͤ congregacyon of Iſraell, and ſtretched out his handes towarde heauen, ⁊ ſaid: 2.Par.6 * LORDE GOD of Iſraell, there is no GOD lyke the in heauen aboue, or in the earth beneth, thou that kepeſt couenaūt and mercy for thy ſeruauntes yͤ walke before thee with al theyr hert: thou that haſte kept with thy ſeruaunt Dauid my father, that thou promyſedſt him. Thou ſpakeſt alſo with thy mouth, and haſte fulfylled it with thine hād, as it is come to paſſe this day. Therfore, now LORD GOD of Iſrael, kepe with thy ſeruaunt Dauid my father, that thou promyſedſt 2.Reg.7. him, ſayinge: *Thou ſhalt not be without a man in my ſyghte to ſyt on yͤ ſeate of Iſrael: ſo that thy childrē take hede to their waye, that they walke before me, as thou haſt walked in my ſyghte. And nowe (O GOD) of Iſrael, let thy worde be verified, which thou ſpakeſt vnto thy ſeruaunt Dauid my father.

¶ The. ix. Chapter.

¶ The Lorde appeareth the ſeconde time to Salomon.
Salomon geueth townes to Hyram. The Cananites become tributaries. He ſendeth ſhyppes for

And they ſhal anſwere: becauſe they forſoke the LORDE their GOD, whyche brought their fathers out of the land of Egipte, and haue taken holde vpon other goddes, and haue worſhipped thē, and ſerued them: therfore hath yͤ LORD 2.Para.8.a brought vpon them all thys euill. * And it fortuned, that at the ende of twentye yeares, Salomon finiſhed the buylding of the two houſes, that is to wete, the houſe of the LORD, and the kynges palace. And Hiram the kynge of Tyre brought Salomon tymber of Cedar, & fyrre trees, gold, and whatſoeuer he deſyred: And Salomon agayne gaue Hiram, twentye cyties in the lande of Galile. 3.Reg.5.b. C And * Hiram came out from Tire to ſee the cyties whiche Salomon had geuen him, and they pleaſed hym not. And he ſayde: what cyties are theſe, whyche thou haſt geuen me, my brother? and he called them the land of Cabul vnto this daye. And Hiram ſente the kynge. vi. ſcore hundred weyght of golde. And this is the ſumme, whiche kyng Salomon raiſed for a trybut whē he buylded the houſe of the LORDE, and his owne houſe, and Millo, & the wal of Ieruſalē, and Hazor, & Meggeddo, and Gazar.

For Pharao kynge of Egipte wente vp, and toke Gazar, and burnte it wyth fyre, and ſlue the Cananites that dwelt in the cytie, and gaue it for a preſent vnto his doughter, Salomons wyfe. And Salomon buylte Gazar and Beth Horon the nether: and Baalah & Thamar in the wyldernеſſe, and in the lande: and al the treaſure cities that Salomō had, (and were vnwalled / thoſe he made ſtronge) and cyties for hys carrettes, and cities for his horſemen, and all that Salomon deſyred, and would build in Ieruſalem, in Libanō, & in al the lād of his dominiō.

And al the people that were lefte of yͤ Amorites, Hethites, Pheresites, Heuites and Iebuſites, (which were not of yͤ childrē of Iſrael) their childrē yͤ wer left after them in the lande, whom the children of Iſrael alſo were not able to deſtroye: Thoſe dyd Salomon compell to brynge tribute vnto thys daye. But Leuit.25.f of the chyldren of Iſraell dyd Salomō * make no bondmen, But they were mē of warre, his miniſters, his lordes, hys captaines, and rulers of his charrettes, and his horſemen. And theſe were the lordes, that were ſette ouer Salomons worke: euen fyue hūdred were they and fyftie, & they ruled the people yͭ wrought the worke.

And Pharaos doughter came vp out of yͤ citie of Dauid vnto the houſe which Salomon had buylte for her. And then dyd he alſo buylde Millo. And thryſe a yeare dyd Salomon offre burnt offeringes and peace offerynges vpon the aultar whiche he buylte vnto the LORDE: And he burnt incenſe vpon the aultare that was before the LORDE, and ſo he fyniſhed the houſe.

And kynge Salomon made a nauy of ſhyppes in Azion Gaber, whiche is beſide Eloth, and yͤ bryncke of the red ſea, in the lande of Edom. And Hiram ſente by ſhyppe alſo of his ſeruauntes yͭ were ſhypmen, and had knowledge of the ſea, with the ſeruauntes of Salomon. And they came to Ophir, and fet from thence one and twentie ſcore hundred weyght of golde, and broughte it to kynge Salomon.

The. x. Chapter.

The quene of Saba commeth to heare the wiſdome of Salomon / whoſe royalty is here deſcribed.

AND the * quene of Saba hearinge the fame of Salomon (concernyng the name of the LORDE) came to proue him with hard queſtions. And ſhe came to Ieruſalem with a very greate trayne: with Camels that bare ſwete odoures, and golde excedyng muche, and precyous ſtones. And ſhe came to Salomon, and communed with hym of all that was in her herte. And Salomon declared vnto her, all her queſtions, ſo that there was not one thing hid frō the kyng, which he expounded not vnto her.

And the quene of Saba conſydered all Salomons wiſedome, and the houſe that he had buylded, and yͤ meate of hys table, and the ſitting of hys ſeruauntes, the ordre of his miniſters, and theyr apparel, his drynke & his burnt ſacrifices that he offred in the houſe of the LORD, & ſhe was aſtonyed. And ſhe ſayde vnto the king. It was a true word yͭ I heard in myne owne land of thy ſayinges, and of thy wyſedome. Howbeit I beleued it not tyll I came, and ſawe it with myne eyes. And beholde yͤ one halfe was not tolde me: for thy wyſedom ⁊ proſperitie B exceadeth the fame which I hearde of thee. Happye are thy men: ⁊ happye are theſe thy ſeruauntes, whiche ſtand euer before thee, ⁊ heare thy wyſedom. Bleſſed be the LORDE thy GOD, whiche loued the, to ſet thee on yͤ ſeate of Iſraell, becauſe yͤ LORD loued Iſrael for euer, ⁊ made yͤ kīg to doe equitie ⁊ righteouſnes.

And ſhe gaue the kynge.vi. ſcore hūdreth weyght of gold, ⁊ of ſwete odours excedyng muche, and precyous ſtones. There came no more ſuch aboundāce of ſwete odours, as the Quene of Saba gaue to kynge Salomon. The nauye Reg.9.c alſo of the*ſhyppes of Hiram (that caried golde from Ophir) broughte lykewiſe great plentye of Almuge tree, and precious ſtones. And the kynge made of the Almuge tres, pillers for the houſe of the LORDE, and for the kynges palace, and made harpes and pſalteries for ſingers. There came no more ſuch Almuge trees, nor were any more ſene vnto this daye. And kynge Salomon gaue vnto yͤ Quene of Saba accordyng to al her deſyre whatſoeuer ſhe aſked: beſydes that he gaue her of a free wyll with his own hande. And ſo ſhe returned vnto her owne countrey, both ſhe, ⁊ her ſeruātes.

C The weyghte of golde that came to Salomon in one yeare, was.vi.hūdred, three ſcore and ſyxe talentes of gold, beſydes that he had of chapmen, ⁊ of marchaūtes, and of poticaries, and of all the kynges of Arabye, and of the lordes of the countrey. And kynge Salomō made two hundred bouckelers of beatē golde, ſyxe hundred ſycles of golde wente to a bouckeler And he made three hundred ſhyldes of beaten golde, three pounde of golde wente to one ſhylde, and the kyng eg.7.a put them in the *houſe of the woode of Lybanon.

And the kynge made a great ſeate of yuery, and couered it with the beſt gold. And the ſeate had ſyxe ſteppes. And the toppe of the ſeate was rounde behynde, and there were pomels on eyther ſyde on the place of the ſeat, and two Lyons ſtode beſyde the pomels. And there ſtode xii. Lions on the ſteppes.vi. on a ſyde. There was none like (worke) ſene in a- t.17.b nye kyngdome.* And all kynge Salomons drynkyng veſſelles were of gold, and lykewyſe all the veſſels of the houſe of yͤ wood of Libanō, were of pure gold.

And as for ſiluer, it was nothing worth in the dayes of Salomon. For yͤ kynges nauy of ſhyppes wente on the ſea vnto Tharſis wͭ yͤ nauy of Hirams ſhyppes, euen ones in three yeare went the nauy to Tharſis, and brought golde and ſyluer, Elephātes teth, apes and pecockes. D 2.Par.9. *And ſo kynge Salomon exceaded all the kynges of the earth both in riches ⁊ in wiſedome. And al the world reſorted to Salomon, to heare his wiſedō, which GOD had put in his hert. And broughte him euery man his preſente, veſſelles of ſyluer, and veſſelles of golde, raymente, harneſſe, and ſwete odours, and horſes, and mules, yeare by yeare. And Salomon gathered together charrettes and horſemen: and he had a thouſande ⁊.iiii. hundred charrettes, and.xii. thouſande horſemen, whom he beſtowed in yͤ charrette cytyes, and with the kinge at Jeruſalem.

2.Par.1.d * And the kynge made ſyluer in Jeruſalem as plenteous as ſtones, ⁊ Cedar as plenteous as yͤ wyld fygge trees that growe aboūdauntly in the feldes. The bryngynge of horſes alſo out of Egipte: and the collection of the wares: dyd the kynges marchauntes take agayne, and ſolde the ſtuffe for a price. A charret came vp out of Egipt for.vi.hūdred ſicles of ſiluer: that is, one horſe for an hundred and fyftye. And euen ſo for al the kynges of the Hethites and for yͤ kynges of Siria, did they bring thē out, thorowe their handes.

Salomon hath ſeuen hundred quenes / and three hundred concubines / which bring him to ydolatry. His aduerſaries rebel againſt him, He dyeth.

A 3.Reg.3.a BUt kynge*Salomon loued many outlādyſh wemen: ⁊ the doughter of Pharao: and wemē of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonites and Hethites. Where as yet (concernynge theſe nacyons) the LORD ſaid vnto the children of Iſraell: *come not Exo.34.b ye at them, nor lette them come at you: Elles wyl they turne your hertes after their goddes. Neuertheles, Salomon claue vnto them in loue. And he hadde Deut.27.b vii. hundred quenes, and three hundred cōcubines, and his wyues turned away his hert. For it came to paſſe, whē Salomon was olde, hys wyues turned hys hert after other gods: and his hert was not perfyte with the LORDE his GOD, as was the herte of Dauid his father: For Salomō folowed Aſtaroth yͤ GOD of the zidons, and Milcom the abhominacion of the Ammonites. B And Salomon wrought wickedneſſe in the ſyghte of the LORDE, ⁊ folowed not the LORD perfitly; as dyd Dauid his father. For then did Salomon buylde an hie place for Chamos the abhominacion of Moab, in the hyll that is before Jeruſalem, and vnto Moloch the abhominacion of the children of Ammon. And lykewyſe dyd he for all his outlandyſhe wyues, whiche burnt incenſe, and offered vnto theyr goddes. And the LORDE was angry with Salomon, becauſe his herte was turned from the LORDE GOD of Jſrael whiche had appeared vnto him twyſe, and gaue him a charge (concernyng this thyng) that he ſhoulde not folowe other goddes. But he kepte not that, whiche the LORD cōmaunded him: wherfore yͤ LORD ſayd vnto Salomon: for as muche as this is done of the, and thou haſt not kept myne appoyntmente, and my ſtatutes (whiche J commaūded the,) J wyl rent the kyngdom from the, and wyll geue it to thy ſeruaunte. Notwithſtanding in thy dayes, J wyll not do it, becauſe of Dauid thy father, but wyl take it from the hande of thy ſonne. Howbeit J wyll not take awaye all the kyngdome: But wyll geue one trybe to C thy ſonne, becauſe of Dauid my ſeruaūt, and becauſe of Jeruſalem whiche J haue choſen.

3.Reg.3.a and.9.a

And the LORD ſtired vp an aduerſary vnto Salomon: euen one Hadad an Edomite, of the kynges ſede, whiche was in Edom. For when Dauid was in Edō, and Joab the captayne of the hoſte was gone vp to burie them that were ſlayne, he ſmote all the men children in Edom. For ſyxe monethes dyd Joab remayne there, and al Jſrael, tyl he had deſtroied al the men children in Edom. And thys Hadad fledde and certayne other Edomites of hys ſeruauntes with hym, to D come into Egipte, Hadad beynge yet a lytle child. And they aroſe out of Madian, and came to Paran, and toke men with them out of Paran, and came to Egypte vnto Pharao kynge of Egipte, whiche gaue him an houſe, and appointed him vitailes, and gaue him lande.

And Hadad gat greate fauour in the ſyght of Pharao, ſo that he gaue hym to wyfe, the ſyſter of hys owne wyfe, euen the ſiſter of Thahpenes the quene. And the ſyſter of Thahpenes bare hym Genubath his ſonne, whō Thahpenes noriſhed in Pharaos houſe. And Genubath was of Pharaos houſholde among the ſonnes of Pharao. And when Hadad heard in Egipte, that Dauid was layde to ſlepe with his fathers, and that Joab the captayne of the hoſt was dead alſo, he ſayde to Pharao: let me departe, that J maye goe to myne owne countrey. Pharao ſayd vnto hym: what haſt thou lacked here with me, that thou wouldeſt thus go to thyne own countrey: He anſwered, nothynge: howbeit let me go. And GOD ſtired him vp another aduerſary, one Rezon the ſon of Eliada, which fled from his lorde Hodadezer kynge of Zoba. And he gathered men vnto hym, and became captayne ouer the companye, when Dauid ſlue them. And they wente to Damaſco, and dwelte there, ⁊ raigned in Damaſco. Therefore was he an aduerſary to Jſraell all the daies of Salomon. And this was the miſchyefe, in that Hadad did abhorre Jſraell, and raygned ouer Siria.

And Jeroboam the ſonne of Nebat an Ephrathite of Zareda (whoſe mother was called Zeruah, whiche was a widdowe, and he Salomons ſeruaunt) lifte vp his hande agaynſt the kynge. But thys was the cauſe, that he lyfte vp his hande agaynſte the kynge: Salomon buylt Mello, ⁊ mended the broken places of the citie of Dauid his father. And this felowe Jeroboam was a man of warre. And Salomon ſawe the yonge man that he was able to do the worke, he made him ruler ouer all the trybute of the houſe of Joſeph. And it chaunced at that ceaſon, that Jeroboam wente out of Jeruſalem, ⁊ the prophet Ahiah the Silonite met him by yͤ way, hauyng a newe mantell on him, ⁊ they .ii. were alone in the felde. And Ahiah caught yͤ new mantel that was on him, and rente it in twelue peces, ⁊ ſaide to Jeroboam: take the ten peces. For thus ſayeth the LORDE GOD of Jſrael: beholde, J will rent yͤ kyngdō out of the hādes of Salomō, ⁊ wil gyue ten tribes to thee, ⁊ he ſhal haue one, for my ſeruaūt Dauids ſake, ⁊ for Jeruſalē yͤ citie which J haue choſē out of al yͤ tribes of Jſrael: becauſe they haue forſaken me, and haue worſhipped vnto Aſtharoth the GOD of the Sidons, and Chamos the GOD of the Moabites, and Milcom the GOD of yͤ chyldren of Ammon & haue not walked in my waies (to fulfil my pleaſure, my ſtautes & my lawes) as did DAUID his father. I will not take the whole kingdome out of his hande: but I wyll F make hi chief al his life long, for DAUID my ſeruauntes ſake, whō I choſe: becauſe he kept my commaundementes & my ſtatutes. But I will take yͤ kingdome 3.Reg.12.c Pſal.131.b. out of hys ſonnes hande, & wyll giue it vnto the, euē ten trybes of it, & vnto his ſōne wil I geue one tribe that Dauid my ſeruaūt may haue a light alway before me in Jeruſalem, the cytie which I haue choſē me, to put my name there. And I wil take the, & thou ſhalt raigne according to al yͭ thy ſoule deſyreth, & ſhalt be king ouer Iſrael. And if thou herken vnto all yͭ I commaunde the, & wilt walke in my wayes & do yͭ is right in my ſight, yͭ thou kepe my ſtatutes & my cōmaundementes (as DAUID my ſeruaunt did) then will I be wͭ the, & builde the a ſure houſe that ſhall continue, as I built for my ſeruaunte DAUID, & wil geue Iſrael vnto the. And I wil for this offēce (which Salomon hath cōmitted) vexe the ſede of DAUID, but not for euer.

Salomon ſought therfore to kyl Je-G roboam, & Jeroboam aroſe & fled into Egipte vnto Siſak king of Egipte, & continued there in Egipt vntil yͤ death of Salomon. The reſt of the wordes yͭ concerne Salomon, and al that he did, and his wiſedome: are they not wryttē in the boke of the wordes of Salomō? The tyme that Salomon raigned in Jeruſalem vpon all Iſrael, was fourty yeare. And Salomō ſlepte and he layd hym with his fathers and was buryed in the cyty of Dauid his father, & Rehoboam his ſonne raigned in his ſtead.

¶ The.xii. Chapter.

The kingdome is deuyded/Rehoboam raigneth ouer two tribes, and Jeroboam ouer ten. Aduram is ſtoned. Jeroboam maketh golden calues.

A 2.par.10.c. AND* Rehoboam went to Sichē: for all Iſraell were come to Sichem, to make hi king. And Jeroboā the ſonne of Nabat (which was yet 3.reg.12.g. in Egipte) herde of it * for he fledde to Egypt frō the preſence of kinge Salomon, & dwelt in Egipt. So they ſent & called him: & Jeroboam & al the cōgregacion of Iſraell came, and ſpake vnto Rehoboā, ſaying: thy father made our yocke greuous nowe therefore, make thou the greuouſe ſeruyce of thy father & his ſore yocke which he put vpon vs, lighter, & we will ſerue the. And he ſaid vnto them: departe yet for the ſpace of thre daies, and thē come againe to me. And the people departed.

B And kinge Rehoboam toke councell with the olde mē that ſtode before Salomon hys father, whyle he yet lyued, and ſayd: what coūcell geue ye, that I may haue matter to anſwere this people? And they ſayde vnto him: yf thou be a ſeruaūt vnto this people this daye, and folow theyr mindes and anſwere them, & ſpeake kynde wordes to them: they wil be thy ſeruaūtes for euer. But he forſoke the councel that the olde mē had geuen hym, & called vnto his coūcel yonge menne, that wer growen vp with hym, and wayted on hym.

And he ſayd vnto them: what councel geue ye, that we maye anſwer this people? for they haue communed with me, ſaying: make yͤ yocke which thy father did put vpon vs, lyghter: And the yong men that were growen vp with hym, ſpake vnto hym ſayinge. Thus ſhalt thou ſpeake vnto thys people (yͭ haue ſaied vnto the: thy father made our yocke heuy, but make yͧ it vs lighter.) Euē thus ſhalt thou ſay vnto thē: My lytle fynger ſhalbe wayghtyer thē my father was in the loynes. C And now where as my father dyd lade you and put a greuouſe yocke vpon you, I wyll make it heuyer. My father alſo corrected you with ſcourges, but I wil chaſtice you with ſcorpions. And ſo Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the thyrd day, as the kinge had appointed, ſaying: come to me agayne the thyrde day. And the king anſwered the people chorlyſhly, and lefte the olde mennes councell (that they gaue hym) and ſpake to them after the councell of the yonge men, ſaying: My father made your yocke greuouſe, and I wil make it greuouſer. My father alſo chaſtiſed you with whyppes, but I wil chaſtyſe you with ſcorpions. And the kyng herkened not vnto the people: for it was the ordinaunce of GOD, that he might *perfourme hys ſayinge, whiche the 3.reg.11.f

The .xiii. Chapter.

Jeroboam doyng ſacrifice vnto the calues, is reprehended of the Prophete, Hys hande dryeth vp/ while he putteth it out againſte the prophete. The prophet is killed/and buried.

AND beholde, there came a man of A GOD out of Juda (By the worde of the LORD) vnto Bethel, ⁊ Jeroboam ſtode by the altare to put incenſe.
And he cryed againſt the aultare in the word of the LORD ⁊ ſayde. O aultare, aultar, thus ſaieth the LORD: Behold, a childe ſhalbe borne vnto the houſe of Dauid, (Joſia by name) ⁊ vpon the ſhal D he offre the prieſtes of the hyl aultares gaue a tokē the ſame tyme, ſaying: this is the token, that the LORD hath ſpokē it. Behold the aultare ſhal rente, ⁊ the aſhes that are vpon it, ſhal fal out.

And whē the king heard the ſayinge of yͤ man of GOD (whiche had cryed against the aultare in Bethell) he ſtretched B out his hande from yͤ aultare, ſaying: holde hym. And hys hande whiche he put forth againſt him, dryed vp, and he could not pul it in againe to him: the the kynge anſwered, ⁊ ſayd vnto yͤ mã

Actu.8.c. my hande may be reſtored me againe.
And the mã of GOD beſought yͤ LORD, and the kinges hande was reſtored againe, and became as it was afore.

And the kynge ſayd vnto the man of GOD, come home with me, that thou mayſt dine, ⁊ I will giue the a reward.
And the manne of GOD ſayd vnto the kynge: yf thou wouldeſt geue me halfe thine houſe, I wyll not go in with the: neither wil I eate bread or drinke water in this place. For ſo was it charged me, thorow yͤ word of yͤ LORD, ſaying: eate no breade nor drynke water, nor turne againe by yͤ ſame way that thou C cameſt. And ſo he went another waye ⁊ returned not by yͤ waye that he came to Bethel. And there dwelt an old prophet in Bethel ⁊ his ſõnes came, ⁊ told him al the workes, that yͤ man of GOD had done that daye in Bethel, and the wordes whiche he had ſpoken vnto the kynge, tolde they theyr father alſo. And theyr father ſayd vnto thẽ: what waye wente he? And his ſonnes ſhewed hym what waye the manne of GOD went, whiche came from Juda. And he ſayd vnto his ſonnes: ſaddle me the aſſe.
Whiche when they had ſadeled, he gat hym vp theron, and wente after yͤ man of GOD, ⁊ founde him ſyttynge vnder a tre. And he ſayde vnto hym: arte thou the man of GOD that cameſt from Juda: And he ſayd: I am.

He ſayd vnto him: come home with me, ⁊ eate bread. He anſwered: I maye D not returne with the, to go in with the, neither wil I eat breade or drynke water with the in thys place. For it was ſayd to me in the worde of the LORDE.
Thou ſhalt eate no breade, nor drynke water there, nor turne againe to go by the way yͭ thou cameſt. He ſaid vnto hĩ: I am a prophet alſo as well as thou, ⁊ an angel ſpake vnto me in the name of the LORD, ſaying: brynge hym agayne with the into thine own houſe, yͭ he may eate breade ⁊ drinke water. And he lyed vnto hym. And ſo he wente agayne with him, and dyd eate breade in hys houſe and dranke water.

E And it fortuned, yͭ as they ſat at yͤ table, yͤ word of the LORD came vnto the prophet, that brought him againe. And he cryed vnto yͤ man of GOD yͭ came frõ Juda, ſaying: thus ſayeth the LORDE: becauſe thou haſt diſobeyed the mouth of the LORD, ⁊ haſt not kepte yͤ cõmaũdement which the Lorde thy God commaũded the: but cameſt backe agayne, ⁊ haſt eaten bread, ⁊ dronke water, in yͤ place (cõcerning yͤ whiche yͤ LORD did ſay vnto the: Thou ſhalt eat no breade nor drinke water) thy carkaſſe ſhal not cum vnto the ſepulchre of thy fathers.

And ſo it came to paſſe, that when he had eaten bread ⁊ dronke, the prophet which brought hym agayne, ſaddled hĩ an aſſe. And when he was gone, *a lyõ 3.reg.20.k. met him by the waye, and ſlue him, and his carkaſſe was caſt in the waye, and the aſſe ſtode therby, and the lyon ſtode by the coorſe alſo. And men yͭ paſſed by, ſaw the carkaſſe caſt in the waye, ⁊ the F lyon ſtandinge therby: ⁊ they came and tolde it in the towne where the old prophet dwelt. And when the prophet that brought hym backe agayne from the way hearde therof, he ſayde: it is yͤ man of GOD: He was diſobedient vnto the word of the LORD, ⁊ therefore yͤ LORD hath delyuered hym vnto yͤ lyon, which hathe rent hym and ſlayne hym, according to the worde of yͤ LORDE, whiche he ſpake vnto hym. And he ſpake to his ſonnes, ſayinge: ſaddle me an aſſe: ⁊ ſo they dyd. And he went ⁊ founde his body caſt in the waye, ⁊ the aſſe and the lyon ſtode by the coorſe. And the lyõ had not eatẽ the carkaſſe nor hurt the aſſe.
And the Prophet toke vp the bodye of the mã of GOD ⁊ layed it vpon the aſſe, G and brought it agayne: and the old prophet came to the cytye, to lament, and to bury hym. And he layed hys bodye in his owne graue, ⁊ they lamẽted ouer him (Alas, my brother.)

And when he had buryed hym, he ſpake to hys ſonnes, ſayinge: When I am dead, ſe that ye bury me in yͤ ſepulchre wherein the man of GOD is buryed: laye my bones beſydes his boones.
*For the ſayinge whiche he cryed at yͤ 4.re.24.d. word of LORD againſte yͤ alter in Bethel (⁊ againſt al yͤ houſes of hilaulters which are in the cyties of Samarie) ſhall come to paſſe.

Howbeit, for al that, Jeroboam conuerted not from his wicked waye: but turned backe and made of yͤ loweſt of yͤ people prieſtes of the hylaulters. And whoſo pleaſed him, he filled his hande, and became preſt of the hilaulters. And this thing turned to ſyn vnto the houſe of Jeroboam, euen to deſtroy him, ⁊ to bryng hym to nought from the face of the earthe.

ſhal come to the ſepulchre, bycauſe in hym there is founde goodneſſe toward the LORD GOD of Iſrael in the houſe of Jeroboam. Moreouer, yͤ LORD ſhal ſtyrre him vp a king ouer Iſrael which ſhall deſtroy the houſe of Jeroboam in that daye. But what is it now? For the LORDE ſhall ſmyte Iſrael, as when a reed is ſhaken in the water, ⁊ he ſhall wede Iſraell out of thys good lande (whiche he gaue to theyr fathers) and ſhal ſcattre them beyonde the riuer, bycauſe they haue made them groues, ⁊ angred yͤ LORD. And he ſhal gyue Iſrael vp, bycauſe of the ſynnes of Jereboam, which dyd ſyn, ⁊ made Iſrael to ſinne. And Jeroboams wife aroſe, ⁊ departed, E ⁊ came to Thirzah, and whē ſhe came to the threſholde of the dore, the childe was dead. And all Iſrael buryed him, and lamented him, accordynge to the word of yͤ LORD which he ſpake by the hand of hys ſeruaunte Ahia the Prophet. And the reſte of the wordes yͭ concerne Jeroboā, how he warred, and how he raigned: Behold they are written in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iſrael. And the dayes which Jeroboam raigned wer.xxii.yere. And whē he was laied a ſlepe wͭ his fathers, Nadab his ſonne raigned in his ſtede.

Rehoboam the ſon of Salomō raigned F in Juda, ⁊ Rehoboam was.xli.yere

.xvii.yere in Jeruſalem (the cytie which the LORD did choſe out of al the tribes of Iſrael, to put his name ther.) Hys mothers name was Naama an ammonit. And Juda wrought wickedneſſe in the ſyght of yͤ LORD, ⁊ angred hī in mo thinges thē theyr fathers did i theyr ſines whiche they ſined. For they alſo made thē hilalters, images, ⁊ idols childꝛen in the land, and they did accordinge to al the abhominacions of yͤ na-cions which the LORD caſt out before the childrē of Iſrael. And it fortuned, yͤ in yͤ fiftie yere of king Rehoboā: Siſak 3.reg.10.l. golde *whiche Salomon had made. In whoſe ſtede kyng Rehoboā made braſen ſhyldes, and committed them vnto the hādes of yͤ keping of the captaines of the garde, which wayted at yͤ doore of the kynges houſe. And when yͤ kyng went into the houſe of the LORD, they of the garde bare them, and broughte them againe into the garde chambre.

The reſt of the wordes that cōcerne Rehoboam, and al that he dyd, are they

And Abiam his ſonne raygned in hys

¶ The.xvi. Chapter.

¶ Iehu prophecyeth agaynſte Baaſa/ whom Ela ſucceedeth/ zimri killeth hys maſter Ela, and deſtroyeth the houſe of Baaſa, Ahab ſucceedeth Amri/and taketh to wife wicked Iezabel.

Then the worde of ẏ LORD came to Iehu the ſonne of Hanani against A Baaſa, ſayig: for as much as I exalted the out of the duſt, ⁊ made the capitayne ouer my people Iſrael, ⁊ thou haſt walked in the waye of Ieroboam, ⁊ haſt made my people Iſrael to ſinne, to anger me with theyr ſynnes: Beholde, I wyl roote out the poſterity of Baaſa, ⁊ the poſteritie of his houſe, ⁊ wyl make his houſe like ẏ houſe of Ieroboam the ſonne of Nebat.* That mā of Baaſa which dyeth in the cytye, him ſhall the dogges eate: ⁊ that mā of hym

The reſt of the wordes that concerne Baaſa ⁊ what he dyd, and his power, B are they not wrytten in the booke of ẏ Chronicles of ẏ kinges of Iſrael? And ſo Baaſa ſlept with his fathers, and was buryed in Thirza. And Ela hys ſonne raygned in hys ſtede. And by the hand of the prophet Iehu the ſonne of Hanani, came the worde of the LORDE againſt Baaſa, and againſt his houſe, ⁊ againſt all the wickedneſſe that he dyd in the ſighte of the LORDE (in angring hym with the worke of hys owne handes) that he ſhoulde bee lyke ẏ houſe of Ieroboam, and bycauſe he killed hym:
That is to ſay/ Iehu the ſonne of Hanani the Prophete.

The .xxvi. yere of Aſa kyng of Iuda began Ela, ẏ ſonne of Baaſa to raigne ouer Iſraell in Thirza, two yere. And his ſeruaunte zimri, (whiche was captayne of halfe his charettes) conſpired againſt hym, as he was in Thirza drinking: and was dronkē in ẏ the houſe of Arza ſtuarde of hys houſe in Thirza.
And zimri came ⁊ ſmote him, ⁊ killed hi in ẏ .xxvii. yere of Aſa kynge of Iuda, and raygned in hys ſtede. And it fortuned C that when he was kynge, * and ſate on his ſeate, he ſlue all the houſe of Baaſa, not leauing thereof one to piſſe agaynſt a wal. yea, he ſlue hys kinſfolkes and frēdes alſo. And thus did zimri deſtroy al the houſe of Baaſa, according to the word of ẏ LORD whiche he ſpake againſte Baaſa by the hande of Iehu the prophete, for all the ſinnes of Baaſa ⁊ ſinnes of Ela his ſonne, which they ſynned ⁊ made Iſraell to ſynne, and angre the LORD GOD of Iſraell wͭ theyr vanities. The reſt of ẏ wordes that that concerne Ela, and al yͭ he dyd: are they not wꝛittē in the booke of yͤ Chꝛonicles of the kinges of Iſrael?

D In the .xxvii. yere of Aſa king of Juda, did zimry raigne .vii. daies in Thirza, ⁊ the people was then in the hoſt beſieging Gebbethon, a cyty of yͤ Philiſtines. And the people of yͤ hoſt heard one ſaye: zimri hath conſpyꝛed, and ſlayne the kynge: wherfoꝛe all they of Iſrael made Amri (the captayne of the hoſte) kinge ouer Iſrael that ſame daye, euen in the hooſte. And Amri departed vp from Gibbethon, and all Iſraell with hym, and they beſieged Thirza. And when zimri ſawe, that yͤ cytye muſt ne- B des be taken, he went into yͤ palace of the kynges houſe, and burnt him ſelfe ⁊ the kinges houſe with fyꝛe, and ſo dyed foꝛ hys ſynnes whiche he ſynned, in doing that whiche is euil in the ſyghte of the LORD, and in walking in the waye of Jeroboam and his ſinnnes which he dyd, and in that he made Iſrael to ſyn.

The reſte of yͤ woꝛdes that concerne E zimry, and the treaſō that he wꝛought, are they not wꝛittē in yͤ boke of yͤ Chꝛonicles of the kynges of Iſraell? Then were the people of Iſraell deuyded into two partes, foꝛ halfe yͤ people folowed Thibni the ſonne of Ginath, making him king, ⁊ the other half folowed Amri. But yͤ people that folowed Amri pꝛeuayled againſt the people that folowed Thibni the ſonne of Ginath. And ſo Thibni dyed, and Amri raygned. In the .xxxi. yere of Aſa king of Juda begā Amri to raygne ouer Iſraell twelue yere. Syxe yere raygned he in Thirza. He bought the hyll Schomron of one Schemar foꝛ two talentes of ſiluer, ⁊ buylte in the hyll, and called the name of the cyty which he buylt after yͤ name of Schemar which had ben owner of yͤ hyll, Schomron. But Amri wꝛought yͭ whiche was euil in yͤ eies of the LORD, and dyd woꝛſe then all that were befoꝛe hym. Foꝛ he walked in all the waye of F Jeroboam the ſonne of Nabat, ⁊ in his ſynnes that made Iſrael ſynne: to angre yͤ LORD GOD of Iſrael with theyꝛ vanities. The reſte of the woꝛdes that concerne Amri, and all that he dyd, and his ſtrength that he ſhewed: are they not wꝛytten in the booke of yͤ Chꝛonicles of yͤ kinges of Iſrael? And ſo Amri ſlepte with hys fathers, and was buryed in Schemaron, and Ahab hys ſonne raygned in his ſtede.

In the .xxxviii. yere of Aſa kynge of Juda, begā Ahab the ſonne of Amri to raygne ouer Iſrael: ⁊ the ſame Ahab yͤ ſonne of Amri raigned ouer Iſraell in Samaria .xxii. yere. And Ahab yͤ ſonne of Amri dyd euyl in yͤ ſight of yͤ LORD aboue all that were befoꝛe hym. Foꝛ it ſemed vnto hym but a lyghte thynge to G walke in the ſinnes of Jeroboam the ſonne of Nebat. He toke Jezabel alſo yͤ doughter of Ethbaal king of the Sidonites to wyfe, and *went and ſerued 4.reg.10.d Baal, and woꝛſhipped him. And he reared vp an aulter foꝛ Baal in the temple of Baal, which he had buylded i Schōron. And Ahab made groues, and pꝛoceaded further in angryng the LORDE GOD of Iſrael, then all yͤ kinges of Iſrael that were befoꝛe hym.

In his daies dyd Hiel of Bethel build Jericho. And it*coſt hym Abiram hys Joſu.6.d. eldeſt ſonne when he layed the foundacion, ⁊ his yongeſt ſonne Segub, when he ſet vp the gates, accoꝛdinge vnto the woꝛde of the LORDE *whiche he ſpake by Joſua the ſonne of Nun. Joſu.6.d.

The .xvii. Chapter.

Elias is noriſhed and fed of rauens / and after is ſent to zarphath (other wiſe called Sareptha) to a woman whoſe childe he rayſed to lyfe. A

AND Elia yͤ Theſbit (which was of the enhabytours of Gilead) ſayde vnto Ahab: *as trulye as yͤ LORD 3.reg.1[illegible].c. GOD of Iſrael lyueth, befoꝛe whome I ſtande *there ſhall bee neyther dewe Deut.11.b. noꝛ rayne theſe yeres, but accoꝛding to 3.reg.[illegible].d. my woꝛde. Jaco.5.d.

And the woꝛde of yͤ LORD came vnto hym ſaying: get the hence, ⁊ turne the eaſte warde, and hyde thy ſelfe in the bꝛoke Cherith, yͭ is it that lyeth befoꝛe Joꝛdā: Thou ſhalt dꝛinke of yͤ ryuer: ⁊ I haue cōmaunded the rauens to fede the there. And ſo he went, ⁊ did accoꝛdig vnto yͤ woꝛde of yͤ LORD. Foꝛ he went, ⁊ dwelt by yͤ bꝛoke Cherith yͭ is befoꝛe Joꝛdan. And the rauens bꝛought hym B bꝛead and fleſhe in the moꝛning, ⁊ lykewyſe bꝛead and fleſh in the euenynge, ⁊ he dꝛanke of the bꝛooke. And it chaunced after a whyle, that the bꝛooke dꝛyed vp, bycauſe there fel no rayne vpon the earthe. And the woꝛde of the LORDE came vnto him, ſaying: *vp, ⁊ get the to Luc.4.e.

was ther gatheringe ſtyckes. And he called to her, and ſayd: *fet me I praye Iud.4.c. the a lytle water in a veſſel, yͤ I maye drinke. And as ſhe was going to fet it, he cryed after her, and ſayd: brynge me I praye the, a morſell of bread alſo in thine hande. She ſaide: As truly as yͤ LORD thy GOD liueth, I haue no bread ready, but euen an handful of mele in a barell, & a litle oyle in a cruſe. And behold, I am gathering two ſtyckes for to go in, and dreſſe it for me & my ſonne that we may eate, and dye.

C And Elia ſaid vnto her: feare not, cum, and do as thou haſte ſayed, but make me thereof a litle cake fyrſte of all: and bringe it vnto me, & afterwarde make for the, and thy ſonne. For thus ſayeth the LORDE GOD of Iſrael: the mele in the barel ſhal not be waſted: neither ſhal the oile in the cruſe be diminiſhed, vntil the LORD haue ſent rayne vpon the earthe. And ſhe went, & dyd as Elia ſayd. And ſhe & he, & her houſe dyd eat a good ſpace, and the mele waſted not out of the barell, neither was the oyle ſpent out of the cruſe, according to the worde of the LORDE, which he ſpake by the hande of Elia.

And after theſe thynges it happened, that the ſonne of the wyfe of the houſe fel ſycke. And his ſickneſſe was ſo ſore, yͤ there was no breth lefte in him. And ſhe ſayd vnto Elia: what haue I to do with the, O thou man of GOD? art thou come vnto me to call my ſynne agayne to remembraunce, & to ſlaye my ſonne?
He ſayde vnto her: gyue me thy ſonne, & D he toke him out of her lappe, and caried him vp into a lofte, where he abode, and layed hym vpon hys owne bed, and called vnto the LORD, and ſayd: O LORD my GOD, haſte thou puniſhed alſo this widow (with whome I dwell as a ſtraunger) and haſt ſlayne her ſon?
*And he ſtretched him ſelf vpō yͤ childe 4.reg.4.f thre times, & called vnto the LORD, & Actu.xx.c. ſayde: O LORD my God, let this childes ſoule come into hym againe. And yͤ LORD hearde the voyce of Elia, and the ſoule of the chyld came in to him agayne, and he reuyued. And Elia toke the boye and brought hym downe out of the chambre into the houſe, and deliuered hym vnto hys mother, and Elya ſayd: beholde, thy ſon liueth. And the woman ſayd vnto Elia: now I knowe that thou art a man of GOD, and that the worde of the LORD in thy mouthe is true.

¶ The.xviii.Chapter.

Elia is ſent to Ahab. Obadia (otherwiſe called Abdia) hydeth an hundred prophetes. Elia kylleth all Baals prophetes and afterward obtaineth raine.

A After proceſſe of manye dayes the word of the LORD came to Elia in the third yere, ſaying: go ſhewe thy ſelfe vnto Ahab, and I *will ſende Deu.11. rayne vpō the earthe. And Elia went to Iacob. ſhewe him ſelfe vnto Ahab, & ther was agreat famiſhment in Schomron. And Ahab called Obadia, which was yͤ gouernoure of hys houſe: and Obadia feared GOD greatly: For when Iezabel deſtroied yͤ prophetes of yͤ LORD, he toke an hūdred prophetes & hyd them, fyftie men in one caue, & fyftye in an other, and prouyded bread & water for them. And Ahab ſayd vnto Obadia: go into the lande, vnto al the fountaines of water, & vnto al the brookes, if happely we may fynde graſſe to ſaue the horſes and the mules, and that we deſtroy not ſome of the beaſtes. And ſo they deuyded the lande betwene them to walke thorow it. Ahab went one way by him ſelfe, and Obadia went an other waye by hym ſelfe.

B And it chaunced, yͤ as Obadia was in the way, Elia met hym. And Obadia knew him: & fel on his face, & ſayd: arte not thou my lorde Elia? And he anſwered hym: I am he. Go and tel thy lorde: beholde, Elia is here. He ſayde: what haue I ſinned, that thou woldeſt delyuer thy ſeruaūt into yͤ hand of Ahab, to ſlaye me? As truly as yͤ LORD thy GOD liueth, there is no nacion or kingdome, whither my lord hathe not ſent to ſeke the. And when they ſayd: he is not ther, he toke an oth of yͤ kingdom and naciō, when he foūde the not. And now thou ſaieſt: go & tell thy lorde, yͤ Elia is here.
And as ſoone as I am gone from the,
the ſpirite of the LORDE ſhal cary the into ſome place that I do not knowe, & C ſo when I come, and tell Ahab, and he canne not fynde the, he ſhall ſlaye me.
But I thy ſeruaunte feare the LORDE fro my youthe vp. Was it not tolde my

loꝛde, what I did when Jezabel ſlue the pꝛophetes of the LORD, howe I hid an hundꝛed mẽ of the LORDES pꝛophetes, fyftye men in one caue, and fyftie in an other, and pꝛouided them of bꝛeade and water? And nowe thou ſayeſt: go thou nowe and ſhewe thy loꝛde, beholde Elia is here, that he maye ſlaye me?

And Elia ſaide: as truely as yͤ LORD of hoſtes lyueth, befoꝛe whom I ſtande, I wyll ſhewe my ſelfe vnto hym thys daye. So Obadia wente to mete Ahab, and tolde him. And Ahab went to mete Elia. And it foꝛtuned, that when Ahab ſawe Elia, he ſaide vnto him: arte thou he that troubleth Iſrael? He anſwered: it is not I that haue troubled Iſraell, but thou: and thy fathers houſe, in that ye haue foꝛſaken the cõmaũdementes of the LORDE, and thou haſte folowed Baal. Nowe therfoꝛe ſende, and gather to me all Iſraell, vnto mount Carmell, and the pꝛophetes of Baal, *foure hundꝛed and fyftie, ⁊ the pꝛophetes of the ydoles groues. iiii. hundꝛed, which eat of Jezabels table. So Ahab ſent vnto all the childꝛen of Iſrael: and gathered the pꝛophetes togither vnto moũt Carmel.

And Elia came vnto al the people, and ſaid: howe longe halte ye betwene two opinions? yf the LORD be GOD, folowe him: but if Baal be he, thẽ go after him: And yͤ people anſwered him not a woꝛd. Then ſaid Elia vnto the people againe: I onely remaine a pꝛophete of yͤ LORD: But Baals pꝛophetes are foure hũdꝛed and fyftie. *And al the people anſwered, and ſaid: it is well ſpoken. And Elia ſaide vnto yͤ pꝛophetes of Baal: choſe you an oxe, and dꝛeſſe him firſte, (foꝛ ye are manye) and call on the name of youre goddes, but put no fyꝛe vnder. And they toke the one oxe that he dyd giue them, ⁊ they dꝛeſſed it, *and called on the name of Baal, frõ moꝛning to noone: ſaying: O Baal heare vs. But there was no voyce, noꝛ one to anſwere. And they lepte vpon the alter that they had made. And at noone it foꝛtuned, that Elia mocked them, and ſaid: crye loude, foꝛ he is a god, peraduenture he is talkyng oꝛ occupyed (in folowyng of his enemyes) oꝛ is in his iourneye, oꝛ happly he ſlepeth, and muſt be awaked with your crie. And they cried loud, and cutte them ſelues as their maner was, with knyues and launcers, tyll yͤ bloud folowed on them. And it chaunced, that when myddday was paſſed, they pꝛopheceyed vntyll the tyme of the euenyng ſacrifice. But there was neyther voyce noꝛ one to aunſwere, noꝛ anye that regarded them.

¶ The firſt and ſeconde time, that Samaria was beſieged of Benhadad kyng of Siria.

A AND Benhadad the kynge of Siria gathered al his hoſte togyther, hauing .xxxii. kynges with him, & horſes, and charrettes: & went vp, and beſieged Samaria, and warred agaynſte it. And he ſent meſſengers to Ahab kyng of Iſrael, into the cytie, and ſayd vnto him: thus ſayth Benhadad: Thy ſiluer & thy gold is mine, and yͤ fayreſt of thy wiues, and of thy children, be myne. And yͤ kyng of Iſrael anſwered, and ſayde: My lord kynge accordynge to thy ſayinge, I am thine, and all that I haue.

And whē the meſſengers came again, they ſaide: thus ſayth Benhadad: For as muche as I haue ſent vnto the, ſayinge: thou ſhalt delyuer me thy ſyluer & thy golde, and thy wyues, and thy chyldren: I wyll therfore ſend my ſeruauntes vnto the tomorowe this time: & they ſhal ſearche thine houſe, and the houſes of thy ſeruauntes. And what ſoeuer is pleaſaunt in thine eies, they ſhal take it
B in their handes, and brynge it awaye. Then the kynge of Iſraell ſente for all the elders of the lande, & ſayd: take hede I praye you, & ſe how this felowe goeth about miſchief. For he ſent vnto me for my wyues, for my childrē, for my ſyluer and for my golde: and I denyed him not. And all the elders, and all the people ſayde: herken not vnto hym, nor conſent.

Wherfore he ſaid vnto the meſſengers of Benhadad: tel my lorde the kynge, all that thou dyddeſt ſende for, to thy ſeruaunt at the fyrſt tyme, that I will doe, but this thinge I maye not do. And the meſſengers departed & brought anſwer agayne. And Benhadad ſente vnto hym agayne and ſaid: thus and thus doe the goddes to me, if the duſt of Samaria be ynough for al the people that folow me, to take euery man an handfull. And the kynge of Iſrael anſwered, and ſayd: tel him: Let not him that putteth on his harneſſe boaſt him ſelfe, as he that putteth it of. And it fortuned, yͭ when Benhadad heard yͤ tidinges as he was with the kynges drinkyng wᵗin yͤ pauiliōs, he ſayde vnto his ſeuauntes: put on youre harneſſe, & they ſet them ſelues in araye againſt the citie.

C And beholde, there came a Prophete vnto Ahab kynge of Iſrael, ſaying: thus ſaith the LORDE. Haſt thou ſene al this great multitude? Behold, I wil deliuer it into thyne hand thys day, & thou ſhalt know, that I am the LORDE. And Ahab ſaid: by whom? He ſayde: thus ſaith the LORDE: euen by the ſeruauntes of the gouernours of yͤ ſhyres. He ſaid againe: Who ſhal ordre the battayle? And he anſwered: thou. Then he nūbred the ſeruātes of the gouernours of yͤ ſhyres, & they were .ii. hūdred & .xxxii. And after thē alſo he numbred al the people, all yͤ childrē of Iſrael, euen .vii. M. And they wente out at noone: but Benhadad did drynke tyl he was dronken in yͤ pauilions, both he and the kynges: euen .xxxii. kinges, that holpe him. And the ſeruauntes of the gouernours of the ſhyres wente out firſte.

D And Benhadad ſent out, & they ſhewed him, ſaying: there are men come out of Samaria. He ſayde: Whether they be come out for peace, take them alyue: or whether they be come out to fyght, take them yet alyue. And ſo thoſe yonge men of the gouernours of yͤ ſhyres came out of yͤ citie, & the hooſt after them, and they ſlue euery one his enemy yͭ came in hys waye. And the Sirians fledde, & they of Iſraell folowed after them. And Benhadad the kynge of Siria eſcaped on an horſe with his horſemen. And the kyng of Iſrael went oute, and ſmote the horſes, and charrettes, and with a greate ſlaughter ſlue he the Sirians.

And there came a prophet to the king of Iſraell, and ſaide vnto him: go forthe, and playe the man, be wyſe & take hede what thou doeſt: for when the yeare is gone aboute, the kynge of Siria wyll come vp agaynſt the. And yͤ ſeruauntes of the kynge of Siria ſayde vnto hym: The gods of the hylles are their gods, and therefore they had the better of vs:

but lette vs fyghte agaynſte them in the playne, and for what ye wyl, we ſhal haue the better of them. And this doe: take the kynges awaye euery man oute of hys place, ⁊ put Dukes in theyr rommes. And do thou nūbre the an hoſt, like yͤ hoſt yͭ thou haſt loſt, ſuch horſes, ⁊ ſuch charrettes, ⁊ we wyll fyght againſt thē in the playne, and thou ſhalte ſe vs get yͤ better of them. And he herkened vnto their voyce, and dyd euen ſo.

E And it fortuned, that after the yeare was gone about, Benhadad numbred yͤ Sirians, ⁊ went vp to Apyek to fyghte agaynſt Iſrael. And the children of Iſraell were numbred, ⁊ with their whole numbre went they againſt them, ⁊ the children of Iſrael pitched before thē, like two lytle flockes of kyddes: but the Sirians fylled the countreye: And there came a mā of GOD, ⁊ ſaide vnto yͤ kyng of Iſrael: thus ſayeth yͤ LORD: Bycauſe the Sirians haue ſaide: the LORDE is but GOD of the hilles, ⁊ not GOD of the valleyes: therfore wyl I deliuer al this greate multitude into thyne hande, and ye ſhal know yͭ I am the LORDE. And they pytched one ouer againſt the other, ſeuen dayes, ⁊ it came to paſſe that in yͤ vii. daye the battayle was ioyned. And the children of Iſraell ſlue of the Sirians an hūdred. M. fotemen in one daye. But the reſt fled to Aphek into the citie. And there fell a wall vpon. xxvii. thouſande of the men yͭ were lefte. And Benhadad fled, and came into the cytie, from chambre to chambre.

And his ſeruauntes ſaide vnto him. Behold we haue heard ſay, yͭ the kinges of the houſe of Iſrael are mercyful kinges. We wil therfore put ſakcloth about our loynes, ⁊ ropes about our neckes, ⁊ go oute to the kynge of Iſrael: yf happely he wyll ſaue thy lyfe. And ſo they gyrded ſakcloth about theyr loines, and put ropes about their heades, ⁊ came to yͤ kīg of Iſrael, ⁊ ſaid: Thy ſeruaunt Benhadad ſaith: I pray the let me lyue. He ſaid: is he yet alyue? he is my brother. And they toke that worde for good lucke, ⁊ haſtly caughte it oute of his mouth, and ſaid: yea, thy brother Bēhadad. He ſaid: go, brynge him hyther. And Benhadad came oute vnto him, ⁊ he cauſed him to come vp into yͤ charet. And he ſaide vnto him: the cyties whiche my father toke from thy father, I wyll reſtore agayne. And yͭ ſhalt make ſtretes for the in Damaſco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I wyl make an appoyntment with thee, ⁊ ſende the away. And ſo he made an appointmēt wͭ him, ⁊ ſent him away.

And there was a certayne man of the childrē of the prophetes, which ſaid vnto hys neyghboure in the worde of the LORDE: ſmyte me I praye the. And the man would not ſmyte him. Thē ſaide he vnto hī: bycauſe thou haſt not herkened vnto yͤ voice of the LORD: behold, aſſone as thou art departed fro me, a lyō ſhall ſlaye the. And it came to paſſe, yͭ aſſoone as he was departed frō him, a *lyō foūd him, ⁊ ſlue him. Then he foūde an other man, ⁊ ſaide: ſmite me I pray the. And yͤ mā ſmote him, ſo yͭ in ſmytyng he woūded him. So the prophet wēt forth, and wayted for yͤ kyng by yͤ way, ⁊ put hym ſelfe out of knowledge wͭ aſhes whiche he layed vpon his face. And whē yͤ kyng came by, he cried vnto yͤ king, ⁊ ſayd: thy ſeruaūt went out in yͤ middes of yͤ battayle: ⁊ beholde, there went away a man, whō an other man broughte vnto me, ⁊ ſayde: kepe this mā. And if he be myſſed or loſt, thy life ſhal go for his, or els thou ſhalt paye a talent of ſyluer. And as thy ſeruaūte had here ⁊ there to do, he was gone. And the kynge of Iſrael ſaid vnto him: euen ſo ſhall thy iudgement be, as thou haſte defined it thy ſelfe.

And he haſted, and toke the aſhes awaye from his face: ⁊ the king of Iſrael knewe him that he was of the Prophetes: And he ſaide vnto him: thus ſayth yͤ LORDE: bycauſe thou haſt let go a man that is in my curſe, thy lyfe ſhall go for his lyfe: and thy people for his people. And the kynge of Iſraell wente to hys houſe, wayward and in diſpleaſure, and came to Samaria.

The. xxi. Chapter.

Jezabel commaundeth to kyl Naboth / for the vineyarde that he refuſed to ſel to Ahab. Heliah reproueth Ahab, and he repenteth.

AFter theſe thynges it chaunced yͭ Naboth yͤ Jezrahelite had a vyneyarde in Jezrahel, hard by yͤ palace of Ahab kyng of Samaria. And Ahab ſpake vnto Naboth, ſaying: *Gyue me thy vineyard, yͭ I may make me a gardē of herbes thereof, bycauſe it lyeth ſo nye myne houſe: ⁊ I wil gyue the for it a better vyneyarde then it is: or rather yf it pleaſe the, J wyll gyue the, ỷ worth of it in money. And Naboth ſayde to Ahab: ỷ LORDE forbyd that fro me, ỷ J ſhould gyue the enheritaunce of my father vnto thee.

B And Ahab came into his houſe heuye and euil apayed, bycauſe of the worde which Naboth the Jezrahelite had ſpoken to him, for he had ſayde: J wyll not gyue the the enheritaũce of my fathers. And he layed him downe vpon his bed, and turned away his face (to the wall) and would eate no bread. But Jezabel hys wyfe came to hym, and ſaide vnto hym: why is thy ſpirite ſo waywarde, ỷ thou eateſt no breade? And he ſayde vnto her: For J ſpake vnto Naboth the Jezrahelite, ⁊ ſaid vnto hym: Gyue me thy vyneyarde for money, or els yf it pleaſe the, J wil gyue the an other vineyarde for it. And he anſwered: J wyll not gyue thee my vyneyarde.

C And Jezabel his wyfe ſayd vnto him: Doeſt thou thus gouerne the kingdome of Jſrael? vp, ⁊ eate breade, ⁊ ſet thyne hert at reſt, J wil gyue the the vineyard of Naboth the Jezrahelite. And ſo ſhe wrote a letter in Ahabs name, and ſealed it with his ſeale, and ſent the letter vnto the elders, and to the nobles that were in hys cytye dwellynge with Naboth. And ſhe wrot in the letter, ſaying: Proclayme a faſte, ⁊ ſet Naboth on hye amonge the people, and ſet two vnthriftes before him, to beare (falſe) witneſſe againſt him, ſaying: thou didſt blaſpheme GOD and the kynge. And then carye him oute, and ſtone him to death.

D And the men of his citie, that is to ſay: whiche dwelte in his cytie, dyd as Jezabel had ſẽt vnto thẽ: ⁊ as it was written in the letter which ſhe had ſent vnto them. They proclaymed faſtyng, and ſet Naboth among the chiefe of the people, and there came in two men (the childrẽ of Belial) and ſat before him. And ỷ two vnthryftye perſonnes witneſſed againſt Naboth in the preſence of the people, ſayinge: Naboth dyd blaſpheme GOD ⁊ the kynge. *And they caried him oute of the cytie, and ſtoned him with ſtones, that he dyed. And then they ſente to Jezabell, ſayinge: Naboth is ſtoned to death. And it fortuned, when Jezabell heard that Naboth was ſtoned to death, ſhe ſaid to Ahab: vp, and take poſſeſſion of the vyneyarde of Naboth the Jezraelite, which he denyed to gyue thee for moneye, for Naboth is not alyue, but dead. And when Ahab hearde that Naboth was dead, he ſtode vp to go down to the vyneyarde of Naboth the Jezraelite, and to take poſſeſſion of it.

E And the worde of the LORDE came vnto Elia the Theſbite, ſayinge: vp, and goe downe, to mete Ahab kynge of Jſrael, whiche is in Samaria. For lo, he is gone downe to the vineyarde of Naboth: to take poſſeſſion of it. And therefore ſhalte thou ſaye vnto him: thus ſayeth the LORDE, haſte thou kylled, and gotten poſſeſſion? And thou ſhalt ſpeake vnto him, ſaying: thus ſayth the LORD: F 2.Reg.32.f *in the place where dogges lycked the bloude of Naboth, ſhall dogges lycke euen thy bloud alſo. And Ahab ſayde to to Elia: Haſte thou founde me, O thou myne enemy? He anſwered: J haue foũd thee: for thou arte euen ſolde to worke wickedneſſe in the ſight of the LORDE. G Oſee.1.b 4.reg.9.b *3.re.14.c 15.g.16.a. And of Jezabel ſpake the LORD, ſayinge: *dogges ſhall eate Jezabel, in the poſſeſſiõ of Jezrael. *And he that dieth of Ahab in the towne, him ſhall dogges eate: and he that dieth in the feldes, him ſhall the foules of the ayre eate. But there was none lyke Ahab, whiche dyd euen ſel him ſelfe, to worke wyckedneſſe in the ſyght of the LORDE: and that becauſe Jezabel his wife prycked him forwarde. He dyd exceadyng abhominably, in folowynge foule ydolles, accordynge to all thynges as dyd the Ammorites, *whom the LORD caſt out before ỷ children of Jſrael. Num.21.f

And it fortuned, ỷ when Ahab heard thoſe wordes, *he rent his clothes, and put ſakcloth about his fleſhe, and faſted, and laye in ſakclothe, and wente barefoote. Gen.37.g And the worde of the LORD, came to Elia the Theſbite, ſayinge: ſeeſt thou howe Ahab humbleth hymſelfe before me: bycauſe he ſubmitteth him ſelfe befoꝛe me, J wil not bꝛinge yͤ euyll in hys dayes: but in his ſonnes dayes, wyll J bꝛynge euil vpon his houſe. And they continued thꝛee yeare withoute warre betwene Siria and Jſrael.

And the kynge of Jſrael ſayd vnto Jehoſaphat: dyd J not tell thee, that he woulde pꝛophecye no good vnto me, but euyl? And he ſayde agayne: heare thou therfoꝛe the woꝛde of the LORDE. J ſawe the LORDE ſit on his ſeate, ⁊ al the hooſte of heauen ſtode about him on his ryght hande, ⁊ on hys lefte. And the LORDE ſaide: *Who ſhall perſuade Ahab yͭ he may go ⁊ fal at Ramoth in Gilead? And one ſayde on thys maner, ⁊ an other on yͭ. And there came foꝛth a certayne ſpirit, ⁊ ſtode befoꝛe the LORDE, ⁊ ſayde: J wyll perſwade hym. And the LORDE ſayde vnto him: wherwyth?

And he ſayde: J wyll go oute, ⁊ be a falſe ſpirite in the mouth of all hys pꝛophetes. He ſaide: thou ſhalte perſwade him, ⁊ pꝛeuayle, go foꝛth then, and do euē ſo. Now therfoꝛe beholde, *the LORDE hath put a lyinge ſpyꝛite in the mouthe of all theſe thy pꝛophetes, ⁊ the LORDE hath ſpoken euyl towarde thee.

But Zedekia the ſonne of Canaana went to: ⁊ ſmote Michea on the cheke, ⁊ ſayde: when wente the ſpirite of the LORDE fro me, to ſpeake vnto thee?

And Michea ſayde:beholde, thou ſhalte ſe in ẏ day, when thou ſhalte go frõ chãbre to chambre to hyde thee. And the kyng of Iſrael ſayd: Take Michea, and cary him vnto Amon the gouernour of the citie, and vnto Ioab the kynges ſon, and ſay, thus ſayth the kynge. Put this felow in the priſon houſe, and feede hym with bread of affliccion, and with water of trouble, vntyl I returne in peace. And Michea ſaid: if thou returne in peace, ẏ LORDE hath not ſpoken by me. And he ſaid: herken you people euery one of you.

E And ſo the kyng of Iſrael and Iehoſaphat the kynge of Iuda wente vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and the kynge of Iſrael ſaide to Iehoſaphat, chaunge thee when thou goeſt to warre: and put on thyne apparell. And the kynge of Iſrael chaunged him ſelfe, and wente to battayle. But the kynge of Siria commaũded the.xxxii. captaynes (that had rule ouer his charrettes) ſayinge: fyght neyther with ſmall nor great, ſaue onely agaiſt the kynge of Iſrael. And when ẏ captaines of the charrettes ſawe Iehoſaphat, they ſaid: ſurely it is the kynge of Iſraell, and they turned to fyghte agaiſt him. And Iehoſaphat cried. And ſo it came to paſſe, that whẽ the captaynes of the charrettes ſawe that he was not the kynge of Iſraell, they turned backe from him.

D And a certayne man drue a bowe ignorauntly, and (by chaunce) ſmote ẏ kyng of Iſraell betwene the rybbes and hys harneſſe. Wherfore he ſayde vnto ẏ driuer of his charrettes: turne thy hande, & cary me out of the hooſte, for I am (ſore) hurt. And the battayle encreaſed ẏ day, and the kynge ſtode ſtyll in his charette againſt the Sirians, and dyed at euen. And the bloud ran oute of the wound in to the myddeſt of the charet. And there wente a proclamacion thorowoute the hoſt, about the goinge down of ẏ ſunne, ſaying: euery man to his cytie, and to his F owne countrye. And ſo the kynge of Iſraell dyed: and they came to Samaria, and buried him there. And one waſhed ẏ charret in the poole of Samaria, * and the dogges lycked vp his bloude (& harlottes waſhed by the pooles ſyde) accordyng vnto ẏ worde of the LORD which he ſpake. Reg.21.f

The reſt of the wordes that concerne Ahab, and all that he dyd, and the ivory houſe whiche he made, and all the cities that he buylded, are they not written in the booke of the Chronicles of the kinges of Iſrael? And ſo Ahab ſlepte with hys fathers: and Ahazia his ſonne raigned in his ſtede.

*Iehoſaphat the ſonne of Aza began to raigne vpon Iuda in the fourth yere of Ahab king of Iſrael: and Iehoſaphat was.xxxv. yeare olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned. xxv. yere in Ieruſalem. His mothers name was Azuba the doughter of Silhi. And he walked in all the wayes of Aza his father, and bowed not therefrõ: but did that which was right in the eyes of the LORDE. Neuertheleſſe, the hyl aulters were not takenout of the way: for ẏ people offred, and burnt incence yet in the hylaulters. And Iehoſaphat made peace with the kyng of Iſrael. 2.par.30.c.

*The reſt of the wordes that concerne Iehoſaphat, and the myghte that he vſed, & how he warred: are they not written in the booke of the Chronicles of ẏ kynges of Iuda? And the remnaunte of the ſtues of the males, which remayned in the dayes of his father, he put cleane out of the land. There was then no king made in Edõ. And Iehoſaphat made.x. ſhips in ẏ ſea, to come thorow Tharſis to Ophir for gold, but they went not, for the ſhyppes brake at Ezion Gaber. Thẽ ſayde Ahazia ẏ ſonne of Ahab vnto Iehoſaphat: let my ſeruauntes go with thy ſeruauntes in the ſhyppes. But Iehoſaphat woulde not. And Iehoſaphat dyd ſlepe wͭ his fathers, & was buried wͭ his father in ẏ citie of Dauid his father. And Iehorã his ſon raigned in his ſtede. G 3.reg.15.f.

Ahazia the ſonne of Ahab began to raigne ouer Iſrael in Samaria, ẏ.xvii. yeare of Iehoſaphat kyng of Iuda, and raygned two yeares ouer Iſraell. But he dyd euyll in the ſyght of the LORDE, & walked in the waye of his father, and in the way of his mother, and in ẏ waye of Ieroboam the ſonne of Nebat, which made Iſrael to ſyn. For he ſerued Baal, and worſhypped him: and prouoked the LORDE GOD of Iſrael vnto wrath, accordinge vnto all ẏ his father had done.

¶The captaynes ouer fiftye with their ſouldiers are burnt with fire from heauen, by the praier of Helia. Ahazia is reproued of Helia / and dieth: ⁊ Jehoram his brother ſucceedeth him.

A AND Moab dyd wyckedly againſt Iſrael after the death of Ahab.
And Ahazia fell thorowe a latteſſe wyndowe of his vpper chambre that he had in Samaria, ⁊ whyle he was in hys ſyckneſſe, he ſente meſſengers, and ſaide vnto them: goe, ⁊ enquyre of Belzebub the god of Ekrom, whether I ſhall recouer of this my diſeaſe.
But the angel of the LORDE ſpake to Elia the Thelbite: Aryſe, and go vp againſte the meſſengers of the kynge of Samaria, and ſaye vnto them: Is there not a GOD in Iſrael, that ye go to aſke counſayle at Belzebub the god of Ekrom: Wherfore, thus ſayth the LORDE: thou ſhalt not come down from yͤ bedde on whiche thou arte gone vp, but ſhalte dye the death. And Elia departed.

B And when yͤ meſſēgers turned backe agayne vnto him, he ſayd vnto thē: why are ye nowe come? They anſwered him: there came a man vp againſt vs, ⁊ ſayde vnto vs: go, and turne agayne vnto the kynge that ſent you, and ſaye vnto hym: Thus ſaith the LORDE. Is there not a GOD in Iſrael, that thou ſendeſt to enquyre of Belzebub the god of Ekrom: Therfore thou ſhalt not come down frō the bed on whiche thou art gone vp, but ſhalte dye the death. And he ſayde vnto them: what maner of man was yͤ which came vp in your waye, ⁊ tolde you theſe wordes? And they anſwered him: it was an herye man, *and gyrde wͭ a gyrdle of Math.3.f lether about his loynes. And he ſayde: it is Elia the Theſbite.

Then yͤ king ſent vnto him a captaine C ouer fiftye, (with his fyftie men) and beholde, he ſat on the toppe of an hyll. And he ſpake vnto him: Thou man of GOD, the kynge hath ſayde: come downe. Elia anſwered, and ſayde to the captaine ouer yͤ fyftie: yf I be a man of GOD, fyre come downe from heauen, and conſume the and thy fyftye. *And there came fire of GOD, and conſumed him and his fyftie: And the kynge wente agayne, and ſent another captayne ouer fyftie, with his fyftie. And he anſwered, and ſayd vnto him: O man of GOD, thus hathe the kynge ſayde, make haſte, ⁊ come downe: Elia anſwered and ſayd vnto them: yf I be a man of GOD, fyre come down frō heuen, and conſume the ⁊ thy fyftie. And there came fyre of GOD downe from heuen, and conſumed him and his fyftie.

And the kynge went agayne, and ſent the thyrde captayne ouer fyftie with his fyftie men. And the thirde captaine ouer fyftie went vp, and came, and fell on hys knees before Elia, and beſoughte him, and ſaide vnto him: O man of GOD let my lyfe, and the lyfe of the fyftie, thy ſeruauntes be precyous in thy ſyghte.
Beholde, there came fyre downe from heauen, and burnt vp the two fore captaynes ouer fyftie wͭ their fifties, therfore let my lyfe nowe be precious in thy ſyght. And the angel of the LORD ſayd vnto Elia: go downe with him, ⁊ be not afrayed of him. And he aroſe, and went downe with him vnto the kyng.

And he ſayd vnto him: thus ſayth the LORD: for as moche, as thou haſte ſente meſſengers to aſke counſayle at Belzebub the god of Ekrom, as though there had bene no GOD in Iſrael, whoſe word thou myghteſt ſeke after: therefore thou ſhalt not come downe of yͤ bed on which thou art gone vp, but ſhalte dye yͤ death.
And ſo he dyed accordynge to yͤ word of the LORD whiche Elia had ſpoken. And

¶The. ii. Chapter.

Elia deuideth the waters with his mantell. He is taken vp into heuen. The bytter and venemous waters are healed. The children that mocke Eliſeus (otherwyſe called Eliſa) are rent in peces.

And it

A ANd it chaunced, that when the *LORD Eccl.5.c woulde take vp Elia into heauen by a whyrlewynde: Elia went with Eliſa from Gilgal,and Elia ſayd to Eliſa:tary here, I praye the,for the LORD hath ſent me to Bethel. Eliſa ſaid vnto him:*as ſurely as yͤ LORD .reg.18.d. liueth,and as thy ſoule liueth: I will not leaue the. And they came downe to Bethel,and yͤ children of the prophetes that wer at Bethel, came out to Eliſa, ⁊ ſaid vnto him:knoweſt thou not,how that the LORDE wyll take awaye thy maſter from thine heade this day? He ſayde:I knowe it alſo: holde ye youre peace.

B And Elia ſayd vnto hym:Eliſa:tary here,I pray the,for yͤ LORD hath ſente me to Iericho. He ſaid:as ſurely as the LORD liueth,⁊ as ſurelyas thy ſoule liueth I wil not leue the,and ſo they cam to Iericho. And the chyldrẽ of the prophetes that were at Iericho came to Eliſa,⁊ ſayde vnto him: knoweſt thou not,that the LORDE will take awaye thy maſter frõ thine head this daye? He anſwered:I know it alſo:hold ye your peace. And Elia ſayd vnto hym:tarye I praye the here,for the LORD hath ſente me to Iordan. He ſayde: as ſurely as yͤ LORD lyueth,⁊ as thy ſoule liueth, I wil not leaue the. And ſo they two wẽt togither. And fiftie men of the ſonnes of yͤ prophetes came ⁊ ſtode on yͤ other ſyde afar of,⁊ they two ſtode by Iordã.

And Elia toke his mantell,⁊ wrapt it togither,and ſmote the waters, and they were deuyded,parte the one way, and parte the other:ſo that they two wente ouer thorow yͤ dry lande. And it fortuned, that aſſone as they were ouer,Elia ſayd vnto Eliſa: aſke what I ſhal do for the, yer I bee taken awaye from the. And Eliſa ſaide: I praye the, let thy ſpyrite be double vpon me. And he ſayd:thou haſt aſked an hard thing. Neuertheleſſe,yf thou ſe me whẽ I am takẽ awaye from the,thou ſhalt haue it C ſo:if thou do not,it ſhall not bee. And it fotuned,that as they went walkinge ⁊ talking,behold,there appeared a charret of fyre,and horſes of fyre: and parted them bothe a ſoundre.* Eccle.48.a And Elia went vp thorow yͤ whyrlewynde into heauen. And Eliſa ſaw,⁊ cryed: O my father, O my father,the charette of Iſraell, and the horſemen therof,⁊ he ſawe him nomore:and he toke his own clothes,and rent them in two peces.

He toke vp alſo the mantel of Elia yͭ fel from hym, and went backe againe, and ſtode by Iordans ſyde, and toke yͤ mantell of Elia(that fell from hym)⁊ ſmote the waters(and they parted not aſondre,)and he ſayd:wher is yͤ LORD GOD of Elia,and he him ſelfe? And when he had ſmytten the waters, they parted this way and that way:and Eliſa went ouer. And when the chyldren of yͤ prophetes which were at Iericho ſaw him from afarre, they ſayde:the ſpyrite of Elia doth reſt on Eliſa, and they came to mete him,and fell to the ground before him, and ſayde vnto him:Se,there be wͭ thy ſeruauntes fyftye ſtrong men, let them goo,and ſeke thy maſter:happely the ſpirite of the LORDE hath takẽ him vp,and caſte him vpõ ſome moũtayne,or into ſome valley. And he ſaid: ye ſhall ſende none. And when they lay vpon him tyl he was aſhamed, he ſaid: Send. They ſent therfore fyftye men, which ſought hym thre dayes,but foũd him not. And when they came agayne to hym, whiche taryed at Iericho, he ſayde vnto them: dyd not I ſaye vnto you,that ye ſhoulde not go?

D And the men of the cytye ſayde vnto Eliſa: beholde Syr, the dwellinge of this city is pleaſaunt,as thou thy ſelfe ſeeſt:But the water is nought, and the grounde barren. He ſayde:Brynge me a newe cruſe:and put ſalt therein. And they brought it to hym. And he wente vnto the ſpringe of the waters,and caſt the ſalte in thither, and ſaid:thus ſayth the LORDE:I haue healed this water: there ſhal not come hence forth eyther deathe,or barrenneſſe. So the waters were healed vntyll this day,according to yͤ ſaying of Eliſeus whiche he ſpake.

And he wente vp from thence vnto Bethel. And as he was goinge vp the waye, there came lytle chyldren out of the cytie,and mocked him,and ſayd vnto hym:Go vp thou balde heade, go vp thou balde head. And he turned backe, ⁊ loked on them,and curſed them in the name of yͤ Lord. And ther came two ſhe beares out of yͤ wood,and tare.xlii.children of them. And he went from thence to mount Carmel,and from thence he turned agayne to Samaria.

¶ The .iii. Chapter

The kinges of Iſrael, Iuda and Edom lacke water, which they obtayne through the prayer of Eli-ſeus. The king of Moab fighteth agaynſt Iſraell.

A IEhoram the ſonne of Ahab begã to raigne vpõ Iſrael in Samaria, the .xviii. yere of Iehoſaphat king of Iuda, ⁊ raygned twelue yeres.
And he wrought euyl in the ſight of the LORD, but not lyke his father and lyke hys mother: for he put away the ymages of Baal that his father had made.
Neuertheleſſe, he cleued vnto the ſines of Ieroboam, the ſon of Nebat (whiche made Iſrael to ſinne) and departed not there from.

And Meſa kynge of Moab was a lorde of ſhepe, and rendred vnto yͤ king of Iſraell an hũdred thouſand lambes, and an hundreth thouſand rammes wͭ the woll. But when Ahab was dead, it fortuned, that the kyng of Moab rebelled againſt the kinge of Iſrael. And kinge Iehoram went out of Samaria the ſame ſeaſon, and numbred al Iſrael, and went, and ſent to Iehoſaphat yͤ kynge of Iuda, ſayinge: the kinge of Moab hath offended agaynſt me, wilt thou come with me againſte Moab to battayl? He anſwered: I will come vp, for as I am, ſo art thou: ⁊ as my people be, ſo are thy people: and thy horſes as mine. And he ſayd: What way ſhal we goo vp? And he anſwered: The waye B thorow the wilderneſſe of Edom.

And ſo the kynge of Iſrael toke hys iourney ⁊ the king of Iuda, ⁊ the king of Edom. And when they had compaſſed the waye ſeuen dayes, they had no water for the hooſte, and for the catell that folowed them. And the kynge of Iſrael ſayde: Alas, the LORD hath called theſe thre kinges togyther, to dely-uer them ouer into the hand of Moab.
3.reg.22.a. But Iehoſaphat ſayde: * is there not here a Prophete of the LORD, that we maye enquyre of yͤ LORD by him? And one of the kinge of Iſraels ſeruauntes aunſwered, ⁊ ſayde: Here is Eliſa the ſonne of Saphat, which poured water on the handes of Elia. And Iehoſaphat ſayd: Is not the worde of the LORD wͭ him? And ſo the king of Iſrael, and Iehoſaphat, and the king of Edom wente C down to him.

And Eliſa ſayd vnto the king of Iſ-rael: what haue I to do wͭ the? Get the to the prophetes of thy father, and to yͤ prophetes of thy mother. And the king of Iſrael ſayd vnto him: Oh, naye. For yͤ LORDE hath called theſe thre kinges togyther to delyuer them into yͤ hande of Moab. And Eliſa ſayd: as ſure as yͤ LORD of hoſtes lyueth (in whoſe ſight I ſtand) and it wer not, that I regarde the preſence of Iehoſaphat the king of Iuda, I would not loke toward thee, nor yet ſe the.

But nowe bryng me a mynſtrel. And when the mynſtrell played, the hand of the LORD cam vpon hym. And he ſayd: thus ſaith yͤ LORD: Make this playne grounde ful of dyches. For thus ſayth yͤ LORDE: ye ſhall ſe neyther wynde nor rayne, and yet the broke ſhalbe filled wͭ water, that ye may drynke: both ye and your beaſtes, and your cattel. And this is yet but a ſmal thinge in the ſighte of the LORD, for as much as he will giue ouer the Moabites alſo into your han-des. And ye ſhall ſmyte euerye ſtronge towne and euery goodly cytye, and ſhal fell euery pleaſaunt tree, and ſtoppe e-uery well of water, and marre euerye good plot of ground with ſtoones. And in the morning when the meate offring was offred, it fortuned, that there came water by the waye from Edom: and the countrye was filled with water.

And when all the Moabites heard yͤ the kinges were come vp to fyght a-gainſt them, they gathered al togyther, from the youngeſt that was hable to put on harneſſe, and ſo vpwarde, and ſtode in the bordre of the lande.

And they were vp early in the mornyng, and yͤ ſunne ſhone vpon the water, that the Moabites ſawe the water afarre of, as red as bloude, and they ſayd: this is the bloude of ſlaughter: yͤ kinges are ſlayne, and one hath ſmyt-ten another. Now therfore Moab get the to the ſpoyle. And when they came to the hooſte of Iſraell, the Iſraelytes ſtode vp, ⁊ ſmote the Moabites, ſo that they fledde before them, but they folo-wed vpon them, and ſmote Moab. And they ouerthrew the cyties: ⁊ on euerye good parcell of land caſt euery man his ſtone, and fylled it, and they ſtopte all yͤ wels of water, ⁊ felled all the good trees. Onelye in the cytye of brycke, lefte they the ſtones thereof: howebeit they went went about it with ſlinges, ⁊ ſmote it.

And when the kinge of Moab ſawe that the battaile was ſore againſt him, he toke with him ſeuen hundred men yͤ drue yͤ ſweard, to haue gone thorowe, euen vnto the kinge of Edom: but they coulde not. And then he toke hys eldeſt ſonne (that ſhould haue raigned in his ſtede) and offred him for a burnt offring vpon the wal. And there was great indignacion againſt Iſraell, and they departed from him, and returned to theyr owne lande.

The .iiii. Chapter.

God gyueth a certayne poore woman oyle and flour by Heliſeus Heliſeus whom yͤ texte calleth Eliſa) obteyneth of God a chylde for his hoſteſſe: which dyeth, and is after rayſed to lyf. He maketh ſwete the pottage, and multiplyeth the loues.

A And there cryed a certayne womã of the wyues of yͤ prophetes vnto Eliſa, ſaying: thy ſeruaũte my huſbande is dead, and thou knoweſt, that thy ſeruaunt did feare the LORD.

And the creditour is come to fet my two ſonnes to bee his bondmen. Eliſa ſaid vnto her: tel me what I ſhal do for the: what haſt thou in thine houſe? She ſayd: thine handmayd hath nothinge at al in the houſe, ſaue a pitcher of oyle. He ſaid vnto her: Go, and borow veſſel for the: of them yͤ are without, euen of all thy neyghbours, emptye veſſels: and yͤ not a fewe. And when thou arte come in, thou ſhalt ſhut yͤ dore after thee, and after thy ſonnes, and powre out into al thoſe veſſels, ⁊ ſet a ſide yͤ which is ful.

And ſo the woman went from hym, B ⁊ ſhut the dore after her, and after her ſonnes. And they brought to her, and ſhe poured out. And it came to paſſe, yͭ when the veſſels were ful, ſhe ſayd vnto her ſon: bring me yet a veſſel. And he ſayd vnto her: I haue no mo. And yͤ oile ceaſſed. Then ſhe came ⁊ tolde the man of GOD. And he ſaid: go, ⁊ ſel the oyle, ⁊ paye them that thou art in det vnto, but lyue thou and thy chyldren of the reſt.

And it fel on a daye, that Eliſa came to Sunem, where was a great womã that toke him in for to eate bread. And ſo it came to paſſe, that from that time forth (as oft as he came that waye) he turned in thither to eate bread. And ſhe ſayd vnto her huſband: Behold, I perceyue, that this is an holy man of GOD that cõmeth ſo ofte by our place. Let vs make him a chamber (I pray the) with walles, and let vs ſet him there a bed, ⁊ a table and a ſtole, and a candelſticke: that he maye turne in thyther when he commeth to vs.

And it fortuned on a day, yͭ he came C thyther, and turned into the chambre, ⁊ laye therin, and ſayd to Gehezi his ſeruaunt: call this Sunamite. And when he called her, ſhe preſented her ſelfe before him. And againe he ſayd vnto him: Tel her, Beholde, thou haſt ben careful for vs, ⁊ haſte made all this prouiſion. What ſhal we now do for the? wouldeſt thou be ſpoken for to the king, or to the captaine of the hoſte? She anſwered: I dwel among mine owne people. And he ſayd again: what is to be done for her? Gehezi anſwered: Verely ſhe hathe no childe, and her huſband is olde. And he ſaid: cal her. And whẽ he had called her, ſhe ſtode in yͤ dore. And he ſayd *by ſuch a tyme, ⁊ as ſoone as the fruyte canne lyue, thou ſhalt embrace a ſonne. And ſhe ſayd: Oh nay, my lorde, thou man of GOD, do not lye vnto thy handemayde.

And the wife conceiued, ⁊ bare a ſonne that ſame ſeaſon that Eliſeus had ſayd vnto her, aſſoone as yͤ frute could haue life. And when the childe was growen, D it fel on a day, that he went out to hys father, and to the reapers. And he ſayd to his father: my head, my head. And he ſayd to a lad: Cary him to his mother. And when he had taken him, ⁊ brought him to his mother, he ſat on her knees tyl noone, and then dyed. And ſhe went vp, and layed him on the bed of the man of GOD, and ſhut the dore about him, ⁊ went out, ⁊ called vnto her huſbande, and ſayd: ſende with me (I praye the) one of the yong men, ⁊ one of the aſſes. For I wyll runne to the man of GOD, and come agayne. And he ſayde: wherfore wilt thou go to him, ſeinge that to day is neyther newe moone nor Sabboth daye? She anſwered: for healthe. Then ſhe ſadled an aſſe, ⁊ ſayde to her ſeruaunt: leade awaye the aſſe, ⁊ make her not to go ſlowlye, (bycauſe I ryd vpon her) but when I byd the.

And ſo ſhe went, and came vnto the E man of GOD to mount Carmel. And it fortuned, that whẽ yͤ man of GOD ſaw her farre of, he ſayd to Gehezi his ſeruaũt: Behold, yõder is the Sunamite. Runne therfore to mete her, and ſaye vnto her: Js all wel with the ⁊ with thy huſbande, ⁊ with the lad? And ſhe anſwered: All is well. And when ſhe came E to the manne of GOD vp to the hyll, ſhe caught hym by the feete. But Gehezi went to her, to thruſte her away. And yͤ man of GOD ſayd: let her alone, for her ſoule is vexed within her, ⁊ the LORDE hath hyd it fro me, and hath not told it me. Then ſhe ſayd: dyd J deſyre a ſonne of my lorde? dyd J not require the, that thou ſhouldeſt not diſceyue me?

the ſtaffe vpon the face of the chylde.
But there was neyther voyce nor anye felinge: wherefore he wente agayne to mete hym, and tolde hym, ſayinge: the child is not awaked.

F And when Eliſa was come into the houſe, behold, the chyld was dead, and laied vpō his bed. He went in therfore, and ſhut the dore to the lad and hym, ⁊ 3.reg.17.d. prayed vnto yͤ LORD. * And went vp, ⁊ Actes.20.c. laye vpō the lad, ⁊ put his mouth on his mouth, ⁊ his eies vpon his eies, and his handes, vpon his handes, and when he ſo laye vpon the chylde, the fleſhe of the childe waxed warme. And he went agayne, ⁊ walked ones vp and downe in the houſe, and then went vp and laied hym ſelfe vpon hym agayne. And thē the chylde gaſped ſeuen tymes, and opened hys eyes. And he called Gehezi, and ſayde: Call for this Sunamit. So he called her, whiche when ſhe was come in vnto him, he ſayde vnto her: Luc.5.c. * Take thy ſonne. Therfore ſhe wente in, and fel at his fete, ⁊ bowed her ſelfe to the ground, ⁊ toke vp her ſonne, and wente out. Eliſa came agayne to Gilgall, and there was a dearthe in the G lande, and the children of the prophetes dwelt with hym. And he ſayd vnto his ſeruaunt: Set a greate pot on the fire, and make pottage for the children of the prophetes, and one wente out into the felde, to gather herbes, and founde (as it were) a wylde vyne, and gathered thereof wylde Coloquintidas his lappe full, and came and ſhred them into the potte of pottage: for they knew it not. So they poured out for the men to eate. And it fortuned, that when they taſted of the pottage, they cryed oute, and ſayd: O thou man of GOD, ther is death in the pot: ⁊ they coulde not eate therof. But he ſayde: bringe mele. And he caſt it into the pot, and ſayde: Fyl for the people, that they maye eate, ⁊ there was nomore harme in the potte.

There came a man from Baal Saliſa, and brought the man of GOD bred of the fyrſt frutes, euen twenty loues of barly, and newe corne, whiche was yet in hys bagges, ⁊ he ſayde: Gyue vnto yͤ people, that they maye eate. And hys minyſter anſwered: why, ſhal J ſet this before an hundred mē? He ſayd agayne: gyue it vnto the people that they maye eate. For thus ſayeth the LORD: * they Joh. ſhal eat, and there ſhalbe left ouer. And ſo he dyd ſet it before them, and they dyd eate, andleft out: accordyng to the word of the LORD.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

Naaman the Sirian is healed of his leprouſy. Gehezi is ſtryken with a leproſy, bycauſe he toke money and rayment of Naaman.

Naaman captayne of the hoſt of the king of Siria, was a great man, ⁊ honourable in the ſighte of his maſter: bycauſe that by hym the LORDE had giuen health vnto Siria.
He alſo was a myghty man, and expert in warre, but he was a lepre. And the Sirians had gone out by companyes, and had brought out of the countrye of Jſrael a lytle mayde, and ſhe was with Naamans wyfe. And ſhe ſayde vnto her ladye: J woulde to GOD my lorde were with the prophet that is in Samaria: for he would deliuer hym of his leproſie. And he went in, ⁊ tolde his lorde, ſaying: thus and thus ſayde the mayde that is of the lande of Jſraell.

And the king of Siria ſayd: Come, ⁊ entre in, and J wyl ſende a letter vnto the kinge of Jſraell: And he came, and toke with hym ten talentes of ſiluer, ⁊ vi. thouſande peces of golde, and ten chaūge of raimentes: and brought the letter of the king of Jſrael conteyning this tenour: Nowe when this letter is come vnto the, behold, J haue therwith ſent Naaman my ſeruaūt to the, yͤ thou mayeſt mayſt ryd hym of hys leproſye. And it fortuned, that when the kyng of Iſrael had red the letter, he rent hys clothes, Deu. 32. f. and ſayde: *am I GOD, that I ſhould ſlay and make alyue? For he doth ſend to me, that I ſhould deliuer a man frō his leproſie: Wherfore conſydre (I pray you) and ſe how he ſeketh a quarell againſt me. Which when Eliſa the man of GOD had hearde howe that yͭ kinge of Iſrael had rent his clothes, he ſente vnto the kinge, ſayinge: wherfore haſte thou rente thy clothes? Let hym come now to me, ⁊ he ſhall knowe, that there is a Prophet in Iſrael.

And ſo Naamā came with his horſes C and wͭ his charets, ⁊ ſtode at yͤ dore of yͤ houſe of Eliſa. And Eliſa ſent a meſſenger vnto hym, ſaying: go ⁊ waſh the in Jordan .vii. tymes, ⁊ thy fleſh ſhal come agayne to the, and thou ſhalte be clenſed.
But Naaman was wroth ⁊ wente Ioh away, and ſayde: Beholde, I thoughte with my ſelfe: he woulde ſurelye come out, and ſtande, ⁊ cal on the name of the LORDE his GOD, ⁊ put his hande on yͤ place, that he myght heale the leproſye.
Are not Abana ⁊ Parphar ryuers of Damaſco, better then al the waters of Iſrael? yf I waſh me alſo in them, ſhal I not be clenſed? And ſo he turned him, ⁊ departed with diſpleaſure. And hys ſeruauntes came, and communed with D hym, ⁊ ſaide: Father, if the Prophet had bydden the do ſome great thing, oughteſt yͧ not to haue done it? How much rather then, whē he ſayth to the: waſhe, and be cleane? Then wente he downe, ⁊ waſhed hym ſelfe .vii. tymes in Jordan, according to the ſaying of the man of GOD: and his fleſhe chaunged, lyke vnto the fleſhe of a lytle chylde, *and he Luc. 4. e. was cleanſed.

And he turned agayne to the man of GOD: he ⁊ al his cōpany, and ſtode before him, ⁊ ſayd: Beholde, I know now yͭ there is no GOD in all the world, but in Iſrael. Now therfore take a bleſſing reg. 17. a. of thy ſeruaūt. But he ſayd: *as ſurely as the LORD lyueth (before whome I ſtand) I wyl receyue none. And when the other would haue conſtrained hym to receyue it, he wold not. And Naamā ſayd: (euen as thou wilt / but I beſeche the.) ſhal ther not be giuē to thy ſeruaūt, as muche of this earth as two mules may beare? For thy ſeruaūt wil henceforthe offre neither burnt ſacrifice nor offring vnto any other god, ſaue vnto yͤ LORD.
But herein the LORD be mercyfull vnto thy ſeruaunt, yͭ when my maſter goeth into the houſe of Rimmon, ⁊ doeth E worſhip there, ⁊ leaneth on myne hand, ⁊ I alſo worſhyp in the houſe of Rimmon, (When I do worſhyp, I ſay:) in yͤ houſe of Rimmon yͤ LORD be merciful vnto thy ſeruaūt bycauſe of this thing.
Unto whome he ſayd: go in peace. And when he was departed from him as it were a forlonge of grounde, Gehezi the ſeruaunte of Eliſa the manne of GOD, ſayd: beholde, my maſter hathe ſpared Naaman thys Sirian, yͭ he would not receyue of his hand thoſe thinges, that he offred. As ſurely as the LORDE lyueth, I will run after him, ⁊ take ſomewhat F of hym. And ſo Gehezi folowed Naaman. And when Naaman ſaw him runnyng after him, he lyght downe frō the charette to mete him, and ſayde: *is 4. reg. 4. b all well? He anſwered: Al is well. Beholde, my maſter hathe ſente me, ſaying: Se, there be come to me, euen now from mounte Ephraim two yong men of the chyldren of the Prophetes: gyue them I praye the, one talent of ſyluer, ⁊ two chaunge of garmētes. And Naaman ſayde: with a good wyll. Take two talentes: and he compelled him to bynd two talentes of ſiluer in two bagges, wͭ two chaunge of garmentes, and layed them vpon two of his ſeruaūtes, to beare them before him. And whē he came into a ſecrete place, he toke them from theyr hand, and beſtowed it in the houſe, ⁊ the mē wer let go: ⁊ they departed.
But he went in, ⁊ ſtode before hys G maſter. And Eliſa ſayd vnto hī: whence commeſt thou Gehezi? He ſayd: thy ſeruaunte wente no whither. But he ſaid vnto him: went not myne hearte with the when the manne tourned agayne from his charet to mete the? Is it now a tyme to receyue, moneye to receyue garmentes, olyue trees, vyneyardes,

¶ The .vi. Chapter

Eliſeus maketh yron to ſwimme aboue the water. The Sirians beſiege Iſrael / ſo that two women agre together to eate their owne children.

A The children of ẏ prophetes ſayd vnto Eliſa: Beholde, the place where we dwell wͭ thee is to litle for vs. We will therfore go vnto Iordan, and take thence euery mã a beme, & buylde vs a place to dwell in. And he anſwered: go. And one ſayd: be content (I pray the) & come with thy ſeruaũtes. And he anſwered: I will come, & ſo he went wͭ them. And when they came to Iordã, they cut downe wood. But it fortuned, ẏ as one was felling downe of a tree, ẏ axe head fel into the water. And he cryed, & ſaid: alas maſter, it was lent me. And the man of GOD ſayd: where fel it? And he ſhewed him the place. And B he cut downe a ſtycke, & caſte it in thyther, & immediatly the yron dyd ſwym. Therefore ſayde he: take it vp. And he ſtretched out his hand, & toke it vp.

But ẏ king of Siria warred againſt Iſrael & toke couſayl with his ſeruaũtes, and ſayde: In yondre ſecrete place ſhalbe my remayning. And the man of GOD ſent vnto the kinge of Iſrael, ſayinge: Beware that thou go not ouer to ſuch a place, for there the Sirians are lurkinge. Therfore the king of Iſraell ſent to ẏ place whiche the man of GOD told him, and warned him of, and ſaued hym ſelfe from it, not ones, nor twiſe. And the hert of the king of Siria was troubled for this thinge, & he called for his ſeruauntes & ſayd vnto them: wyll ye not ſhew me which of our men (betraieth me) to the kinge of Iſrael? And one of his ſeruauntes ſaid: none my lord, O C kynge, but Eliſa the prophet that is in Iſrael telleth the king of Iſrael: yea, euen the wordes that thou ſpakeſt in thy preuy chambre. He ſayde: go, and eſpye where he is, ẏ I may ſend and fet him. And one told him, ſaying: beholde, he is in Dothaim. Therfore ſente he thyther horſes and charettes, & a mighty hooſt. And they came by nyght, and compaſſed the cytye about.

And whẽ ẏ ſeruaunt of ẏ man of GOD aroſe vp earely to go out, beholde, there was an hooſt rounde about the towne wͭ horſes & charettes. And his ſeruaũt ſayde vnto hym: Alas maſter what ſhal we do? He anſwered: feare not, for 2.par.22.b D they ẏ be with vs are mo then they ẏ be with them. And Eliſa prayed, & ſayde: LORD (I beſeche the) opẽ hys eyes, ẏ he may ſee. And ẏ LORD opened the eyes of the yong man. And beholde, ẏ mountayne was ful of horſes & charettes of fyre round about Eliſa. And whẽ they came downe to him, Eliſa prayed vnto the LORD, & ſayed: Smite this people (I pray the) with blindneſſe. And he Gen.19. ſmote them with blyndneſſe, according Sapi. to ẏ deſyre of Eliſa. And Eliſa ſaid vnto them: this is not the way, neyther is this the towne: folowe me, and I wyll bringe you to the man whome ye ſeke. But he led them to Samaria.

And it fortuned, ẏ when they were C come to Samaria, Eliſa ſayed: LORD, opẽ theyr eyes, that they maye ſe. And ẏ LORD opened theyr eyes, & they ſawe. And beholde, they were in the myddeſt of Samaria. And the kynge of Iſraell ſayd vnto Eliſa when he ſaw them: My father, ſhal I ſmyte them? And he anſwered: thou ſhalt not ſmyte them: But ſmite thoſe ẏ thou haſt takẽ with thine owne ſwearde, and with thyne owne bowe. But rather ſet bread and water before them, that they maye eate and drynke, and go to theyr maſter. And he prepared a greate refection for them. And when they had eaten & dronke, he ſent them away: and they went to their maſter. And ſo the ſouldyers of Syria came nomore into the land of Iſrael.

After this it chaunced, that Benhadad king of Siria gathered al his hoſt, and went vp, & beſieged Samaria. But there was a greate derth in Samaria: and beholde, they beſieged it, vntill an aſſes heade (was ſolde) for foure ſcore ſiluer pence: & the fourth parte of a cab of doues donge, for fyue ſicles. And as the king of Iſrael was going vpon the wal, there cryed a woman vnto hym, ſaying: helpe, my LORD O kynge. He ſaied: yf the LORD do not ſuccour the, wherwith can I helpe thee? wͭ ẏ barne or with the vynepreſſe? And the kynge ſayd vnto her: what wilt thou? She anſwered: yonder woman ſayde vnto me: bring thy ſonne, that we may eate hym to day, & we wil eate myne to morowe. *And ſo we dreſſed my ſonne, and dyd eat him. And I ſayde to her the other day: bring thy ſon that we may eat him, & ſhe hath hyd her ſonne. And it came to paſſe, ẏ when the king heard ẏ wordes of the woman, he rent his clothes, and wẽt vp on ẏ wal. And ẏ people loked, & beholde, he had a ſakcloth vnder vpon his

.reg.19.a. his fleſhe. Then he ſayde:* GOD do ſo and ſo to me, if the head of Eliſa the ſon of Saphat ſhal ſtand on him this daye. But Eliſa ſat in his houſe, and the elders ſatte by hym, and the kynge ſent a man before him. But yet the meſſenger came to him, he ſaid to the elders: haue ye not ſene how that the ſonne of this murtherer hath ſent to take away mine head: be circumſpecte when the meſſenger cōmeth, ⁊ ſhut the dore, and holde him at yͤ dore: is not yͤ ſound of his maſters feete behinde hym? Whyle he yet talked with them: beholde, the meſſenger came down vnto hym, and ſayd: behold, this euyl is of the LORDE, ⁊ what more ſhall I loke for of the LORDE?

Eliſa prophecyeth plenteouſneſſe, of vitailes and other thinges to Samaria. The Syrians runne a way/and haue no man folowing them. The lorde that wolde not beleue the worde of Eliſa is troden to deathe.

A 4.reg.7.b. THen Eliſa ſayd: heare ye yͤ worde of the LORD: thus ſaith yͤ LORD: *to morow this time ſhall a buſhell of fyne flower be ſould for a ſicle, ⁊ two buſhels of barly for a ſicle in yͤ gate of Samaria. Then a certaine lorde (on whoſe hande yͤ kinge leaned) anſwered yͤ mā of GOD, ⁊ ſaid: beholde, if yͤ LORD wold make windowes in heuē, myghte this ſayinge come to paſſe? He ſayd: behold, thou ſhalt ſe it with thine eies, but ſhalt not eat thereof.

And there were foure leperous men at the entryng in of the gate. And they ſaid one to an other: why ſit we here vntil we dye? yf we ſay we wil enter into yͤ citie: behold, the dearth is in the cytie, and we ſhall dye therin. And yf we ſyt ſtyl here, we dye alſo. Nowe therefore come, ⁊ let vs fal vpon the hooſte of the Sirians: Yf they ſaue our lyues we ſhall lyue: yf they kil vs, then are we dead. And ſo they aroſe in the nyghte, to go to the hoſt of the Sirians. And whē they wer cū to yͤ vtmoſt part of yͤ hooſt of Siria, behold, ther was nomā ther. B For the LORDE had made the hoſte of the Sirians* to heare a noyſe of charettes, and a noyſe of horſes, and the noyſe of a greate hooſte. In ſomuche that they ſayd one to another. Loe, the kinge of Iſrael hathe hyred againſt vs yͤ kinges of the Hethites, ⁊ the kīges of yͤ Egiptians to come vpō vs. Wherfore they aroſe, ⁊ fled in yͤ nighte ⁊ left their tētes, theyr horſes ⁊ theyr aſſes, and the feld which they had pitched, euen as it was, ⁊ fled for theyr lyues. And when theſe lepers came to yͤ edge of yͤ hooſte, they went into a tent, ⁊ did eat ⁊ drinke, ⁊ caried thence ſiluer ⁊ golde, and rayment, and went ⁊ hid it, came agayne, ⁊ entred into an other tent, and caryed thence alſo, and went ⁊ hyd it.

Mac 5.b. Esa.13.a

Then ſayde one to an other: We do not well this day, foraſmuche as it is a day to bring good tydinges, ⁊ we holde our peace. yf we tary til the day lyght, ſome miſchefe wyl come vpon vs. Now therfore come, that we may go, ⁊ tel the kinges houſhold. And ſo they came, and called vnto the porter of the cytie, and tolde them, ſayinge: we came to the pauylions of the Syrians: and ſe, there was noman there, neither voyce of mā, but horſes and aſſes tyed: ⁊ the tentes were euen as they were wont to be. C

And ſo the man called vnto yͤ porters, ⁊ they told the kinges houſe within. And yͤ kinge aroſe in the night, and ſayd vnto his ſeruauntes: I will ſhewe you now, what the Siryans haue done vnto vs. They know yͤ we be hungry, ⁊ therfore are they gone oute of the pauilions, to hyde them ſelues in the felde, ſaying: when they come oute of yͤ cytye, we ſhal catche them alyue, ⁊ get into yͤ citye. And one of his ſeruaūtes anſwered, ⁊ ſayd: Let men take (I praye you) fyue of the horſes that remaine, and are left in the multitude. Beholde, they are euen as al the multitude of Iſrael that are left in the cytie: beholde (I ſay) they are euen as the multitude of the Iſraelites that are conſumed, and we wyll ſende, ⁊ ſe. They toke therfore the horſes of two charettes, and the king ſent after the hoſt of the Sirians, ſaying: go, and ſe. And they went after them, euen vnto Jordan, and lo, al yͤ way was ful of clothes and veſſels which the Syrians had caſt from them in theyr haſte. D

And the meſſengers returned, ⁊ told yͤ king. And the people went oute, and ſpoiled yͤ tentes of the Sirians. And ſo it came to paſſe, yͤ a buſhel of fyne floure was ſolde for a ſicle, and two buſhels of barly for a ſicle* according to yͤ worde of the LORD. And the king appoynted the lord (on whoſe hande he leaned) to be at yͤ gate. And yͤ people trod vpō him in yͤ gate, ⁊ he died: according to yͤ word 3.reg.7.a.

of the man of GOD, which he ſayd, whẽ the kinge came downe to him. And ſo came the thing to paſſe, that the man of GOD had ſpoken to the kinge, ſayinge: two buſhels of barlye for a ſycle: and a buſhel of fyne floure for another, ſhalbe 4.reg.7.a. *tomorowe this time in yͤ gate of Samaria.
Where vnto that lord anſwered yͤ man of GOD, and ſayde: yea, and yf yͤ LORD made windowes i heauẽ, might it come to paſſe? And he ſayde: Behold, thou ſhalt ſe it with thine eyes, ⁊ ſhalte not eate therof. And euen ſo chaunced it vnto him: for the people trode vpon him in the gate, and he dyed.

¶The.viii.Chapter

Eliſa prophecyeth vnto the Sunamite the dearth of ſeuen yere. After the death of Benhadad raygneth Azael in Siria. Iehoram the ſonne of Iehoſaphat raigneth in Iuda, Edom falleth from Iuda. Ohoziah ſucccedeth Iehoram.

A THen ſpake* Eliſa vnto yͤ womã, (whoſe ſonne he had reſtored to 4.reg.4.e. life againe) ſaying: vp, ⁊ go, thou, ⁊ thine houſe, ⁊ ſoiourne whereſoeuer yͧ canſt, for the LORDE hath called for a derth, ⁊ the ſame ſhal come vpon yͤ land ſeuen yeres. And the woman aroſe, and did after the ſaying of the man of GOD, and wẽt both ſhe and her houſeholde, ⁊ ſoiourned in the land of the Philiſtines ſeuen yere. And at the ſeuen yeres end, it fortuned, that yͤ woman came agayn out of yͤ land of the Philiſtines, ⁊ went out to cal vpon the kynge for her houſe B ⁊ for her lande. And the king talked wͭ Gehezi yͤ ſeruaũt of yͤ mã of GOD, ſaying: tel me (I pray the) al yͤ great dedes that Eliſa hath done. He told the king, how he had reſtored a dead man to life againe: but in the meane tyme the woman (whoſe childe he had rayſed vp againe) cryed to the kyng for her houſe and for her lande. And Gehezi ſayde: My lorde O kinge, this is the woman, and this is her ſonne whom Eliſa raiſed vp againe. And whẽ the king aſked the woman, ſhe tolde hym. And ſo the king deliuered her a chambrelaine ſayinge: reſtore thou vnto her, all that are hers: ⁊ al the frutes of the felde ſyns the day yͭ ſhe left the lande, vntyl this time.
C And* Eliſa came to Damaſcon, and 3.reg.9.c. Benhadad the king of Syria was ſick.
And one told him, ſayinge: The man of GOD is come hither. And the king ſaid 3.reg.14.c. vnto Azahel: *take a preſent in thyne hande, and go mete the man of GOD, yͭ thou maiſt aſke the LORD by him, whether I ſhal recouer of this diſeaſe. And ſo Hazael went to mete him, and toke yͤ preſent with him, and of euerye good thinge of Damaſcon, euen as much as fourty camelles could beare, and came and preſented him ſelfe before him, and ſayde: Thy ſonne Benhadad kynge of Syria hath ſent me to the, ſaying: ſhall I recouer of this diſeaſe?
And Eliſa ſayd to hym: goo, and ſaye vnto hym: thou ſhalt recouer, howbeit, the LORD hath ſhewed me, that he ſhal ſurelye dye. And he loked aſyde, ⁊ was D aſhamed, and the man of GOD wepte.
And Azael ſayd: why wepeth my lorde?
He anſwered: for I know the euil thinges that thou ſhalt do vnto the chyldrẽ of Iſrael: for theyr ſtrong cytyes ſhalte thou ſet on fyre, ⁊ theyr yong men ſhalt thou ſlaye with the ſwerde, and ſhalte daſhe out the braynes of theyr ſucking chyldren, and all to teare theyr women with chylde.
But Hazael ſaid: what is thy ſeruaũt a dog yͭ I ſhould do this great thinge?
And Eliſa anſwered: the LORDE hathe ſhewed me, yͭ thau ſhalt be king of Syria.
And ſo he departed from Eliſa and came to hys maſter, which ſayd to him: what ſayde Eliſa to the? He anſwered, he tolde me yͭ thou ſhouldeſt recouer.
And on the morowe it fortuned, that he tooke a thycke cloth, and dipte it in water, and ſprede it on his face, and he dyed:
and Hazael raigned in his ſtede.
The fyfth yeare of Iehoram yͤ ſonne of Ahab kynge of Iſraell, Iehoſaphat being alſo kinge of Iuda, Iehoram the ſon of Iehoſaphat king of Iuda began to raigne*. xxxii. yere olde was he, whẽ he began to raigne: ⁊ he raigned eyght yere in Ieruſalem. And he walked in the wayes of the kinges of Iſraell, as they yͭ were of the houſe of Ahab, for yͤ doughter of Ahab was his wife, ⁊ he did euil in the ſight of the LORD. And yͤ LORD would not deſtroye Iuda: and that bycauſe of Dauid hys ſeruaunte *as he promyſed him to gyue hym alway a light amonges hys chyldren.
*In thoſe dayes Edom did wickedlye when he was vnder the hand of Iuda.
For they made thẽ a king of theyr own.
So Iehorã wẽt to zair, he ⁊ al his charettes with him. And he aroſe by night, and ſmote the Edomites whiche compaſſed him in with the captaynes of his charrettes, and the people fled into their tentes. But Edom rebelled, ſo that he woulde not be vnder the hande of Iuda vnto this daye. And then Lobnah began to be diſobedient euen that ſame tyme.

F The reſt of the wordes that concerne Ioram, and all that he did, are they not written in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda? And Ioram reſted with hys fathers, and was buryed beſyde his fathers in the citie of Dauid. 2.par.22.a And * Ahaziahu his ſonne raygned in his ſtede. In the .xii. yere of Iorã the ſon of Ahab kynge of Iſrael, did Ahaziahu the ſon of Iehorã kynge of Iuda begyn to raygne. Two & twenty yere old was Ahaziahu whẽ he began to raygne, & he raigned one yere in Ieruſalẽ, & his mothers name was Athaliahu yͤ doughter of Omry king of Iſrael. But he walked in the way of the houſe of Ahab, and did euyl in the ſight of the LORDE, euen as dyd the houſe of Ahab. For he was yͤ ſon in lawe of the houſe of Ahab.

G And he wente with Ioram the ſon of Ahab to war agaynſte Hazael kynge of Siria in Ramoth Gilead, & the Siriãs woũded Iorã. And * kyng Ioram went 4.reg.9.c. backe agayne to be healed in Iezrael of the woũdes which yͤ Siriãs had gyuen him at Ramoth when he fought againſt Hazael kynge of Siria. And Ahaziahu the ſonne of Iehorã kynge of Iuda wẽt downe to ſee Ioram the ſonne of Ahab in Iezrael, bicauſe he was ſycke there.

¶ The .ix. Chapter.

¶ Iehu is made king of Iſrael, and kylleth Iehorã the king thereof, & Ahaziahu: otherwiſe called Ochozias the kyng of Iuda alſo / and cauſeth Iezabel to be caſt down out of a wyndow / and the dogges eate her.

A 4.Reg.4.e AND Eliſa the prophet called one of the children of yͤ prophetes, & ſayde vnto him: * girde vp thy loines and take this boxe of oyle in thy hand, & get the to Ramoth in Gilead. And whẽ thou cõmeſt thyther, loke where is Iehu yͤ ſon of Iehoſaphat, the ſonne of Nimſi, & goe to him, & make him ariſe vp from amõge his brethren, and carye him to a ſecrete chambre. Then take the boxe of oile, and poure it on his heade, and ſay: thus ſayeth the LORDE: I haue annoynted thee to be kynge ouer Iſrael. And then open the dore, and flye without any taryinge.

And ſo the ſeruaunt of the prophete gat him to Ramoth Gilead, & when he came in, beholde, the captaynes of the hooſte were ſyttinge together. And he ſayde: I haue an errande to the, O captaine. And Iehu ſaid: vnto which of al vs? He ſaid: to the, O captaine. And he aroſe, & went into the houſe.

B And he poured the oyle on his heade, & ſayde vnto him: thus ſaieth the LORD GOD of Iſrael: 3.Reg.1 * I haue annoynted the to be kinge ouer the people of yͤ LORDE, euen ouer Iſraell. Thou ſhalt ſmyte the houſe of Ahab thy mayſter, that I maye auenge the bloud of my ſeruauntes the prophetes, and the bloud of the ſeruauntes of the LORDE, of the hande of Iezabell, for the whole houſe of Ahab ſhalbe 3.reg.21. deſtroyed: & * I wyll deſtroye frõ Ahab, euẽ him yͤ maketh water agaiſt the wal, & hym that is pryſoned and forſaken in Iſraell: and I wyll make the houſe of Ahab lyke the houſe of Ieroboam the ſonne of Nebat, & lyke the houſe of Baſa the ſonne of Ahia. And as for Iezabell, 4.Re.19. * the dogges ſhall eate her in the felde of Iezrael, and there ſhalbe none to burie her. And he opened the dore, and fledde.

C Iehu came oute to the ſeruauntes of his lorde, & one ſayd vnto him: is al well? wherfore came this mad felowe to the? And he ſayde vnto them: ye knowe what maner of mã it is, & what his communicacion is. They ſayde vnto hym againe: is it not ſo, tell vs? He ſaide: thus & thus ſpake he to me, ſayinge: Thus ſayeth the LORD: I haue annoynted the to be king ouer Iſrael. Then they beſyde the horologye haſted, & toke euery man his garment, and put it vnder him, & blewe with trumpettes, ſaying: Iehu is kynge. And ſo Iehu the ſonne of Iehoſaphat yͤ ſon of Nimſi, conſpired agaynſt Ioram. Ioram kept Ramoth Gilead, he and al Iſrael bycauſe of Hazael kynge of Siria: 4.Re.8.g and * kynge Ioram returned to be healed in Iezrael of the woundes whiche yͤ Sirians had giuen him, when he fought with Azael kyng of Siria.

D And Iehu sayd: yf it be your myndes, then let no man departe & eſcape oute of the citie, to go & tell in Iezrael. So Iehu gat vp into a charet, & wente to Iezrahel where Ioram laye, and Ahaziahu kynge of Iuda was come down thither to ſe Ioram. And the watcheman that ſtodde on the towre in Jezrael, ſpied the companie of Jehu as he came, and ſaid: I ſe a companie? And Jehorã ſaide: take a horſeman and ſende to mete them, yͭ he maye aſke whether it be peace. And ſo there wente one on horſbacke to mete him, ⁊ ſaid: thus ſaith yͤ king: is it peace? and Jehu ſaide: what haſt thou to doe with peace? turne thee behynde me. And the watchman tolde, ſaying: the meſſenger came to them, but he commeth not E againe.

Then he ſente oute an other on horſe backe, whiche came to them, and ſayde: thus ſayeth the kynge: is it peace? Jehu anſwered: what haſte yͧ to do wͭ peace? turne the behynd me. And the watchmã told, ſaying: he came to them alſo ⁊ commeth not agayn, ⁊ the driuing is like the dryuing of Jehu the ſonne of Nimſi: for he dryueth the charret as he were mad. And Jehoram ſaid: make ready, and the charet was made ready. And Jehoram kyng of Iſrael ⁊ Ahaziahu kyng of Juda wẽt out eyther of them in his charet, againſt Jehu, ⁊ mette him in the forlõg of Naboth the Jezraelite. And it fortuned that when Jehoram ſawe Jehu: he ſayde: is it peace Jehu? He anſwered. What peace ſhould there be, ſo longe as the whoredomes of thy mother Jezabel, ⁊ her witchcraftes are ſo great? And Jehoram turned his handes, and fled, and ſaide to Ahaziahu: there is falſhed, O Ahaziahu. And Jehu toke a bowe in his handes, and ſmote Jehoram betwene yͤ F armes, and the arowe went thorow his hert. And he fell downe flat in his charet. Then ſaide Jehu to Bydkar a captayne: take him and caſt him in the plot of groũd of Naboth the Jezraelite. For I remembre that when I ⁊ thou rode togither in a charet after Ahab his father, yͤ LORDE layed this heuy burthen vpon him. I haue ſene yeſterday yͤ blood of Naboth, ⁊ the bloud of his ſons, ſayde the LORDE: ⁊ I wyl quyte it the in this ground: ſaith the LORD. Now therefore take him ⁊ caſt him in the plot of groũd, accordyng to the worde of the LORDE. But when Ahaziahu the kyng of Juda ſawe this, he fled by the way of the garden houſe. And Jehu folowed after him, and ſayd: ſmyte him alſo in the charret: (and they ſmote him) in his charet at the goyng vp to Gur by Jibleam, and he fled to Magiddo, and there dyed. And hys ſeruauntes caried him in a charrette to Jeruſalem, and buried him there in his ſepulchre wͭ his fathers, in the cytie of Dauid. And in the .xi. yere of Joram the ſonne of Ahab, beganne Ahaziahu to raygne ouer Juda. And when Jehu was come to Jezrael, Jezabel heard of it, and ſtarched her face, and tyred her head, and loked out at a wyndow. And as Jehu entred at the gate, ſhe ſaid: had Zimri peace whiche ſlewe his maiſter? And he lyft vp his eyes to the wyndowe, G and ſayde: who is of my ſyde, who? And there loked out to him two or three chãberlaynes, ⁊ he ſayd: throwe her down. So they threwe her downe, ⁊ her bloud daſhed towarde the wall, ⁊ towarde the horſes, ⁊ he trode her vnderfote.

And when he was come in, he did eate and drynk, ⁊ ſaid: go ⁊ viſite I pray you, yonder curſed creature, ⁊ bury her: *for ſhe is a kynges doughter. And ſo when they came to burye her, they founde no more of her then the ſkull ⁊ the fete: ⁊ the palmes of her handes. Wherefore they came againe and tolde him. And he ſaid: this is the worde of the LORDE, which he ſpake by the hand of his ſeruaunt Elia the Theſbite, ſaying: *in the felde of Jezraell ſhall dogges eate the fleſhe of Jezabell. And ſo the carkas of Jezabell was euen as dunge vpon the earth in yͤ felde of Jezrael: ſo that no man myghte ſaye: This was Jezabel.

The .x. Chapter.

Jehu cauſeth the .lxx. ſonnes of Ahab to be ſlaine, and after that .xlii. of his brethren. He fyndeth a meane alſo to kyll all the prieſtes of Baal. After his death / his ſonne raygneth in his ſtede AHab had *lxx. ſonnes in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters, and ſente to Samaria vnto yͤ rulers of Jezrael, to the elders, and to thẽ yͭ brought vp Ahabs children, ſayinge: Nowe whẽ this letter commeth to you, ye that haue with you your maiſters ſonnes, ye haue with you both charrettes and horſes: a ſtronge cytie haue ye alſo, and harneſſe, loke whiche of youre maſters ſonnes is beſt, and moſt mete, ⁊ ſet him on his fathers ſeat, ⁊ fight for your lordes houſe. But they were excedyngly afrayde, and ſayde: ſee, two kynges were not able to ſtande before him, howe ſhal we then be able to ſtand? And he yͭ was gouernour of Ahabs houſe, ⁊ he yͭ ruled the cytie, yͤ elders alſo, and the tutours ſent to Jehu hu, ſaying: We are thy ſeruauntes, and wyll do all that thou ſhalt byd vs: we wyll make no man kynge, therfore do thou what ſemeth good in thyne eyes.

B Then he wrote another letter to them, ſaying: yf ye be myne, & wyl herken vnto my voyce, thē take the heades of the men that are your maſters ſonnes, and come to me to Iezrael by to morowe this time. And the kinges ſonnes were lxx. perſons, and they were wt the great men of the citie, whiche broughte them vp, & when the letter came to thē: they toke the kinges children, & ſlewe them, euen. lxx. perſons, & laid their heades in baſkettes, and ſente them vnto hym to Iezrael. And there came a meſſenger & tolde him, ſayinge: they haue broughte the heades of the kynges ſons. And he ſaid: let thē lay thē on. ii. heapes in ẏ entryng in of the gate, vntyl ẏ morninge.

C And when it was day he went out, & ſtode, & ſaid to al the folke: ye be rightuous. Beholde, I conſpired againſte my maſter, & ſlue hī. But who ſlue al theſe? Learne here, that there ſhall fall vnto the earth nothing of ẏ word of ẏ LORD whiche he ſpake concerning ẏ houſe of Ahab. For ẏ LORDE hath broughte to paſſe the thinges ẏ he ſpake by ẏ hande of his ſeruaūt *Elia. reg. 21. f And ſo Iehu ſlue all ẏ remayned of the houſe of Ahab in Iezrael, & al that were great wt him, & his kynsfolkes & prieſtes, ſo ẏ he let nothig of him remaine. And he aroſe & departed, & came to Samaria. And when Iehu was in the way to ẏ houſe where ẏ ſhepherdes did ſhere their ſhepe, he met wt the brethren of Ahaziahu king of Iuda, & ſaid: what are ye? They anſwered: ẏ brethren of Ahaziahu are we, & go downe to ſalute ẏ children of the king & of ẏ quene. And he ſaid: take thē alyue. Whom when they had taken thē aliue, they ſlewe them at the wel which was beſyde the houſe where the ſhepe are ſhoren, euen. xlii. men, neyther lefte he any of them.

D And when he was departed thence, ere. 35. 8. he met wt Iehonadab the ſon of *Rechab cōming agaīſt him. And he bleſſed him, & ſayd to him: is thine hert righte, as my hert is true wt thyne? And Iehonadab anſwered: yea ẏ it is, (if it be, saieth he then giue me thine hand. And when he had gyuen hym hys hande, he toke him vp to him in the charet, & ſaid: come with me, and ſe ẏ zeale that I haue for the LORDE: and ſo they made him ryde in his charet. And whē he came to Samaria, he ſlue all that remayned vnto Ahab in Samaria, tyll he had wypte him out, accordyng to the ſaying of the LORDE whiche he ſpake to Elia. And Iehu gathered all ẏ people together, & ſaid vnto thē: *Ahab ſerued Baal a lytle: but Iehu ſhal ſerue him more. 2. Re. 16. g. Now therfore call vnto me al ẏ prophetes of Baal, al ſuch as ſerue him, and all hys prieſtes, & let none be lackynge. For I haue a great ſacrifice to do to Baal: & therfore whoſoeuer is myſſed, he ſhall not lyue. But Iehu did it for a ſubtyltie, to thintent ẏ he might deſtroy ẏ ſeruātes of Baal. And Iehu ſayd: proclaime an holy conuocaciō for Baal, & Iehu ſēt vnto al Iſrael. E And al ẏ ſeruaūtes of Baal came, ẏ there was not a mā left behynde ẏ came not. And they came into ẏ houſe of Baal, & ẏ houſe of Baal was full from one ende to another.

And he ſayde to him that was ẏ keper of the veſtrye: brynge forth garmētes for all the ſeruauntes of Baal. And he brought them oute garmentes. And when Iehu went with Iehonadab the ſon of Rechab into the houſe of Baal, he ſayde vnto the ſeruauntes of Baal: ſearche and loke, that there be here wt you none of the ſeruauntes of ẏ LORD, but the ſeruauntes of Baal onely. And when they wente in to offre ſacrifice & burntoffrynge, Iehu appoynted eightie men without, and ſayd: yf any of the mē whom I haue brought vnder your handes, eſcape, he that letteth him go, ſhall dye for him.

F And it fortuned ẏ aſſone as he hadde made an ende of offeryng the burnt ſacrifice, Iehu ſaide to the men of warre, and to the captaines: go in and ſley thē, let none come oute. And they ſmote thē wt the edge of the ſwearde. And the mē of warre and the captaines caſt them out, and wēt vnto ẏ citie of ẏ temple of Baal, & ſet the ymages out of ẏ tēple of Baal, & burnte thē. And they brake ẏ image of Baal, & brake ẏ houſe of Baal, & made a draft houſe of it vnto this daye. And ſo Iehu deſtroyed Baal out of Iſrael. But frō the ſynnes of Ieroboam the ſonne of Nebat, whiche made Iſrael to ſynne, Iehu departed not, nether frō folowing of thē (neither forsoke he) the golden calues that were in Bethel and in Dan.

And ŷ LORD ſayd vnto Iehu: bicauſe ŷ haſt done right wel in bringig to paſſe the thing ŷ is right in myne eyes, ⁊ haſt done vnto the houſe of Ahab according to al thinges ŷ are in myne hert, therefore ſhall *thy children vnto the fourth generacion ſit on the ſeate of Iſraell. But Iehu cared not for this, to walke in ŷ law of ŷ LORD GOD of Iſraell wͭ al his herte, for he departed not frō the ſynnes of Ieroboam, whiche made Iſrael to ſynne.

4.reg.8.c.

In thoſe dayes ŷ LORDE began to cut Iſrael ſhort: *⁊ Hazael ſmote them in all the coaſtes of Iſrael, frō Iordan Eaſtwarde, euen al ŷ land of Gilead, ŷ Gadites, ŷ Rubenites, ⁊ them ŷ wer of Manaſſes, from Aroer vnto the ryuer Arnon: euen Gilead ⁊ Baſan. The reſt of the wordes that concerne Iehu, and al that he did, ⁊ all his power, are they not written in the booke of ŷ Chronicles of the kynges of Iſrael: And Iehu ſlept with his fathers, and they buried him in Samaria, and Iehoahaz hys ſon raygned in his ſtede. And the tyme that Iehu raigned vpon Iſrael in Samaria, is.xxviii. yeres.

¶ The.xi. Chapter.

¶ Athalia putteth to death al the kinges ſonnes except Iehoaz the ſon of Ohoziah. Which is hidden/and after her death is made kynge.

AND Athalia the mother of Ahaziahu when ſhe ſawe ŷ her ſonne was deade, ſhe aroſe, and deſtroyed all the kynges ſeede. But Iehoſaba the doughter of kynge Ioram, ⁊ ſyſter to Ahaziahu toke Ioaz the ſon of Ahaziahu, ⁊ ſtale him frō amōge ŷ kinges ſons ŷ were ſlayne, ⁊ his nource wͭ him, out of a ſleping chābre, ⁊ hid him frō Athalia, ŷ he was not ſlaine. *And when Athalia heard the noyſe of the runnynge of the people, ſhe came to the people into the Temple of the LORDE. And when ſhe loked, beholde: the kyng ſtode by a piller, as the maner was, and the ſyngers and the trōpeters by the kyng, and all ŷ people of the lande reioyſed, and blew with trōpets. And Athalia rente her clothes, ⁊ cried, treaſō, treaſon. But Iehoiada ŷ prieſte cōmaūded ŷ captaines of ŷ hūdredes ŷ had ŷ rule of ŷ hooſt, ⁊ ſayd vnto them: haue her out without ŷ temple, that ſhe maye be within the ranges, ⁊ if any folow her, kyl him with ŷ ſwerde: for the prieſt had ſaid: ſhe may not be ſlayne in the houſe of ŷ LORDE. And they layed hādes on her tyll ſhe came into ŷ waye, by the which the horſes wente into the kinges palace, ⁊ there was ſhe ſlayne.

*And Iehoiada made a bond betwene the LORDE and ŷ king, and the people, that they ſhould be ŷ LORDES people: ⁊ alſo betwene the kynge and ŷ people. And al ŷ people of ŷ lande wēt into the houſe of Baal, and deſtroyed it, his hilalters alſo, and his ymages brake they downe luſtelye, & ſlue Mathan yͤ prieſt of Baal before yͤ alters. And the prieſte ſet a watche ouer the houſe of yͤ LORD: and toke the rulers ouer hundredes, yͤ captaines, & them of the garde, and al the people of the lãd. And they brought yͤ kynge frõ the houſe of yͤ LORD: and came by the waye of the gate of thẽ of the garde to the kynges palace. And he ſat him down on the ſeat of the kinges. And al the people of the lãde reioyſed, and yͤ cytye was in quiet. And they ſlue Athalia with the ſwearde beſyde the kynges palace. Seuen yere olde was Jehoas when he began to raygne.

¶Jehoas maketh prouiſion for the repayringe of the temple / he is killed by two of his ſeruauntes / & Amaziahu raigneth in his ſteade.

A And he began to raigne in the .vii. yere of Jehu. xl. yeare raygned he in Jeruſalẽ, & hys mothers name was Zebiah of Beerſeba. And he dyd yͤ which was good in yͤ ſyght of yͤ LORD, as long as Jehoiada yͤ prieſt enformed him. But the hylaulters were not takẽ away, for the people offred & burnt incenſe yet vpon yͤ hilaulters. And Jehoas ſayd to the prieſtes: all the ſyluer of dedicate thinges that be broughte to yͤ houſe of the LORDE in curraũt money, that is to ſay, the money that euery mã is ſet at, & al the money yͤ euery man wͭ a willing hert giueth & bringeth into yͤ houſe of yͤ LORD: let yͤ prieſtes take it to them, euery mã of his acquaintaũce: to repaire the broken places of yͤ houſe, whereſoeuer any decay is foũd. And ſo it came to paſſe, yͤ vnto the .xxiii. yere of kyng Jehoas, the prieſtes had mended nothyng that was decayed in the temple. Thẽ king Jehoas called for Jehoiada B the biſhop: & the prieſtes, & ſaid vnto them: why repayre ye not the broken places of the temple? Now therfore: ſee that ye receyue no more money of your acquaintaũce, except ye deliuer it to repayre the temple withal. And the prieſtes conſented to receyue no more money of the people: except to repayre the decayed places of the temple.

But Jehoiada yͤ prieſt toke a cheſt & bored an hole in the lyd of it, & ſet it beſyde the altar on yͤ right ſide, as euerye man cõmeth into yͤ temple of yͤ LORD. And the prieſtes that kept the veſſels, put therin al the money yͤ was brought into the houſe of the LORD. And it fortuned yͤ when they ſaw ther was much money in the cheſt, *the kinges ſcribe & 4.reg.22.a C the hie prieſt came vp, and told the money that was founde in the houſe of the LORDE, & put it into a bagge. And they gaue the money ſealed into yͤ handes of them yͤ executed yͤ worke, and yͤ had the ouerſight of the houſe of the LORD: and they brought it oute to yͤ carpenters & builders (yͤ wrought vpõ yͤ houſe of the LORD) & to maſons & hewers of ſtone. And they boughte tymber & freſtone, to repayre the decaye in the houſe of the LORDE, & to al yͤ went out to mend the temple: howe be it there was not made for the houſe of the LORDE, bowles of ſyluer: inſtrumentes of muſicke, baſõs, trõpets: or ani veſſels of gold, or veſſels of ſiluer, of yͤ money that was brought into yͤ houſe of yͤ LORD. But they gaue that to yͤ workemẽ, and repayred therwith the houſe of yͤ LORD. Moreouer, they rekened not wͭ the mẽ, into whoſe hãdes they deliuered yͤ money to be beſtowed on workmen: for they did their buſines faythfullye. Howbeit treſpaſſe money, & ſin money was not broughte into the houſe of the LORD, for it was the prieſtes.

D Then came Hazael kynge of Syria vp, and fought agaynſt Geth, and toke it, & Hazaell ſet his face to go vp to Jeruſalem. And Jehoas kynge of Juda toke al the halowed thinges yͤ Jehoſaphat, Jehoram, & Haziahu his fathers, kynges of Juda, had dedicate, & that he hymſelfe had dedicated, & al the golde yͤ was founde in the treaſures of yͤ houſe of the LORD: & in the kinges houſe, and ſent it to Hazael kyng of Syria, & ſo he departed from Jeruſalem.

The remnaunte of the wordes that concerne Jehoas, & al yͤ he did, are they not written in yͤ boke of the chronicles of the kinges of Juda? And his owne ſeruaũtes aroſe & wrought treaſon, & ſlue Jehoas in the houſe of Millo, whẽ he came down to Silla. Jozaber yͤ ſon of Semeath: & Jehozabad the ſonne of Somer, his ſeruauntes ſmote him, & he dyed. And they buryed him with his fathers in the citie of Dauid. And Amaziahu his ſonne raigned in his ſtede.

The.xiii. Chapter.

Jehoazah the ſonne of Jehu / is deliuered into the handes of the Sirians, and dieth. Joas his ſon raygneth in his ſteade. Eliſa dieth.

A In the .xxiii. yeare of Joas ẏ ſon of Ahaziahu kyng of Juda, Jehoahaz the ſon of Jehu began to raigne ouer Jſrael in Samaria .xvii. yere. And he wrought that which was euel in the ſyght of the LORDE, ⁊ folowed ẏ ſinnes of Jeroboã the ſon of Nebat, which made Jſrael to ſin, ⁊ departed not therfrõ. And the LORD was angry with Jſrael, ⁊ delyuered them into the hãde of Hazael king of Siria, ⁊ into ẏ hande of Benhadad the ſon of Hazael all their dayes.

B And Jehoahaz beſought ẏ LORD, ⁊ ẏ LORDE heard him. For he conſidered the trouble of Jſrael, wherwͭ the king of Siria troubled them. And ẏ LORD gaue Jſraell a delyuerer, ſo that they went out from vnder the ſubieccion of the Sirians. And ẏ children of Jſraell dwelt in their tẽts as before tyme. Neuertheleſſe they departed not from the ſynnes of the houſe of Jeroboã whiche made Jſraell ſin, but walked in them.

And there remayned an Idoles groue ſtil alſo ĩ Samaria. Nether did he leaue of the people to Jehoahaz, but fyftye horſemẽ, ten charrets, ⁊ ten. M. fotemẽ *for the king of Siria deſtroyed them, ⁊ made them lyke threſhed duſte. The reſt of the wordes that cõcerne Jehoahaz and al that he did, ⁊ his power, are they not written in the boke of ẏ Chronicles of the kinges of Jſrael? And Jehoahaz ſlepte with hys fathers, ⁊ they buried him in Samaria, ⁊ Joas his ſon raigned in his ſtede. In the .xxxvii. yere of Joas kynge of Juda, began Jehoas ẏ ſonne of Jehoahaz to raigne ouer Jſrael in Samaria .xvi. yere, and did that which is euil in the ſyght of ẏ LORDE, and departed not from al the ſynnes of Jeroboam the ſonne of Nebat (ẏ made Jſrael ſynne) for he walked therin. 4.reg 8.b.

C The remnaunt of the wordes ẏ concerne Joas ⁊ al that he dyd, ⁊ hys power wherwͭ he foughte agaynſt Amaziahu kyng of Juda: are they not written in the chronicle of ẏ boke of the kynges of Jſrael? And Joas ſlept wͭ his fathers, ⁊ Jeroboã ſat vpõ his ſeate. And Joas was buried in Samaria among the kynges of Jſrael.

D When Eliſa was fallen ſycke of hys ſyckneſſe (whereof he dyed) Joas the kynge of Jſrael came down vnto him, and wept before him, and ſaide: *O my father, my father: the charret of Jſrael, ⁊ the horſemen of the ſame. Eliſa ſayde vnto him: take bow ⁊ arrowes. And he toke vnto him bowe ⁊ arrowes. And he ſaid to the kyng of Jſrael: put thine hande vpon ẏ bowe, ⁊ he put his hande vpon it. And Eliſa put his handes vpõ the kynges handes, and ſayde: open a wyndowe eaſtwarde: ⁊ when he had opened it, Eliſa ſayde: ſhote, and he ſhot. And he ſaide: the arrowe of helth of the LORDE, ⁊ the arrowe of helth againſt Siria: for thou ſhalt ſmite Siria in Aphek, tyl thou haue made an ende of thẽ.

And he ſayde: take the arrowes: and he toke them. And he ſayde vnto ẏ kyng of Jſrael: ſmyte the ground: ⁊ he ſmote thriſe, and ceaſſed. And the man of GOD was angrye with him, and ſayde: thou ſhouldeſt haue ſmytten .v. or .vi. tymes (or ſeuen times) ⁊ then thou haddeſt ſmittẽ Siria, tyll thou haddeſt made an ende of them: where nowe thou ſhalte ſmyte Siria, but thriſe. And ſo Eliſa died, and they buried him: ⁊ the ſouldiers of the Moabites came into the lande the ſame yeare. And it chaunced as ſome of them were burying a man, ⁊ ſpyed the ſouldiers, they caſt the man into the ſepulchre of Eliſa. And when the manne was rolled downe, and touched the bodye of Eliſa, *he reuiued, and ſtode vpon his feete.

But Hazael vexed Jſrael, al the daies of Jehoahaz. And the LORD had mercy on them, ⁊ pytied them: and had reſpecte vnto thẽ becauſe of his appointment made with Abraham, Jſaac, and Jacob: ⁊ woulde not deſtroye them, nether caſt he them from him as yet. So Hazael the kinge of Siria died: ⁊ Bẽhadad his ſonne raigned in his ſteade. And Jehoas the ſon of Jehoahaz went agayne: ⁊ toke out of the hand of Benhadad the ſon of Hazael, ẏ cities which he had taken awaye oute of the hãde of Jehoahaz his father, in warre: for thre tymes dyd Joas beate hym, ⁊ reſtored the cyties vnto Jſrael againe.

¶ Azaria the kyng of Juda becommeth a leper. Of Jothã/Sallum, Menahem/Pekahia/Vſiah/Jotham/and Ahaz.

A IN the. xxvii. yeare of Jeroboam kynge of Iſrael, began Aſaria ſonne of Amazia, kynge of Juda to raygne. Syxtene yeare olde was he when he was made kyng: and he raigned. lii. yeare in Jeruſalem, ⁊ his mothers name was Jecholiahu of Jeruſalẽ. And he did that which was right in the ſight of the LORDE, according to all thinges as did his father Amaziahu: ſaue yͭ the hylalters were not put awaye: for people offred, and burned incenſe ſtyll on the hylaulters. And the B LORDE ſmote the kynge: and he was a Leu.14.a. b.c.d leper vnto the daye of his death, * and dwelte in a ſeueral houſe at lybertie, ⁊ Jothã the kinges ſonne gouerned the palace, ⁊ iudged the people of the land. The reſt of the wordes yͭ concerne Azaria ⁊ al yͭ he did: are they not written in the boke of the Chronicles of yͤ kynges of Juda? And ſo Azaria ſlept with his fathers, and they buried hym with hys fathers in the cytie of Dauid, and Jotham his ſonne raigned in his ſteade.

In the. xxxviii. yeare of Azaria king of Juda, did Zacharia the ſonne of Jeroboam raigne vpon Iſraell in Samaria. vi. monethes: and wrought that which was euel in the ſight of yͤ LORD as did his fathers: ⁊ turned not awaye from the ſinnes of Jeroboam the ſonne of Nebat, which made Iſraell to ſynne. And Sallũ the ſonne of Jabes conſpired agaynſte him, and ſmote him in the ſyght of the people, and kylled him, and C raigned in his ſtede. The reſt of yͤ wordes that concerne zacharia, beholde, they are writtẽ in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Iſraell. Theſe be alſo the wordes of the LORD, which 4.reg.10.f he ſpake vnto Jehu, ſaying: * thy ſons ſhal ſit on the ſeate of Iſrael in the. iiii. generacion after thee. And it came ſo to paſſe.

Sallum the ſonne of Jabes began to raigne in the. xxxix. yeare of Azaria kynge of Juda: and he raygned a moneth in Samaria. For Menahem the ſonne of Gadi went vp from Thirza, ⁊ came to Samaria, ⁊ ſmote Sallũ yͤ ſon of Jabes in Samaria, ⁊ ſlue hym, and raigned in his ſteade. The reſt of yͤ wordes yͭ concerne Sallum, ⁊ the treaſon whiche he conſpired, beholde: they are written in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iſrael. The ſame time Menahẽ deſtroied Thiphſah, ⁊ al that were therin, ⁊ the coaſtes thereof from tharſahi. And (becauſe they opened not D to him) he ſmote it ⁊ ript vp al their women wͭ child. The. xxxix. yere of Azaria kyng of Juda began Menahẽ yͤ ſonne of Gadi to raigne vpon Iſrael, ten yere in Samaria. And he did euyl in yͤ ſyght of yͤ LORD, ⁊ turned not awaye all his dayes from the ſinne of Jeroboam, the ſonne of Nebat, whiche made Iſrael to ſynne. And Phul the kynge of Aſſiria, came vpon yͤ lande. And Menahẽ gaue Phul a. M. talentes of ſyluer, that hys hande myght be wͭ him, ⁊ ſtablyſhe the kyngdome in his hande. And Menahẽ made a proclamacyon for yͤ money in Iſrael, yͭ al mẽ of ſubſtãce ſhould geue yͤ kinge of Aſſyria fyftie ſycles of ſyluer a pece. And ſo the king of Aſſiria turned backe againe, ⁊ taried not there in the lande. The reſt of the wordes that concerne Menahem, and al that he did: are they not written in the boke of yͤ Chronicles of the kynges of Iſraell? And Menahem ſlept with his fathers, and Pekahia his ſon did in hys ſteade ſuccede him in the kyngdome.

In the fiftyeth yere of Azaria kynge of Juda, began Pekahia yͤ ſon of Menahẽ to raigne ouer Iſraell in Samaria two yere, ⁊ did that which was euel in the ſyght of the LORDE: ⁊ left not of from yͤ ſynnes of Jeroboã yͤ ſon of Nebat, which made Iſrael ſinne. But Pekah the ſon of Remaliahu: which was a captaine of his, cõſpired againſt him, ⁊ ſmote hym in Samaria: euen in the place of the kinges houſe wͭ Argob and Aria: ⁊ with hun were fyftye men of the Gileadites: ⁊ he kylled hym, and raygned in his rowme. The reſt of the wordes that concerne Pekahia, ⁊ al that he did, behold: they are writtẽ in yͤ boke of the Chronicles of yͤ kynges of Iſraell.

In the.lii.yeare of Azaria kynge of that made Iſrael ſynne. In yͤ dayes of Pekah kinge of Iſrael,came Thiglath Peleſar king of Aſſiria, and toke Jion, Abel, Bethmaacha, Janoah, Kedes, Hazor, Gilead, Galile, ⁊ al the lande of Nephthali,⁊ caried them awaye to Aſſiria.

And Hoſea the ſonne of Ela conſpired treaſon againſt Pekah yͤ ſon of Remaliah,⁊ ſmote him, ⁊ ſlue him: and raigned in his ſteade in the.xx.yeare of Jotham the ſonne of Uziahu. The reſt

G The ſeconde yeare of Pekah the ſon of Remaliahu king of Iſrael, begã Jotham the ſonne of Uziahu king of Juda to raygne. Fyue ⁊ twenty yeare olde was he when he began to raygne: and he raygned ſyxten yeare in Jeruſalem.
Hys mothers name was Jeruſa the doughter of zadock. And he did yͭ which is ryght in the ſight of yͤ LORDE: euen accordyng to al as dyd his father Uziahu ſo dyd he. But yͤ hilaulters wer not put away:for the people offred ⁊ burnt handes of ſpoylers, vntyll he had caſte thē out of his ſight. For Iſrael deuyded themſelues from the houſe of Dauid, & made thē a kinge, euen Jeroboā ẏ ſonne of Nebat. And Jeroboam drue Iſrael awaye (that they ſhoulde not folowe the LORD) and made them ſyn a great ſyn: for ẏ children of Iſrael walked in all ẏ ſynnes of Jeroboam which he dyd, and departed not therfrom, vntyll ẏ LORD put Iſraell awaye out of hys ſyghte, as he had ſayde by all his ſeruauntes the prophetes. And ſo was Iſraell caryed awaye out of theyr own land, to Aſſyria, euen vnto this daye.

And the kinge of Aſſyria brought mē from Babylon, frō Cutha, from Aua, from Hanath, & frō Sepharuaim, and put them in the cities of Samaria, in ſtede of ẏ children of Iſraell. E And they poſſeſſed Samaria, & dwelt in ẏ cyties therof. And it fortuned, that at ẏ beginning of theyr dwellyng there, they feared not ẏ LORD. And the LORD ſent lions among them, which ſlue thē. Wherfore men ſayd to ẏ king of Aſſiria: The nacions whiche thou haſt tranſlated, & put in ẏ cities of Samaria, knowe not ẏ lawe of ẏ god of the lande, therfore he hath ſent lyons vpon thē, & behold, they ſley them: becauſe they know not ẏ maner of worſhipping of ẏ god of ẏ lande.

Then the kynge of Aſſyria commaūded, ſaying: cary thyther one or twaine of ẏ prieſtes whō ye brought thence, & let thē go & dwel there, & teach them the faſhion how to ſerue the god of the coūtrey. And thā one of the prieſtes which they had caryed thence came & dwelt in Bethel, & taught them how they ſhould feare the LORD. Howbeit, euery naciō made them goddes of theyr owne, & put thē in the houſes of ẏ hilalters, which ẏ Samarians had made euery nacion F in theyr cities, wherin they dwelt. The men of Babilō made Socoth Benoth. & the men of Cuth made Nergal: & the men of Hamath made Aſima. The Auites made Nibbaz, & Tharthak: And the Sepharuites burnte theyr chyldrē in fyre for Adramelech, & Anamelech ẏ goddes of Sepharuaim. And ſo they feared the LORD & made them prieſtes of the hilalters, which ſacrificed for thē in the houſes of ẏ hilalters. And ſo they feared the LORDE and ſerued their own gods after ẏ maner of the people whom they caried thence.

And vnto thys day they do after the olde maner, & neyther feare GOD, neyther do after theyr ordinaunces & cuſtomes, G & after the lawe & commaundement whiche the LORD cōmaunded ẏ chyldren of Jacob, *whō he called Iſrael. Gen.32. And the LORD made an apoyntment wᵗ them, & charged them, ſayinge: *feare none other gods, Judi.vi nor bow your ſelues to them, Jere.10 nor ſerue them, nor ſacrifice to thē: but feare ẏ LORD whiche brought you out of ẏ land of Egipte wᵗ great power, & a ſtretched out arme: hī feare, & to him bowe, & to him do ſacrifice. The ſtatutes, ordinaunces, lawe, & commaundement which he wrote for you, ſe that ye be diligent to do for euermore: & feare not anye other gods. And the appointment ẏ I haue made wyth you, ſe ye forget not, & feare none other gods: but the LORD your GOD ye ſhal feare, & he ſhal deliuer you out of ẏ handes of al your enemies. Howbeit they dyd not herken, but dyd after their old cuſtome. And ſo theſe nacions feared the LORDE, and ſerued theyr ymages alſo: lyke as dyd theyr chyldren, & their chyldrens children. Euen as dyd theyr fathers: ſo do they vnto this daye.

For he claue to the LORDE and departed not from hym, but kepte hys comaundementes rg.27.a kia (which was yͤ ſeuenth yeare of Hoſea, ſonne of Ela kinge of Iſrael) it fortuned, that Salmanazer kinge of Aſſiria, came vp agaynſt Samaria, and beſieged it: And after .iii. yeares, they toke it: euen in the ſixte yeare of Hezekia: yͭ is to ſay, the nynth yeare of Hoſea king of Iſrael. And Samaria was wonne. And the king of Aſſyria, dyd cary away Iſraell vnto Aſſyria, and put them in Halah and in Habor by yͤ riuer of Goſan, and in the cities of the Medes: becauſe they woulde not herken vnto the voyce of the LORDE theyr GOD: but tranſgreſſed hys appoyntment, and al that Moſes the ſeruaunt of the LORD commaunded, and would neither heare them nor do them.

And Hezekia kyng of Iuda ſente to the kinge of Aſſiria to Lachis, ſayinge: I haue offẽded: departe from me, and all that thou puttest on me, that wyll I beare. And the king of Aſſiria appointed vnto Hezekia king of Juda thre hundred talentes of ſiluer, & thyrty talentes of golde.
g.12 d. *And Hezekia gaue hym all the ſiluer that was found in yͤ houſe of yͤ LORD, & in the treaſures of the kinges houſe: At the ſame ſeaſon dyd Hezekia rent of

And the kynge of Aſſyria ſent Tharthan & Rabſaris, & Rabſake from Lachis to king Hezekia with a great hoſt, againſt Ieruſalem. And they went vp, and cam to Ieruſalem, and gat them vp, and ſtode by the condyte of the vpper poole, whiche is in the waye of the fullers felde. And when they had called to the kinge, there came out to them,

Now therfore, deliuer yͤ wardes of my lord yͤ king of Aſſiria, that ye rebel not, & I wyll delyuer the two thouſand horſes if thou be able to ſet riders vpon them: Why thynkeſt thou ſcorne at the preſence of one of the leaſt dukes of my mayſters ſeruauntes, & truſteſt to Egipt for charrettes & horſemenne? Moreouer, am I nowe come withoute the bydding of the LORD to this place, to deſtroy it: the LORDE ſaid to me: go

And Heliakim the ſonne of Helkia & Sobna, & Joab ſayde vnto Rabſake: ſpeake (I praye the) to thy ſeruauntes in the Sirians language, for we vnderſtãde it: & talke not with vs in the Iewes tonge, in the eares of thys people yͭ are on the wall. And ſo Rabſake ſtode, & cryed with a loude voyce in the Iewes language, & ſpake, ſayinge: heare the ſayinge of the great king of Aſſyria. Thus ſayeth the kinge: let not Hezekia begile you, for he ſhal not bee able to deliuer you oute of my hande: neyther let Hezekia make you to truſt in the LORDE, ſayinge: the LORD ſhal ſurelye deliuer vs: & this citie ſhall not be geuen ouer into yͤ hand of yͤ kinge of Aſſiria. Hezeki

G Hezekia, for thus ſaith ŷ kīg of Aſſiria: Deale kindlye wt me, ⁊ come out to me. And then eate euery man of his owne vine, ⁊ of his owne fygge tree, ⁊ drynke euery manne of the water of hys owne well, tyl J come, and fet you to as good a land as yours is: a lande of corne and wyne, a lande of breade and vyneyardes, C a lande of oyle, of olyue trees, ⁊ of honye: that ye may lyue ⁊ not dye. And herken not vnto Hezekia, for he begyleth you, ſayinge: the LORD ſhall delyuer vs. Esay.20.d *Hath euery one of the goddes of the nacions delyuered hys lande out of ŷ hande of the king of Aſſyria? Wher is ŷ GOD of Hamath, and of Arphad? ⁊ wher is ŷ GOD of Sepharuaim: Hena and Jua? dyd they delyuer Samaria out of mine hande? and what GOD is it amonge all the goddes of the nations, that hathe delyuered his lande out of myne hand? Shal the LORDE delyuer Jeruſalē out of myne hande?

But they that were of ŷ people held theyr peace, and anſwered hym not a worde, for the king had commaun[illegible], ſaying: anſwere him not. Thē [illegible]kim which was ŷ ſtuarde of [illegible]ehold, and Sobnah the ſcr[illegible]d Joah the ſōne of Aſaph the [illegible]order, came to Hezekia with theyr [illegible]othes rent, ⁊ tolde him the wordes [illegible] Rabſake.

The aungel of the Lorde kylleth [illegible] hundreth and foure ſcore and fyue thouſ[illegible]e men of the Aſſirians. Sennacherib is [illegible]iled of his owne ſonnes.

A SO it [illegible]me to paſſe, that when [illegible]ng Hezekia hearde it, he rent his clothes ⁊ put on ſacke: and [illegible]me into ŷ houſe of* the LORD: ⁊ ſent Esay.37.a Eliakim which was ŷ ſtuard of houſehold, ⁊ Sobna the ſcribe, and the elders of the prieſtes clothed in ſacke, to Jſay the prophet ŷ ſonne of Amoz. And they ſayde vnto hym, thus ſayeth Hezekia: thys daye is a daye of tribulacion and of rebuke, and blaſphemie. For ŷ chyldren are come to the byrthe, and ther is no ſtrength to be delyuered. Peraduēture, the LORD thy GOD wil heare al ŷ wordes of Rabſake, whome the kinge of Aſſyria his maſter hath ſent, to raile on the lyuynge GOD, and to rebuke B him with wordes which the LORD thy GOD hathe hearde. And lyfte thou vp thy prayer for the remnaunt ŷ are left.

So ŷ ſeruauntes of king Hezekia came to Jſay. And Jſay ſayd vnto them: So ſhall ye ſaye to youre maſter: Thus ſayeth the LORD: be not afrayed of ŷ wordes which thou haſte hearde, wt whych the yonge men of the kinge of Aſſyria haue rayled on me: Beholde, J wyl put him in another mynde, ⁊ he ſhall heare tidinges, ⁊ ſo returne to his owne land: *And J will bring to paſſe, that he ſhal fall vpon the ſwearde, * euen in hys owne lande. Esay.37 *2.pa.3

And Rabſakeh went backe agayne, ⁊ founde ŷ king of Aſſyria fyghtyng agaynſt Libna: for he had hearde how ŷ he was departed from Lachis. And when he hearde men ſaye of Thirhaka kynge of the blacke Mores: Behold, he is come out to fyght agaynſt the, he departed ⁊ ſent meſſēgers vnto H[illegible], ſayinge: Thus ſpeake to H[illegible]a kyng of Juda, ſayinge: [illegible]y GOD dyſceiue the in [illegible] you truſteſt, ſaying: Jeru[illegible] ſhal not be delyuered into ŷ [illegible]ande of the kinge of Aſſiria. Behol[illegible] thou haſt heard what the kin[illegible] of Aſſyria haue done to all l[illegible], how they haue vtterlye deſt[illegible]ed thē. And ſhalt thou (a lone) eſcape? Haue the goddes of the he[illegible]en delyuered them whyche myne aunceſtries haue deſtroyed: As Gozan, and Haran, Rezeph, and ŷ children of Eden which were in Bithlaſar? Where is the kinge of Hamath, and the kinge of Arphad, the king of the cytie of Sepharuaim, and of Hena and Jua.

So Hezekia receyued the letter of ŷ hande of the meſſengers, ⁊ redde it: And Hezekia wente vp into the houſe of the LORD, and layed it abrode before the LORD. And Hezekia prayed before the LORD, ⁊ ſayd: O LORD GOD of Jſrael, which dwelleſt betwene ŷ Cherubs, thou arte GOD alone ouer al the kingdomes of the earthe: thou haſte made heauē ⁊ earth: LORD b[illegible]w down thine eare, ⁊ hear. Open LORD thine eyes (J beſech the) and ſe: ⁊ heare the wordes of Senacherib which hath ſent this man to raile on ŷ lyuinge GOD. Of a truthe LORD, ŷ kinges of Aſſiria haue deſtroied nacions ⁊ theyr lādes, and haue ſet fyre on theyr goddes: For they wer no D goddes, but the worke of the handes of mā, euen of wood and ſtone. And they deſtroied thē. Now therfore, O LORD, oure GOD, J beſeche the, ſaue thou vs out of hys hande, that all ẏ kingdomes of the earthe may know, that thou onely art the LORDE GOD. And I ſay the ſonne of Amoz ſent to Hezekia, ſaying: thus ſayeth the LORD GOD of Iſrael: that which thou haſte prayed me, concernyng Sennacherib king of Aſſyria, I haue hearde it. This is therefore the worde that the LORDE hath ſayde of him: The virgine, euen the doughter of Syon, hath deſpyſed the: and laughed the to ſcorne, (O thou king of Aſſiria) the doughter of Ieruſalem hath ſhaken Againſt whome haſt thou exalted ctes.9.a thy voyce, and lyfted vp thyn eyes ſo hye? Euen againſt the holy of Iſrael.

By the hande of thy meſſengers ẏ haſt rayled on the LORD, and ſaid: with the multitude of my charettes I am come E vp to the toppes of the mountaynes, euen alonge by the ſydes of Lybanon, & I will cut downe the hye Ceder trees, and the luſtye fyrre trees therof: and wyll go into the lodgynge of his neſt: & into the wood of his plaine. I haue digged, and dronke ſtraunge waters: and with the ſteppe of my goinge, wil I dry al the water pooles that are beſieged.

Haſt thou not heard, how I haue ordeyned ſuch a thing a great whyle ago?
and haue prepared it from the begynnynge?
And ſhall I not nowe bringe it forth, that it may deſtroye, and to bring ſtronge cyties into waſte heapes of ſtones? and the inhabitours of them ſhalbe of lytel power, and faint herted, and F agaynſt me and thinkeſt thy ſelfe ſo bleſſed: this is come vp vnto myne eares, and I wil put mine hoke in thy noſtrelles, and my byt in thy lyppes, and wyll bringe the backe agayne the ſame way thou cameſt.

And this ſhalbe a ſygne vnto the (O Hezekia) ye ſhal eate thys yeare of ſuch thinges as growe of them ſelues: and ẏ nexte yeare, ſuche as come vp of thoſe that did growe of theyr owne accorde.
And the thyrd yeare ſowe ye and reape: plant vyneyardes, and eate the frutes therof. And it that is eſcaped and lefte B of ẏ doughter of Iuda, ſhall yet againe take rooting downeward, & bear fruit vpwarde. For out of Ieruſalem ſhall go a remnaunt, and a numbre that ſhal eſcape out of mounte Syon: the zele of the LORD of hooſtes ſhall brynge this thynge to paſſe.

Wherfore, thus ſayth the LORD concerninge G the king of Aſſyria: he ſhal not cũ to thys citie, nor ſhote an arow into it, nor come before it with ſhyld, nor caſt banck againſte it: but ſhall go backe agayne the waye he came: and ſhall not come into this cytie, ſaieth the LORD: For I wyll defende thys cytie to ſaue it, for myne owne ſake: and for Dauid my ſeruauntes ſake.

And ſo it came to paſſe, that the ſelfe ſame night the aungell of the LORDE went out & ſmote in the hooſt of the Aſſyrians an hũdred foure ſcore and fyue thouſande. And when the remnaunte were vp earelye in the mornynge: they ſawe they were all dead corſes. *And Tob.1.d. ſo Sennacherib kinge of Aſſyria auoyded and departed, & went againe: and dwelt at Niniue. And it fortuned that as he was in a temple worſhyppynge Niſroch his god, Adramelech & Sarezar his owne ſonnes ſmote him with the ſweard. And they eſcaped into the lande of Armenia, and Aſarhaddon his ſonne raigned in his ſteade.

The .xx. Chapter

Hezekia is ſycke and receyueth the ſigne of hys helthe. He receyueth rewardes of Berodach, and is reprehended of Iſay, bycauſe he ſhewed him the treaſure. He dyeth and Manaſſe his ſonne raigneth in his ſteade.

¶ The .xxii. Chapter.

After Ioſia heard of the boke of the law that was founde in the temple, he ſendeth to Hulda the propheteſſe for counſell.

A 2.par.34. IOſia was *eyght yeare old whē he begā to raygne, ⁊ he raigned .xxxi. yeare in Ieruſalē. His mothers name alſo was Iedida ỹ doughter of Adaia of Bozcath. He dyd that whiche is right in the ſight of ỹ LORD, and walked in all the wayes of Dauid his father: and bowed neyther to the right hande, or to the lefte.

2.par.34. *And it came to paſſe, ỹ in the .xviii. yere of the raygne of kinge Ioſia, the king ſent Saphan the ſonne of Azalia the ſonne of Meſulam the ſcrybe to the houſe of the LORDE, ſayinge: 4.reg.12. *go vp to Helkia ỹ hie prieſt: that he may ſumme ỹ ſiluer whiche is brought into ỹ houſe of the LORD, whiche the kepers of the porch haue gathered of the people, and let them delyuer it into the hand of thē that do the worke, and that haue the ouerſighte of the houſe of the LORDE, B and let them gyue it to thē that worke in the houſe of the LORD: (to repayre ỹ decayed places of the temple) euen vnto carpenters and maſons, and workers vpō the walles: and for to bie timber, and fre ſtone to repayre the temple. C And it fortuned, yͤ when the kyng had heard the wordes of the boke of yͤ law, he rente his clothes. And the kyng cõmaunded Helkia the prieſt, and Ahikã the ſonne of Saphan, ⁊ Achbor the ſon of Michaia, and Saphan the ſcrybe, and Aſahia a ſeruaunte of the kynges, Jere.11.a. ſaying: *go ye and enquire of yͤ LORD for me: and for yͤ people, and for all Juda, concerning the wordes of this boke that is founde. For great is the wrath of the LORDE that is kyndled againſt vs, because our fathers haue not herkened vnto the wordes of this boke, to do according vnto al that, which is wrytten therin for vs.

So Helkia the hie prieſt and Ahikã, Achbor ⁊ Saphan, and Aſahia wente vnto Hulda the propheteſſe, the wife of Sullam, the ſonne of Thikua, the ſonne of Harhan keper of yͤ wardrope: which propheteſſe dwelt in Jeruſalem in the houſe of the doctrine, and they communed with her. And ſhe anſwered them: thus ſaieth the LORD GOD of Jſraell: D Tell yͤ man yͤ ſent you to me, thus ſaith the LORD: beholde, J wyll brynge euil vpon this place, and on the inhabiters therof: (euen al the wordes of the boke which the kynge of Juda hath red) becauſe they haue forſaken me, and haue burnt incenſe vnto other gods, to anger me wͭ all the workes of theyr handes. My wrath alſo ſhalbe kyndled againſt this place, ⁊ ſhal not be quẽched.

But to the kynge of Juda (which ſẽt you to aſke counſell of the LORDE) ſo ſhal ye ſay, thus ſayth the LORD GOD of Jſrael, as touchyng yͤ wordes which ye haue heard: Bycauſe thyne hert dyd melte: ⁊ bycauſe thou haſt humbled thy ſelfe before me the LORDE, when thou herdeſt what J ſpake agaiſt this place, ⁊ againſt the inhabiters of yͤ ſame (how yͤ they ſhould be deſtroyed ⁊ accurſed:) and haſt rent thy clothes, and wept before me: of that alſo haue J heard, ſayeth yͤ LORD: Behold, therfore J wil receiue the vnto thy fathers, ⁊ thou ſhalte be put into thy graue in peace, ⁊ thyne eyes ſhal not ſe all the euyll, whiche J wyll bringe vpon this place. And they brought the kyng worde againe.

The.xxiii. Chapter.

¶ Joſia readeth Deuteronomy before the people. He putteth down the Jdolles / after he had kylled the prieſtes therof. He kepeth Paſſeouer. He was killed in Mageddo / ⁊ his ſon Jehoahaz raygneth in his ſteade. After he was taken, his ſonne Jehoakim was made kinge.

A AND *then the kynge ſente, ⁊ there gathered vnto him al the elders of Juda ⁊ of Jeruſalem. And yͤ king 2.par.34. went vp into yͤ houſe of the LORDE, wͭ all the men of Juda and all the inhabitours of Jeruſalem, with yͤ prieſtes ⁊ prophetes, ⁊ all the people both ſmall ⁊ great. And he red in the eares of them *al the wordes of yͤ boke of yͤ couenãt: 2.Eſdr.8. whiche was founde in the houſe of the LORD. And yͤ kynge ſtode by a pyller, *and made a couenaũt before yͤ LORD Joſ.24. yͤ they ſhould walke after the LORD, ⁊ kepe his cõmaũdemẽtes, his witneſſes, ⁊ his ſtatutes, with all their herte, and al their ſoule, ⁊ make good the wordes of the ſayde appoyntmente that were written in the forſayde boke. And all yͤ people conſented to the appoinment.

B And the kynge cõmaunded Helkia yͤ hie prieſt, and the inferiour hie prieſtes, and the kepers of the ornamentes, to brynge out of the temple of the LORD, all the veſſelles yͤ were made for Baal, for the idoles groues, and for al yͤ hoſte of heauen. And he burnt them without Jeruſalem in the feldes of Cedron, and caried the aſhes of them into Bethel. And he put downe yͤ miniſters of Baal, whõ the kynges of Juda had founded to burne incenſe in yͤ *hylaulters ⁊ cyties of Juda, yͤ were rounde about Jeruſalẽ: ⁊ alſo them yͤ burnt incenſe vnto 4.reg. Baal, to the ſunne, to the moone, to the planettes, ⁊ to al yͤ hoſt of heauen. And he brought oute the idoles groue frõ yͤ temple of yͤ LORD without Jeruſalem vnto yͤ broke Cedrõ, ⁊ burnt it there at the broke Cedrõ, ⁊ ſtampt it to pouldre, ⁊ caſt the duſt thereof vpon the graues of the childrẽ of yͤ people. And he brake downe yͤ ſelles of yͤ male ſtues yͤ were by the houſe of yͤ LORD, where yͤ womẽ woue hãgynges for yͤ idoles groue.

And he brought al the prieſtes out of the cities of Juda, and defyled the hylaulters where the prieſtes had burnte incenſe, euen frō Geba to Berſeba: and deſtroyed the aulters of the gates, that were in yͤ entring in of yͤ gate of Ioſua the gouernour of the cytie, which were (as a man goeth in) on the left hand of the gate of the citie. Neuertheleſſe the of the houſe of the LORD, by the chambre of Nathanmelech, the chambrelain, which was ruler of the ſuburbes, and burnt the charrets of yͤ ſunne with fire.

And the alters that were on the toppe of the parloure of Ahaz (whiche yͤ kinges .reg.21.a of Iuda had made) and the *alters whiche Manaſſe had made in the two courtes of the houſe of the LORDE, did the kynge breake downe, ⁊ ran thence:
and caſte the duſt of thē into the broke

AND it fortuned, that in the nynth yere of his raigne, the tenth daye of yͤ tenth moneth: Nabuchadnezar kyng of Babylon came, he and all hys hoſt againſt Jeruſalem, and pitched againſt it:⁊ made engins againſt it on euery ſide. And yͤ citie was beſieged vnto the eleuẽth yere of king Zedekia. And the.ix. daye of the monethe, there was ſo greate hunger in the citie: that there was no bread for the people of the lãd.

Ezec 3.d
and.4.a

And the citie was broken vp: and al the men of armes fledde by nyghte, by a waye thorowe a gate, whiche is betwene two walles by the kynges gardeyne: the Chaldees lyeng aboute the Cytie.

And the kynge wente the waye towarde the playne. And the ſouldiers of the Chaldees folowed after the kyng, and toke him in the playne of Jericho: and all his army were ſcattered away from him, (and left him.) So they toke the kynge, and broughte him to Nabuchadnezar the kyng of Babilon to Rybla, wher they reaſoned with him. And they ſlue the ſonnes of Zedekia before his eies:⁊ he put out yͤ eyes of zedekia, and fettered him with two chaines, and caried him to Babylon.

And the.vii. daye of the.v. moneth which is the.xix. yeare of kynge Nabuchadnezar kyng of Babylon, came Nabuſaradan a ſeruãt of the kyng of Babylon, and chiefe captaine of the men of warre, vnto Jeruſalem: and burnt the houſe of the LORD, ⁊ the kinges houſe, and al the houſes of Jeruſalem, and all great houſes burnt he with fire. And al the ſouldiars of yͤ Chaldees that were with the chiefe captaine of the men of warre, broke downe the walles of Jeruſalem rounde aboute. 1.par.1

*And the pyllers of braſſe that were in the houſe of yͤ LORD, ⁊ the ſockets, ⁊ the braſen lauatory yͭ was in the houſe of yͤ LORDE, did the Chaldees breake, and caried al the braſſe of them to Babylon. And the pottes, ſhouels, dreſſyng knyues, ſpones, ⁊ all the veſſelles of braſſe that they miniſtred in, toke they awaye. And yͤ fire pannes, ⁊ baſens, ⁊ ſuche thinges as were of gold, ⁊ of ſiluer, them toke the chyefe captayne awaye: euen two pyllers, one lauatory, ⁊ the ſockettes whiche Salomon hadde made for yͤ houſe yͤ LORD. The braſſe of all theſe veſſels was without weyghte. The heygth of the one piller was.xviii cubites, and yͤ head theron was braſſe, and thre cubytes hye, ⁊ vpon the heade was there a wrethen worke and pomegranates rounde about, all of braſſe. And of the ſame faſhyon was yͤ ſeconde pyller, with a wrethen worke.

And the chiefe captayne of the mē of warre, toke Saraia the chiefe Prieſt, ⁊ zephoniah the hieſt prieſt ſaue one, and the thre kepers of the holye thynges. And out of the citie he toke a chamberlayne, that had the ouerſyghte of yͤ men of war, ⁊.v. men of thē that were euer in the kynges preſence, whyche were founde in yͤ citye:⁊ him that was ſcrib[illegible] to yͤ captayne of yͤ hoſt, which b[illegible]ygte out the people of the lande [illegible] war, and three ſcore men of th[illegible]ople of yͤ lande, that were fo[illegible]e in the citie. The .v. Chapter.

The genealogie of Ruben and Gad: and of the A halfe trybe of Manaſſe.

THe ſōnes of Ruben the eldeſt ſōne of Jſrael: for aſmuche as he was the eldeſte, *and had defyled hys fathers bed, his byrthryght was geuen vnto the ſonnes of Joſeph the ſonne of Jſrael. Howbeit, the genealogie is not rekened after hys byrtheryght. For Juda, he preuayled aboue hys brethren, and of thys trybe came the chefe, and the byrtheryght was geuen to Joſeph. The ſonnes then of Ruben the eldeſt ſonne of Jſraell were, Henoch, Phalu, Hezrō and Charmi.
The ſonnes of Joel: Samaiah hys ſonne, cah his ſōne, Reaia his ſonne, and Baal his ſonne, Beera hys ſonne, whom Thiglath Pilneſer kynge of Aſſiria caryed awaye: for he was a great lorde amonge yͤ Rubenites. And when hys brethren in theyr kin-redes, rekened the genealogie of theyr ge-neracions: Jeiel and Zachariah were the chefe. And Baal the ſonne of Azan, the ſōne of Sema, the ſōne of Joel dwelt in Aroer: and ſo forth vnto Nebo ⁊ Baalmeon. And eaſtewarde, he inhabyted vnto the entryng B in of the wyldernes from the ryuer Euphrates, for they had much cattel in yͤ land of Gilead. And in the dayes of Saul they warred with the Hagarites, whiche were ouerthrowen into theyr hande. And they dwelt in theyr tentes thorowout al the eaſt lande of Gilgal. And the chyldren of Gad dwelt ouer againſt them in the land of Ba-ſan: euen vnto Salcha. And in Baſan Joel was the chefeſt, and Sapham the next, thē Janai and Saphat. And theyr brethren of the houſholde of theyr fathers were Michael, Meoſueſam, Seba, Jorai, Jahcan, and in her townes, ⁊ in all the Suburbes of Saron, and in theyr borders. All theſe C were rekened by kynredes in the dayes of Jotham kinge of Juda, and in the dayes of Jeroboam kynge of Jſrael. The ſonnes of Ruben and of Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manaſſe, were fyghtynge men, and able to beare ſhilde and ſwearde, and to ſhote with bowe, expercyſed in warre, euen foure and fourtye thouſande, ſeuen hundred and thre ſcore, that went out to the warre. And they foughte with the Hagarites, with Jetur, Nephis, ⁊ Nodab. And they were helped of the Lorde agaynſte them, and the Hagarites were delyuered into theyr hande, and ſo were all that were with them. For they cryed to God in the battayle, and he hearde them, becauſe they put theyr truſte in him.

And they toke of theyr cattel, and of theyr cameles fiftye thouſand, and two hundred and fyftye thouſande ſhepe, and two thouſande aſſes, and of the ſoules of menne an hundred thouſande, and there fell many wounded, becauſe the warre was of God.
And they dwelte in theyr ſtedes, vntill the D of the halfe tribe of Manaſſe, dwelt in the land, from Baſan vnto Baal Hermon, and Semir, and vnto mounte Hermon: for they were growen to a greate multitude.

And theſe were the heades of ẏ houſholdes of theyr fathers: Epher and Jeſi, Eliel and Azriel, Jeremia & Hodauia, and Jachdiel, ſtronge men and valeaunt famous menne, and heades of the houſholdes of theyr fathers.
And they tranſgreſſed agaynſte the God of theyr fathers, and went a whoring after the goddes of the people of the lande, whom God deſtroyed before them: & God ſtyrred vp the ſprite of Phul, kynge of Aſſyria.
And the ſprite of Thiglath Pilneſer, kynge of Aſſiria, and caryed them awaye: euen the Rubenites, the Gaddites, and the halfe tribe of Manaſſe, and broughte them vnto Halah, Habor, Hara: and to the riuer Goſan, vnto thys daye.

Searia, Obadia and Hanan: Theſe are the ſonnes of Azell.

The.x. Chapter.

The battayle of Saule agaynſte the Philiſtines: in whiche he dyeth and hys ſonnes alſo.

AND the Philiſtines fought agaynſte Jſrael. *And the menne of Jſrael fled A before the Philiſtines, ⁊ were ouerthrowen and wounded in mounte Gilboa.
And the philiſtines folowed, ⁊ were fearce after Saul and hys ſonnes, and the Philiſtines ſmote Jehonathā, and Abinadab, and Malchiſua, the ſonnes of Saul. And yͤ battayle went ſore agaynſte Saul, and the archers founde hym, and he was wounded of ſhoters. Then ſayde Saul to hys weaponbearer: B *draw thy ſwerde, and thruſte me thorow therwith, that theſe vncircumciſed come not and do me ſhame: but hys weaponbearer wolde not, for he feared excedyngly.
So Saul caught a ſwerde and fell vpon it. And when hys harneſbearer ſaw that Saul was dead, he fel on a ſwerd alſo, and died. And thus Saul and his thre ſonnes, and all they of hys houſe dyed together.
And when al the men of Jſrael that were in the valley ſawe howe they fled, and that Saul and hys ſonnes were dead, they forſoke theyr cyties, and ran awaye, and yͤ C Philiſtines came, and dwelt in thē. *And it fortuned, that on the morowe when the Philiſtines came (to ſtryp yͤ dead bodies) they founde Saul and hys ſonnes ouerthrowen in mounte Gilboa. And when they had ſtrypte hym, they toke hys head ⁊ hys harneſſe, and ſent them into the land of the Philiſtines rounde aboute to ſhewe them vnto theyr ydols, ⁊ to the people. And they put hys harneſſe in the houſe of theyr God, and ſet vp his head in the temple of Dagō.
And whē al they of Jabes in Gilead heard all that the Philiſtines had done to Saul, D they aroſe (al the ſtrongeſt of them) and fet awaye the body of Saul, and the bodies of hys ſonnes, ⁊ brought them to Jabes, and buryed the bones of them vnder an oke in Jabes, and faſted ſeuen dayes. So Saul dyed for hys treſpaſſe, that he treſpaſſed agaynſte the Lorde, in that he kept not the worde of the Lorde, and in that he ſoughte

and ⁊ aſked coũſayle of a woman yͭ wrought with a ſpiryte, ⁊ aſked not of the Lorde. And therfore he ſlue hym, and turned the kingdome vnto Dauid the ſonne of Iſai.

¶ The.xi. Chapter.

After the deathe of Saul, is Dauid annoynted in Hebron. The Iebuſites rebell agaynſte Dauid, frõ which he taketh ẏ towre of Siõ. His mẽ are nũbred.

A THen all Iſraell gathered them ſelues to Dauid vnto Hebron, Re.5.a *ſayinge: beholde, we bee thy bones and thy fleſh. And moreouer, in time paſt, euen when Saul was kyng, thou leddeſt Iſrael oute ⁊ in: And the Lorde thy God ſayde vnto the: thou ſhalt fede my people Iſrael, ⁊ thou ſhalte bee captayne ouer my people Iſraell.

Therfore came all the elders of Iſraell to the kyng to Hebron, and Dauid made a couenaunt with them in Hebron before the Lorde. And they annoynted Dauid Re.16.a kynge ouer Iſraell, *accordynge to the worde of the Lorde by the hande of Samuel. And Dauid and al Iſrael went to B Ieruſalem, whiche is Iebus: where as were the Iebuſites, the enhabitours of the land. And the enhabitours of Iebus ſayde to Dauid: thou commeſt not here. Neuertheleſſe, Dauid wanne the caſtell of Syon, which is called the cytie of Dauid. Re.5.b. And *Dauid ſayde: whoſoeuer ſmyteth the Iebuſytes fyrſt, ſhal be the principal captayne, and a lorde. So Ioab the ſonne of zaruia went fyrſt vp, and was made ẏ chefe captaine. And Dauid dwelt in the caſtle Sion, and therfore they called it the citie of Dauid. And he buylt the cytie on euery ſide, euen frõ Millo round about. And Ioab repayred the reſt of the cytie. And Dauid proſpered, and waxed C great. And the Lord of hoſtes was with reg.23.a hym. *Theſe are the principall menne of power whom Dauid had, and that claue to hym in hys kyngdom with all Iſrael, to make him king: according to the word of the Lorde vnto Iſraell. And thys is ẏ numbre of the myghtye men whõ Dauid had: Ioſobeam the ſonne of Hachmoni, ẏ chefe among thirtie: he lyft vp his ſpeare agaynſte thre hundred, and wounded thẽ at one time. After hym was Eleazar his vncles ſõne an Ahothite, which was one of the thre myghtieſt. He was wᵗ Dauid at Paſdãmin, and there the Philiſtines were gathered together to battaile. And there was there a parcel of ground ful of barly, ⁊ the people fled before the Philiſtines. And they (the iii. aforeſayd) ſtepte forthe into the middeſt of the fielde, ⁊ ſaued it from burning, and ſlue the Philiſtines. And the Lord gaue a greate victory. And the thre of the thirtye chefe cap- D taynes went to a rocke to Dauid, into ẏ caue Adullã. And the hoſte of the Philiſtines abode in ẏ valey of Rephaim. And whẽ Dauid was in the hold, the Philiſtines watche was at Bethlehẽ the ſame 2.Re.23.b tyme. And Dauid longed, ⁊ ſayde: *Oh, that one wold geue me drinke of the water of the well that is at ẏ gate at Bethlehem. And the thre brake thorowe the hooſte of the Philiſtines, and drue water oute of the well that was by the gate at Bethlehẽ, and toke it and broughte it to Dauid. Neuertheleſſe, Dauid would not drinke of it, but rather offered it to the Lord, and ſayde: my God forbyd it me, yͭ I ſhould do thys thyng. Shall I drinke ẏ bloud of theſe men, that haue put theyr liues in ieopardie? (for with ẏ ieopardie of theyr lyues they brought it) therefore he wolde not drinke it: and this did theſe E thre myghtyeſt. And Abiſai the brother of Ioab, he alſo was captayne amonge thre: for he lift vp hys ſpeare agaynſt .iii. C. and wounded them, ⁊ had a name among the thre: yea, among thre he was more honourable then ẏ two, for he was theyr captayne. Howbeit he attained not vnto the (fyrſte) thre: Banaia the ſonne of Iehoiada (the ſonne of a very ſtrong mã) dyd greater actes thẽ Cabzeel: for he ſlue ii. ſtrong lyons of Moab, ⁊ went downe ⁊ ſlue a liõ in a pit in time of ſnow. And he ſlue an Egipcian, whoſe ſtature was euẽ fyue cubites longe, and in the Egipcians hãd was a ſpeare like a weauers beame. And the other went downe to hym with F a waſter, ⁊ plucked the ſpeare out of ẏ Egipcians hand, ⁊ ſlue him with his owne ſpeare. Such thinges did Banaia ẏ ſõne of Iehoiada, and had the name among ẏ thre mightieſte, and was honourable among .xxx. but attayned not vnto ẏ (firſt) iii. And Dauid made him of his coũſaile.

The other mẽ of armes were theſe: Aſahel ẏ brother of Ioab, Elhanan his vncles ſonne of Bethlehem. Sammoth the Harodite: Helez ẏ Pelonite: Ira ẏ ſonne of Ickes the Thekoite: Abieſer the Anatothite: Sibacai the Huſathite: Ilai the Ahoite: Maharai ẏ Nethophathite: Heled the ſõne of Baana, the Nethophatite: Ithai the ſonne of Ribai of Gibea, that pertaineth to the chyldren of BẽJamin. Benaia the Phirathonite: Hurai of ẏ ryuers of Gaas: Abiel ẏ Arbathite: Azmaneth the Baharumite: Elihaba ẏ Saalbonite. G The ſõnes of Halſẽ the Gezonite: Jonathan the ſõne of Sage an Haraite: Ahiham the ſõne of Sacar the Haraite: Eliphal the ſõne of Ur: Hepher the Mecherathyte: Ahia the Pelonyte: Hezro ẏ Carmelite: Naari the ſõne of Ezbai: Joell the brother of Nathan: Mibhar the ſonne of Hari: zelegam the Ammonite: Naharai a Berothyte, the bearer of the harneſſe of Joab, the ſõne of zeruia: Jra the Jithrite: ⁊ Gared a Gethrite, Uria the Hethite: and zahad the ſõne of Ahlai: Adina the ſonne of Siza a Rubenite, a capitayne of the Rubenites, ⁊ thyrtye wͭ hym. What they were that went with Dauid when he fled from Saul.

A These are they ẏ came to Dauid to zikleg while he yet kept him ſelfe cloſe, becauſe of Saule the ſonne of Cis: and they were very ſtrong helpers in battayle. They were weaponed with bowes, and coulde hurle ſtones with the ryght hande and with the lefte: ⁊ ſhote arowes out of a bowe, ⁊ were of Sauls brethrẽ, euen of BenJamin. The chefeſt were Ahiezer ⁊ Joas, the ſonnes of Simaa a Gibeonite: and Jeziel and Pelet the ſonnes of Aſmaneth: Beracah ⁊ Jehu of Anathoth. And Jſmaia a Gilbeonite a myghty man amonge thirtye, and more then the thyrtie. Jeremiah, Jehaziel, Johanan and Joſabad of Gedor, Eleuſai, Jerimoth, Bealia, Semaria, and Seaphatia ẏ Haraphites. Elcana, Jeſia, Azarael, Joezer, Joſebeam Hakorim, Joela and zebadiah, the ſonnes of Jeroam of Gedud. And of the Gadites there B ſeparated thẽ ſelues, ſome vnto Dauid into the holde of the wilderneſſe, men of might, ⁊ men apt for warre, ⁊ that could handle ſhylde ⁊ ſpeare, whoſe faces were lyke the faces of lyons, and they were as ſwyfte as the roes in ẏ mountaynes: Ezer the fyrſt, Obdia the ſecond, ⁊ Eliab ẏ thyrd, Maſmana the fourth, Jeremia ẏ fyfth, Atthai the ſyxth, Eliel the ſeuenth, Johanan the eyght, Elſabath the nynth, Jeremia the tenth, and Macboani the eleuenth. Theſe were of ẏ ſonnes of Gad, and were captaynes ouer the menne of warre, the ſmall purſued an hundred, ⁊ the greate a thouſande. Theſe are they that went ouer Jordan in the firſte moneth, whẽ he had filled ouer al his bãkes. And they put to flyght al thẽ of the valley, both toward ẏ eaſt ⁊ weſt. And there came of the childrẽ of BenJamin ⁊ Juda to the holde vnto Dauid. C And Dauid went out to mete them, and anſwered ⁊ ſayd vnto them: yf ye be come peaceably vnto me, to helpe me, myne heart ſhalbe knyt vnto you: But and yf you come to betraye me to myne aduerſaryes (ſeyng there is no wickedneſſe in myne handes) the God of our fathers loke theron, and rebuke it. And the ſpyrite came vpon Amaſai, which was the chefe among thirtie, and he ſayd: thyne are we Dauid, and on thy ſyde thou ſonne of Jſai: * Peace, peace be vnto thee, ⁊ peace be vnto thyne helpers, for thy God is thy helpe. Then Dauid receyued thẽ, ⁊ made thẽ heades of companyes of the men of warre. D And there fel ſome of Manaſſe to Dauid, whẽ he came with the Philiſtines agaynſte Saul to battayle, * but they helped them not. For ẏ lordes of the Philiſtines toke aduyſement, ⁊ ſent hym awaye agayne, ſaying: he wyll fall to hys maſter Saul, to the ieopardye of our hedes. As he wẽt to zikleg, there fel to hym of Manaſſeh: Adna, Joſadad, Jediel, Michael, Joſabad, Eliu and zilthai, heades of the thouſãdes ẏ were of Manaſſe. And they holp Dauid agaynſt ẏ rouers. For they were al mightie mẽ of warre, ⁊ captaynes in ẏ hooſt. For at that tyme there came one or other to Dauid, daye by daye to helpe him: vntil it was a great hooſte, like the hooſt of God. And this is the numbre of the chefe captaynes that were prepared to battayle, and came to Dauid to Hebrõ to tourne the kingdome of Saul to him, E according to the word of the Lord. The chyldrẽ of Juda that bare ſhild ⁊ ſpeare, were ſixe thouſand ⁊ eight hundred ready prepared to the warre. Of ẏ children of Simeon, men of myght to warre, ſeuẽ thouſande and one hundred. Of the chyldren of Leui, foure thouſand ⁊ ſyxe hundred. And Jehoiada was ẏ chefe of thẽ of Aaron: ⁊ with him thꝛe thouſand and ſeuen hundꝛed. And zadock a yonge man ſtrong and valyaunt, and of hys fathers houſhold.xxii.capitaynes. And of yͤ children of BenIamin the bꝛethꝛē of Saul, thꝛe thouſand. And a great part of them (did vnto that tyme) folowe the houſe of Saul. And of the childꝛen of Ephꝛaym, xx.thouſand and eyght hundꝛed myghtie men of warre, ⁊ famous mē in the houſholde of theyꝛ fathers. And of the halfe F tribe of Manaſſeh .xviii.thouſād, which were appointed by name to come ⁊ make Dauid kynge. And of the childꝛen of Izachar which were men that had vnderſtandyng in the ryght time, to know (how to commaunde,) what Iſrael ought to do.

The heades of them were two hundꝛed, and all theyꝛ bꝛethꝛen were at theyꝛ wil.
And of zabulon yͭ went out to yͤ battaile, and pꝛoceded foꝛthe to the war, with all maner of inſtrumētes of war, fiftie thouſand that were pꝛepared to the war without any doubleneſſe of hearte. And of Nephthali a thouſand captaines, ⁊ with them with ſhild and ſpeare.xxxvii.thouſand.
And of Dan, pꝛepared to battayle, xxviii.thouſand, and ſixe hundꝛed. And of Aſſer that went out to yͤ warre ⁊ kept yͤ foꝛefronte of the battayle, fourtye thouſand.
And of the other ſyde of Iordan of G the Rubenites ⁊ Gaddites, ⁊ of the halfe trybe of Manaſſe wͭ all maner of inſtrumētes of war, a hundꝛed ⁊ twentie thouſand.
And theſe were men of war, keping the foꝛefront of yͤ battayle with perfect heart, ⁊ came to Hebꝛon to make Dauid king ouer all Iſrael. And al yͤ reſt of Iſraell was of one accoꝛde to make Dauid kynge. And there they were with Dauid iii.dayes eating and dꝛinking, foꝛ theyꝛ bꝛethꝛen had pꝛepared foꝛ thē. Moꝛeouer they that were nye thē vntil Iſacar, zabulon ⁊ Nephthaly, bꝛought bꝛead on aſſes, camels, mules, and oxē, and meat, floure, figges, reyſinges, wyne and oyle, oxen and ſhepe aboundauntly. Foꝛ there was ioye in Iſraell.

The.xiii.Chapter.

The arke is bꝛought agayne from Kariath Iarim to Ieruſalem. Vza (otherwyſe called Oſa,) dyeth.

A AND Dauid coūſayled with the capitaynes of thouſandes ⁊ hundꝛeds, ⁊ with al the loꝛdes, and ſayd vnto all the congregaciō of Iſraell: yf it ſeme you good, ⁊ to be of the loꝛd our god, we will take ⁊ ſend vnto oure bꝛethꝛē, yͭ are left in al yͤ land of Iſrael: ⁊ with thē alſo, to yͤ pꝛieſtes ⁊ Leuites whiche are in theyꝛ cities ⁊ ſuburbes, to gather thē together vnto vs. And we wil bꝛig againe yͤ arke of yͤ loꝛd to vs, foꝛ we regarded it not in yͤ dayes of Saul. And al yͤ cōgregaciō was cōtent yͭ he should do ſo, foꝛ yͤ thing ſemed good in the eyes of al yͤ people. B So Dauid gathered al Iſrael together, frō Sihoꝛ in Egipt, vnto yͤ entryng of Hemath, to bꝛing yͤ arke of yͤ Loꝛd frō Kiriath Iearim. And Dauid wēt vp ⁊ al Iſrael to an hie place towardes Kiriath Iearim, yͭ was in Iuda, to fet thence the arke of yͤ loꝛd god yͭ dwelleth betwene yͤ cherubs, where hys name is called on.
And they caried yͤ arke of God in a newe cart out of yͤ houſe of Abinadab. And Vza ⁊ his bꝛother guided yͤ cart. And Dauid C ⁊ al Iſrael played befoꝛe the arke of god wͭ all theyꝛ might, with ſinging and harpes, pſalteries ⁊ tūbꝛels ⁊ trōpets.
And when they came vnto yͤ threſſhynge flooꝛe of Chidō, Vza put foꝛth his hād to hold yͤ arke, foꝛ yͤ oxē (being a litle wild) ſtumbled.
And yͤ loꝛd was wꝛoth wͭ Vza, and ſmot him, becauſe he put his hand to the D arke. And there he died befoꝛe God. And Dauid was out of quiet, becauſe yͤ Loꝛd had rent a rēt in Vza: ⁊ he called yͤ name of yͤ place, the renting of Vza, vnto thys day. And Dauid was afrayd of god that daye, ſaying: how ſhal I bꝛing yͤ arke of god home to me? And ſo Dauid bꝛought not yͤ arke home to him to yͤ citie of Dauid: but caryed it into the houſe of Obed Edom a Gethite. And the arke of god remayned wͭ Obed Edō, euen in his houſe, thꝛe monethes. And the Loꝛd bleſſed the houſe of Obed Edō, and all that he had.

¶ The.xiiii.Chapter.

Hiram ſendeth wood and woꝛkemen to Dauid, which hath two victoꝛyes of the Philiſtines.

SO Hirā the king of Tire ſēt meſſēgers A to Dauid, ⁊ timbꝛe of Cedertrees, wͭ maſons and carpēters to build him an houſe. And Dauid perceyued yͭ the loꝛd had cōfirmed him king vpon Iſrael, ⁊ that his kingdō was lift vp on hie, becauſe of his people Iſraell: And Dauid toke yet mo wiues at Ieruſalē, ⁊ begat mo ſōnes ⁊ daughters. Theſe are B the names of hys childꝛen whiche were boꝛne vnto him at Ieruſalē: Sammua, Sobab, Nathan and Salomō: Iibhar, Eliſua and Eliphalet, Noga, Nepheg ⁊ Iaphia, Eliſama, Beeliada, ⁊ Eliphalet.

And when ẏ Philiſtines heard that Dauid was annointed king vpon al Iſrael: al ẏ Philiſtines went vp to ſeke Dauid.
And Dauid hearde of it, & went oute agaynſte them. And the Philiſtines came in, & praunced thorowe the valey of Rephaim.
And Dauid aſked counſayle at God, ſaying: ſhall I go agaynſt the Philiſtines, C and wilt thou deliuer them in to myne hande? And the Lorde ſayde vnto hym: go vp, for I wyll delyuer them into thine hand. And ſo they came vp to Baal Perazim, and Dauid ſmote them there.
And Dauid ſayd: god hath deuyded mine enemyes with myne hande, as a manne wolde deuyde water. And therefore they called the name of that place, Baal Perazim.
And when they had lefte theyr goddes there, Dauid gaue a commaundement, and they were burned with fyre.
D And the Philiſtines came together agayne, and ruſſhed into the valleye. And Dauid aſked agayne at God. And God ſayde to hym: go not vp after them, but turne away from them, that thou maieſt come vpon them ouer agaynſte the peretrees.
And when thou heareſt a ſound go in the toppes of the peretrees, thē go out to battayle: for God is gone forth before the, to ſmyte the hoſte of the Philiſtines.
Dauid therfore did as god commaunded hym: and they ſmote the hooſte of ẏ Philiſtines from Gibeon to Gazer. And the fame of Dauid went out into all lādes: & the Lorde made all nacions feare hym.

The.xv.Chapter.

The Leuytes bryng the arke agayne. Dauid daūſyng before it, is deſpyſed of his wife Michol.

A AND Dauid made hym houſes in the cytie of Dauid, & prepared a place for the arke of God, and pitched for it a tente. Then Dauid ſayde: the arke of God ought not to be caryed, but of ẏ Leuytes.
For them hath the Lorde choſen, to beare the arke of the Lorde, and to miniſter vnto him for euer. And Dauid gathered al Iſrael together to Jeruſalem, to fetche the arke of the Lorde vnto hys place whiche he had ordeyned for it. And Dauid brought together the chyldren of Aaron and the Leuites. Of the ſonnes of Cahath was Uriel ẏ chefe, and of hys brethren there were an hundred & twenty.
Of the children of Merari, Aſaia the chefe: and of hys brethren two hundred & twentye. Of the ſonnes of Gerſom, Joel the chefe: and of his brethren an hundred & thyrtye. Of the children of Eliſaphan, Semaia the chefe: & of his brethren two hundred. Of the ſonnes of Hebron, Eliel the chefe, and of hys brethrē .lxxx. Of the ſonnes of Uziel, Aminadab the chefe: & of hys brethren an hundred and twelue. B And Dauid called zadoc and Abiathar ẏ prieſtes, and the Leuites, Uziel, Aſaia, Joel, Semaia, Eliel, and Aminadab, & ſayd vnto them: ye that are the principal fathers of the Leuites, ſe that ye be holy with youre brethren, that ye maye bring in the arke of the Lorde God of Iſraell, vnto the place that I haue prepared for it. For becauſe ye were not there at the fyrſt, ẏ Lord our God made a rēt among vs, for that we ſought hym not, as ẏ faſſhiō ought to be. So the prieſtes and the Leuites ſanctifyed them ſelues to fet the arke of the Lord God of Iſrael. And the children of ẏ Leuites bare ẏ arke of god vpon theyr ſhoulders with ſtaues therō, as Moſes commaunded, accordyng to ẏ word of the Lorde And Dauid ſpake to the chefe heades of ẏ Leuites, that they ſhoulde appoynte certayne of theyr brethren to ſynge with inſtrumentes of muſycke, pſalteries, harpes and cymbales: ẏ they myght make a ſounde, and to ſynge on hie with ioyfulneſſe. And the Leuites appoynted Heman the ſonne of Joel: and (of hys brethren) Aſaph the ſonne of Berechia: C and of the ſonnes of Merari and of theyr brethren, Ethan ẏ ſonne of Cuſaiahu.
And with them theyr brethren of the ſeconde degree, zacharia, Ben Jaazel, Siniramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiahu, Maaſiah, Mathathiahu, Eliphalehu, Mikniahu, Obed Edom, and Jaiel, porters. So Heman, Aſaph & Ethan the ſingers made a ſoūd with ſimbales of braſſe. And zacharia, Aziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maaſiahu, & Banaiahu played ẇ pſalteries on an Alamoth. Mathatiahu, Eliphalehu, Mikniahu, Obed Edom, Jeiell & Azaziah played vpon harpes an eyght aboue, with courage. And Chenaniahu ẏ chefe of the Leuytes, was maſter of the ſong, for he taught other to ſing, becauſe D he was a mā of vnderſtādyng. Berechia & Elcana kept the dore of the arke. And Secaniahu, Jehoſaphat, Nethanael, Amaſai, zachariahu, Banaiahu, & Eliezer ẏ prieſtes, did blow ẇ trompettes before the arke of God. And Obed Edom & Jehia, were ẏ kepers of the dore of ẏ arke.

Re.7.c *And Dauid and the elders of Iſraell ⁊ the captaines ouer thouſandes, went to fet the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde out of the houſe of Obed Edō, with gladneſſe. And when God helped the Leuites yͤ bare the arke of the appointmēt of yͤ Lord, they offred ſeuen oxen and ſeuen rammes. And Dauid had on hym a linnen garment, lyke as had alſo all the Leuytes that bare the arke, and ſo had the ſyngers: and Chenania the ruler of yͤ ſong with the ſyngers. And Dauid had vpon hym an Ephod of lynnen. And all they of Iſraell brought the arke of the Lordes couenaunte wͭ ſhouting and blowyng of the ſhawme ⁊ trōpettes, makynge a noyſe with ſymbales, pſalteries ⁊ harpes. And as the arke of the appoyntemen of the Lord came into the cytie of Dauid, Micholl the daughter of Saul lokyng out at a wyndowe, ſawe kyng Dauid daūſynge and playing, and ſhe deſpyſed hym in her hearte.

The. xvi. Chapter.

Dauid ordeyneth Aſaph and hys brethren to myniſter before the Lorde. He hym ſelfe prayſeth the Lorde God of Iſraell.

A SO they brought in yͤ arke of God, ⁊ ſet it in the myddeſte of the tente, that Dauid pytched for it, ⁊ they offered burnt ſacrifyces and peace offerynges before God. And when Dauid had made an ende of offring the burnt offringes ⁊ peace offrynges, he bleſſed the people in the name of the Lord. And he dealt to al Iſrael (both man and woman) a cracknell of bread, and a good piece of fleſhe, and a flacket of wine. And he appoynted certayne of the Leuites to myniſter before the Lorde, and to repete and to thanke and prayſe the Lorde God of Iſrael. And Aſaph was yͤ chefe, and nexte to hym zacharia, Ieiel, Semicamoth, Ie-2.reg.6.b. hiell, Mathathia, Eliab, Benaia, *Obed Edom, and Ieiel with pſalteries ⁊ harpes. But Aſaph made a ſounde with ſymbales. Baanaiahu and Iahaziel preaſtes, blewe with trompettes contynuallye before the arke of yͤ couenaūt of god. And yͤ ſame tyme B Dauid dyd appoynte chefly to thanke the Psal.104.a Lord by Aſaph and his brethren. *O geue Esay.12.a thankes vnto the Lord, cal vpon his name, make hys actes knowen amonge the people. Singe vnto hym, and playe vnto hym: talke of all hys wondreful dedes. Reioyce in hys holy name: let the heartes of them yͤ ſeke the Lorde bee glad. Seke the Lorde ⁊ hys ſtrength: ſeke his preſence alwaye. Remembre his maruayles whiche he dyd, and hys wonders, and the iudgementes of hys mouthe. The ſeede of Iſraell are hys ſeruauntes the children of Iacob are his choſen. He is the Lord our God, in all landes are hys iudgementes. Thynke on hys appoyntemente for euer: (and on the worde whiche he commaunded to a thouſand generacions) which he made with Abraham, and of his othe to Iſahac: whiche he ſet before Iacob for a decree, and to Iſraell for an euerlaſtynge couenaunt, ſaying: to thee wil I geue the lande of Canaan, to be the porcyon of youre enherytaunce. When ye were few, and ſmal in numbre, and ſoiourners therin. And they walked from nacion, to nacion, ⁊ from one kyngdom to an other people. He ſuffred nomā to do thē wrong, but rebuked euen kynges for theyr ſakes. Touche not myne annoynted, and do my Prophetes no harme. C Psal.95.a *Synge vnto the Lorde all the earthe, and ſhewe from daye to day hys ſaluacion.

Tell of hys glorye amonge the Heathen: hys wondrefull dedes amonge all nacions.

For greate is the Lorde, and worthy to bee prayſed excedyngly: he is to bee feared aboue all Gods.

For all the Goddes of the people are of no value: But the Lorde made Heauen.

Prayſe and honour are in hys preſence: ſtrengthe and gladneſſe are in hys place.

Aſcrybe vnto the Lorde ye kynredes of people: Aſcrybe to the Lorde, glorye and domynion. Aſcrybe vnto the Lorde the glory due vnto hys name: brynge ſacrifyces, and come before hym, and worſhip the Lord with holy honour. Let all the earth feare hym, althoughe the compaſſe of the earthe be ſo ſtablyſſhed that it can not bee moued: let the heauens reioyce, and let the earth bee glad, and let men tel amonge the nacyons, that the Lorde is kyng. Let the ſea thundre, and the fulneſſe thereof: let the feldes reioyce and all that is therein. Thē ſhall the trees of the wood reioyce at yͤ preſence of the Lorde, becauſe he commeth to iudge the earth. O geue thankes vnto the Lorde, for he is good, for hys mercye endurethe for euer: and ſaye ye: ſaue vs (O GOD) of oure saluacyon, gather vs together, and delyuer vs from amonge the heathen, that we maye geue thankes to thy holy name, and triumphe in the prayſe of the.

Bleſſed be the Lorde God of Iſrael for euer and euer: and let all people ſaye Amē, and prayſe the LORDE.

And ſo he left there before the arke of the D Lordes conenaunte, Aſaph & hys brethrē, to myniſter before the arke contynually, in ſuche thynges as were to bee done daye by daye (and that by theyr courſes.) And Obed Edom and hys brethren, threſcore and eyght: and Obed Edom, the ſonne of Ieduthun, and Hoſa, were appoynted to bee porters.
And zadok the prieſte and hys brethren the prieſtes, were before yͤ Tabernacle of the Lorde, in the hye place that was at Gibeō, to offer burntoffrynges vnto the Lord, vpon yͤ burntoffring alter perpetually, in the mornyng and euenyng: accordyng vnto all that whiche is wrytten in the lawe of the Lord, whiche he commaunded Iſrael. And with them were Heman, and Ieduthun, & other that were choſen (whoſe names were expreſſed) to geue thankes to the Lorde, that his mercie laſteth euer. And with them dyd Heman and Ieduthun ſynge with the trompettes and ſymbales, making a ſwete melody with inſtrumentes of muſyke and godlye ſonges. And the ſonnes of Ieduthū were porters. And all the people departed, euerie man to hys houſe: and Dauid returned to bleſſe hys houſe.

The.xvii.Chapter.

Dauid is forbidden to buyld an houſe vnto the Lord.
Chriſte is promyſed vnder the fygure of Salomon.

A AND it fortuned, that whē Dauid dwelt in his houſe, he ſayde to Nathan the Prophet: lo, I 2.Re.7.a. dwell * in an houſe of Cedar tree, but the arke of the Lordes couenaunt remayneth vnder curtaynes: And Nathan ſayde to Dauid: do al that is in thine heart, for God is with the. And the ſame nyght it fortuned, that the worde of God came to Nathan, ſayinge: goo, and tell Dauid my ſeruaunt, thus ſayeth the Lorde: thou ſhalt not buylde me an houſe to dwell in. For I haue dwelt in no houſe, ſynce the daye that I brought oute the children of Iſrael vnto this daye: but haue gone from tent to tent, and from one habytacyon to an other. And whereſoeuer I haue walked with al Iſrael, ſpake I euer one worde to any of yͤ iudges of Iſraell (whom I commaunded to fede my people) ſayinge: why haue ye not buylte me an houſe of Cedar tree? Nowe B therefore thus ſhalt thou ſaye vnto my ſeruaunte Dauid: thus ſayeth the Lorde of hoſtes: I toke the out of the paſtures whē thou wenteſt after ſhepe, that thou ſhuldeſt be capitayne ouer my people Iſraell. And I haue bene with the, whitherſoeuer thou haſt walked, and haue weded oute al thyne enemyes oute of thy ſyght, and haue made thee a name, lyke the name (of one) of yͤ greateſt men that are in the earthe. And I haue ordeyned a place for my people Iſrael, and made it faſte, ſo that nowe they maye dwel in theyr place, and moue no more: Neyther ſhall the children of wickedneſſe vexe them any more, as at the begynnyng. And ſynce the time that I commaunded iudges to be ouer my people Iſrael, I haue ſubdued al thyne enemyes: and I tolde thee, that the Lorde woulde buylde thee an houſe. Thys alſo ſhall come to paſſe: when thy dayes C bee expyred, that thou muſte goo vnto thy fathers, I wyll rayſe vp thy ſeede after the, whiche ſhalbe of thy ſonnes, & I wyll prepare for hym the kyngdome. He ſhall build me an houſe, and I wyll ſtablyſhe hys ſeat for euer: I wyll bee hys father, and he ſhalbe my ſonne: and I wyll not take my mercy awaye from hym, as I toke it from him that was before thee. But I wyll ſet hym in myne houſe, and in my kyngdome for euer:
and his ſeate ſhal be ſure for euermore.

Accordynge to all theſe wordes, and accordynge to all thys vyſion, dyd Nathan tell kynge Dauid. And Dauid the kynge came and ſat before the Lorde, and ſayde: what am I (O Lorde God) and what is myne houſholde, that thou haſte promoted me thus farre? And yet thys ſemed lytle in thyne eyes, O God: But thou haſte alſo ſpoken of thy ſeruauntes houſe, for a great whyle to come: and haſte loked vpon me as vpon a manne of hye degree, (O Lord God.) What ſhall Dauid deſyre more of thee, for the hououre of thy ſeruaunte? for thou haſte knowen thy ſeruaunte: O Lorde, for thy ſeruauntes ſake, euen accordyng to thyne owne hearte, haſt thou done D all thys magnifycence, to ſhewe all greate thinges. Lorde, there is none lyke the, neyther is there any God ſaue thou: according to al that we haue heard with our eares.
Moreouer, what naciō on the earth is lyke thy people Iſrael, to whō god hath vouchſafed to come and redeme them to bee hys owne people, and to make thee a name of excellencye and terribleneſſe, with caſtynge oute nacions frō before thy people, whom yͧ haſt deliuered out of Egipt. Thy people of Iſrael diddeſt yͧ make thyne owne people for euer, & thou becameſte theyr God.
Therfore now lord, let yͤ thing yͭ thou haſt ſpokē concerning thy ſeruaunt & his houſe, be true for euer, yͭ thou do as yͧ haſte ſayde:

let it come to paſſe, that thy name maye bee magnyfyed for euer, that it may be ſayde, the Lord of hooſtes is ỹ God of Iſrael (euē the God of Iſrael) and the houſe of Dauid thy ſeruaũt endureth ſtable before the.
For thou (O my god) haſt told thy ſeruaũt, that thou wylte buylde hym an houſe. And therefore thy ſeruaunt hathe founde in hys hearte to praye before the. And nowe Lord thou art God, ⁊ haſt promyſed thys goodneſſe vnto thy ſeruaunte. Nowe therfore, let it bee thy pleaſure, to bleſſe the houſe of thy ſeruaunte, that it maye continue before thee for euer. For whom thou bleſſeſt (O Lorde) the ſame is bleſſed for euer.

The .xviii. Chapter.

The battayles of Dauid agaynſte the Philiſtines.

A And after thys it fortuned, that Dauid ſmote the Philiſtines, and ſubdued them, ⁊ toke Geth and the townes 2.Re.8.a. that * longed thereto, oute of the hande of ỹ Philiſtines. And he ſmote Moab, ⁊ the Moabites became Dauids ſeruauntes, and payed him trybute. And Dauid ſmote Hadarezer kynge of zoba vnto Hanath, as he went to ſtablyſhe hys domynion by the ryuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke from him a thouſande charettes, and ſeuen thouſande horſemenne, and twentye thouſande fotemē: and lamed al the charet horſes, and reſerued of them an hundred charettes.
And when the Syriens of Damaſco came to helpe Hadarezer kynge of zoba: Dauid ſlue of the Syriens .xxii. thouſande, ⁊ Dauid ſubdued Syria Damaſco. And the Syriens became Dauids ſeruauntes: and brought hym trybute. And the Lorde preſerued Dauid in all that he wente to.
And Dauid toke the ſhyldes of golde B that were on the ſeruauntes of Hadarezer, and broughte them to Ieruſalem. And frō Tebhath, and from Chun (cyties of Hadarezer) broughte Dauid exceadynge moche braſſe. Wherewith Salomon made ỹ braſen Haduran hys ſonne to kynge Dauid, to make peace wyth hym, and to bleſſe hym, becauſe he had fought agaynſt Hadarezer, C and beaten hym (for Tou had warre with Hadarezer) and Dauid brought all maner of Iewels of golde, ſyluer ⁊ braſſe with hym. And kyng Dauid dedicated them vnto the Lorde, with the ſiluer and golde that he brought from all nacyons: from Edō, from Moab, from the chyldren of Ammō, from the Philiſtines, and from Amalecke.

And Abiſai the ſonne of zeruia ſlue of the Edomites in ỹ ſalte valleye, xviii. thouſand, and put ſouldyers in Edom, and all the Edomytes became Dauids ſeruauntes.
Thus the Lorde kept Dauid in all that he D toke in hande. And Dauid raygned ouer all Iſraell, and executed iudgemente and righteouſneſſe amonge all hys people. And Ioab the ſonne of zeruia was ouer the hoſt.
And Iehoſaphat the ſonne of Ahilud recorder: and zadocke the ſonne of Ahitob, ⁊ Abimelech the ſonne of Abiathar were the

The .xix. Chapter.

Hanon kyng of the ſonnes of Ammon, doth great iniury to the ſeruauntes of Dauid.

After thys it chaunced, that * Nahas A the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon 2.reg.10.a dyed, and hys ſonne raygned in hys ſtede. And Dauid ſayde: I wyl ſhew kindneſſe vnto Hanon the ſonne of Nahas: beecauſe hys father delt kindlye with me. And Dauid ſente meſſengers to comforte hym ouer the deathe of hys father. And the ſeruauntes of Dauid came into the lande of ỹ chyldren of Ammon to Hanon, to comfort hym. But the lordes of the children of Ammon ſayde to Hanon: thynkeſt thou that Dauid doth honour thy father in thy ſight, that he hathe ſēt coumforters vnto the? Are not his ſeruauntes come to ſearche, to loke and ſpye out the lande? Wherfore Hanon B toke Dauids ſeruauntes (and polde them) and ſhaued them, ⁊ cut of theyr cootes harde by theyr buttockes, and ſent them away. And there wente certayne and tolde Dauid how the men were ſerued. And the kynge ſent to mete them (for the men were exceadyngely aſhamed) and the kyng ſayde: tary at Iericho, vntyll youre beardes be growen: and then retourne. And whē the chyldrē of Ammon ſawe that they ſtanke in the ſyght of Dauid, Hanon and the chyldren of Ammō ſent a thouſande talentes of ſyluer to hyre them charettes ⁊ horſmen out of Meſopotamia and out of Siria Maacha, and oute of zoba. And they hyred .xxxii. thouſande charettes, and the kynge of Maacha ⁊ hys people, whyche came and pytched before Meoba.

And the children of Ammon gathered thē C ſelues together from theyr cities, and came to battayle. And when Dauid hearde of it, he ſent Ioab and al the hooſt of ſtrong mē. And the children of Ammon came out, and put them ſelues in araye to battayle before the gate of the citie. And the kynges that were come, kept them by themſelues backe in the felde. When Ioab alſo ſawe that the fronte of the battayle was agaynſte hym before ⁊ behynde, he choſe out of al the choſen men of Iſraell, and put them in araye agaynſte the Sirians. And the reſt of the people he delyuered vnto the hande of Abiſai hys brother, and they put them ſelues in araye agaynſte the children of Ammon.

And he ſayde: Yf the Sirians bee to ſtrong for me, thou ſhalte ſuccour me: and yf the children of Ammon preuayle agaynſte the, I wyll helpe the: Plucke vp thyne hearte, and let vs playe the menne, for oure peoples ſake and for the cities of oure GOD, and the Lorde ſhal do that whiche is good in his owne ſyghte. So Ioab and the people D that were with hym, drue nye before the Sirians vnto the battayle: and they fledde before hym. And when the children of Ammon ſawe that the Sirians were fled, they ranne awaye lykewyſe before Abiſai hys brother, and gate them into the cytie. And Ioab came to Ieruſalem.

And when the Sirians ſawe that they were put to the worſe before Iſraell, they ſente meſſengers and fet oute the Sirians that were beyond the ryuer, and Sophach the captayne of the hoſt of Hadarezer went before them. And it was tolde Dauid: and he gathered all Iſraell and wente together ouer Iordane, and came and ſet vpō them. And when Dauid had put hym ſelfe in araye agaynſte the Sirians, they foughte with hym. But the Sirians fled before Iſraell. And Dauid deſtroyed of the Sirians ſeuen thouſande charettes, and fortye thouſande foote menne, and kylled Sophach the captayne of the hoſte. And when the ſeruauntes of Hadarezer, ſawe that they were put to the worſe, before them of Iſraell: they made peace with Dauid, and became hys ſeruaūtes. Neyther would the Sirians helpe the chyldren of Ammon any more.

The.xx.Chapter.

The thre mooſte victorious battayles of Dauid.

A AND it came to paſſe, that after the yere was expyred (*aboute the tyme that 2.Re.11.a kynges go out a warrefare:) Ioab caryed oute the armye of the hooſte, and *deſtroyed the countrey of the chyldren of 2.Re Ammon, and came and beſyged Rabba, and deſtroyed it: But Dauid taryed at Ieruſalem whyle Ioab ſmote Rabba and deſtroyed it. *And Dauid toke the crowne of 2.Re theyr kynge from of hys heade, ⁊ founde B that it had the weyght of a talent of golde, and there were precyous ſtones in it: and it was ordeyned for Dauids head. And he brought alſo exceadyng moche ſpoyle oute of the cytie. And he brought oute the people that were in it: and tormented them with ſawes, ⁊ harowes of yron, and with other ſharpe inſtrumentes: and ſo dealte Dauid with al the cyties of the children of C Ammon. And Dauid, and all the people came agayne to Ieruſalem. *After thys 2.Re it fortuned, that there aroſe warre at Gazer with the Philiſtines. At whiche tyme, Sobokai the Huſathite ſlue Sippai, that was of the children of *Rephaim: and they were ſubdued. And there was battayle agayne with the Philiſtines: and Elhanan the ſonne of Iair ſlue Lahemi, the brother of Goliath the Gethyte, whoſe ſpeare was D lyke a weauers beame. And there chaunced yet agayne warre at Geth, where as was a manne of a greate ſtature, wyth .xxiiii. fyngers and toes .vi. on euery hand and .vi. on euery foote: and was the ſonne of Raphah. But when he defyed Iſrael, Iehonathan the ſonne of Simea, Dauids brother, ſlue him. Theſe were borne vnto Raphah at Geth, and were ouerthrowē in the hand of Dauid: and in the hande of hys ſeruauntes.

The.xxi.Chapter.

Dauid cauſeth the people to bee numbred: and there dye .lxx. thouſande men of the peſtilence.

A AND Sathan ſtode vp againſte Iſraell, and prouoked Dauid to numbre Iſrael. And Dauid ſayde to Ioab, and to the rulers of the people: Go ye and numbre Iſraell from Beerſeba to Dan, and bringe it to me that I maye knowe the numbre of them. And Ioab anſwered: the Lorde make hys people an hundred tymes ſo many moe as they be. But my Lord, O king, are they not al my lordes ſeruauntes? why than dothe my Lorde requyre thys thynge? why wyll my Lorde bee a cauſe of treſpaſſe to Iſraell? Neuertheleſſe, the kynges worde preuayled agaynſte Ioab.

And Ioab departed and walked thorowoute all them of Iſrael, and came to Ieruſalem againe, and gaue the numbre of the compte of the people vnto Dauid. And all they of Iſrael were a. M. thouſande, and an hundred thouſand men that drew ſwearde: and Iuda was. cccc. lxx. thouſande menne that drewe ſwearde. But the Leuites and BenIamin counted he not amonge them. For the kynges worde was abhominable to Ioab. And the Lorde was diſpleaſed with thys thynge: and ſmote Iſraell. And Dauid ſayde vnto God: I haue ſynned exceadynglye in doing thys thynge. And now (I beſeche thee) do awaye the wyckedneſſe of thy ſeruaunte, for I haue done very fooliſhly. And the Lorde ſpake vnto Gad Dauids ſear, ſaying: go and tel Dauid, ſaying: B Thus ſayeth the Lord: I geue the yͤ choyſe of thre thynges: choſe the one of them, that I may do vnto the. And Gad came to Dauid, and ſayde vnto hym. Thus ſayeth the Lord: Choſe the eyther thre yeares famiſhment, or thre monethes to bee deſtroyed before thyne aduerſaries, and yͭ the ſweard of thyne enemyes maye ouertake thee, or els the ſwearde of the Lorde, and peſtilence in the lande thre dayes: and the aungel of the Lord deſtroying thorowout al the coaſtes of Iſraell. And nowe aduyſe thy ſelfe, what worde I ſhall brynge agayne to hym that ſente me. And Dauid ſayde vnto Gad: I am in an exceding ſtrayte. Let me fal now into the hand of the Lord, for paſſyng great are hys mercyes, but let me not fall into the C hande of menne. So the Lorde ſente peſtylence vpon Iſraell, and there were ouer throwen of Iſraell. lxx. thouſande menne.

And God ſent the aungell into Ieruſalem to deſtroye in it. And as he was aboute to deſtroye, the Lorde behelde, and had compaſſion on the euyl, and ſayed to the aungel that deſtroyed: it is ynoughe, let nowe thy hand ceaſſe. And the angel of yͤ Lord ſtode by the threſſhynge floore of Ornan the Iebuſite. And Dauid lift vp hys eyes, ⁊ ſawe the angell of the Lorde ſtande betwene the earth and heauen, hauyng a drawẽ ſweard in hys hande, ſtretched out towarde Ieruſalem. Then Dauid and the elders of Iſrael, whiche were clothed in ſacke, fel vpon theyr faces. And Dauid ſayde vnto God: Is it not I that commaunded the people to be numbred? It is I that haue ſynned ⁊ done euyll in dede, ⁊ what haue theſe ſhepe done? Let thine hãd (O lord my god) be on me, ⁊ on my fathers houſe, but not on thy people, that they ſhoulde be puniſhed. And the angel of the Lord commaunded Gad to ſaye to Dauid, that Dauid ſhoulde go vp, and ſet vp an alter vnto the Lorde in the threſhynge floore of Ornan the Iebuſite. And Dauid went vp accordyng to the ſaying of Gad, whiche he ſpake in the name of the Lorde. And Ornan turned aboute, and ſawe the angel: and his foure ſonnes were with hym, and hyd them ſelues: But Ornã was threſſhynge wheate. And as Dauid came to Ornan, Ornan loked ⁊ ſawe Dauid, and went out of the threſſhing floore, ⁊ bowed him ſelfe to Dauid with his face to the grounde. And Dauid ſayde to Ornan: geue me the place of the threſſhyng floore, that I maye buylde an aultare therin vnto the Lorde. Thou ſhalte geue it me for as much money as it is worth, that the plage maye ceaſſe from the people. And Ornan D ſayde vnto Dauid: take it to the, and let my lorde the kyng do that whiche ſemeth good in his eyes: lo, I geue the oxẽ alſo for burnt ſacrifyces, and the threſſhyng ſleades for wood, and wheat for meatoffryng: I geue it all. And kyng Dauid ſayde to Ornã: not ſo, but I wil bye it for as muche money as it is worth. For I will not take that which is thyne for the Lorde, nor offer burnt offrynges without coſte. And ſo Dauid gaue to Ornan for that place, ſicles of golde. vi. hundred by wayghte. And Dauid buylte there an aultare vnto yͤ lord, ⁊ offred burntofferinges, ⁊ peace offeringes, ⁊ called vpon yͤ lord, ⁊ he heard him frõ heauẽ in fyre, vpõ the aultare of burntoffryng. And when the Lorde had ſpoken to the aungel, he put vp his ſwearde agayne into the ſheeth of it. At that tyme when Dauid ſaw that the Lord had hearde hym in the threſſhing floore of Ornã the Iebuſyte, he vſed to offre there: For the Tabernacle of yͤ Lord which Moſes made in the wyldernesſe, and the aulter of burntofferynge, were at that ſeaſon in yͤ hyll at Gibeon. And Dauid coulde not goe before it to aſke cõuſaile at god, for he was afrayed of yͤ ſweard of yͤ Angel of the lord.

The. xxii. Chapter.

Dauid willeth his ſonne Salomon to buylde the temple of the Lorde: which thyng he hym ſelfe was forbydden to do.

AND Dauid ſayd: thys is yͤ houſe of yͤ A Lord God, ⁊ this is the aultar for the burntoffring of Iſraell. And Dauid cõmaunded to gather together yͤ ſtraũgers yͭ were in yͤ land of Iſrael, ⁊ he ſet maſons to hewe free ſtone for the buildinge of the houſe of God.

And Dauid prepared plentye of yron for nayles, and dores of the gates and to ioyne with all, and aboundaunce of braſſe without wayght, and Cedre trees without nūbre. For the zidons ⁊ they of Tire brought moch Cedar wood to Dauid. And Dauid ſayed: Salomon my ſonne is yonge and tēder, and the houſe that is to bee buylte for the Lorde, muſte exceade in greatneſſe, that it maye be ſpoken of, ⁊ praiſed in al landes: I wyll therefore make ordinaunce for it.

And ſo Dauid prepared many thinges before hys deathe. And he called Salomon hys ſonne, and charged hym to buylde an B house for the Lorde God of Iſraell. And 2.Re.7.b. Dauid ſayde to Salomon: *my ſonne, I 3.Re.5.a thought (as it was in myne heart) to build an houſe vnto the name of the Lorde my God. But the worde of the Lorde came to me, ſaying: thou haſt ſhed muche bloude, ⁊ haſte made greate battayles: thou ſhalte therfore not build an houſe vnto my name: for thou haſte ſhed moche bloude vpon the earthe in my ſyghte. Beholde, a ſonne is borne to thee, and he ſhalbee a man of reſte, for I will geue hym reſte from all hys enemyes round about. For hys name is Salomon: and I will ſende reſt and peace vpō Iſrael in hys dayes. He ſhal build an houſe C for my name, and he ſhall bee my ſonne, and I wil bee hys father, and wyll prepare the ſeate of hys kyngdome vpon Iſraell for euer. Nowe therefore my ſonne, the Lorde bee with thee, and proſpere thou, and thou ſhalte buylde the houſe to the name of the Lorde thy God, as he hathe ſayed of thee. And the Lorde ſhall geue the wyſdome and vnderſtandynge, and ſhall geue the commaundementes for Iſraell, that ye maye kepe the lawe of the Lord thy God. For thē thou ſhalte proſpere: euen when thou takeſt hede, and fulfylleſt the ſtatutes and lawes whiche the Lorde charged Moſes with for Iſraell. Plucke vp thy harte therefore, and bee ſtronge, dreade not, nor bee diſcouraged. Beholde, in myne aduerſitie haue I alſo prepared for the houſe of the Lorde, an hundred thouſand talentes of gold, and a thouſande thouſande talentes of ſyluer, ⁊ D as for braſſe and yron it can not bee noumbred, for it is verye much. And I haue prepared tymbre and ſtone, and thou mayeſt prouide more thereto. More ouer, yͧ haſte workemen with the ynowe, and maſons, and carpenters to worke in ſtone and tymber, and many menne that bee actiue for euery worke. And of golde, ſyluer, braſſe, and yron, there is no number. Up therfore, and be doinge, and the Lorde ſhalbee with the. And Dauid cōmaunded all the lordes of Iſraell to helpe Salomon hys ſonne, ſaying: Is not the Lorde youre God with you? and hathe he not geuen you reſte on euery ſyde? for he hathe geuen the inhabitours of the lande into my hande, and the lande is ſubdued before the Lorde, and before hys people. Nowe therefore ſet youre heartes and youre ſoules to ſeke the Lord youre God. Up, and build ye the temple of the Lorde God, to bringe the arke of the couenaunte of the Lord, and the holy veſſels of GOD into the houſe, ſo buylt for the name of the Lorde.

The .xxiii. Chapter.

Dauid being olde, ordeyneth Salomon kynge. He cauſeth the Leuites to bee numbred, and aſſygneth them to theyr offyces.

SO, when Dauid was olde and A full of dayes, *he made Salo- 3.Re mon hys ſonne kyng ouer Iſraell. And then he gathered together al yͤ Lordes of Iſrael with yͤ prieſtes ⁊ the Leuites. And yͤ Leuites wer nūbred frō the age of .xxx. yere and aboue, ⁊ the nōbre and ſumme of them was .xxx. and .viii. thouſande menne. Of whiche .xxiiii. thouſande were ſet to further the worke of the houſe of the Lorde. And ſyxe thouſande were officers and iudges. Foure thouſand were porters, and foure thouſande praiſed the Lord with ſuche inſtrumentes, as was made to prayſe withall. And ſo Dauid put an ordre amonge them, deuydynge them in partes. Of the chyldren of Leui, Gerſon, Cahath, ⁊ Merari: Of the Gerſonites was Laadam ⁊ Semei. The ſonnes of Laadā, the chefe was Iehiel, zethan and Ioel, thre. The ſonnes of Semei: Selomith, Haziell and Haram, thre. Theſe were the auncient fathers of Laadā. And the ſonnes of Se- B mei were Iahath, zina, Ieus, ⁊ Beria: theſe foure were the ſonnes of Semei. And Iahath was the chefe, zina the ſeconde. But Ieus ⁊ Beria had not many ſonnes, therefore they were in one rekeninge accordyng to theyr fathers houſhold, rekened for one auncient houſhold. The ſonnes of Cahath, Amram, Izahar, Hebron and Uziel, foure.
*The ſonnes of Amram, Aaron and Mo- Exo ſes. And Aaron was ſeparated to haue the 1.Pa rule of the holy thynges in the place mooſte holy, he ⁊ hys ſonnes for euer, and to burne incenſe before the Lord, ⁊ to miniſter vnto hym, and to bleſſe in his name for euer.

Leui.16.a

Moſes alſo the man of God, ⁊ his children, were named wyth the trybe of Leui. The ſonnes of Moſes: Gerſon, and Eliezer. Of the ſonnes of Gerſon, Sebuel was yͤ chefe. The ſonnes of Eliezer: Rehabia the chefe. And Eliezer had none other ſonnes: But yͤ ſonnes of Rehabia were very many. The ſonnes of Izahar: Salomith the chefe. The ſonnes of Hebron: Jeriahu the firſt, Amaria yͤ ſeconde, Jahaziel the thirde, ⁊ Jecameam the fourth. The ſonnes of Uziel: Micha the C fyrſte, and Jeſia the ſeconde. The ſonnes of Merari: Mahli and Muſi. The ſonnes of Mahli, Eleazar and Cis. And Eleazar died, and had no ſonnes, but daughters, and theyr brethren the ſonnes of Cis toke them. The ſonnes of Muſi: Mahli, Eder and Jerimoth, thre. Theſe are yͤ chyldrē of Leui after the houſeholde of theyr fathers: euen yͤ auncient of the fathers accordynge to theyr offyces, and after the numbre and ſumme of the names of them that did the worke in the ſeruyce of the houſe of the Lorde, from the age of twentye yeares ⁊ aboue. And Dauid ſayd: the Lorde God of Iſraell hath gyuen reſt vnto hys people, that they may dwel in Jeruſalem for euer. That the Leuites alſo ſhoulde nowe nomore beare the tabernacle and all the veſſels for the ſeruice thereof: for accordyng to the laſt wordes of Dauid, the Leuites were numbred from twentye yere and aboue, and theyr offyce was vnder the hande of the ſonnes of Aaron, for the ſeruice D of the houſe of the Lorde: in the courtes and celles, ⁊ in yͤ purifying of all holy thinges, and in the worke of the ſeruice of yͤ houſe of God. In the ſhewe bread, in the fyne floure, in the meatofferyng, in the wafers of ſwete bread, in the frying panne, in the grydyron, and in all maner of meaſures and cyſe, and to ſtande euery daye in the mornynge, to thanke and prayſe the Lord, and ſo likewiſe at euen. And to offre al burnt ſacrifices vnto the Lorde, in the Sabbothes, in the newe moones, and on the feaſtful dayes by nūbre and cuſtome continually (as they were commaunded) before the Lorde. And that they ſhoulde wayte on the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and on the holye place, and on the ſonnes of Aaron theyr brethren, in yͤ ſeruice of the houſe of the Lorde.

The.xxiiii. Chapter.

David aſſygneth offyces vnto the ſonnes of Aaron.

A THeſe are yͤ deuiſions of the ſōnes of Aaron. Thē ſonnes of Aaron: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. *Nadab alſo and Abihu Leui.16.a dyed before their father, and had no childrē: But Eleazar and Ithamar executed the prieſtes office. And Dauid ordred them on this maner: zadock of the ſonnes of Eleazar, and Ahimelek of the ſonnes of Ithamar were accordynge to theyr offyces, in theyr miniſtracion. And there were mo auncient men founde amonge the ſonnes of Eleazar, then yͤ ſonnes of Ithamar. And thus were they ordred togyther: Amonge the ſonnes of Eleazar there were ſyxtene rulers, according to the houſholde of theyr fathers: and eight amonge the ſonnes of Ithamar, accordyng to the houſholde of theyr fathers. And thus B were they put in ordre by lot, the one ſorte frō the other, and ſo were there rulers in the Sanctuary and lordes before God, as well of the ſonnes of Ithamar, as of the ſonnes of Eleazar. And Simeia yͤ ſonne of Nathaneel the ſcribe, of the kynred of the Leuites, wrote them before the kynge and yͤ lordes, and before zadock the prieſt, and Ahimeleck the ſonne of Abiathar, and before the auncient fathers, before the prieſtes and the Leuites: one pryncypall houſhold beyng reſerued for Eleazar, and one for Ithamar. And the fyrſte lotte fel to Jehoiarib, and the ſeconde to Jedaia: The thyrd to Harim, and yͤ fourth to Sehorim. The fifth to Melchia, and the ſyxte to Miamin. The ſeuenth to Hakos, and the eyght to Abia. *The nynth Luke.1.a to Jeſua, and the tenth to Secaniahu. The eleuenth to Eliaſyb, and the twelueth to Jakym. The thyrtenth to Hupa, and the fourtenth to Jeſebeab. The fyftenth to Bilga, and the ſyxtenth to Immer. The ſeuententh to Hezir, and the eyghtenth to C Hapzez. The nynetenth to Pathahia, and yͤ twentyeth to Jeheſkel. The.xxi.to Jachin, ⁊ the.xxii.to Gamul. The.xxiii.to Delaiahu, and the.xxiiii.to Maaſiahu. Theſe are the ordynaunces of them in theyr offices, when they came into the houſe of yͤ lord according to theyr maner vnder Aaron theyr father, as yͤ lord God of Iſrael had cōmaunded him. The reſte of the ſonnes of Leui are theſe: of the ſonnes of Amram, Subael: of yͤ ſonnes of Subaell, Jehediahu. Of the ſonnes of Rehabia: the firſt Jeſia. Of yͤ Jezaharites, Selomoth. Of yͤ ſonnes alſo of Selomoth, Jehath. His ſonnes Jeriahu the fyrſte, Amariahu the ſeconde, Jahaziel the thyrde, D ⁊ Jekameam the fourth. Of the ſonnes of Uſiell, Micha. Of the ſonnes of Micha, Sanir. The brother of Micha was Jiſia. Of the ſonnes alſo of Jiſia, zechariahu. The ſonnes of Merari, were Mahli ⁊ Muſi. The ſõnes of Jahaſiahu, Beno. The ſõnes of Merari by Jahaziahu, Beno, Sohem, zacur & Ibri. Of Mahely came Eleaſar, & he had no ſonnes. Of Kis, the ſonnes of Kis, Jerahemeel. The ſonnes of Muſi: Mahli, Eder and Jerimoth. Theſe are the chyldren of the Leuites after yͤ houſholde of theyr fathers. And theſe caſt lottes next to theyr brethrẽ yͤ the ſonnes of Aaron, in yͤ preſence of Dauid the kynge, & zadock and Ahimelech and the auncient fathers, prieſtes, & Leuites: euen yͤ principall fathers before theyr yonger brethren: (the lot made equal diſtribuciõ among them al.)

The. xxvi. Chapter.

The porters of the temple are ordeyned, euerye man to the gate whyche he ſhoulde kepe.

THeſe are yͤ deuiſions of yͤ porters. A Among yͤ Corethites: Meſelemiahu yͤ ſonne of Kore of the childrẽ of Aſaph. And the ſonnes of Meſelemiahu were theſe: zachariahu the eldeſt, Jedihell the ſecond, zebadiahu the thyrde, and Jathniel the fourth, Elam the fyfth, Jehohanan the ſyxt, and Elioenai the ſeuenth. The ſonnes of Obed Edom: Semeia yͤ eldeſt, Jehoſabad the ſecond, Joah yͤ thyrde, Sacar the fourth, and Nethanael yͤ fyfth, Amiell the ſyxth, Iſachar the ſeuenth, Peulthai the eyght, for God bleſſed hym.
And to Simeia his ſon were ſonnes borne, that ruled in the houſe of theyr father, for they were men of myghte. The ſonnes of Semeia, Othni, Rephael, Obed & Elzabad, and hys brethren were ſtronge men: Elihu, ⁊ Semahiahu. All theſe were of the childrẽ of Obed Edom, they and theyr chyldrẽ, and theyr brethren, actyue men of ſtrengthe to do ſeruice, euen. lxii. of Obed Edom. And Meliniah had ſonnes and brethren actyue men. xviii: The ſonnes of Hoſa of yͤ children of Merari: Simri the chefe, and though he was not the eldeſt, yet his father ſet hym in yͤ chefeſt place: Helkiahu yͤ ſecond: Tebaliahu the thyrde, and zechariahu the fourth: al the ſonnes and brethren of Hoſa were. xiii.

Amonge theſe was deuided the office of the B porterſhyp yͤ they ſhoulde be auncient mẽ, to wayte wyth theyr brethren, when they miniſtred in the houſe of the Lorde. And they caſt lottes betwene the great and ſmall after the houſhold of theyr fathers, for euery gate.

And the lot on the eaſte ſyde fell vpon Selemeiahu. And for zachariahu his ſon (whyche was a wyſe counſayler) they caſte lottes, ⁊ his lot came out toward the north.
And Obed Edoms lot fel to the ſouth. And for his ſonnes fell the houſes of Aſuppim.
For Suphim and Hoſa, towarde the weſt, with the gate that ſtandeth towarde the hier waye: one watche beyng ouer agaynſte an other. In the eaſt were ſyxe Leuytes: and toward the north. iiii. a day: toward yͤ ſouth iiii. a day, and toward Aſuppim, two ⁊ two.
In Pharbar towarde the weſte, two at the goinge vp, and two in Pharbar. Theſe are the deuyſions of the porters amonge the ſonnes of Coreh, and amonge the ſonnes of Merari. And of the Leuytes, Ahiah had the ouerſight of the treaſure of yͤ houſe of God, and of the treaſure of the dedicate thynges.
C As concernyng the ſõnes of Laadan which were the chyldren of the Gerſonites. Of Laadan came aunciente fathers: euen of Laadan there came Gerſuni ⁊ Jehieli: The ſonnes of Jehieli: zethan and Joel hys brother, whiche were ouer the treaſures of the houſe of the lord. Of the Amramites alſo ⁊ Izaharites, Hebronites and Ozielites, was Subuell the ſonne of Gerſon, the ſonne of Moſes, a ruler ouer yͤ treaſures. And of his brethrẽ yͤ ſonnes of Eliezer was Rahabiahu, whoſe ſon was Iſaiahu, whoſe ſonne was Jorã, whoſe ſonne was zichri, whoſe ſonne was Selomith, whych Selomith and hys brethren were ouer all the treaſures of the dedicate thynges which Dauid the kynge, ⁊ the aunciente fathers the capitaynes ouer thouſandes ⁊ hundredes, and the captaines of the hoſt had dedicated out of the ſpoiles wonne in battayles: they did dedicate thẽ to maintaine the houſe of the Lord: and al that Samuell the ſear, ⁊ Saul the ſon of Cis, ⁊ Abner the ſonne of Ner, and Joab the ſõne D of zaruia had dedicated, ⁊ whoſoeuer had dedicate any thyng, it was vnder the hande of Selomith ⁊ of his brethren. Of the Izaharites was Chenaniahu and his ſonnes, appointed to yͤ buſyneſſe wͭ out forth ouer Iſraell, for they were officers ⁊ iudges. And of yͤ Hebronites, Aſabiahu and his brethren, men of actiuitie, a thouſand ⁊ ſeuen hundred were officers among thẽ of Iſrael beyonde Jordan weſtward, in al buſineſſe belonging to God, and ſeruyce of the kyng. Amonge yͤ Hebronites was Jedia the chefeſt, euen a prynce among the Hebronites and fathers of his kynred. And in the. xl. yeare of yͤ kingdome of Dauid they were ſought for. And there were found among thẽ mẽ of actiuitie, at Jazer in Gilead. And hys brethren were men of actiuitie, euen two thouſande ⁊ ſeuen hundred auncient fathers, whõ king Dauid made rulers ouer the Rubenites, Gaddites, and ouer yͤ halfe tribe of Manaſſe, for euery Matter pertaynynge to God, and for the kynges buſyneſſe.

The. xxvii. Chapter.

Of the princes ⁊ rulers that miniſtred vnto yͤ kinge. A

And Ahitophel was of the kynges counſayle. And Huſai the Arachyte was the kinges companyon. And nexte to Ahitophel was Jehoiada the ſonne of Banaiahu and Abiathar. And the captayne of the kynges warre, was Joab.

The.xxviii.Chapter.

Becauſe Dauid was forbydden to builde the temple, he exhorteth Salomon and the people to perfourme it.

A AND Dauid gathered together all yͤ lordes of Jſraell: the lordes of the tribes, the lordes of the companyes yͭ miniſtred to the kyng by courſe, yͤ captaines ouer thouſandes ⁊ ouer hũdredes, ⁊ the lordes that had the ouerſyght ouer all the ſubſtaunce and poſſeſſion of Dauid, his ſonnes, wyth the chamberlaynes: all the myghty and valyaunte, and all actyue men vnto Jeruſalem. And kynge Dauid ſtode vp vpõ his fete, ⁊ ſaid. Heare me my brethrẽ and my people. *J had in my hert to builde an houſe of reſt for the arke of the couenaũt of the Lorde, and for the foote ſtole of our God: and had made redy for the buildyng. But God ſaid vnto me: *yͧ ſhalt not builde an houſe for my name, becauſe thou haſt ben a mã of warre, and haſt ſhed bloude. More-

B ouer, yͤ lord God of Jſrael *choſe me before all yͤ houſe of my father, to be king ouer Jſraell for euer: for in Juda would he choſe a captayne, and of the houſholde of Juda is the houſe of my father, and among yͤ ſõnes of my father he had a luſt to me to make me king ouer al Jſrael. And of al my ſõnes (for yͤ lord hath gyuen me many ſonnes) he hath choſen Salomon my ſonne to ſyt vpon the ſeate of the kingdome of the lorde in Jſrael. And he ſayde vnto me: *Salomon thy ſonne, he ſhall buylde me an houſe and courtes: J haue choſen hym to be my ſon, ⁊ J wil be his father. J wil ſtabliſh his kingdome for euer, if he wil be ſtronge, to do my

And pure gold in wayght for baſens, euen for euery baſen. And likewyſe ſiluer by wayght for euery baſen of ſiluer. And for the alter of inſence pure golde by waight. And golde for yͤ paterne of yͤ charet of the cherubs yͭ ſtretched out their winges, and couered the arke of the couenaunte of yͤ lord. All (ſayd he) was gyuen me by wrytyng of yͤ hande of the Lord, which made me vnderſtãde al the workemanſhip of yͤ paterne. And Dauid ſaid to Salomon his ſonne: be ſtrõg, ⁊ do manfully, feare not, nor be fainte herted: for the Lorde God, euen my God is with the, and he ſhall not fayle the, nor forſake the, vntill thou haſte finiſhed all the worke that muſte ſerue for the houſe of the Lorde. Beholde, the prieſtes and Leuites are deuyded in companies for all maner of ſeruice that perteineth to the houſe of God: they are with the for al maner of workmanſhyp, and ſo are all that excell in wiſdom for anye maner of ſeruice. Thou haſte alſo the Lordes and all the people for euery thynge that thou haſt nede of.

The.xxix.Chapter.

The offerynges of Dauid, and of the princes for the buyldynge of the temple. Dauid dyeth: and Salomon his ſonne raygneth in his ſtede.

And Dauid the kyng ſayd vnto al A the congregacion: *God hath ſpe- 3.reg.5.a. cially choſen Salomon my ſonne whiche is yet yong and tendre, and the worke is great: for the houſe ſhall not be for man, but for the lord God. Moreouer, I haue prepared with al my might for yͤ houſe of God, gold for veſſels of golde, ſiluer for them of ſiluer, braſſe for thynges of braſſe, yron for thynges of yron, ⁊ wood for thynges of wood: and onix ſtones, and ſtones to be ſet, glyſtryng ſtones, ⁊ of diuers coloure, and all maner of preciouſe ſtones, ⁊ marble ſtones in greate aboundaunce. And becauſe I haue luſte to yͤ houſe of my God: I haue of myne owne proper good, of gold ⁊ ſiluer which I haue ſeuerally gyuen to the houſe of my God, beſyde al that I haue prepared for the holy houſe, euen thre thouſand talentes of golde of Ophir, and ſeuen thouſande B talentes of tried ſiluer, to ouer lay the walles of the houſes withall: the golde for thynges of golde, ſiluer for them of ſiluer, and for all maner of worke by the handes of artificers. And whoſoeuer is willynge maye this daye conſecrate hys hande vnto the Lorde. And ſo the auncient fathers and the lordes of the tribes of Iſrael, the captaines of thouſãdes and hundredes, with the lordes that were rulers ouer the kynges worke, were willing, and gaue for yͤ ſeruice of the houſe of God, fyue thouſande talentes of golde, and ten thouſand peces of golde, and ten thouſande talentes of ſiluer, and.xviii.thouſande talentes of braſſe, and one hundred thouſande talentes of yron. And they with whome precious ſtones were founde, gaue them to the C treaſure of the houſe of the lord, by the hãde of Iehiel the Gerſonyte. And the people reioyſed when they were ſo wyllynge to gyue their goodes, and with a perfect hearte they offered vnto the lord. And Dauid the kyng reioyſed with greate gladneſſe. And Dauid bleſſed the Lorde before all the congregacion, and ſayd: Bleſſed be thou lord God of Iſrael our father, frō euer ⁊ for euer. Thyne (O Lorde) is greatneſſe and power, glorie, victory and prayſe: for all that is in heauen and in earthe, is thine: and thine is the kingdom (O Lord) and thou excelleſt aboue al, euen as yͤ head of al. And richeſſe ⁊ honour come of the, and thou reygneſt ouer all, and in thyne hande is power and ſtrength, and in thyne hande it is to make greate, and to thy teſtimonies, and thy ſtatutes, and to do all, and to builde the houſe, for the whiche I haue made prouiſion. And Dauid ſayde to al the cōgregacion: Now bleſſe yͤ lord your God. And all the congregacion bleſſed the lord God of their fathers, ⁊ bowed downe their heades, and worſhipped the Lord and the kynge. And they offred offrynges vnto the Lord. And on the morowe after the ſayd daye, they offred burnt offrynges vnto the lord, euen a thouſande yong oxen, a thouſād F rammes, and a thouſande ſheepe, with their drynkoffrynges. Manye ſacrifices offred they for all Iſraell, ⁊ dyd eate and drynke before the Lorde the ſame daye, with greate gladneſſe. And they made Salomon the ſonne of Dauid kynge the ſecond tyme, and anoynted him prince before the Lorde: and Zadoc to be the hye preaſt. *And Salomō ſate on the ſeate of the lorde, and was kyng in ſtede of Dauid his father, and proſpered: ⁊ all they of Iſrael obeyed hym. And al the lordes and men of power, ⁊ al the ſonnes of kyng Dauid ſubmitted them ſelues, ⁊ were vnder kynge Salomon. *And the Lorde magnified Salomon in dignitie, in yͤ ſyght of all thē of Iſrael, ⁊ gaue him ſo glorious a kyngdome, as no kyng had before hym in Iſraell. And ſo Dauid the ſon of Iſai reygned G ouer all Iſrael. And the ſpace that he reygned ouer Iſrael was .xl. yere: ſeuē yere reygned he in Hebron, and .xxxiii. yere reygned he in Jeruſalē: ⁊ he dyed in a good age, full of dayes, ryches and honour. And Salomon his ſonne reygned in his ſtede. The 3.reg.10.d reigned ouer Iſraell. * And Salomon gathered charetes and horſemen: and he had a thouſādc ⁊ foure hundred charets, ⁊ .xii. M. horſmē, whō be beſtowed in yͤ charet cyties, and wͭ the kyng at Jeruſalē. And * the king 3.reg.10.d made ſiluer ⁊ gold at Jeruſalē as plēteous as ſtones: ⁊ cedre trees made he as plentye as the mulbery trees yͭ grow in the valeys: and the horſes whiche Salomon had, were brought him out of Egipt by yͤ kinges marchātes that were togither: whiche beyng of one cōpanye, toke them out at a price. They came alſo ⁊ brought out of Egipte a charet for ſyxe hundred peces of ſiluer: euē an horſe for an hūdred ⁊ fyftie. And ſo brought they horſes for all the kynges of the Hethytes, ⁊ for the kynges of Syria by their own hāde.

The. ii. Chapter.

Salomon ſendeth to Hiram the kynge of Tyre for wood and workemen.

A AND Salomō determined to builde an houſe for the name of the lord, and an houſe for his kyngdom: and Salomō tolde out thre ſcore and ten thouſande men to beare burthens, and foure ſcore thouſand men to hew ſtones in the mountayne: ⁊ thre thouſande and ſyxe hundred to ouerſe them.
* And Salomon ſent to Hiram the kynge 3.reg.5.a of Tyre, ſaying: As thou dyddeſt deale with Dauid my father, ⁊ * dyddeſt ſend him Cedre 2.reg.5.b. wood to builde him an houſe to dwel in, euen ſo deale with me. For I am about to builde an houſe for the name of the lord my God, to offre vnto him holy thynges, and to burne ſwete incēſe, and to ſet ſhewbread before him continuallye: to offre burnt ſacrifices of the mornynge and euenynge: on the Sabboth dayes, in the firſt daye of euerye new moone, ⁊ in the ſolempne feaſtes of the lord our God: for it is an ordinaunce to be continually kepte of Iſrael. And the houſe B whiche I builde ſhalbe greate, for great is our God aboue al gods: But who is hable to builde him an houſe, when that heauen, ⁊ heauen aboue all heauens, is not hable to receyue him? What am I thē that I ſhould build hym an houſe? nay, but euen to burne ſacrifice before him, ſhall this buildyng be: ſende me now therfore a connynge mā that can worke in golde ⁊ ſiluer, in braſſe ⁊ yron, in purple, cremoſyn and yelowe ſylke, ⁊ that can ſkyl to graue wͭ the cōnyng mē that are with me in Juda and Jeruſalē, whom Dauid my father dyd prepare. Sende me alſo Cedre trees, Pyne trees, ⁊ Almuge trees out of Libanon. For I wot yͭ thy ſeruauntes cā ſkyl to hewe tymbre in Libanon. And beholde, my men ſhalbe with thine, that they may prepare me tymbre ynough. For the C houſe whiche I am determyned to buylde, ſhalbe wondreful great. And beholde, for yͤ vſe of thy ſeruauntes yͤ cutters and hewers of tymbre, I haue gyuē .xx. thouſande quarters of beaten wheate, ⁊ .xx. thouſande quarters of barly, ⁊ .xx. thouſande bates of wine, grauynges, and fynde out diuers maner of ſubtle worke that ſhalbe ſet before him, with thy connynge men, and with the connynge men of my Lorde Dauid thy father. Nowe therfore the wheat & barlye, oyle and wyne, which my Lord hath ſpoken of, let him ſẽde vnto his ſeruauntes. And we will cut wood in Libanon as muche as thou ſhalt nede, & will brynge it to the in ſhyppes by ſea to Japho, frõ whence thou mayſt carye them to Jeruſalem. And Salomon numbred all the ſtraungers yͭ were in yͤ lande of Iſrael, after the numbre of them whom his father Dauid had numbred. And they wer founde an hũdred.liii.thouſande, and ſyxe hũdred.

ſyxe hũdred officers to ſet yͤ people a worke.

The.iii. Chapter.

The temple of the lorde, and the porche are builded, with other thinges thereto belongynge.

A AND Salomon began to buylde the inwardes. And he made a fore hangynge of yelowe ſilke, purple, crymoſyn, & fyne whyte, and cauſed the pyctures of Cherubs to be D brodred thereon. And he made before the houſe two pyllers of.xxxv.cubites hye. And the head that was aboue on the top of eue-ry one of them, was.v.cubites, and he made chaynes of wrethen worke for the quere, & put them on the heades of the pyllers, and made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on the chaynes. And he reared vp the pillers before the temple, one on the right hande, & the other on the left: and called the ryght Jachin, and the left Boaz.

The.iiii. Chapter.

The aulter of braſſe, the lauatorye, the veſſels to waſhe with, the candleſtyckes. &c.

AND he made an aulter of braſſe, xx. cu- A paterne that was giuen of thē)and put thē in the temple:fyue on the right hande, and fyue on yͤ left.And he made alſo ten tables, and put thē in the temple:fyue on the ryght C ſyde,and fyue on the lefte.And he made an hundred baſens of golde.And he made the court of the prieſtes and the great court and dores to it:and ouerlayed the doores of thē with braſſe. And he ſet the great lauatorye on the right ſide of yͤ eaſt ende ouer agaynſt the ſouth.And Hiram made pottes,ſhouels and baſens, and finiſhed the worke that he was appoynted to make for kyng Salomō in the houſe of God. The two pillers, the couerynges or two heades on the toppes of the pillers,and the two wrethes to couer the two ſcalpes or heades that were on the toppes of the pillers:and foure hundred pomegranates on the two wrethes,two rowes of pomgranates on one wreth,to couer the two toppes or heades,that were on the pyllers. And he made two botomes:⁊ lauers made he vpon the botomes:the great lauatorye,⁊ twelue oxen vnder it.Pottes alſo ⁊ ſhouels, fleſhhokes,and all theſe veſſels dyd Hiram (his father)make to kyng Salomō, for the houſe of the Lorde of bryght braſſe. In the D playne of Jordan dyd the kynge caſt them, euen in the claye grounde that is betwene Socoth ⁊ zaredatha.And Salomō made al theſe veſſelles in great aboundaunce, for the wayght of braſſe could not be reckened. And Salomon made all the veſſelles that were for the houſe of God:the goldē aulter alſo,⁊ the tables to ſet the ſhewbread vpon. Moreouer,the candleſtickes, wͭ their lāpes (to burne after the maner before the quere) and that of preciouſe golde:and the floures, and the lampes,and the ſnoffers made he of golde,and that perfecte gold,⁊ the dreſſyng knyues,baſens,ſpones,and cenſers of pure golde.And(he made)the dore of the temple,⁊ the inner dores wythin the place moſt holy, and the inner dores of the temple were gylted.And ſo was al the worke that Salomō made for the houſe of the Lorde, finiſhed.

The.v.Chapter.

The arke is brought into the temple, whiche is fylled with the glorye of the lorde.

A ANd ſo al the worke that Salomō made in the houſe of the lord was finiſſhed:and*Salomon brought in all the thynges that Dauid hys father had dedicated, with the ſyluer and golde,and all the iewels, and put them amonge the treaſures of the houſe of God.

3.reg.7.g.

3.reg.8.a. Then*Salomon gathered the elders of Iſraell togyther, and all the heades of the tribes,and auncient fathers of the children of Iſrael vnto Jeruſalem,to bring the arke of the couenaūt of the Lorde out of the cytie of Dauid whiche is zion.Wherfore,all the men of Iſraell reſorted vnto the kynge in the feaſt, euen in the.vii.moneth.And al the elders of Iſrael came,and the Leuites toke vp the arke.And the prieſtes and the Leuites B brought awaye the arke and the tabernacle of wytneſſe,and all the holy veſſelles yͭ were in the tabernacle,and they bare thē. The.viii. Chapter.

The cities that Salomon builded after that the houſe of God was fynyſhed.

3.reg.9.b AND *it fortuned, that after.xx. yere, whē Salomon had buylte the houſe of the Lord, and hys owne houſe: he built the cyties ẏ Hiram gaue hym, ⁊ put of the children of Iſrael in thē. And Salomō wēt to Hamath zoba, and ſtrengthed it. And he built Thadmor in ẏ wildernes, ⁊ repaired al ẏ ſtore cities which were in Hamath. And he built Bethoron the vpper, and Bethoron the nether, ſtrong cityes, hauynge walles, gates and barres. And Baalah, and all the B ſtore cityes that Salomon had, and all the charet cities, and the Cities of the horſemen, ⁊ euery pleaſaunt place that Salomon had luſt to builde in Ieruſalem, ⁊ Libanon, and thorowout al the lande of his dominiō. And al the people that were lefte of the Hethites, Amorytes, Pherefites, Heuites, and Iebuſites, whiche were not of the children of Iſrael, but were the children of them whiche were lefte after them in the lande, and were not cōſumed of the children of Iſrael, them dyd Salomon make to paye tribute vntyll this daye. But of the children of Iſrael dyd Salomō make no bondmen for his worke: but they were men of warre, and rulers, and great lordes with hym, and captaynes ouer his charettes ⁊ horſemen. And kynge Salomons officers that ouer ſawe, and ruled ẏ C people, were two hundred and fyftie. And Salomon brought ẏ doughter of Pharao oute of the citie of Dauid, into ẏ houſe that he had builded for her. For he ſayd: my wife ſhall not dwel in the houſe of Dauid kynge of Iſrael, for it is holy: becauſe that ẏ Arke of the Lord is come vnto it. Then Salomō offred burnt offrynges vnto the Lorde, on the aultare of the lorde, which he had builte before the porche, doynge euerye thynge in his due tyme, and offerynge according to the commaundement of Moſes, in the Sabbothes, newe Moones, and ſolēpne feaſtes, *thre tymes in the yeare: that is to ſay, in the Exo. feaſt of ſwete bread, in the feaſt of weekes, ⁊ Deu. in the feaſte of Tabernacles. And Salomō ſet the ſortes of preaſtes to their offices, as Dauid his father had ordered them: and the Leuites in their watches, for to prayſe and miniſter before the prieſtes day by day, ⁊ the porters by courſe, at euery gate. *For ſo had 1.Pa.
Dauid the man of God commaunded. And D they omytted not the commaundement of the kyng vnto the preaſtes and the Leuites, concernynge any maner of thyng, and concernyng the treaſures. For Salomon made prouiſion for the charges, from the firſt day that the foundacion of the houſe of the lord was layd, till it was fyniſhed, that the houſe of the Lorde was perfyte. Then went kyng Salomon to Ezion Gaber, and to Eloth at the (red) ſee ſyde in the lande of Edom. And Hiram ſente hym by the hande of his ſeruauntes, ſhyppes, and ſeruauntes that had knowledge of ẏ ſea: and they came with the ſeruauntes of Salomon to Ophir, and ca-ryed thence foure hundred and fyfty talentes of golde,⁊ broughte it to kynge Salomon.

The.ix.Chapter.

The communicacion of Salomon with the quene of death of Salomon, after whõ succedeth Rehoboam.

3.Re.10.a AND* when yͤ Quene of Saba heard Mat.13.d of the fame of Salomõ,ſhe came to Luk.10.d proue hym in hard queſtions at Ieruſalem, wyth a very greate company,with was there any more ſuch ſpyce,as yͤ Quene, of Saba gaue kynge Salomon . And the ſeruauntes of Hyram,and the ſeruauntes of Salomon which brought golde frõ Ophir brought alſo Algume wood and precyous ſtones. And the kynge made of the Algume wood ſteyres in the houſe of yͤ Lord,and in the kynges palace,⁊ harpes and pſalteryes for ſyngers. And there was no ſuche wood ſene before in the land of Iuda. And kyng Salomon gaue to yͤ Quene of Saba euery pleaſaunt thynge that ſhe aſked,but not ſo much as ſhe brought vnto the kyng. And ſo ſhe turned and wente awaye to her owne hundred ſycles of beaten golde were ſpent vpon one bucler:and thre hundred ſhyldes made he of beaten golde,and one ſhylde coſt thre hundred peces of golde:and the kynge put them in the houſe that was in the foreſt of Libanon. And the kynge made a greate ſeate of Iuory,and ouerlayde it wyth pure golde. And there were ſyxe ſteppes to yͤ ſeat, wyth a foteſtole of golde faſtened to yͤ ſeat, and pommels on eche ſyde of the ſyttynge

The.xiii. Chapter.

The victory of Abia agaynſt Jeroboam.

THe.xviii,yeare of kynge Jeroboam A *began Abia to raygne ouer Juda, *3.re.15.a and he rayned thre yeare in Jeruſalẽ.
His mothers name alſo was Michaiahu yͤ daughter of Vryell of Gibea . And there was warre betwene Abia and Jeroboam.
And Abia made prouiſion for the warre, warre, hauing valeaunte and expert men of warre, euen .iiii. C. M. choſen men. And Jeroboam ſet hym ſelfe in aray to fyghte agaynſte hym wyth .viii. C. M pycte men, whyche were ſtronge and men of armes.

And Abia ſtode vp vpon zemaraim an hill, whiche is in mount Ephraim, ⁊ ſayde: heare me thou Jeroboā ⁊ all Iſraell. Do not you knowe howe that the Lorde God of Iſrael gaue the kyngdome ouer them of Iſrael, to Dauid for euer, euen to hym and to hys ſonnes wyth a ſalted couenaunte? And Jeroboam the ſonne of Nebat the ſeruaunt of Salomon the ſonne of Dauid, is ryſen vp, and hath rebelled agaynſt his lord. And B there gathered to hym lewde men the chyldrē of Belial, and preuailed againſte Rehoboā the ſonne of Salomon, when Rehoboam was yong and tender herted, and could not ſtande before them. And nowe ye ſaye, that ye be able to preuayle agaynſte the kyngdome of the Lorde, whyche is in the hande of the ſonnes of Dauid, and ye be a greate 3.re.12.f multitude, ⁊ haue the golden calues which Jeroboā made you for goddes. ‡And haue ‡2.pa.11.c ye not caſte out the prieſtes of the Lorde the ſonnes of Aaron, and the Leuites, and haue made you prieſtes after the maner of the nacyons of other landes? ſo that whoſoeuer commeth and conſecrateth hys hand wyth a yonge oxe and .vii. rammes, the ſame may be a Prieſte of them that are no goddes.

And whē they of Juda loked aboute, beholde, the battayle was before and behynde, and they cryed vnto the lord, and the preſtes blewe wᵗ the trompettes, and the men of Juda gaue a ſhoute. And as the men of Juda ſhouted, it came to paſſe, that God ſmote Jeroboam and al Iſrael before Abia ⁊ Juda. And the chyldren of Iſrael fled before Juda, ⁊ God D deliuered thē into theyr hande. And Abia ⁊ hys people ſlue a greate ſlaughter of them: there fel downe woūded of Iſrael .v. C. M. choſen men. And ſo the chyldren of Iſraell were broughte vnder at that tyme: and the chyldren of Juda preuayled, becauſe they leaned vnto the Lord God of theyr fathers. And Abia folowed after Jeroboam, ⁊ toke cytyes from hym: Bethel, wyth the townes belonging therto: Jeſana, wyth the townes that longed therto: and Ephron wyth her townes. And Jereboā recouered no ſtrēgth agayn in the dayes of Abia. And the Lorde plaged hym, and he dyed. But Abia waxed myghtie, and maryed .xiiii wyues, and begat .xxii. ſonnes, and .xvi daughters. The reſt of yͤ actes of Abia, his cuſtomes ⁊ his ſayinges are wrytten in the ſtory of yͤ prophet Jddo.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

Of Aſa kynge of Juda.

SO Abia ſlepte wᵗ his fathers, ⁊ they A buried hym in the cytie of Dauid, ⁊ * Aſa his ſonne reigned in his ſteade: In whoſe daies the land was in quyetneſſe ten yeare. And * Aſa did that was good and ryghte in the eyes of the Lorde hys God: for he toke awaye ſtraunge aulters and the hilaulters, and brake downe the ymages, and cut downe the groues, and cōmaunded Juda to ſeke the Lorde God of theyr fathers, and to do accordynge to the lawe and commaundemente. And he put awaye out of all the cytyes of Juda, the hylaulters and the ymages: and the kyngdome was quyete before hym. And he buylte ſtronge Cityes in Juda: becauſe the lande was in reſt, and he had no warre in thoſe yeres.

For the Lorde had geuen hym reſte. Therfore he ſayd to Juda: let vs buyld theſe B Cityes ⁊ make aboute them walles, towres, gates, and barres, for the lande is yet in reſt before vs, becauſe we haue ſought the lorde our God: we haue ſought hym, and he hath geuen vs reſt on euery ſyde: ⁊ ſo they builte, and it proſpered wyth thē. And Aſa had an army of men that bare ſhildes and ſpeares: out of Juda, thre hundred thouſande: ⁊ out of Ben Jamin yͤ bare ſhyldes, ⁊ drue bowes, two hundred ⁊ foure ſcore thouſand, al theſe were valiaūt mē. And ther came out againſt C thē, zarah yͤ blacke Morian * wᵗ an hoſte of *2.pa.16 ten hundred thouſand, ⁊ thre hundred charettes, ⁊ came as farre as Mareſa. And Aſa went out before him, ⁊ they ioined yͤ battayll in yͤ valley of zephata beſide Mareſa. And Aſa cried vnto the lord his God, ⁊ ſaid: lord it

3.reg.14.D *It is no harde thyng with the to helpe either many, or them that haue no power: helpe vs therfore, O lord our god, for we truſt to the, & in thy name we go agaynſt this multitude. Thou art the Lorde oure god, and no man ſhal preuaile againſt the.

D So the lord ſmote ẏ blacke mores before Aſa and Juda, & the blacke mores fled. And Aſa & the people that was with him folowed after them vnto Gerer. And the blacke mores hooſt was ouerthrowen, ẏ there was none of them lefte, but were deſtroyed before the lord and before his hoſt. And they caryed awaye a mightye greate pray. And they ſmote al the cities round about Gerer. For ẏ feare of ẏ lord came vpon thẽ. And they ſpoiled al ẏ cities, & ther was exceding much ſpoile in thẽ: thei ſmote alſo ẏ tentes of cattel, & caried away plẽty of ſhepe & camels, & returned to Jeruſalẽ.

The .xv. Chapter.

Kyng Aſa by the monicion of the prophete Azaria, ſacrifyceth to the Lord. He depriueth his mother of her dominion.

A AND ẏ ſprite of god came vpõ Azaria, the ſonne of Obed. And he wente out to mete Aſa, and ſaid vnto him: heare me Aſa, & al Juda, & Ben Jamin. The lord is with you, while ye be with him, & when ye ſeke hym, he wil be found of you: and agayne, when ye forſake hym, he alſo wyll forſake you. And truly for a long ſeaſon in Iſrael no man ſought the true god, no mã regarded the prieſt that taught them, no man cared for ẏ law. And whẽ any man in his trouble dyd turne vnto the lord god of Iſrael, and ſought him, he was founde of them. And in that tyme there was no peace to hym, that dyd go out and in: but greate ſedityon was there among al the enhabyters of the earth. And nacion was deſtroyed of nacion, and citie of citie: For god did moue al aduerſitie among them. Playe ye therefore the men, and let not your handes

B ſlacke, for your worke ſhall be rewarded. And whẽ Aſa heard thoſe wordes, and the prophecye of Azarya, the ſonne of Obed ẏ prophete, he tooke courage, and put away the abhominable ydols out of al the lande of Juda and Ben Jamin, and out of the cityes which he wanne in mount Ephraim: and renued the Alter of the lord, that was before the portche of the Lorde. And he gathered all Juda and Ben Jamin, and the ſtraungers wyth them oute of Ephraim, Manaſſe, and Symeon. For there fel many to hym out of Iſraell, when they ſawe that the lorde his god was with him. So they aſſembled at Jeruſalem the thyrde moneth, the fiftenth yere of the reigne of Aſa. And they offered vnto the Lord ẏ ſame time of the ſpoile which they had brought, vii. hundred oxen, and vii. thouſand ſhepe.

C And they made a couenaunt to ſeke ẏ lorde God of theyr fathers, with all theyr heart, and al theyr ſoule. And whoſoeuer would not ſeke the lord god of Iſrael, ſhould dye for it: whether he were ſmall or great, mã or woman. And they ſware vnto the lorde with a loude voyce, ſhouting and blowing with trompets & ſhawmes. And al they in Juda reioyſed at the othe, for they hadde ſworne vnto the lord with al theyr heart, & ſought hym with al theyr luſt, and he was found of them. And the lorde gaue thẽ reſte rõd about on euery ſide.

D And king Aſa put Maacha his mother out of auctoritye, becauſe ſhe had made an abhominable ydole (of Priapus) ĩ a groue: & Aſa brake down her idole, & ſtamped it, and burnt it at ẏ broke Cedron. But all the hillalters were not taken away out of Iſraell: though the hearte of Aſa was perfecte al his dayes. And he brought into the houſe of God ẏ thinges ẏ his father had dedicate, & that he himſelfe hadde dedicate: euen ſiluer, and golde, and Jewelles. And there was no more warre vnto the .*xxxv. yere of the reygne of Aſa. Judi.3.b.

The .xvi. Chapter.

Aſa for feare of Baaſa king of Iſrael, maketh a couenaunt with Benhadad kinge of Syria.

A 3.reg.15.c. IN the .xxxvi. yere of ẏ reygne of Aſa, came *Baaſa king of Iſrael vp againſt Juda, & built Rama, to thentent ẏ he woulde lette none paſſe out or in (ſafely) to Aſa kyng of Juda. And Aſa fet out gold and ſiluer, out of the treaſures of the houſe of the Lorde, and of the kinges houſe, and ſent to Benhadad kyng of Siria ẏ dwelt at Darmeſec, and ſayd. Ther is a confederacion betwene me and the, betwene my father and thyne. Beholde, I haue ſent the ſiluer and golde, ẏ thou wilt come and breake thine appoyntmente with Baaſa king of Iſrael, that he

B may depart frõ me. And Benhadad graũted vnto kyng Aſa, and ſent the captaynes of hys armye to the cytyes of Iſraell. And they ſmote Ijon, Dan, and Abelmain, and the ſtrong cityes of Nephthaly. And whẽ Baaſa hearde thys, he lefte buyldynge of Rama, and lette hys worke ceaſſe. And then Aſa the kyng tooke all Juda, and caried away the ſtones and timber of Rama wherewith Baaſa was a buylding, and he builte therewyth Geba and Mizpa.

C At thatſame tyme Hanani the ſear came to Aſa kyng of Juda, and ſayd vnto him: becauſe thou haſte truſted in the Kynge of Syria, and not rather put thy truſte in the Lord thy god, therefore is the hooſt of the kyng of Syria eſcaped out of thyne hand. *Had not the blacke Mores, and Lubim 2.pa.14.c, an excedyng great hooſt, with manye charettes and horſemen? And yet becauſe thou truſtedſt in the Lorde, he deliuered them into thine hand. For the eyes of the Lorde beholde all the earth, to ſtrength them that Gen,31.d. are of perfect heart to warde hym. Herein ii.reg.13.c thou haſte done foliſhely, and therefore frõ D henceforth thou ſhalt haue warre. And Aſa was wroth with the ſear, and put him into a pryeſon houſe, for he was diſpleaſed with hym, becauſe of this thyng. And Aſa deſtroyed certayne of the people the ſame ſeaſon. And behold, theſe dedes of Aſa firſt and laſte, are written in the booke of the kynges of Juda and Iſraell. And Aſa in the.xxxix.yeare of hys reygne, fell ſycke in hys fete, and that dyſeaſe contynued verye Ecc.38.a. long. And in his ſyckenes, he ſought not the Lorde, but phyſicions. And Aſa ſlepte with hys fathers, and dyed in the.xli.yeare of hys reygne. And they buryed him in his owne ſepulchre, whiche he hadde made for hymſelfe in the Citye of Dauid, and layde hym in the bed whiche he hadde filled wyth dyuerſe kindes of ſpices and ſwete odours, made by the crafte of the poticaries. And they burnt very muche ſpyce aboute hym

The.xvii. Chapter.

Jehoſaphat cauſeth the feare of the Lorde to be reuiued among the people.

A Mat.1,b. AND* Jehoſaphat his ſõne reigned in his ſteade, and preuayled againſte Iſraell. And he putte ſouldyers in al the ſtrong cities of Juda, ⁊ ſet rulers in the land of Juda, ⁊ in yͤ cities of Ephraim, whiche Aſa his father had won. And the lord was with Jehoſaphat, becauſe he walked in the olde waies of his father Dauid, ⁊ ſoughte not Baalim: But ſought yͤ lord god of his father, ⁊ walked in his cõmaundementes: ⁊ not after the doinges of Iſrael. And yͤ lord ſtabliſhed yͤ kingdom in his hand, ⁊ al thei yͭ were in Juda, brought him preſentes, ſo yͭ he had aboundaunce of riches ⁊ honor. And he lyft vp hys hearte vnto the wayes of the lord. ⁊ he put down yet more of yͤ hil alters and groues out of Juda.

In the thyrde yeare of hys reygne, he ſente to hys lordes, euen to Benhail, B Obadia, Zacharia, Nethanel, and to Michaahu, that they ſhould teache in the cityes of Juda, and with them he ſente Leuites: euen Semeiahu, Nethaniahu, Zabadiahu, Aſahel, Semiramoth, Jehonathã, Adoniahu, Tobiahu and Tubadonia, and with them Elyſamath and Jehoram Pryeſtes. And they taught in Juda, and had the booke of the lawe of God with them, and wente aboute throughout all the cytyes of Juda, and taught the people. And the feare of the C Lorde fell vpon all the kyngdomes of the landes that were round about Juda, and thei foughte not againſte Jehoſaphat: and ſome of the Philiſtines broughte Jehoſaphat giftes and tribute ſyluer. And thereto the Arabians brought hym cattel: euen vii.M.and.vii.C.rams, and.vii.M.⁊.vii.C.he gotes. And ſo Jehoſophat proſpered and grewe vp on hye. And he buylt in Juda, caſtels and ſtrong cityes, and he hadde great ſubſtaunce in the cities of Juda, but the men of armes and ſtrongeſt ſouldyers were in Jeruſalem. And theſe are the offyces of them in the houſes of theyr fathers, the captaynes ouer thouſandes in Juda. D Adna the captayne, and with him of fightyng men.iii.C.M. And nexte to his bande was Jehohanan a captaine, and with him ii.C.and.lxxx.M. And next hym was Amazia the ſonne of Zichry, whiche of hys owne good wyll offred hymſelfe vnto the Lorde, and wyth hym.ii.C.M.myghtye men of warre. And of the chyldren of BenJamin, Eliada a man of myghte, and had with hym armed men wyth bowe ⁊ ſhilde ii.C.M. And next hym was Jehoſabad, ⁊ with hym an.C.lxxx.M.that wer prepared for the war. Theſe waited on the king, beſides thoſe whiche the kynge putte in the ſtrong cityes throughout all Juda.

The.xviii. Chapter.

After Ahab had aſked councell of the foure hundred prophetes, he put Michea in pryeſon. He dieth wyth the ſhotte of an arrowe.

A AND Jehoſaphat had aboundaunce of ryches and honoure, and ioyned affynytie wyth Ahab. And* after cer- 3.re tain yeares he wẽt down to Ahab to Samaria. And Ahab ſlue many ſhepe and oxẽ for him, ⁊ for yͤ people yͭ he had with him, ⁊ entreated him to go vp wͭ him vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And Ahab king of Iſrael ſaid to Jehoſaphat kinge of Juda: wilte yͧ go wyth me to Ramoth in Gilead? And he answered him: I will bee as thou, and my people ſhalbee as thyne, and wee wyll goe with the to the war. And Jehoſaphat ſaid B vnto yͤ king of Iſrael: aſke counſel I pray the at the worde of the lord this ſame day.

Therefore the king of Iſrael gathered together of prophetes. iiii. C. men, and ſayde vnto them: ſhall we goe to Ramoth in Gilead to fyght, or ſhoulde I ceaſſe? And they ſaid: go vp, and god ſhal delyuer it into the kynges hande. But Jehoſaphat ſayde: is there yet here neuer a prophete more of the lordes that we myghte aſke of hym? And the kinge of Iſrael ſaide vnto Jehoſaphat: there is yet one man, by whome wee maye aſke the lorde. But I hate hym, for he neuer prophecieth me good, but alway euill, and the ſame is Michea the ſōne of Jimla.
And Jehoſaphat ſayd: lette not the kynge ſaye ſo. And the king of Iſrael called one of his chāberlains, & ſaid: fetche hither quickly Michea the ſonne of Jimla. And yͤ king of Iſrael, and Jehoſaphat king of Juda, ſat eyther of them on hys ſeate in theyr apparel, in a threſhyng floure beſyde the gate of Samaria, and all the Prophetes Prophecied before them. And one zedekia the ſonne of Canana had made him hornes of C yron, and ſayde: thus ſayeth the lord, with theſe ſhalt thou ouerthrowe Siria, vntyll they be brought to nought. And al the prophetes prophecied euen ſo, ſaying: Goe vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and it ſhall proſper went to cal Michea, ſpake to hym, ſaying: behold, yͤ wordes of the prophetes ſpeake good to the king with one aſſente, lette thy wordes therfore be like one of theyrs, that thou ſpeake that which is pleaſaunte. And Michea ſayd: as truly as the lorde lyueth, euē what my God ſaith, that wil I ſpeake.

And when he was come to the king, yͤ king ſaid vnto him: Michea, ſhoulde wee goe to Ramoth i Gilead to fight, or leaue of? And he ſaide: goe vp, and all ſhall be well: & they ſhalbee deliuered into your hande. And the but the truth to me, in the name of the lord.

Then he ſaide: I did ſee all them of Iſraell

The. xix. Chapter.

After Iehoſaphat was rebuked by yͤ prophet Iehu, he called again yͤ people to the honouring of yͤ lord.

A AND Iehoſaphat the kynge of Iuda came home again in peace to Ieruſalem. And Iehu the ſonne of Hanani yͤ ſear wẽt out to mete him, and ſayd to king Iehoſaphat: Wouldeſt thou helpe the vngodly, and loue them yͭ hate the lord? therfore is wrath come down vpon the, frõ before the lord. Neuertheleſſe, there are ſome good actes founde in the, in that thou haſt hewen down the groues out of the land, ⁊ haſt prepared thine heart to ſeke god. And ſo Iehoſaphat dwelte at Ieruſalem: and turned, and wente oute to the people from Berſeba to mount Ephraim, and brought B them agayne vnto the lorde God of theyr fathers. And he ſet iudges in the land thoroughout al the ſtrong cities of Iuda, cytie by citie, and ſaid to the iudges: take hede what ye dooe, for ye execute not the iudgementes of man, but of God: which is with you in the iudgemente. Wherfore now let the feare of the lord be vpon you, ⁊ take hede, and be doynge the thynge that pleaſeth hym: for there is no vnrighteouſneſſe with the lord our god: * yͭ he ſhoulde haue any reſpect of perſones, or take rewardes. C Moreouer in Ieruſalem did Iehoſaphat ſet of the Leuites, and of the Prieſtes, and of the aunciente fathers ouer Iſraell, in the iudgement and cauſe of the lorde. And they returned again to Ieruſalem. And he charged thẽ, ſaying: Thus ſhal ye doe in yͤ feare of the lord, with the truth and a pure hert: what cauſe ſo euer come to you of youre brethren that dwel in theyr cities, betwene bloude and bloude, betwene law and commaundement, betwene ſtatutes and ordinaunces, ye ſhal warne them that thei treſ- D paſſe not againſt the lord, ⁊ ſo wrath come vpon you and on your brethren. Thus do, and ye ſhal not offende. And behold, Amaria the hye prieſt is among you in all matters of the lord, and zebadia the ſone of Iſmael, a ruler of the houſe of Iuda, he is ouer ſuche buſineſſes as concerne the kinge: there bee officers of yͤ Leuites alſo before you. The. xx. Chapter.

The marueilous victory that the Lord gaue Iehoſaphat king of Iuda againſt the Moabites, and the children of Ammon, and them of Seir.

A AFter this alſo, it fortuned that yͤ chyldren of Moab and the childrẽ of Ammon, and wyth them other of yͤ Ammonites came againſt Iehoſophat to battaile. And there came ſome that told Iehoſaphat ſaying: there commeth a great multitude againſt the from the other ſide of the ſea, and out of Siria. And behold, they bee in Haſaſon Thamar, whiche is Engadi. And Iehoſaphat feared, and ſet hymſelf to ſeke the lord, and proclaimed faſtyng thoroughout all Iuda. And they that were in Iuda, gathered thẽſelues together to aſke counſel of the lord. And they came out of al the cities of Iuda to make interceſſion to yͤ lorde. And Iehoſaphat ſtoode betwene the congregacion of Iuda and Ieruſalem, in the houſe of the lorde before the new court, B and ſaid: O lorde god of oure fathers, arte not thou god in heauen, and raygneſt not thou on al the kyngdomes of the heathen? And in thine hande is power and mighte, and there is no man that is hable to wythſtand the. Art not thou oure God, whyche dideſt caſt out the inhabiters of this lande before thy people Iſraell, and gaueſt it to the ſede of Abraham thy louer for euer? And they dwelt therein, ⁊ haue buylte the a temple therein for thy name, ſaying: * yf euyl come vpõ vs, as the ſweord of iudgement, peſtilence, or hunger, then yf we ſtãd before this houſe in thy preſence, for thy name is in this houſe, and crye vnto the in oure tribulacion, heare thou and helpe. C And now beholde, the chyldren of Aminon and Moab, ⁊ mount Seir, by whõ yͧ wouldeſt not let thẽ of Iſrael go, whẽ thei came out of yͤ land of Egipt, but thei departed from thẽ, ⁊ deſtroied thẽ not: Se howe they reward vs, to come for to caſt vs out of thy poſſeſſiõ, which yͧ haſt geuẽ vs to enherit. O our god, wilt yͧ not iudge them? for we haue no might agaĩſt this great cõpany yͭ cõmeth againſt vs. Nether wote we what to do, but our eyes be vnto the. And al Iuda ſtode before yͤ lord wͭ their yonge ones, their wiues, ⁊ their childrẽ, ⁊ ther was Iehaſiel yͤ ſon of zacharia, yͤ ſon of Banaia, yͤ ſon of Ieiel, the ſonne of Mathania a Leuite, of the ſonnes of Aſaph, and vpon him came the ſpirit of the lorde, euen in the middes of the congregacion. And he ſayd: hearken all Juda, ⁊ ye inhabiters of Jeruſalē, ⁊ thou king Jehoſaphat: Thus ſayth the Lorde vnto you: be not afrayde, nor faynt herted by reaſon of this great multitude: for the battayle is not yours but D Gods. To morow goe ye down agaynſt them, for they come vp at Ziz, and ye ſhal fynd them at the end of the broke before the wildernes of Jeruel. Ye ſhal not nede to fight in this battayle: but ſtep furth ⁊ ſtand, and beholde, the helpe of the lorde which is with you: feare not, nor let your heartes fayle you, O ye of Juda, and of Jeruſalem. To morow goe out agaynſt them, for the lorde wil be with you. And Jehoſaphat bowed his face to yͤ earth: and al Juda, ⁊ the inhabitours of Jeruſalem fel before the lorde, wurſhipping the lord. And the Leuites of the childrē of the Cahathites, and of the children of the Corathites, ſtoode vp to prayſe the lorde God of Iſrael, with a loude voyce on hye. And when they aroſe early in the mornyng, they gat thē out vnto the wildernes of Thekoa. And as they wēt out, E Jehoſaphat ſtode, and ſaid: heare me, O Juda, and ye inhabiters of Jeruſalem.

Put your truſt in the lord your god, that ye may be found faithful. Geue credence to his prophetes, and ſo ſhal ye proſper.
And he gaue the people counſell, and ſet ſome to ſing vnto the lord, and to prayſe him in the beauty of holynes, and to goe out before the army, as they wēt, and to ſay: prayſe yͤ lorde, for his mercy laſteth euer. And what tyme as they began to laude ⁊ praiſe, then yͤ lord ſtiered vp certayn of the children of Ammon ⁊ Moab, which laid wayte for them that were of mout Seir: which wer come againſt Juda.
And they were ouerthrowen with ſtrokes among themſelues. For the children of Ammon and Moab, roſe againſt the inhabiters of mount Seir. And they ſlewe ⁊ deſtroyed them. And when they hadde made an ende of the inhabiters of Seir, euery one helped to deſtroye an other among themſelues. And whē Juda came to the edge of the wildernesse, they F looked vnto the multitude. And beholde, they wer dead carcaſes fallen to yͤ earth, and none eſcaped. And whē Jehoſaphat and hys people came to take awaye the ſpoyle of them, they founde among them aboundaunce of goodes, raymente and pleaſaunt Jewels, whiche they toke for themſelues, more then they coulde cary awaye: ſo that they were three dayes in gathering of the ſpoyle, it was ſo much.
And yͤ fourth daye they aſſembled in the valley of bleſſyng, for there they bleſſed the Lorde. And therefore they called the name of yͤ ſame place: the valley of bleſſing, vnto this day. And ſo al the men of Juda and Jeruſalem returned with Jehoſaphat theyr heade, for to goe agayne to Jeruſalem with gladnes, for the lord had made them to reioyce ouer their enemies.
And they came to Jeruſalem with pſalteries, and harpes, and ſhawmes, euen vnto the houſe of the Lord. And the feare of God fel in the kyngdomes of all landes, when they had hearde that the Lord fought agaynſt the enemies of Iſraell.

Hys mothers name alſo was Jecholia of Jeruſalem. And he did that which was right in the ſight of the Lorde: according to all, as dyd hys father Amaziahu. And it came to paſſe that he ſought God * in the dayes of Zachariahu, (which mainteined the feare of God) and as long as he ſought the lord, god made him to proſper. And he wẽt to battayle againſt the Philiſtines ⁊ brake B down the walle of Geth, and the walle of Jabne, and the walle of Aſdod, and built cities about Aſdod, and among the Philiſtines. And God holpe hym againſt the Philiſtines, and agaynſte the Arabians, ỷ dwelte in Gurbaal, ⁊ Hammehunim. And ỷ Ammonites gaue tribute to Uzia, ⁊ his name ſpred abroade euen to the entring in of Egipt: for he played the man excedingly. Moreouer, Uzia builte towers in Jeruſalē by the corner gate, & by the valley gate, & at the turnyng of the walle: & made them ſtrong. And he built towers in the wildernes, & digged many welles: For he had much catall in the valleyes & playnes, plowmen, & vine dreſſers in the moũtaines, & in Charmel: for he loued huſbãdry. And Uzia had an hoſt of fighting menne that went out to warre in the armye, according to the nũber of their office vnder the hande of Jetel the ſcribe, & Maaziahu the ruler, and vnder yͤ hand of Hananiahu, which was one of the kinges lordes. And the whole number of the auncient fathers, & of the C men of might, wer .ii. M. & .vi. C. & vnder the hand of them was the army of yͤ men of warre, euen .iii. hundred & ſeuen thouſande, & .v. hundred yͤ made warre with the power of an army, helpyng the Kyng agaynſte the enemyes. And Uzia prouyded them thorowout al the hoſt, ſhildes, ſpeares, helmettes, habergyns, bowes & ſlinges for to caſt ſtones. And he made ſubtil engins in Jeruſalem, which he inuented & laid on the towers & corners, to ſhote arowes & gret ſtones withal. And his name ſpred farre abrode, becauſe he was helped ſo excellently, ſo that he became very mighty. But in hys ſtrengthe, his heart aroſe to hys deſtruccyon. For he tranſgreſſed againſt the lord his God, and went into the temple of the Lord to burne cẽſe vpon yͤ aulter of incenſe. And Azariahu the prieſte went in after him, & with him foure ſcore prieſtes of the lord yͤ were valeaunt men. And they ſtode by um.18.a. Uzia the king & ſaid vnto him: *it perteineth not to the Uzia to burne incenſe vnto the lord, but to the prieſtes the childrẽ of Aaron, that are conſecrate for to offer incenſe: Come therefore out of yͤ ſanctuary for thou haſt treſpaſſed, & it is no worſhip to thee beefore the Lorde God. And Uzia was wroth, and had incenſe D in his hande to burne it: and ſo whyle he had indignacion agaynſte the Prieſtes, 4.Re.15.a *the leproſy ſprang in hys forehead beefore the prieſtes in the houſe of the lord, euen beſyde the incenſe aulter. And Azariahu the chiefe Prieſt with all the other prieſtes, looked vpon hym: and beholde, he was become a lepre in hys forehead, and they vexed hym thence. And he was fayne to goe out, becauſe the Lord had ſmitten him. And Uzia the kyng continued a lepre vnto the day of his death, and dwelte ſeueral, in an houſe, beyng a lepre and ſhutte out of the houſe of the Lorde. And Jotham hys ſonne had the gouernaunce of the kynges houſe, and iudged the people of the lande. The reſte of the actes of Uzia firſt and laſt, did Eſay the Prophete the ſonne of Amos, wryte. And ſo Uzia ſlept with hys fathers: and they buried him with his fathers, in the fielde of the buriall whiche was beſyde the Sepulchres of the kinges. For they ſayde: he is a Lepre. And Jotham hys ſonne reigned in his ſteade.

The. xxix. Chapter.

Hezekia otherwyſe called Ezekias (or Jehizkiahu) reſtoreth vnto the Temple of the Lorde, al the thynges yͭ had not beene regarded of his predeceſſours.

A HEzekia beganne to reygne, when he

4.re.1 of the Lorde, in al poyntes, as dyd Dauid 2.par.28.d his father. * He opened yͤ dores of yͤ houſe of the Lorde (in the fyrſte yeare and fyrſte moneth of hys reygne) and repaired them. And he broughte in the Pryeſtes and the Leuites, and gathered them together into the Eaſt ſtrete: and ſayde vnto them.

Heare me ye Leuites, and nowe be ſanctifyed and halow the houſe of the Lord god of your fathers, bryng fylthyneſſe out of yͤ holye place. For oure fathers haue treſpaſſed, and done euyl in the eyes of the Lorde our God, and haue forſaken hym: and tur-
B ned away theyr faces from the habitacion of the Lorde, and turned theyr backes on it. And beſyde that, they haue ſhut vp the dores of the portche, and quenched the lampes, and haue nether burnt incence, nor offered burnte offerynges in the holye place vnto the God of Iſraell.

Wherefore the wrathe of the Lorde fell on Juda, and Jeruſalē: and he hath brought them to trouble, to be wondred on, and to be hyſſed at, euen as ye ſee with oure eyes. For loe, our fathers were ouerthrowen wͭ the ſweorde, and our ſonnes, oure daughters, ⁊ our wyues wer caryed awaye captiue for yͤ ſame cauſe. And nowe it is in my hearte, to make a couenaunt with the lord god of Iſraell: that he maye turne awaye his heuy indignacion from vs. Now ther-u.18.a fore my ſonnes, be not negligente: for the * Lord hath choſen you to ſtand before him, and for to mynyſter and ſerue hym, and to C burne incenſe. Then yͤ Leuites aroſe: Mahath the ſonne of Amaſai, and Joell the ſonne of Aſariahu of the childrē of the Cahathytes. And of the ſonnes of Meraki, Kis the ſonne of Addy, and Aſariahu the ſōne of Jehalelel. And of yͤ ſonnes of yͤ Gerſonites, Joah the ſonne of Simma, and Eden the ſonne of Joah. And of the ſonnes of Eliſaphan, Symri, and Jehiell. And of the ſonnes of Aſaph, zechariahu, and Mathaniahu. And of the ſonnes of Hemā, Jehiel, and Simei. And of the ſonnes of Jeduthun, Semaia and Uziel. And they gathered theyr brethren, and puryfyed themſelues, and came accordyng to the cōmaundemente of the kynge, and the woordes of the lorde, for to clenſe the houſe of the lord.

And the Pryeſtes wente into the inner partes of the houſe of the Lorde, to clenſe it: and broughte oute all the vnclenneſſe that they founde in the temple of the lorde, into the courte of the houſe of the Lorde. And the Leuites tooke it, to carye it out into the broke Cedron.

D They beganne the fyrſte daye of the fyrſte moneth to puryfye, and the eyghte daye of the moneth came they to the portch of the Lorde: and pourged the houſe of the Lorde in eyghte dayes, and in the ſyxtene daye of the fyrſte moneth they made an end. And they went in to Hezekia the kynge and ſayed: we haue clenſed all the houſe of the Lorde, the alter of burnte offerynge, wyth all hys veſſelles, and the ſhewbreade table, wyth all hys apparell: and all the veſſels whiche kynge Ahaz dydde caſte aſyde when he reigned, and tranſgreſſed, them we haue prepared and ſanctifyed: and behold, they are before the alter of the Lorde. And Hezekia the kyng roſe earlye, and gathered the lordes of the citie, ⁊ went vp to yͤ houſe of the Lord. And they brought ſeuen oxen, E ſeuen rammes, ſeuen ſhepe, and ſeuen he goates, to be a ſynneofferyng for the kingdome, for the Sanctuarye, and for Juda. And he commaunded the Pryeſtes, the ſonnes of Aaron, to offer them on the alter of the lorde.

And they ſlewe the oxen, and the Pryeſtes receyued the bloude, and ſprinkled it vpon the alter: lykewyſe, when they had ſlayne yͤ rammes, they ſprynkeled the bloude vpon the altar: they ſlew alſo the ſhepe, and they ſprinkled the bloud vpon the alter. And thē they broughte foorth the he goates for the ſynneofferyng, before the kyng and the congregaciō, and put theyr handes vpon thē. And the prieſtes ſlew thē, ⁊ with yͤ bloude of them they clenſed the alter to make ſatyſfaccyon for all Iſraell: for the Kynge commaunded that the burnt offering and yͤ ſinoffering ſhould be made for al Iſrael.

F And ſet the Leuites in the houſe of the lord 1,par 25.a with ſimbals, pſalteries, and harpes: *according to the commaundemēt of Dauid, & of Gad the kinges ſear, and Nathan the prophete. For ſo was the commaundemēt of the lord, through the hande of hys prophetes. And the Leuites ſtode hauyng the inſtrumentes of Dauid, and the Prieſtes helde the trompets. And Hezekia cōmaunded to offer the burnt offeryng vpon yͤ alter. And when the burntoffering began, yͤ ſong of the lord began alſo, & the trompets with yͤ inſtrumentes that wer ordeined by the hand of Dauid king of Iſrael. And all the congregacion worſhypped, ſyngynge a ſong, and blowing with the trompets, and al this continued, vntil the burntofferynge was finiſhed. And whē they had made an ende of offeryng, the kyng and all that wer preſent with hym bowed themſelues, and worſhipped. And Hezekia the king, and the Lordes ſpake to the Leuites to prayſe the Lorde with the wordes of Dauid, and of Aſaph the ſear. And yͤ Leuites ſang prayſes with gladnes, and the other bowed thē ſelues, and worſhipped. And Hezekia anſwered, and ſayde: now ye haue conſecrate your handes to the lorde: goe to therfore, and bringe in the ſacrifices and thankeofferinges into the houſe of the lorde. G And the congregaciō brought in the ſacrifices, and thankeofferinges, and burnteofferinges, as many as were of a free liberal hert. And the number of the burntofferinges whiche the congregacion brought, was .lxx. oxen, an hundred rams, and two hundred ſhepe: which wer al for the burnt offeryng of the Lorde. And there were dedicated ſyxe hundred oxen, & thre thouſand ſhepe. And the Prieſtes wer to few to fleye all the burnt offeringes: but theyr brethren the Leuites dyd helpe them, tyll they hadde ended the work: : and vntil the prieſtes wer ſanctyfyed. For the Leuites were purer hearted to be ſanctified, then the prieſtes. And thereto the burntofferynges were many, with the fatte of the peace offeringes, and the drinke offeringes that belonge to the burnteofferinge. And ſo the ſeruyce pertaininge to the houſe of the lorde, was finiſhed. And Hezekia reioyſed and all the people, that God had made the folke ſo readye: and that the thing was ſo ſoone done.

The .xxx. Chapter.

Hezekia renueth the feaſt of Paſſeouer.

A AND Hezekia ſēt to al Iſrael, and Iuda, and wrote letters to Ephraim & Manaſſe, that they ſhould come to the houſe of the Lorde at Ieruſalem, and offer Paſſeouer vnto the Lorde god of Iſraell. And the king held a councel with his lordes and al the congregacion of Ieruſalem *to kepe the feaſte of Paſſeouer in the ſeconde moneth. For they could not kepe it at that tyme: becauſe the prieſtes were not ſanctyfyed ſuffycientlye, neyther was the people gathered together to Ieruſalem. And the thing pleaſed the kyng, and all the congregacion. And they decreed that it ſhoulde be proclaymed throughoute all Iſraell from Berſabe to Dan, that they ſhoulde come, and holde the feaſte of Paſſeouer vnto the Lorde God of Iſraell, at Ieruſalem: for they hadde not done it of a great ſeaſon as they ſhoulde haue done by the lawe. So yͤ poſtes wente with letters of the hande of the kyng, and of his lordes, throughout al Iſrael and Iuda: and at the commaundement of the king, they ſaid: ye childrē of Iſrael turne again vnto yͤ lord god of Abraham, Iſaac and Iſraell, and let euerye one returne to yͤ remnaūt that are eſcaped you oute of the hande of the kinges of Aſſur. And be not ye like your fathers, and youre brethren, which treſpaſſed againſt the lord god of theyr fathers: which gaue them vp to be deſtroyed as ye ſee. D And now be not ye ſtifnecked like as wer your fathers: but yelde your ſelues vnto the lord, and enter in to his holy place, whiche he hath ſanctifyed for euer: and ſerue the lorde your God, and the fearceneſſe of his wrathe ſhall turne away from you. For if ye turne again vnto the lord, then ſhall your brethren and your children finde compaſſion in preſence of thē that tooke them captyue, and they ſhall come agayne vnto this lande, *for yͤ lorde youre god is gracyous and mercifull, and will not turne awaye his face from you if ye conuerte vnto hym. And ſo the poſtes went from cytye to cytye in the lande of Ephraim and Manaſſe, euen vnto zabulon. But they laughed them to ſcorne, & mocked them. Neuertheleſſe, yet diuerſe of Aſſer, Manaſſe, and of zabulon ſubmytted themſelues, and came to Ieruſalem. And the hande of God was in Iuda, ſo that he gaue them one hearte to do the commaundement of the king and of the rulers, according to the worde of the Lorde. And there aſſembled to Ieruſalem muche people, and there was preſent a mighty great congregacion gacion, to holde the feaſt of ſwete breade C in the ſeconde moneth. And they aroſe, and 2.par.28.d removed the * alters that were in Jeruſalem. And all the veſſels of incence dyd they away, ⁊ caſte them into the broke Cedron. And they ſlew Paſſeouer yͤ fourtenth day of the ſecond moneth. And the prieſtes and Leuites whiche were aſhamed, ſanctifyed themſelues, and brought in the burnt offerynges into the houſe of the Lorde. And they ſtode in theyr office after theyr maner, and accordynge to the lawe of Moſes the man of god. And the prieſtes ſprinkled the bloud, which thei receiued by yͤ hādes of yͤ Leuites. For there wer many in yͤ congregaciō yͤ were not ſanctifyed: ⁊ the Leuites did ſlay Paſſeouer for al yͤ were not cleane, and yͤ might not execute the holy worke of yͤ lord. For many of yͤ people, ⁊ very many out of Ephraim, Manaſſe, Jſakar ⁊ zabulō wer not clenſed, ⁊ yet did eat Paſſeouer againſt yͤ law appointed. Wherfore Hezekia prayed for thē, ⁊ ſaid: the good lord bee merciful vnto thē: For he ſet his whole hert to ſeke the lord god, euē the god of hys fathers: but all yͤ other did not ſo accordyng to vnfained holines. And yͤ lord heard Hezekia, ⁊ healed the people. And the children of Jſrael yͤ were preſent at Jeruſalem, held the feaſt of ſwete breade ſeuen dayes with great gladnes, ⁊ the Leuites, ⁊ the prieſtes prayſed, ⁊ magnified yͤ power of the lord, daye by day, vpon inſtrumentes. And D Hezekia ſpake hertely vnto all yͤ Leuites that had vnderſtandyng, ⁊ wer of a good mind toward the lord. And they did eat throughout yͤ feaſte, ſeuen daies longe, and offred peace offerynges, and thanked the Lorde god of theyr fathers. And yͤ whole aſſēblye toke counſaile, to do ſo other ſeuen dayes, ⁊ they held thoſe ſeuen dayes with gladnes. For Hezekia kyng of Juda toke out (from among his cattell) for the congregacion, a thouſand yonge oxen, and ſeuen thouſande ſhepe. And the lordes gaue oute to the congregacion a thouſande yonge oxen, and ten thouſande ſhepe. And a great noumbre of the Pryeſtes were ſanctyfyed. And all the congregacion of Juda with the prieſtes ⁊ Leuites, and all the congregacion yͤ came out of Jſrael, ⁊ the ſtraungers yͤ came out of the land of Jſrael, and that dwelt in Juda reioyſed: and there was great gladneſſe in Jeruſalem. For ſence the tyme of Salomon the ſonne of Dauid kynge of Jſraell, ther was no ſuche ioye in Jeruſalem. And the pryeſtes and the Leuites aroſe, ⁊ bleſſed the people, and theyr voyce was hearde of the Lord, and theyr prayer came vp vnto heauen: his holy dwellyng place.

After that Hezekia had called agayne the people vnto the waye of the lorde, he ordeined the prieſtes, vnto whome he commaunded to geue tithes.

AND when all theſe thynges wer fynyſhed, all they of Jſraell that A were preſente in the cytyes of Juda, went out and brake the ymages, * and cut downe yͤ ydolles groues, 2.pa.14.a. and all to brake the hye places, and * alters 2.pa.33.c. throughout all Juda, and Ben Jamin, in Ephraim alſo ⁊ Manaſſe, vntyll they had vtterly deſtroyed thē al. And al the chyldrē of Jſraell returned euerye manne to hys poſſeſſions, and to theyr owne cytyes. And Hezekia appoynted ſondrye coumpanyes of the Prieſtes and Leuytes after the dyuerſytye of theyr mynyſtracions, euerye man accordyng to his offyce, both prieſtes and Leuites, for the burnte offerynge and peace offerynges, to miniſter, and to geue thankes, and prayſe in the gates of yͤ hoſt of the Lorde. And the kynges porcyon of hys ſubſtaunce that he gaue, were daylye burnte offerynges in the mornynge and euening, and burnt offeringes for the Sabboth dayes, newe Moones, and ſolemne feaſtes, accordyng * as it is written in the Nu.28.b. law of the lord. And he bad the people that dwelt in Jeruſalem, geue the parte to the Pryeſtes, and Leuites, that they myghte ſubſtancially apply themſelues to yͤ lawe B of the lorde. And aſſone as the kynges cōmaundemente came abroade, the chyldren of Jſraell broughte aboundaunce of fyrſt fruites, of corne, wyne, oyle, hony, and of al maner of fruites of the fyeld, and the tithes of all maner of thynges, broughte they in plenteouſly. And the chyldren of Jſraell ⁊ Juda that dwelt in yͤ cities of Juda, they alſo brought in the tithes of oxen ⁊ ſhepe, and other holy tithes which wer conſecrate vnto the lord theyr God, they dydde offer, and broughte them all by heapes. In the thyrde moneth they beganne to laye the heapes (in maner of a foundacion) and fyniſhed thē in the ſeuenth moneth. And when Hezekia and the lordes came, and ſawe the heapes, they bleſſed the lorde and hys people Jſraell. And Hezekia queſtyoned wͭ the Pryeſtes and the Leuites, concernyng the heapes. And Azaria the chyfe Pryeſte of the houſe of zadocke, anſwered hym and ſayd: ſynce the people began to brynge the al that went into the houſe of the Lorde) they ſhoulde geue daye by daye, for theyr mynyſtration, and for theyr geuyng attẽdaunce, D and for theyr dyuerſe waytynges by courſe. And to the prieſtes and Leuites throughout the houſhold of theyr fathers from twentye yeare and aboue, to wayte whẽ theyr courſes came. And to the famylyes of al theyr babes, wiues, ſonnes, and to all the males amonge the prieſtes, and to all the Leuites, according to theyr noũbre.

And of this maner dydde Hezekia throughout al Juda, and wrought it that is good, and ryght, and true, before yͤ lord hys God. And in all the woorkes that he beganne for the ſeruice of the houſe of god, for the law and for the commaundemẽtes, he ſoughte his god, and that dyd he wyth all hys hearte, and proſpered.

The.xxxii. Chapter.

Sennacheryb (or Sanherib) beſeiging Jeruſalem, is ſtriken of the aungel. Hezekia dyeth, after whome ſucceedeth Manaſſe.

After that theſe dedes wer faithfully A done: *Sennacherib kyng 4. re of Aſſur came, and entred into Eſa.36 Juda, and compaſſed yͤ ſtronge Ecc.48 Cities, and thought to win them for himſelfe.
And ſo when Hezekia ſawe that Sennacherib was come, and that he was purpoſed to fyght againſt Jeruſalem, he toke counſayle wyth hys Lordes and menne of might, to ſtop the water of the fountaines without the cytye: and they dyd helpe him.
For there gathered many of the people together, and ſtopt al the welles, ⁊ the broke that ran through the myddes of the lande, ſaying: why ſhal the kinges of Aſſur come, and fynd much water? And Hezekia went to luſtely, and buylt vp al the wall where it was broken, and made ordinaunce vpon the towres and to the other wal without, and repayred Millo in the cytie of Dauid, B and made manye dartes and ſheldes. And he ſet captaynes of warre ouer the people, and gathered them together to hym in the large ſtrete of the gate of the cyty, ⁊ ſpake gentlye to them, ſayinge: Plucke vp youre all the multitude that he hath with him: * 4.re For there bee moe with vs then with hym.

With hym is an *arme of fleſhe. But with Jere vs is the lorde our God for to helpe vs, ⁊ king of Juda. *After this did Sennacheryb 3.re kyng of Aſſur ſend of hys ſeruauntes to Jeruſalem (but he hymſelfe remayned beſyde Lachis: hauing al hys power with Thus ſayeth Sennacheryb kynge of of mine hande? And ſhal your God be hable to deliuer you out of mine hande? Wherfore nowe, let not Hezekia deceyue you, nor perſwade you of this faſhiō, nor yet beleue him.

For as no god amonge all nacions & kingdomes D was able to rid his people out of my much leſſe ſhal your goddes be able to kepe you out of my hande? And yet mo thynges dyd his ſeruauntes ſpeake agaynſt the lord God, & agaynſt hys ſeruaunt Hezekia. And (Sennacheryb) alſo wrote a lettre, to rayle on the lorde God of Iſraell, & ſpake againſt him, ſaying: as the gods of the nacions of other landes haue not bene able to delyuer theyr people out of my hande: Euen ſo ſhall not the God of Hezekia deliuer his people out of myne hande. And they cryed wyth a loude voyce in the Iewes ſpeache vnto the people of Ieruſalem that were on the walle to feare them, & to make them faynte herted, & that they myght ſo take the citie. And they ſpake agaynſte the God of Ieruſalem, as agaynſte the goddes of the nacions of the

And ſo the Lorde ſaued Hezekia and the inhabiters of Ieruſalem, out of the hande of Sennacheryb kynge of Aſſur, and from the hande of al other, and mayntayned them on euery ſide. And many brought offringes vnto the Lorde to Ieruſalem, and preſentes to Hezekia kynge of Iuda: ſo that he was wrath vpon hym, and vpon Iuda and Ieruſalem.

Notwythſtandynge Hezekia ſubmytted hym ſelfe (after that his hert was ryſen vp) he, and the inhabiters of Ieruſalem: and the wrath of the Lorde came not vpon them in the dayes of Hezekia. And Hezekia had excedyng much ryches and honoure.
And he gat him treaſures of ſyluer and golde, precious ſtones and ſpyces, ſhildes, & of all maner pleaſaunt iewels: and made ſtore houſes for the frutes of corne, for wine and oyle: & ſtalles for all maner of beaſtes, & foldes for ſhepe. And he made him cities, & G had of ſhepe and oxen great aboundaunce.
For God had giuē him ſubſtaunce exceding much. This ſame Hezekia ſtopped yͤ vpper water ſprynges of Gihon, and brought thē downe to the weſt ſide of the citie of Dauid.
And Hezekia proſpered in all hys workes.
And when the princes of Babilon ſent vnto hym embaſſadours, to enquire of yͤ wondre that chaunced in the lande, God lefte hym *to trye hym, and that all that was in hys Deut.8.a in the mooſt worthy place of the ſepulchres of the ſonnes of Dauid: and al Iuda and yͤ inhabiters of Ieruſalem did him worſhippe at hys death. And Manaſſe his ſonne raygned in hys ſtede.

The. xxxiii. Chapter.

Manaſſe is taken pryſoner, and after that he commeth

For he went to, & builte the hilaulter *which 4.reg.18.a diligent, ⁊ do all that I haue commaunded thē in al the lawe and ſtatutes, ⁊ ordinaunces by yͤ hande of Moſes. And ſo Manaſſe made Iuda and the inhabiters of Ieruſalē to erre, ⁊ to do worſe then the Heathen whō the lorde deſtroyed before the chyldren of Iſraell. And the Lorde ſpake to Manaſſe ⁊ to hys people, but they woulde not regarde.

Wherfore, the lord brought vpon them the C captaynes of the hooſt of the kynge of the Aſſyrians, whyche toke Manaſſe in holde, ⁊ bound him with chaynes, and caryed him to Babylon. And when he was in tribulacion, he beſought the Lord hys God, ⁊ humbled him ſelfe excedyngly before the God of hys

God was entreated of him, and hearde his

And he prepared the alter of the Lorde, and ſacryfyced theron peace offrynges, ⁊ thanke offerynges, and charged Iuda to ſerue the Lorde God of Iſraell. Neuertheleſſe, the people dyd offre ſtyll in the hylaulters, how be it vnto the Lorde theyr God onely. The vnto hys God, and the wordes of the ſears, and of them that ſpake to hym in the name of the Lord God of Iſrael, beholde, they are wrytten in the ſayinges of the kynges of Iſrael. And his praier, and how that he was hearde, and all hys ſynnes and his treſpaſſe, and the places where he made hylaulters, and ſet vp groues and ymages (before he was mekened) beholde, they are wrytten among the ſayinges of the ſears. And Manaſſe ſlepte with his fathers, and they buried him in his owne houſe. And Amon his ſon raigned in his roume. Amon was two and twenty yere olde when he began to raigne, ⁊ raigned two yeare in Ieruſalem. But he did euel in the ſight of the lord, like as did Manaſſe his father: for Amon ſacrifyced to al yͤ kerued ymages, whych Manaſſe his father had made, and ſerued them, and ſubmytted not hym ſelfe before the lorde, as Manaſſe his father hadde mekened hym ſelfe. But Amon treſpaſſed greatly. And his owne ſeruauntes conſpyred agaynſt hym, and ſlewe hym in his owne houſe. But the people of yͤ lande ſlue all them yͭ had conſpyred agaynſt kyng Amon. And the ſame people of the lād made Ioſia his ſonne king in hys roume.

And he burnt the bones of the preiſtes vpō B the aulters of them, and clenſed Iuda and

¶ The.vi.Chapter.

At the cõmaundement of Darius king of Perſia, after the temple was builded and dedicate, the children of Iſrael kepe the feaſt of vnleuened bread.

THen cõmaunded kynge Darius, and A they made ſearche in the librarye, euen in the place where they layed vp the treaſure

Eſ.6.c treaſure at Babilon.* And there was foũde in a cõfre (in yͤ palace that is in the land of the Medes) a volume, ⁊ therin was it thus wrytten, ⁊ ſuche a memoriall: In the firſte yere of kynge Cyrus, gaue the ſame kynge Cyrus commaundement concernynge the houſe of God at Ieruſalẽ, yͭ the ſame houſe ſhoulde be builded in the place where they offre the ſacrifices, and to ioyne the walles togyther of threſcore cubites heygth, and threſcore cubites breadth. Thre rowes of roughe ſtones, and one rowe of tymbre, and the expences ſhall be gyuen of the kynges houſe. And let the golde and ſyluer veſſel of the houſe of God, (whiche Nabuchodonozor toke out of the temple at Ieruſalẽ and brought vnto Babylon) be reſtored, and broughte agayne vnto the temple at Ieruſalem to theyr place in the houſe of God.

B Get you far from thẽ therefore, thou Thahnai captayne beyonde the water, and Starbuzanai, and youre counſaylers, and Apher Sechei, which are beyonde the water, get ye away from them. Let the worke of the houſe of this God alone, that the captayne of the Iewes and their elders may builde yͤ houſe of God in his place. I haue commaunded what ſhal be done to the elders of Iuda for the buildyng of the houſe of God, that there ſhall be diligent hede taken of the kynges goodes, euen of the rentes beyonde yͤ water, and gyuen vnto the men, that they be not hyndred. And yf they haue nede of calues, rammes, ⁊ lambes for the burntoffrynge of the God of heauen, wheate, ſalte, wyne, and oyle, after the cuſtome of the prieſtes at Ieruſalem, let the ſame be gyuẽ thẽ daily without anye delaye: that they maye offre ſwete ſauours vnto the God of heauen, and pray for the kynges life and for his children. And ſuche a cõmaundement haue I gyuen, that what man ſoeuer he be that altereth this worde, there ſhall a beame be takẽ from his houſe, and ſet vp, and he ſhall be hanged theron, and his houſe ſhal be made a donge hyll, for the ſame thynge. And the God that ſet his name there, deſtroye all kynges and C people that put to theyr hande to altre, and to breake downe the houſe of God which is at Ieruſalem. I Darius haue cõmaunded, that this be done with ſpede. Then Thahnai the captayne of the countrye beyonde yͤ water, ⁊ Starbuzanai with their cõſaylers (to whom kynge Darius had ſent) did their diligẽce: And the Elders of the Iewes builded, and they proſpered thorow the prophecyenge of Aggeus the prophete, ⁊ zacharye the ſonne of Iddo: and they builded ⁊ laied vp the foundacion, accordynge to the commaundemente of the God of Iſrael, and after the commaundement of Cyrus and Darius, and Arthaxerſes, kinges of Perſia.

And the houſe was finiſſhed the thyrde day of the moneth Adar, euen in the ſyxt yeare of the reygne of kyng Darius.* And the children 2.Pa of Iſrael, the prieſtes, the Leuites, and the other children of the captiuitie, helde the dedicacion of this houſe of God with ioye, and offred at the dedicacion of this houſe of god, an hundred oxen, two hundred rammes, foure hundred goates: and for the recõcilinge of al Iſrael twelue he goates, accordinge to the numbre of the tribes of Iſrael: and ſet the prieſtes in their ſondrye courſes: and the Leuites in their diuers offices, to miniſtre vnto God at Ieruſalem: as it is wrytten in the boke of Moſes. And the children D of the captiuitie held Paſſeouer vpon the fourtenth daye of the firſt moneth, for yͤ prieſtes and Leuites were purifyed, ſo that they were all cleane togyther, and kylled Paſſeouer for all the children of the captiuitie, ⁊ for their brethren the prieſtes, and for thẽ ſelues. And the children of Iſrael which were come agayne out of captiuitie, and all ſuch as had ſeparated them ſelues vnto thẽ, from the fylthyneſſe of the heathen of the lãde, to ſeke yͤ lord God of Iſrael, dyd eate, and helde the feaſt of vnleuened bread ſeuẽ dayes with ioye: for the Lord had made thẽ glad ⁊ turned the hart of the kyng of Aſſur vnto thẽ to ſtrẽgthẽ their handes in yͤ worke of the houſe of God, euen the god of Iſrael.

By the commaundement of Arthaxerſes, Eſdras taketh his companyons the children of Iſraell, and returneth to Ieruſalem.

I 3.Eſd After theſe actes, there was in the reygne of Artaxerſes kyng of Perſia, one Eſdras the ſonne of Sariah the ſonne of Azaria, the ſon of Helkia, the ſonne of Sallum, the ſõne of zador, the ſonne of Ahitob, the ſonne of Amaria, the ſonne of Azaria, the ſonne of Meraioth, the ſonne of zeraia, the ſonne of Vſi, the ſõne of Bucki, the ſonne of Abiſua, the ſonne of Phinehes, the ſonne of Eleaſar, the ſonne of Aaron the chefe prieſt. This Eſdras alſo went vp from Babylon, and was a perfyte ſcribe in the lawe of Moſes,* which the Exo.x lorde God of Iſrael dyd gyue. And yͤ kyng gaue hym all that he required bycauſe the hande of the Lorde his God was vpõ hym. And there wente vp certayne of the chyldren of Iſraell, of the prieſtes, Leuites, ſyngers, porters, ⁊ of the Nethinims, vnto Ieruſalē, in ẏ ſeuenth yeare of king Arthaxerſes. And he came to Ieruſalē in ẏ fifth moneth, euē in ẏ ſeuenth yeare of the kyng. For vpō ẏ firſt day of the firſt moneth, began he to go vp frō Babilon, ⁊ on the firſt daye of the firſt moneth came he to Ieruſalem, becauſe the good hāde of God was vpon him. For Eſdras prepared his hearte to ſeke the lawe of the lord, ⁊ to do it, and to teache the precept and iudgement in Iſrael. And this B is the coppye of ẏ letter, that kyng Arthaxerſes gaue vnto Eſdras the prieſt and ſcribe, whiche was a writer of the wordes and cōmaundementes of the lord, ⁊ of his ſtatutes ouer Iſrael. Arthaxerſes a kyng of kynges. Vnto Eſdras the prieſt, ⁊ ſcribe of the lawe of the God of heauen, peace ⁊ ſalutacion. I haue cōmaunded, that all they of the people of Iſraell, ⁊ of the prieſtes, ⁊ Leuites in my realme (whiche are mynded of their owne good will to go vp to Ieruſalem) go with the: and therfore art ẏ ſent of the kynge ⁊ of his ſeuen counſaylers, to viſyt Iuda ⁊ Ieruſalē, accordynge to the lawe of thy God, which is in thy hāde. And ẏ thou ſhouldeſt take with the, ſiluer ⁊ gold, which ẏ kynge ⁊ his coūſaylers offre of their owne good wil, vnto the God of Iſrael (whoſe habitacion is at Ieruſalem,) ⁊ al the ſiluer and gold ẏ thou canſt fynde in all the countrey of Babilon, with it that the people offre of their owne good wil, and the prieſtes gyue for ẏ houſe of their God whiche is at Ieruſalem.

C Take thou the ſame, ⁊ bye diligētly with ẏ ſame money, oxen, rāmes, and lambes, with their meatofferynges ⁊ drynkeofferynges: ⁊ thou ſhalt offer them vpon the aulter of the houſe of your God, which is at Ieruſalem. And loke what it lyketh the ⁊ thy brethren, to do with the remnaunt of the money, that do, after ẏ wil of your God. And the veſſels that are gyuē the for the miniſtracion in the houſe of thy God, thoſe deliuer thou before God at Ieruſalem. And what ſoeuer thyng more ſhalbe nedeful for ẏ houſe of thy God, whiche is neceſſarye for the to ſpende, thou ſhalte receyue the charges out of ẏ kynges treaſure houſe. I king Arthaxerſes haue cōmaūded al the treaſurers beyonde ẏ water, that loke what ſoeuer Eſdras the prieſt and ſcribe, in the lawe of the God of heauen, requireth of you, ẏ ye fulfyll the ſame ſpedely, vntyll an hundred talentes of ſiluer, vntill an hūdred quarters of wheat, and tyl an hūdred Batthes of wyne, and tyll an hundred *Batthes of oyle, ⁊ ſalte wythout meaſure. 3.reg.7.d What ſoeuer alſo belongeth to ẏ lawe of ẏ God of heauē, let the ſame be done without any delay for ẏ houſe of the God of heauē, that he be not wroth agaynſt ẏ realme, and agaynſte the kynge ⁊ his chyldren. And we D certifie you, that ye haue no authoritie to require taxynge and cuſtome, and yearlie rētes vpon any of the prieſtes, Leuites, ſyngers, porters, Nethinims, and miniſtres in the houſe of his God. And thou Eſdras (after the wyſedome of thy God, that is in thy hande) ſet iudges and arbitrers by my authoritie, to iudge all the people ẏ is beyonde the water, euen all ſuche as knowe the lawe of thy God: and thē that knowe it not, thoſe ſe that ye teache. And whoſoeuer wil not fulfyll the law of thy God, ⁊ the kynges lawe, lette him haue his iudgemente wythout delay, whether it be vnto death, or to be rooted out, or to be condemned in goodes, or to be put in prieſon. *Bleſſed be the lord God of 4.Eſd.8,c. our fathers, whiche ſo hath inſpired the kynges herte, to garnyſhe the houſe of the lord, that is at Ieruſalē: and hath enclined hys mercy vnto me, in the preſence of the kynge and his counſaylers, ⁊ before al the kynges hye eſtates. And I was cōforted (euen as ẏ hande of the Lord my God was vpon me) and ſo gathered I the heades of Iſrael togyther, that they myght go vp with me.

The numbre of them that returned to Ieruſalem with Eſdras.

A 3.Eſd.8.c. THeſe are the principall fathers of them, ⁊ this is their regiſter that wente vp with me from Babilō, what tyme as kyng Arthaxerſes reygned. Of the children of Phinches, Gerſom: of the children of Ithamar, Daniel: of the children of Dauid, Hatus: of the childrē of Zechania among the childrē of Pharos, Zacharye: and with hym were numbred an hundred and fyfty men. Of the children of ẏ captayne of Moab, Elioenai, the ſonne of zerahia, and with hym two hundred men.

Of the children of zechania the ſonne of Iahaſiel, and with hym thre hundred men. Of the children of Adin, Abed the ſonne of Ionathan, and with him fyfty men. Of the children of Elam, Iſai the ſonne of Athalia, and with hym ſeuenty men. Of the chyldren of Saphatia, zebadia the ſōne of Michael, and with him foure ſcore men. B Of the children of Ioab, Obadia the ſonne of Iehiel, and with hym two hundred and eyghtene men. Of the children of Selomith the ſonne of Ioſephia, and with hym an hundred and thre ſcore men. Of the children of Bebai, Zachary the ſonne of Bebai, & with hym eyght and twenty men. Of the childrē of Aſgad, Iohanan the ſonne of Hakatan, and with him an hundred and ten men.

Of the children of Adonicam, that were the laſt, whoſe names are theſe: Eliphelet, Iehiell and Samaiah, and with thē thre ſcore men. Of the children of Biguai, Uthai, and zabud, and with them ſeuenty men. And I gathered them togyther by the water that runneth towarde Ahaua, and there abode we thre dayes. And I loked amōg the people and the prieſtes, and founde there none C of the children of Leui. Thē ſent I to Eliezer, to Ariel, Semeia, Elnachan, Iarib, Elnathan, Nathan, zachary, and to Meſullam the rulers, and to Ioiarib and Elnathan, whiche were men of vnderſtandyng, and to thoſe gaue I commaundement, vnto Iddo the chefeſt at Caſphia, ỷ they ſhoulde fetche vs miniſters for the houſe of oure God: and I tolde them what they ſhoulde ſaye vnto Iddo, and to hys brethren the Nethinims at Caſphia. And (thorowe the good hande of our God vpō vs) they brought vs a wiſe man from among the children of Moholi, ỷ ſonne of Leui, the ſonne of Iſrael: and Sarabia with his ſonnes and his brethrē, euen eyghtene. And Haſabia, and with hym Iſai of the children of Merari, with his brethrē, D and their ſonnes, twentye. And of the Nethinims, whome Dauid & the princes gaue to miniſter vnto the Leuites, two hundred and twentye of Nethinims, whiche all were named by name. And euē ther at the water, beſyde Ahaua, I proclamed a faſte, that we myght humble our ſelues before our God, and ſeke of hym a ryght way for vs, and for our children, and for al our ſubſtaunce. For I was aſhamed to require of the kynge, ſouldyours & horſemen, to helpe vs agaynſt the enemy in the waye: but we ſayd vnto the kynge: The hande of our God is vpon all them that ſeke him in goodnes, & (his dominiō) his violence and wrath is agaynſt all them E that forſake hym. So we faſted, & beſought our God for this, and he hearde vs. And I toke out twelue of the chefe prieſtes, Sarabia and Haſabia, and ten of their brethren with them, & wayed them the ſiluer & golde, & veſſels that were appoynted for the houſe of our God, which the kynge and his counſailers and his lordes, & al Iſrael that were there at hande had gyuen togither. And I wayed vnto their hande ſyxe hundred and fyfty talentes of ſiluer, and in ſiluer veſſell, an hundred talētes, and in golde, an hūdred talentes: twentye baſens of golde, of a thouſande pieces, and two coſtly ornamentes, of good braſſe, as cleare as golde, and I ſayde vnto them: Ye are conſecrate vnto the lord, lyke as the veſſels are holy alſo, & the golde and ſiluer are gyuen of a good wil vnto the Lord God of your fathers. Watche ye, and kepe it: for ye ſhall waye it downe before the F chefe prieſtes and Leuites, and auncient fathers of Iſrael at Ieruſalem, in the treaſuryes of the houſe of the Lord. Then toke the prieſtes and Leuites the wayed ſiluer and golde, and veſſell, to brynge it to Ieruſalē, vnto the houſe of oure God. And we brake vp, from the water of Ahaua on the twelft daye of the firſte moneth, to goe vnto Ieruſalem: and the hande of our God, was vpon vs, and deliuered vs from the hande of the enemyes, and of ſuche as layed waite for vs by the waye. And we came to Ieruſalē, and abode there thre dayes. But on the fourthe daye was the ſiluer and golde and veſſell weyed in the houſe of our God by the G hande of Meremoth the ſonne of Uria the preaſt, and with hym was Eleazar the ſonne of Phinehes, and with them was Ioſabad the ſonne of Ieſua, and Noadia the ſonne of Benoi the Leuites. Accordynge to the numbre and weyght of euerye one, was the weyght all wrytten vp at the ſame tyme.

And the chyldren of the captiuitie, whiche were come out of priſon, offred burntoffrynges vnto the God of Iſraell, twelue bullockes, for all Iſrael, ſyxe and nyntye rammes, ſeuen and ſeuentye lambes, twelue he gotes for a ſynne offrynge, all to the burntoffrynge of the Lorde. And they deliuered the kynges commiſſion vnto the kynges officers, & to the captaynes that were on this ſyde the water. And they promoted the people and the houſe of God.

The.ix. Chapter.

Eſdras complayneth on the people that had turned them ſelues from God, and maryed with the Gentiles.

Whē theſe thynges were done, the A rulers came to me, and ſayd: The people of Iſrael, & the prieſtes & Leuites are not ſeparated frō the people of the landes (as touching their abhominacions) namely, of ỷ Cananites, Hethites, Phereſites, Iebuſites, Amonites, Deu.7.a Moabites, Egiptians, and Amorites. *For Ioſu.23. they haue taken the doughters of the ſame Iudi.3. to them ſelues, & to their ſonnes, & the holye ſeed is myxed with yͤ nacions in the lande, & the hand of the princes and rulers hath ben 3.Eſd.8.c. principall in this treſpaſſe. *And when I heard this ſaying, I rente my clothes & my garment, & pluckt of the heer of my heade, and of my beerde, and ſat mournyng. And there reſorted vnto me all ſuche as feared yͤ wordes of the Lord God of Iſrael, becauſe of the tranſgreſſion of the people of the captiuitie. And I ſat mournyng vntil yͤ euening ſacrifice. And about the euenyng ſacrifice, I aroſe vp fro my heuynes, & rent my clothes, and my rayment and fell vpon my knees, & ſprede out my handes vnto yͤ lord my God, B & ſayed. My god, I am aſhamed, & dare not lifte vp mine eyes vnto thee my god: for our wyckedneſſes are growen ouer oure head, & our treſpas is waxed greate vnto the heauē. Sins the tyme of oure fathers, haue we ben Deut.18.d 2.pa.33.b 3.re.24.d in greate treſpaſſe vnto thys daye, * and becauſe of our wyckedneſſes haue wee & our kynges bene delyuered into the hande of yͤ kynges of the nacyons, into the ſwarde, into captiuitie, into ſhame, and into confuſion of face: as it is to ſe thys daye. And nowe is there a litle and ſodayne graciouſneſſe come from the lorde oure God, in cauſing ſome of vs to eſcape, and that he maye geue vs a nayle in his holy place, and that oure God maye lyght our eyes, and gyue vs a litle life to take breath in our bondage. For we are bondmen, & our God hath not forſaken vs C in oure bondage, and hath enclined mercye vnto vs in the ſight of yͤ kinges of Perſia, to gyue vs lyfe, to ſet vp the houſe of oure God, and to redreſſe the deſolacion therof, and to giue vs a wal in Iuda and Ieruſalē. And now O our God, what ſhal we ſaye after this? For we haue forſaken thy cōmaūdementes whyche thou haſt commaunded by thy ſeruauntes the prophetes, ſaying: The lande vnto whyche ye go to poſſeſſe, it is an vncleane lande becauſe of the fylthyneſſe of the people of the landes, whyche wyth theyr abominaciōs haue made it ful of vncleneſſe Deut.7.a on euery ſyde. *Therfore ſhall ye not gyue your doughters vnto their ſonnes, and theyr doughters ſhal ye not take vnto your ſōnes, nor ſeke theyr peace and wealth for euer, yͭ ye maye be ſtronge and enioye the good in D the lande, and yͭ ye and your chyldren maye haue the enheritaunce of it for euermore.

And after that al theſe thinges are come vpon vs(becauſe of our euel dedes, and greate treſpaſſes) thou our god haſt thruſt downe oure wyckedneſſes, and haſte gyuen vs a delyueraunce, (as it is come to paſſe thys daye.) And yf we turne backe againe, to let go thy cōmaundementes, and make contract with the people of theſe abomynacions, wilt thou not then be wroth at vs(and not without cauſe)tyl we be vtterly conſumed, ſo that nothynge remayne, and tyll there be no delyueraunce? O Lord God of Iſrael, thou art righteous, for we remaine yet eſcaped as it is to ſe thys daye. Beholde alſo, in thy preſence are we in our treſpaſſes, & becauſe of it maye we not ſtand before the.

The people repent and turne, and put awaye theyr ſtraunge wyues.

A 3.Eſd.8.g AND when *Eſdras prayed after thys maner, and knowleged, wept, and laye before the houſe of God, there reſorted vnto him out of Iſrael a very great congregacion of men and women and chyldren: & the people wept very ſore. And Sechania yͤ ſonne of Iehiel one of the chyldren of Elam anſwered, and ſayde vnto Eſdras: We haue treſpaſſed agaynſte our God, and haue takē ſtraunge wyues of the people of the lande. Now there is hope yet in Iſrael concerning thys thynge: For nowe wee wyll make a couenaunte wyth our God, and putte away al the wiues(and ſuch as are borne of them) accordyng to the counſell of the Lorde: and we wil be in yͤ feare of the cōmaundemētes of our god, that we maye do accordyng to yͤ lawe. Get the vp, for this matter belongeth vnto the: we alſo wil be wyth the, be of good comforte therfore, and do it. *Then aroſe 3.Eſd.9.a Eſdras, and toke an oth of the chefe prieſtes B and Leuites, & of al Iſrael, that they ſhould do accordyng to this worde: & they ſweare. And Eſdras ſtode vp from before yͤ houſe of God & went into yͤ chamber of Iohanan the ſonne of Eliaſib. And when he came thyther, he dyd eate no bread, nor dronke water, for he mourned, bycauſe of the tranſgreſſyon of the people that had bene in captiuitie. And they cauſed a proclamacion to go thorowout Iuda & Ieruſalem, vnto al the chyldrē which had bene in captiuitie, yͭ they ſhoulde gather them ſelues togyther vnto Ieruſalem. And that whoſoeuer came not wythin thre dayes accordynge to the deuyce of the rulers and elders, al his ſubſtaunce ſhould be forfayt, and he ſhould be putte out from yͤ congregaciō of yͤ captiue. Then al the men of Iuda and Ben Iamin gathered thē ſelues together vnto Ieruſalē within thre dayes, euen the twentye daye of the ninth moneth: and al yͤ people ſate in the ſtrete before the houſe of God, ⁊ trembled because of thys matter, and for the rayne.

And Esdras the prieſt ſtode vp, ⁊ ſaid vnto yet more: confeſſe nowe therfore vnto yͤ lord God of your fathers, and do hys pleaſure, ⁊ ſeparate your ſelues from the people of the lande, and from the ſtraunge wyues. And al the congregacion anſwered, and ſaid with a loude voyce: it ſhalbe ſo, and we wyl do as thou haſt ſayde. But the people are many, ⁊ it is a raynye wether, and the people are to faynte to tary wythout in the ſtrete, nether is thys a worke of one daie or two: for we haue offended very ſore in thys thynge. Let oure rulers ſtande therfore in al the congregaciō, and let al them whych haue taken ſtraunge wyues in our cytyes, come at the tyme appoynted, and let the elders of euery cytie and theyr iudges be wyth them, tyll they haue turned yͤ wrath of our God awaye from vs C cōcerning this matter. Thē were appointed Jonathan the ſonne of Aſahel, and Jahaſia the ſonne of Thekua, ouer thys matter: And Moſullam ⁊ Sabatha the Leuites helped them. And the chyldren of the captiuitie dyd euen ſo. And Esdras yͤ prieſt, and yͤ auncient heades thorow the houſe of theyr fathers, al men of great fame, ſeparated them ſelues, ⁊ ſat them downe on the fyrſt daye of the tenth moneth, to examyn the matter. And vntyl yͤ fyrſte daye of the fyrſte moneth, they were finiſhing the buſynes, wyth all the men that had taken ſtraunge wyues. And among the chyldren of the prieſtes there were mē found that had taken ſtraunge wyues, namely amonge the chyldren of Jeſua, the ſonne of Joſedec, and of hys brethren, Maſiah, and Eliezer, Jarib, and Gedalia, and they gaue theyr handes there vpon, that they woulde put awaye theyr wyues, ⁊ for theyr treſpaſſe offryng to giue a ramme for theyr treſpaſſe. And among the chyldren in Emer, Honany, and zabadia. Among the chyldrē of Harim, Maaſia, Elia, Semeiah, Jehiel and Uſia. Among the chyldren of Phaſhur, Elioenai, Maaſia, Iſmael, Nethanel, Joſabad, and Elaſa. Among yͤ Leuites, Joſabad, Simei and Kelaia, (whyche ſame is Kalithah) Pathahiah, Juda and Eleazer. Among the ſingers, alſo Eliaſib. And among yͤ porters

But yf ye turne vnto me, and kepe my commaundementes, and do thẽ: though ye were caſte out vnto the vttermoſt parte of heauen, yet wyll I gather you from thence, ⁊ wyl brynge you vnto the place that I haue choſen, to ſet my name there. They are thy ſeruauntes and thy people, whom thou haſt delyuered thorowe thy great power ⁊ in thy myghtye hande. O lorde, I beſeche the, let thyne eare herkẽ to yͤ prayer of thy ſeruaunt, and to the prayer of thy ſeruauntes, whoſe deſyre is to feare thy name: ⁊ let thy ſeruaũt proſpere thys daye, and graunte him mercy in the ſight of this mã, for I was the kinges butteler.

The.ii.Chapter.

After Nehemia had obtained letters of Arthaxerſes, he came to Ieruſalem and buylded the walles.

Marche. A IT fortuned, that in the moneth *Niſan in the twentyeth yeare of kinge Arthaxerſes, the wine ſtode before him, and I toke vp the wyne, and gaue it vnto the kyng. And I was heuy in his preſence. And the kynge ſayd vnto me: why lokeſt thou ſo ſadly, when thou art not ſicke? it is nothyng els, but that thou art heuye herted. And I was ſore afrayed, and ſayd vnto the kynge: God ſaue the kynges lyfe for euer. Howe ſhoulde I not loke ſadly, when the citye and place of my fathers buriall lyeth waſt, and yͤ gates therof are conſumed wyth fyre.

And the kynge ſayd vnto me: what is then thy requeſt? I made my prayer alſo to the God of heauen, and ſayd vnto the kynge: yf it pleaſe the kyng, and yf thy ſeruaunt haue founde fauoure in thy ſyghte, ſende me into Iuda vnto the citye of my fathers buryall, B that I maye buylde it. And the kynge ſayed vnto me (the quene his wife ſitting by him:) how longe ſhall thy iourney continue, and when wilt thou come againe? And it pleaſed the kynge to ſende me, and I ſet hym a tyme, and ſayde vnto the kyng: yf it pleaſe the kyng, let hym geue me letters to the captaynes whyche are beyonde the water, that they maye conuay me ouer, tyll I come into Iuda: and letters vnto Aſaph the lorde of the kynges wood, that he maye gyue me timber to make beames for the gates of the palace (whych is harde by the houſe) and for the walles of the citie, and for the houſe that I ſhall enter into. And the kynge gaue me accordyng to the hande of my God, whyche was good vpon me. And when I came to yͤ captaynes beyonde the water, I gaue them yͤ kinges letters. And yͤ kyng had ſente captaynes and horſemen wyth me. Sanabalat C alſo the Horonyte, and Tobia a ſeruaunte (the Ammonite) heard of it, and it greued thẽ ſore, yͭ there was come a man whych ſoughte the wealth of the chyldren of Iſrael. And I came to Ieruſalem, ⁊ was there thre dayes, and I gat me vp in the nyght ſeaſon, and a fewe men with me, neither tolde I any man, what God had gyuen me in my hert to do at Ieruſalem: and there was not one beaſt wͭ me, ſaue it yͭ I rode vpon. And I departed in the nyghte by the valleye port, before the draggon well, and to the donge porte, and conſydered the walles of Ieruſalem howe they were broken downe, ⁊ the portes therof conſumed wyth the fyre. And I wente ouer vnto the well porte, and to the kynges condupte, and there was no rowme for the beaſt yͭ was vnder me to paſſe. Then wente I on in the night by the brooke ſyde, ⁊ conſidered the wal, and turned backe, and came home agayne by the valleye porte. And the rulers D knewe not whyther I wente, or what I did: neyther dyd I as yet tell it vnto the Iewes, to the prieſtes, to yͤ noble men, to the rulers, and to the other that laboured in yͤ worke. Then ſayde I vnto them: ye ſe the myſerye that we are in, howe Ieruſalem lyeth waſte, and howe the gates therof are brente wyth fyre: come therfore, that we maye buylde vp the wall of Ieruſalem, and that we be nomore a rebuke. And I tolde them of the hãd of my God, (that it was graciouſe ouer me) and the kynges wordes that he had ſpoken vnto me. And they ſayde: let vs get vp, and buylde: and they ſtrengthed theyr hande to good. But when Sanabalat the Horonite, and Tobia the ſeruaunte (an Ammonite) and Geſem the Arabian hearde it, they laughed vs to ſcorne, and mocked vs, and ſayde: what is thys that ye do? Wyll ye fall awaye from the kynge? Then anſwered I thẽ, and ſaid: the God of heauẽ, he it is that hath graunted vs proſperytie: & we be hys ſeruauntes. Let vs get vp and buylde. As for you, ye haue no porcion nor ryght, nor remembraunce in Jeruſalem.

The.iii. Chapter.

The number of them that buylded the walles.

AND Eliaſib the hye prieſte gat him vp wyth hys brethren the prieſtes, and they A builded the ſhepegate. They repaired it, and ſet vp the doores of it: euen vnto the towre Mea, repayred they it, and vnto the *Ier.31.g *towre of Hananeell. Next vnto him alſo zaca.14.c builded the men of Jericho. And beſide him builded Sachur the ſonne of Amri. But the fiſſhe porte did the childrē of Sanaa build, whych alſo layed the beames therof, and ſet on the dores, lockes and barres of it. And next vnto hym builded Meremoth, ẏ ſonne of Uria, the ſonne of Hakoz: and nexte vnto them buylded Meſulam ẏ ſonne of Berechia, the ſonne of Meſeſabeel: and next vnto him builded zadoc the ſonne of Baana. And next vnto him builded they of Thekoa. But the great men that were among thē, put not theyr neckes to the worke of theyr Lorde.
B The Olde gate buylded Jehoiada the ſōne of Paſeah, & Meſulam ẏ ſonne of Beſodia, they layed the beames therof, and ſet on the dores, lockes and barres of it. Next vnto thē buylded Melatiah of Gibeon, and Jadon of Merano, men of Gibeon, and of Miſpa, where he that was captayne of thys ſide the water had a manſiō. Next vnto him builded Uſiel the ſonne of Harhaiah ẏ goldſmith.
Nexte vnto hym alſo buylded Hanania ẏ ſōne of Harakahum, & they repaired Jeruſalē vnto the brode wal. Nexte vnto thē builded C Raphaiah the ſonne of Hur, the ruler of the halfe parte of Jeruſalem. Nexte vnto hym buylded Jedaia the ſonne of Harumaph, ouer agaynſte hys houſe: and nexte vnto hym buylded Hatus, the ſonne of Haſabnia.
But Melchia the ſonne of Harim, & Haſub the ſonne of the captaine of Moab, buylded the other pece, and the towre beſyde the fornaces.
Nexte vnto him builded Sallum a ſyngers ſonne, the ruler of the halfe parte of Jeruſalem, he and hys daughters.
D The valley gate buylded Hanum, & the citizins of zanoa. They buylded it, and ſet on ẏ dores, lockes, and barres therof, and a.M cubytes on the wall, vnto the donge porte.
But the donge port buylded Melchiah the ſonne of Rechab, the ruler of the fourth part of Bethcharem: he repayred it, and ſet on the dores, lockes and barres therof. But the wel gate repayred Sallū ẏ ſonne of Cholhoſah, the ruler of the fourth parte of Myſpa.
He buylded it, and layd the beames, and ſet on the dores, lockes & barres therof, and the wall vnto the poole of Siloah, by ẏ kinges garden, and vnto ẏ ſteppes that go downe from the citie of Dauid. After him builded Nehemiah the ſonne of Aſbok, the ruler of ẏ halfe parte of Bethzur, vntyl the other ſyde ouer agaynſt the ſepulchres of Dauid, and to the poole that was repayred, and vnto the houſe of the myghty. After him builded the Leuytes, Rehum the ſonne of Bani: & nexte E vnto hym buylded Haſabia the ruler of the halfe parte of Keilah, in hys quarter. After hym buylded their brethren: Banai the ſōne of Henadad the ruler of the halfe parte of Keilah: and after him builded Ezer the ſōne of Jeſua the ruler of Miſpa the other pece, harde ouer agaynſte the goyng vp to the houſe of ordinaunce that was in the corner.
Againe, after him brake forth Baruch the ſōne of zachai of indignacion, and repayred the other pece from the turnyng corner, vnto the dore of the houſe of Eliaſib ẏ hie prieſt.

After hym alſo buylded Meremoth the ſonne of Uria the ſonne of Hacos, he other pece from the dore of the houſe of Eliaſyb, euen as longe as the houſe of Eliaſib extended.
After hym buylded the prieſtes, the mē F of ẏ plaine. After him buylded Ben Jamin and Haſub, ouer agaynſt theyr houſe: and after him wroughte Aſaria, the ſonne of Maaſia, the ſonne of Anania, next vnto hys houſe. After hym alſo buylded Benui the ſonne of Henadad the other pece, from the houſe of Azaria vnto ẏ turnyng of the wall, & vnto the corner. After him buylded Pala the ſonne of Uſai, ouer agaynſt the corner and the hye towre, whych lyeth out ouer frō the kynges houſe, ẏ was beſide the courte of the pryſon. After hym Phedaia the ſonne of Pharhos (as for the Nethinims they dwelt in the ſtronge holde vnto the water gate, toward the eaſt, & to ẏ towre ẏ lieth out.) After him builded they of Thekua the other pece ouer againſt ẏ great towre, ẏ lieth outward, vnto the wall of the ſtrong holde. But from G aboue ẏ horſe gate forth builded ẏ prieſtes, euery one ouer againſt his houſe. And after thē builded zadock ẏ ſonne of Jmmer ouer againſt his houſe. After him builded alſo Semeia the ſōne of Sechania, ẏ keper of ẏ eaſtgate. After him builded Hanania ẏ ſōne of Selemia, and Hanun the ſōne of zalaph the ſyxte, the other pece. And after hym buylded Meſulam the ſonne of Barachia ouer agaynſte hys ſtorehouſe.

After hym buylded Malachia the golde ſmythes ſonne, vntyll the houſe of Nethinins, and of the marchantes ouer againſte the gate of Maphkad, and to the parlour in the corner. And betwene the parlour of the corner vnto the ſhepegate, buylded the goldſmythes and the marchauntes.

The.iiii. Chapter.

The buylding of Jeruſalem is hindered and let, but the Jewes buyld it, beyng redye harneſſed leſte theyr enemyes ſhould inuade them.

A BUT when Sanabalat hearde that we builded the wal, he was wroth in himſelf, and toke great indygnacyon, and mocked the Jewes, and ſayed before his brethren and the ſouldyers of Samaria: what do theſe impotente Jewes? wyll the heathen ſuffer them? ſhall they offer? ſhall they perfourme it in one daye? ſhall they make the ſtones whole agayne that are broughte to duſte and brente? And Tobyah the Ammonite was beſyde hym, and ſayed: Though they buylde, yet yf a foxe go vp, he ſhall breake down theyr ſtony wal. Heare (O thou our God) for we are deſpiſed, turne their ſhame vpon theyr owne heade, and geue them ouer into deſpyſynge, in the lande of theyr captyuytye. Couer not theyr wyckednes, and let not theyr ſynne be put outte in thy preſence: for they haue prouoked the builders.
And ſo builded wee the wall, and it was ioyned whole together, vnto the half heygth thereof. And the people were myn-B ded to laboure. And it fortuned, that whẽ Sanabalat, and Tobyah, and the Arabians, Ammonites, and Aſodites hearde ẏ the walles of Jeruſalem were made vp, & that the gappes began to be ſtopped, they wer very wroth, and conſpired altogether to come and fyght agaynſte Jeruſalem, & to make the people an hynderaunce therin.
Neuertheleſſe we made oure prayer vnto our God, and ſet watchmen by thẽ, which builded day and night, ouer againſt them.
And Juda ſaid: the ſtrẽgth of the bearers is to feble, and ther is yet much more morter, and wee are not able to buylde on the wall. And our aduerſaryes ſaid: they ſhall not knowe neither ſe, tyll wee come in the middes among them, and ſlaye them, and hinder ẏ worke. But it fortuned that when the Jewes (which dwelt beſide thẽ) came, thei told vs as good as ten times, that in al C places where ye go vnto, they are appointed to fall vpon vs. Therefore ſette I the people after theyr kyndreds wyth theyr ſweordes, ſpeares, and bowes beneth in the low places behynde the wal: and I loked, and gat me vp, and ſayd vnto the chief men, to the rulers, and to the other people: be not ye afrayde of thẽ, *but thinke rather 2 Eſd.1.b. vpon the great lord, whiche oughte to bee and.9,f. feared, and fyght for your brethren, youre ſonnes, your daughters, your wiues, and youre houſes. Neuertheleſſe, it chaunced ẏ when our enemyes hearde that we hadde gotten woorde of it, God broughte theyr counſell to noughte: and wee turned all agayne to the wall, euerye one vnto hys laboure.
And from that tyme foorth it came to paſſe, that the halfe part of the yong men dyd the laboure, and the other halfe parte of them held the ſpeares, ſhildes, bowes, and breſtplates: and ẏ rulers ſtode behynd all the houſe of Juda, whiche buylded on the wall, and bare burthens from thoſe ẏ laded them. With one hande dyd euery one worke: & wyth the other helde he his weapen.
And euery one that buylded, had hys ſweorde gyrde by hys thygh, and ſo builded D thei. And the trumpet blew beſide me.
And I ſayd vnto the principall men, to the rulers, and to the other people: the worke is greate and large, and wee are ſeparated vpon the wal, one farre from another.
Looke in what place therefore ye heare the noyſe of the trumpet, reſorte ye thyther vnto vs, *and oure God ſhall fyghte for vs: Exo.14 c. and we wyll bee labourynge in the woorke.
And the halfe part of them helde ẏ ſpeares from the mornyng ſpryng, tyll the ſtarres came forth. And at the ſame tyme ſayde I vnto the people: euery one abyde with hys ſeruaunt at Jeruſalem, that in the nyghte ſeaſon wee maye watche, and laboure on ẏ daye tyme. As for me and my brethren, my ſeruauntes and the menne of the watche (whiche were behynde me) we putte neuer of our clothes, no more then the other didde theyr harnes, ſaue only becauſe of ẏ water.

The.v. Chapter.

The people are vexed wyth hunger. He requireth not the lyuyng of a captayne.

AND ther aroſe a great complaint of the people, and of their wiues, A againſte theyr brethren the Jewes. For there wer ſome that ſayed: oure ſonnes and daughters and we are to manye, therefore wyll we take corne for them, that wee maye eate and lyue.
Some alſo there were that ſayed: lette vs ſette oure landes, vyneyardes and houſes to pledge, and take vp corne in the dearth.

But ſome there were that ſaide: let vs borowe moneye for the kinges tribute: and yͤ vpon oure landes and vyneyardes. Beholde, oure bodyes as the bodyes of oure brethren, and oure children as theyr chyldren: els ſhoulde wee ſubdue oure ſonnes & daughters vnto bondage: and ſome of our daughters are ſubdued vnto bondage already, & no ſtrength is ther in our handes, and other men haue oure landes and vyneyardes. And whē I heard theyr complaint
B and ſuche woordes, it diſpleaſed me ſore: & I aduiſed ſo in my minde, that I rebuked the councellours, and the rulers, and ſayde vnto them: Euerye one of you is to chargeable vnto his brother. And I broughte a great congregacion againſte them, and ſaide vnto them: wee (after oure abilitye) haue boughte oure brethren the Jewes, whiche wer ſold vnto the heathen. And wil you ſell your brethren agayne vnto yͤ heathen, after that they haue beene ſolde vnto vs? Then helde they theyr peace, & coulde fynde nothynge to aunſwere. And Nehemia ſaide: It is not good that ye dooe. Ought ye not to walke in the feare of god, becauſe of the rebuke of the Heathen that are oure enemies? I and my brethren, and my ſeruauntes doe lende them money and corne: as for vſurye let vs leaue it. Therefore, this ſame daye I praye you ſe that ye reſtore them theyr landes again, their vineyardes, oyle gardens, and theyr houſes, & remit the hundred parte of the money of the corne, wine, & oyle yͤ ye haue won of them.
C Then ſaide they: wee wyll reſtore them agayne, and wil require nothynge of them: and wil do as thou haſt ſpoken. And I called the prieſtes, & toke an oth of them, that they ſhould doe ſo. And I ſhoke my lappe, and ſayde: God ſhake out euerye man after the ſame maner from his houſe and labor, that mayntayneth not thys woorde: euen thus bee he ſhaken oute, and voyde.

And all the congregacion ſaide: Amen, and prayſed the lorde: And the people dyd ſo. And from the tyme foorth that (yͤ king) committed vnto me to bee a captayne of them that were in the lande of Juda, euen from the twentye yeare vnto the two and thyrtye yeare of the king Arthaxerſes (that is twelue yere,) I with my brethren liued not of ſuche ſubſtaunce as was geuen to a D captaine. For the olde captaines that wer before me, hadde bene chargeable vnto the people, and hadde taken of them breade and wyne, and fourty ſicles of ſyluer: yea, and theyr ſeruauntes hadde oppreſſed the people: But ſo did not I, and that becauſe of the feare of God. But I laboured alſo in the woorke vpon the wall, and boughte no lande. And all my ſeruauntes came thyther together vnto the woorke. Moreouer there were at my table an hundred and .l. of the Jewes and rulers, whiche came vnto me from amonge the heathen that are aboute vs. And there was prepared for me daylye an oxe, and ſyxe choſen ſhepe, and byrdes, and euer once in ten dayes a greate ſumme of wine. Yet required not I the liuinge of a captayne, for the bondage was greuous vnto the people. * Thynke vpon me my God vnto the beſte, according to al that I haue done for this people.

The .vi. Chapter.

The buyldyng is yet again hindered and left.

A And when Sanaballat, Tobiah, and Geſem the Arabian, and the other of of oure enemies hearde that I hadde buylded the wall, and that there were no moe gappes therein (howebeit at the ſame tyme hadde I not hanged the dores vpon the gates,) Sanabalat and Geſem ſente vnto me, ſayinge: come that we maye mete and take counſell together in the villages that are in the plaine of the citye Ono. Neuertheleſſe they thoughte to doe me euyll. And I ſent meſſengers vnto them, ſaying: I haue a great buſyneſſe to doe, and I can not come downe. The worke ſhould ſtand ſtil, if I were negligente, and came downe to you. Howbeit, they ſente vnto me as good as foure times after the ſame maner. And I gaue them the ſame anſwere. Then ſente Sanabalat his ſeruaunt agayne vnto me the fifth time, with an open letter in his hande, wherein was written: it is tolde the heathen, and Geſem hath ſayde it, that thou and the Jewes thinke to rebell, for yͤ which cauſe thou buyldeſte the wall that thou mayeſt be theyr king in theſe matters, and haſt ordeined the prophetes to preache of thee at Jeruſalem, and to ſaye: He is king of Juda. And now ſhal this come to yͤ kinges eares, come now therfore, and let vs take our counſel together. And I ſent vnto him, ſaying: there is no ſuche thinges done as yͧ ſaieſt, for thou faineſt thē out of thine own hert. For they wer al minded to make vs afraide, ſayinge: they ſhall withdrawe theyr handes from the worke, that it ſhall not be finiſhed. Howbeit, I ſtrengthed my hande yͤ more. And I came vnto yͤ houſe of Semeia the ſonne of Delaia the ſonne of

Mehetabeel

Mehetabeell, and he had ſhut himſelf wͭin, and ſayde: lette vs come together into the houſe of God, euen vnto the middes of the temple, and ſhut yͤ dores of the temple, for they wyll come to ſleye the: yea, euen in the nighte will they come to put thee to death.
And I ſaid: ſhould any ſuch man as I flie?
C Who is that beyng as I am, that wil goe into the temple, to ſaue his lyfe? I will not goe in. And I perceyued, that God hadde not ſent him. Yet ſpake he prophecye vpon me, neuertheleſſe Tobiah and Sanabalat had hyred him for moneye. Therefore toke he the money, that through feare I ſhould ſo doe, and ſinne: that they myghte haue an euyl reporte of me, to blaſpheme me. My God thynke thou vpon Tobiah and Sanabalat accordig vnto theſe their workes, and of the prophete Noadia, and of the other prophetes that woulde haue put me in feare. And the wall was finiſhed on the D fyue and twentye day of the moneth Elul, in two and fyftye dayes. And when al our enemies hearde thereof, al the heathen that were aboute vs, were afrayde, and theyr courage fayled them. And they perceiued, that this worke came of our God. And at theſame time were there many of the chyef of Iuda, whoſe letters wente vnto Tobiah, and agayne from Tobiah vnto them (for there were manye in Iuda, that were ſworne vnto hym, for he was the ſonne in law of Sechania, the ſonne of Arah, & his ſonne Iehonathan had the daughter of Meſullam, the ſõne of Barachia, and they ſpake good of hym before me, & tolde hym my woordes) and Tobyah ſent letters, to put me in feare.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

After the wall once builded, is the watch appointed. They that returned from the captiuitie are numbred.

A NOw whẽ the wal was builded, I hanged on the dores alſo, & the porters, ſingers, and Leuites were appointed. And I commaunded my brother Hanani, and Hanania the ruler of the caſtel at Ieruſalem: for he was a faythful man, & feared god more thẽ did many other. And I ſayd vnto them: let not the gates of Ieruſalẽ be opened vntill the ſunne be whote.
And while they wer ſtanding in the watch, they ſhut the dores, and barred them: And we appointed certain citeſins of Ieruſalẽ, appoĩted to be watch mẽ, euery one to kepe hys watche, & euery one to be ouer againſt hys houſe. As for the cytie, it was large of roume, & great: but the people were fewe therin, & the houſes were not builded. And B my god gaue me in my hearte, that I gathered together the principal men, & the of-

E The Leuites. The chyldren of Ieſua of Cadmyel, and of the chyldren of Hoduah, foure and ſeuentye. The ſyngers: The children of Aſaph, an hundred and eyghte and fourty. The porters: The chyldrē of Sallum, the chyldren of Ater, the chyldren of Talmon, the chyldren of Acub, the children of Hatita, the childrē of Sobai, altogether an hundred and eight and thyrty. The Nethinims. The chyldren of ziha, the children of Haſupha: the chyldren of Tebahoth, the chyldren of Ceros: the chyldren of Sia, yͤ chyldren of Phadon: the children of Lebanah: the children of Hagaba, the children of Salmai, the chyldren of Hanan: the childrē of Gidel: the children of Gaher: the childrē of Reaia, the children of Rezin: the childrē of Necoda: the children of Gaſam: the children of Uſa: the chyldren of Phaſeah, the children of Beſai, the children of Meunim, the children of Nephuſim, the chyldren of Bachuc, the children of Hachupha, the children of Harhur, the chyldren of Bazlith, the chyldren of Mehida, the children of Harſa, the chyldren of Barcos, the chyldren of Siſſera: the childrē of Thamah, the childrē of Neziah, the chyldren of Hatipha.

F The chyldren of Salomons ſeruauntes: the chyldren of Sotai, the chyldren of Sophereth, the chyldren of Pherida, the chyldren of Iaala, the chyldren of Darcon, the chyldren of Giddell, the chyldren of Saphatiah, the chyldren of Hatyl, the chyldrē of Pochereth of zabaim, yͤ children of Amon. All theſe Nethinims, and yͤ chyldren of Salomons ſeruauntes, were three hundred, nynetye and two.

And theſe went vppe alſo of Thel Mela, Thel Harſa, Cherub, Adon, and Immer: but they coulde not ſhewe theyr fathers houſe, nor theyr ſeede, and that they were of Iſraell. The chyldren of Dalaiah: the chyldren of Thobia, and the children of Nechoda, ſyxe hundred and two and fourtye. And of the Pryeſtes the chyldren of Habaiah, the chyldren of Hacos, the chyldren of Berſilai: whyche tooke one of the daughters of Berſilai the Gilladite to wyfe, and was named after theyr name. Theſe ſoughte theyr wrytynge in yͤ regiſter of theyr generacion, but they were not founde, therefore they were put from the Pryeſthoode.

And Hathirſata ſayd vnto them, that they ſhoulde not eate of the moſte holye, tyl there came vppe a Pryeſte whiche ſhould weare Urim and Thumim. And ſo the whole congregacion together was two & fourtye thouſande, three hundred and thre ſcore, beſydes theyr ſeruauntes and maydens, of whome there were ſeuē thouſand, three hundred, and ſeuen and thyrtye. And they hadde two hundred, and ſeuen and fourtye ſyngynge men and wemen. G Theyr horſes, ſeuen hundred and ſyxe and thyrty, and their mules two hundred and fiue and fourtye. The camels foure hundred and .v. and thyrtye: ſyxe thouſande, ſeuen hundred and twentye aſſes. And certain of the auncient fathers gaue vnto the worke. Hathirſatha gaue to the treaſure a thouſande pieces of golde, fyfty baſens, fiue hundred and thirty Prieſtes garmentes. And ſome of the chiefe fathers gaue vnto the treaſure of the worke, twentye thouſande pyeces of golde, and two thouſand and two hundred pound of ſiluer. And the other people gaue twentye thouſande pieces of golde, & two thouſande pounde of ſiluer, and three ſcore and ſeuen Pryeſtes garmentes. And the Pryeſtes and Leuites, the porters and the ſyngers and the other of the people, and the Nethinims and all Iſraell, dwelte in theyr cities: And the ſeuenth moneth came, and the chyldren of Iſraell were in theyr cytyes.

The .viii. Chapter.

Eſdras gathereth together the people, and readeth to them, the law. They kepe the feaſt of tabernacles or bothes.

AND all * the people gathered them ſelues together, as one manne, in the ſtrete that was beefore the watergate, and they ſayde vnto Eſdras the ſcrybe, that he ſhoulde fetche * the booke of the law of Moſes, whyche the lorde commaunded to Iſraell. And Eſdras the Pryeſte brought the lawe before the congregacion both of men and women: and all that coulde vnder- A ſtande dydde hearken vnto it, vpon the fyrſte day of the ſeuenth moneth: and he read therein, in the ſtreete that was beefore the watergate (from the mornynge vntyll the noone daye) before menne and weomenne that dyd hearken to it: and the eares of all the people were inclyned vnto the booke of the lawe. And Eſdras the Scrybe ſtoode vpon an hye pulpit of wood, which they had made for the preching, and beſyde him ſtode Mathathia, Sema, Anania, Vriah, Helkia, and Maaſeia: on his right hande, and on hys lefte hande ſtoode Pedaia, Miſael, Malchia, Haſum, Haſebadana, zachari, and Meſulam.

B And Eſdras opened the boke before the people, for he ſtode aboue al the people: And when he opened it, all the people ſtoode vp. And Eſdras prayſed the Lord the great God. And al the people aunſwered: Amen, Amen, with theyr handes vp, and bowed themſelues, and wurſhipped the Lorde, fallyng downe vpon theyr faces to the ground. And Ieſua, Baam, Serabiah, Iamin, Acub, Sebathai, Hadaia, Maaſia, Celita, Azaria, Iozabad, Hanan, Pelaia, & the Leuites cauſed the people to geue hede vnto the lawe, and the people ſtode in their place.
And they read in the boke of the lawe of God diſtinctly and playnly, ſo that menne vnderſtode the thing that was read. And Nehemiah (which is Hathirſatha) & Eſdras the Prieſte and ſcribe, and the Leuites that cauſed yͤ people to take hede, ſayd vnto al the people: this day is holy vnto the Lord your God: be not you ſory, & wepe not. For al the people wepte, when they hearde the woordes of the ſd.9.g lawe. And he ſayde vnto them: *go your C waye and eate the fatte, and drynke the ſwete, and ſend part vnto them alſo that haue not prepared themſelues: for thys day is holye vnto our Lorde, bee not ye ſory therfore: for the ioye of the lorde is your ſtrengthe. And the Leuites ſtylled al yͤ people, & ſayd: holde your peace, for the day is holye, vexe not ye your ſelfes.
And al the people wente theyr waye to eate and drynke, and to ſende parte vnto other, and to make great myrth: becauſe they had vnderſtande the woordes that wer declared vnto them. And on the next daye were gathered together the chiefe fathers amonge all the people, and the Prieſtes and Leuites, vnto Eſdras the ſcribe, that they myghte vnderſtande the woordes of the lawe. And they founde written in the law, *(which the lord had Leu.23.f commaunded by Moſes) that the chyldren Nu.29.b. of Iſrael ſhoulde dwell in bothes, 2.mac.1.c in the feaſte of the ſeauenth moneth, and that they ſhoulde cauſe it to bee declared and proclamed in al theyr cities, and throweout Ieruſalem, ſaying: goe foorth vnto the mounte, and fetche oliue braunches, pinebranches, myrbranches, palmebranches, D and braunches of thicke trees, to make bothes, as it is written. And ſo the people went furth, and fet them, and made them bothes, euerye one vpon the roofe of his houſe, and in theyr courtes, and in the courtes of the houſe of God, and in the ſtrete by the watergate, and in the ſtrete by porte Ephraim. And all the congregacion of them that were come again out of the captiuitie, made bothes, & ſate vnder the bothes: for ſynce the time of Ioſua the ſonne of Nun vnto thys day, had not the children of Iſrael done ſo, and there was very great gladneſſe.
And euery daye from the firſte day vnto the laſte, read Eſdras in the booke of the law of God. And ſeuen dayes helde they the feaſt, and on the eight day they gathered together, according vnto the maner.

The .ix. Chapter.

The people repent, and forſake theyr ſtraunge knowledged and wurſhypped the lorde their god .iiii. times on the daye. And the Leuites ſtode on hye, namely Ieſua, Bani, Cadmiell, Sabaniah, Buni, Sarebiah, Bani and Canani, and cried loude vnto the lord their God. And the Leuites, Ieſua and Cadmiel, Bani and Haſabnia, Serebia and Hodia, Sebania and Phathahya, ſayde: ſtande vp, and prayſe the

And their brethren Sechania, Hodia, Celita, Pelaia,Hanan,Micha, Rehob,and Haſabiah,Sachur,Serebia,Sabania,Hodia, Bani and Beninu. The heades of the people were, Phares the captayne of Moab,Elam, zathu and Bany, Bony, Aſgad, Bebai,Adonia,Begoai,Adin,Ater, Hezekia,Aſur,Hodia,Haſum,Beſai,Harip, Anathoth and Nebai, Magphias, Meſulā,Heſir, Meſeſabel,zadoc, Iaddua, Phalatia, Hanan, Anaia, Hoſea, Hanania,Haſub,Halohes,Phalea,Sobek, Rehum, Haſebna, Maaſia, Ahia, Hanan and Anan, Malluch, Harim, and Baana. B And the other people, ẏ Prieſtes, Leuites,porters,Singers,Nethinims ⁊ al they that had ſeparated themſelues from the people in the landes vnto the lawe of God, with theyr wyues, theyr ſonnes and theyr daughters, and as many as coulde vnderſtand, ⁊ theyr lordes that had rule of thē,receyued it for theyr brethren.*And they came to ſweare and Io 24.f 2.Pa.15.e to bind themſelues with an oth to walke in Gods law, which was geuen by Moſes the ſeruāt of god:⁊ that they would obſerue ⁊ do accordyng vnto al the commaundementes,iudgementes ⁊ ſtatutes of the lord our God:⁊ that we woulde Deut.7.a not geue our daughters vnto ẏ people, in the lande,neither to take theyr daughters for oure ſonnes.*And if the people 2.Eſ.13.c of the land broughte ware on the Saboth,and all maner of vitayles to ſell,ẏ we would not take it of them on ẏ Saboth and on the holye dayes:⁊ that we Leut.25.a Deu.15.a woulde let the ſeauenth yere be free,concernyng all maner of charge. C And we decreed a ſtatute vpon our ſelues,to geue yerely the thirde parte of a ſicle to the miniſtracion in the houſe of our God,to the ſhewbread, to the dayly meateoffring,to the daylye burnte offeryng of the Sabbothes,of the newe moones and feaſtedayes, and to the thinges that were ſanctifyed, and to ỹ offeringes of attonement to reconcile Iſrael withal, and to all the buſines in the houſe of our god. And we caſt the lot among the prieſtes, Leuites, and the people, for offeryng of the wood to bee broughte vnto the houſe of oure god from yere to yere, after the houſes of our fathers: that it myghte bee brente at times appoynted, vpon the aulter of the Lorde God, as it is written in the lawe: and to bring the firſtlinges of our lande, and the firſtlynges of our fruites of all trees, yere by yere vnto the houſe of the D Lord: and the firſtlinges of our ſonnes, and of our cattell, as it is written in the lawe, and the firſtlinges of our oxen and of our ſhepe, which we ſhould bring to ỹ houſe of our God, vnto the prieſtes that miniſter in the houſe of our god: and ỹ we ſhould bring ỹ firſtlynges of our dough and of our heueofferynges, & the fruites of all maner of trees, of wine alſo, and of oyle, vnto the Prieſtes, to the cheſtes of the houſe of our God. And the tythes of our land vnto the Leuites, ỹ the Leuites might haue the tythes in all the cities of our miniſtracion. And the Prieſt the ſõne of Aaron ſhal with the Leuites, haue alſo of the tythes of the Leuites, ſo that ỹ Leuites ſhal bring vp the tithes of their tythes vnto the houſe of our God, to the ſtore houſes, and to the treaſure houſes.

For the children of Iſraell, and the chyldren of Leui, ſhal bring vp the heueofferynges of the corne, wyne and oyle vnto the ſtore houſes, there as are the veſſels of the Sanctuary: and the Prieſtes that minyſter, and the porters and ſyngers, that we forſake not ỹ houſe of oure god.

The .xi. Chapter.

Who dwelled in Ieruſalem after it was builded, and who in the cities of Iuda.

A AND the rulers of the people dwelte at Ieruſalem: The other people alſo caſte lottes, that among .x. one parte ſhould

¶The .xii. Chapter.

The prieſtes and Leuites which came with zorobabel vnto Jeruſalem are numbred, and the walle is dedicate.

A These are the Prieſtes and Leuites that wente vp with zorobabel the ſonne of Salathiel, and with Jeſua, Sararia, Jeremy and Eſdras, Amaria, Maluch, Hatus, Sechadia, Rehum, Merimoth, Iddo, Genthoi, Abia, Miamin, Maaria, Belga, Semeia, Joiarib, Jadaia, Salu, Amocke, Heikia ⁊ Jadaia: Theſe were the heades among the prieſtes, and theyr brethren, in the dayes of Jeſua. The Leuites wer theſe: Jeſua, Bennui, Cadmil, Sarabia, Juda, and Mathania, whiche was ouer the office of thankeſgeuing, he and his brethrē. Bacbukia and Himni, and theyr brethren, were about them in the watches. Jeſua begat Joakim: Joakim alſo begat Eliaſib: and Eliaſib begat Joiada: Joiada begat Jonathan: and Jonathan begat Jadua. In the dayes of Joakim were theſe the chiefe fathers among the Prieſtes: vnder Sararia, Maraia: vnder Jeremye, Hanania: vnder Eſdras, Meſullam: vnder Amaria, Jehoanan: vnder Melico, Jonathan: vnder Sebania, Joſeph: vnder Harim, Adna: vnder Maraioth, Helca: vnder Iddo, zachari: vnder Genthon, Meſullam: vnder Abia, zichri: vnder Miniamin and Moadia, Piltai: vnder Belga, Samua: vnder Semeia, Jehonathā: vnder Joiarib, Mathenai: vnder Jadaia, Uſi: vnder Selai, Kelai: vnder Amok, Eber: vnder Helchia, Haſabia: vnder Jadaia, Nathanael. B And in the tyme of Eliaſib, Joadia, Johanan and Jadua, were the chiefe fathers among the Leuites and the Prieſtes, written vnder the reigne of Darius the Perſian. The children of Leui, the pryncypal fathers were written in the Chronicles vnto the tyme of Jonathan the ſonne of Eliaſib. And theſe were the chiefe amōg the Leuites: Haſabia, Serebia, ⁊ Jeſua the ſonne of Cadmiel, ⁊ their brethren in theyr preſence to geue prayſe ⁊ thankes, according as Dauid the man of god had ordeyned it, one watch ouer againſt another: Mathania, Balbukia, Obadia, Meſullam, Talmon and Acub were porters in the watche at the threſholdes of the gates. Theſe were in the dayes of Joakim the ſonne of Jeſua, the ſonne of Joſedec, and in the dayes of Nehemia the captayne, ⁊ of the Prieſt Eſdras the Scribe. And in ẏ dedicacion of ẏ walle at Jeruſalē, they ſought ẏ Leuites out of all theyr places, that they mighte bee brought to Jeruſalē to kepe ẏ dedicaciō ⁊ gladnes, wͭ thankeſgeuinges ⁊ ſinging with cimbales, pſalteries ⁊ harpes. And the children of the ſingers gathered thēſelfes together from euery ſide out of ẏ plain coūtrey about Jeruſalem, ⁊ from ẏ villages of Netophathi, from ẏ houſe of Gilgal, ⁊ out of ẏ cūtreies of Geba, ⁊

Aſmaueth: for the ſyngers had builded them villages round about Jeruſalem.
And the Prieſtes and Leuites were purified, ⁊ clenſed the people, and the gates and the walle. And J broughte the princes of Juda vp vpon the walle, and appoynted two great quieres of menne to geue thankes, which went on the ryghte C hand of the walle toward ẏ dong gate, ⁊ after them went Hoſaia, and halfe of the Princes of Juda, and Aſaria, Eſdras, ⁊ Meſullam, Juda, Beniamin, Semia ⁊ Jeremy: ⁊ certayn of the prieſtes childrẽ with trompettes, namely zachari ẏ ſõne of Jonathan, the ſonne of Semeia, the ſonne of Mathania, ẏ ſonne of Michaia the ſonne of zacur, ẏ ſonne of Aſaph and his brethren, Semeia, Aſarael, Malalai Gilalai, Maai, Nathanael, ⁊ Juda ⁊ Hanani, with ẏ muſical inſtrumẽtes of Dauid ẏ man of god. And Eſdras ẏ ſcribe went before them, ⁊ beſyde the welgate, they went vp ouer agaynſt them vpon ẏ ſteppes of the citie of Dauid, at ẏ going vp of the wall beyond the houſe of Dauid, vnto the watergate Eaſtward. The other quiere of them that gaue thankes, went ouer agaynſt them, ⁊ J after them, and the halfe part of the people vpon the walle, beyonde the fornace gate vnto the brode walle, ⁊ beyond ẏ port of Ephraim, ⁊ beyond the olde gate, beyond ẏ fiſhgate, ⁊ the tower of Hananaell, ⁊ the tower of Mea, vntil ẏ ſhepegate. And they ſtode ſtil in the prieſon gate, and ſo ſtode the two quieres (of them that gaue thankes) in the houſe of God: ⁊ J and ẏ halfe of the rulers with me, and the prieſtes, namelye Eliakim, Maaſia, Miniamin, Michaia, Elioenai, zachari, ⁊ Hanania, with trompettes, ⁊ Maaſia, Semeiah, D Eleaſar, Vrſi, Jehohanan, Melchiah, Elam ⁊ Ser. And the ſyngers ſang loude, hauing Jeſtahiah for their ouerſeer. And the ſame day they offered great ſacrifices ⁊ reioiſed: for god had geuen them great gladnes, ſo ẏ both the wyues and chyldren were ioyful: and the mirth of Jeruſalem was heard farre of. At the ſame time were there men appointed ouer the treaſure houſes (wherin were the heueofferynges, the firſtlinges, ⁊ the tythes) that they ſhoulde gather them out of the fieldes aboute the cities, to diſtrybute them vnto the Prieſtes and Leuites, according to the lawe: for Juda was glad of the Prieſtes and Leuites, that they ſtode ⁊ wayted vpon the offyce of their God, which is a pure office. And the ſyngers ⁊ porters ſtode after the commaũdement of Dauid, and of Salomon hys ſonne, *for in ẏ time of Dauid ⁊ Aſaph, 1.Par. were the chiefe ſingers founded, and the ſonges of prayſe ⁊ thankeſgeuyng vnto God. In the time of zorobabell, and Nehemiah did al they of Jſraell, geue porcions vnto the ſingers and porters, euery daye his porcion, and they gaue tithes vnto the Leuites, and the Leuites gaue tythes again vnto the children of Aaron. *b.Eſ.5.c.

The .xiii. Chapter.

The lawe is read, and when they haue heard it they ſeparate from them al ſtraungers. ⁊c.

AND that daye did they reade in the A boke of Moſes, ⁊ the people harkened therto, ⁊ there was foũd written, *that ẏ Ammonites and Moabites De. ſhould neuer come into the congregacion of god, becauſe they met not the children of Jſrael with breade ⁊ water: *but hyred Nu.
Balaam againſt thẽ, that he ſhoulde curſe them, and our god turned the curſe into a bleſſing. Now when they heard ẏ law, it fortuned that they ſeparated frõ Jſrael euery one that had mixt himſelfe therein. And before this had the prieſt Eliaſib the ouerſighte of the treaſurye of the houſe of our God, and he was kynſman to Tobia: ⁊ had made him a greate chaumbre, and there had they afore tyme layde the offeringes, frankẽſence, veſſel, and the tythes of corne, wyne ⁊ oyle (according to the commaundemente geuen to the Leuites, ſingers and porters) and the heueofferinges of the prieſtes. But in B al thys tyme was not J at Jeruſalem: for in the .xxxii. yere of Arthaxerſes king of Babilon, came J vnto the kyng, and after certayn dayes obtayned J lycence of the king to come to Jeruſalem. And J gate knoweledge of the euyll that Eliaſib did vnto Tobia, in that he hadde made him a chaumbre in the court of the houſe of god, and it grieued me ſore: and J caſt furth al the veſſelles of the houſe of Tobia oute of the chambre, and commaunded them to clenſe the chaumbres.
And thither brought J again ẏ veſſelles of the houſe of god, with ẏ meatoffering and the incenſe. And J perceiued that the porcions of the Leuites were not geuen them, and that euerye one fledde to hys lande, euen the Leuites and ſyngers that executed the worke. Then reproued ued I the rulers,and ſayde: why is the houſe of God forſaken? And I gathered them together, and ſette them in theyr place. Then brought al Iuda the tythes of corne and wine,and oyle, vnto the treſure. And I made treaſurers ouer ẏ treſure,euen Selemiah the Prieſt, and zadoc the ſcribe, and of the Leuites, Phadaia,and vnder theyr hande was Hanan the ſonne of zacur, the ſonne of Mathania,for they were counted faythfull,and theyr office was to diſtribute the porcyons vnto theyr brethren.* Thynke vpon me,O my God herein,and wype not out my mercye that I haue ſhewed on the houſe of my God, and on the offyces thereof. At the ſame tyme ſawe I ſome treadyng winepreſſes on the Sabboth, and bryngyng in ſheues,and aſſes laden with wine,grapes,figges,and bringing all maner of burthens vnto Ieruſalem vpon the Sabboth day. And I rebuked them earneſtlye the ſame daye that they C ſolde the vittayles. There dwelt men of Tyre alſo therein, which broughte fyſhe and all maner of ware, and ſolde on the Sabboth vnto the chyldren of Iuda in Ieruſalem. Then reproued I the rulers in Iuda,and ſayde vnto them: what euil thing is this that ye doe, and breake the Sabboth day? Dyd not your fathers euen thus, and our God brought all thys plage vpon vs,and vpon thys citie? And ye make the wrath more yet vpon Iſrael,in that ye breake the Sabboth. And it fortuned that when the portes of Ieruſalem began to be darke in the euening before the Sabboth, I commaunded to ſhutte the gates, and charged that they ſhoulde not be opened til atter the Sab-both:and ſome of my ſeruantes ſet I at the gates,that there ſhoulde no burthen be brought in on the Sabboth day. Thẽ remained ẏ chapmen ⁊ marchantes once or twiſe ouer night without Ieruſalem, with al maner of wares. Then reproued I them ſore, ⁊ ſayd vnto them: why tary ye al night about the walle? If ye doe it once agayn,I wil lay handes vpon you.

From that time furth came they no more on the Sabboth. And I ſayd vnto ẏ Le-uites ẏ they ſhoulde clenſe themſelues, ⁊ that they ſhoulde come ⁊ kepe the gates, D to halow ẏ Sabboth day. Thynke vpon me(O my god) concerning this alſo,and ſpare me according to thy great mercy.
And at the ſame time ſaw I Iewes that maried wiues of Aſdod, of Ammon,and of Moab, and theyr children ſpake halfe in the ſpeche of Aſdod, and coulde not ſpeake in the Iewes language, but by ẏ tong might a man perceiue euery people. Then I reproued them,and curſed them,and ſmote certayne men of them, ⁊ made them bare, ⁊ toke an oth of them by God: Ye ſhall not geue your daughters vnto their ſõnes,neither ſhal ye take their daughters vnto your ſõnes, or for your ſelues. Did not Salomõ the king of Iſ-rael ſinne for ſuch? and yet among manye heathẽ was there no king like him which was dere vnto his god, ⁊ god made him kyng ouer all Iſrael: ⁊ yet neuertheleſſe, outlandiſh weomen cauſed him to ſinne.
Shal we then obey vnto you, to doe all this great euil, ⁊ to tranſgreſſe agaynſte our God,and mary ſtrange wyues? And one of the children of Iehoiada the ſonne of Eliaſib the hye prieſt, had made a contract with Sanabalat the Horonite: but I chaſed him fro me:(O my god) thinke thou vpon them that defyle the Prieſthood,and the couenant of the prieſthod ⁊ of the Leuites. Thus clenſed I them from al ſuch as were outlandyſhe, ⁊ ap-poynted the courſes of the prieſtes and Leuites euery one in his office,and to offer the wood at tymes appoynted,and ẏ firſte fruites: Thynke thou vpon me (O my God) for the beſt. (Amen.)

¶ The booke of Eſther.

The firſt Chapter.

King Ahaſuerus maketh a royal feaſt, wherunto ẏ quene Vaſthi wil not come, for which cauſe ſhe is deuorſed.

IT fortuned, in ẏ dayes of A- A haſuerus, which reigned frõ India vnto Ethiopia (ouer an.C.⁊.xxvii.landes) euẽ in thoſe dayes when ẏ king A-haſuerus ſat on his ſeate royal, whiche was in Suſan ẏ chiefe citie, in the thirde yere of his reigne: he made a feaſt vnto al his princes ⁊ ſeruauntes. And ẏ mighty menne of Perſia and Media, the Cap-
